

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

THIS little book, of scarcely more than three hundred pages, is yet the fruit of much toil. It marks the fulfilment (in some sense) of a hope expressed more than thirty years ago in the Preface to an Edition of St Paul's Epistle to the Romans, that I might live 'to carry a similar process into another Epistle'—I said, 'of St Paul,' for I did not then contemplate the selection of the particular Epistle before us.

A new work on the Epistle to the Hebrews ought on all accounts to be modest and even apologetic. When Delitzsch, on the conclusion (in 1859) of his own work, drew up his long list of previous interpreters, his catalogue of English commentators was 'meagre in the extreme; and of the few English annotators mentioned by him scarcely one has retained a permanent hold upon the attention of his countrymen. The case is altered now. And it is at least a noticeable coincidence, that within the last seven years there have been (including the V. H. present volume) no less than four commentaries on the Epistle to the Hebrews by four ex-Fellows of one great College, who were all, some thirty years ago, Masters in one great School. When it is added that one of these is the Bishop of Durham-stepping at this moment, as if 'baptized for the dead,' into the place of the lamented Bishop Lightfootit does indeed seem as though commentaries on the Epistle to the Hebrews ought to stop with his, at least until a new generation shall have added something to the theological learning, and something to the spiritual insight, of that to which he has ministered. Bishop Westcott's work on the Epistle to the Hebrews appeared too recently to permit me to make use of it. Indeed it is more than probable that, had I seen his work in time, it would have led me to give up my own. When he reaps his field, he leaves no corners of it for the gleaner.

But every man has his proper gift of God. Every man who has devoted time and thought to the study of Scripture has something to say which another has not said and cannot say for him. The apology which I would make for this little offering to the beloved Church of England is simple and perhaps sufficient. This publication is just the record of the latest thoughts upon the sacred book in question of one whose time has been largely given, for the last thirty years, to the work of explaining the Greek Testament to a long succession of students for Ordination, who have accepted his help at that critical period of their life, and have given back to him more than they can have received in the stimulus thus applied to his own study of the Bible.

In writing upon the Epistle to the Romans I claimed the position of an independent suggester. Without affecting an originality which can scarcely belong to any one, and the ambition of which has so often been the cankerworm of exegesis, I did profess an independent work and the exercise of an independent judgment, and I thought that in doing so I gave the only reason why I should write at all. The same independence I would assert once again, in offering to my readers this commentary upon an Epistle scarcely second in importance even to that.

But there is one qualification. Common honesty requires its avowal.

In reading the Epistle again and again during these thirty years with my students, I have made great use of Delitzsch. My copy of the English translation of his Commentary is disfigured, almost defaced, by pencil notes in its margin, often of approval, sometimes of dissent, always of respectful appreciation; and I can wish nothing better for my own work than that some traces of his profound knowledge, something of his deep insight, something (above all) of his invincible faith, may be found impressed upon the pages which are here given to the reader.

When I wrote upon the Epistle to the Romans (a work first published in 1859) I was indebted to my beloved and revered friend, then my colleague at Harrow, the present Bishop of Durham, for the text of my Edition. Textual criticism was then an untrodden field to me: it is almost so now. But in the interval what was then a personal privilege has become the property of the Public. The text of Dr Westcott and Dr Hort, however sharply or even rudely criticized on its first appearance, is quietly (I think) winning its way to the same general acceptance which it commanded in the Jerusalem Chamber from the Revisers of the Authorized Ver. sion. Here and there one may venture to think that internal considerations might be allowed a voice, though a faltering one, amidst the higher authorities of the new criticism; but one bows before the profound learning, the lifelong experience, above all the devout reverence, which have guided each separate decision and breathe unmistakably in the whole. In the Epistle to the Hebrews there are scarcely more than two or three passages involving any textual question of serious importance.

It has been my earnest effort to catch the plain

sense, and to trace the developing thought, of each clause and sentence and paragraph. Wherever there seemed to be any ambiguity, I have confessed it, I have sometimes offered an alternative, but I have generally expressed a preference. If in some cases earnestness of conviction has led to an overpositiveness of assertion, I can but express once for all my deep sense of the fault. 'He must be a man of boundless hardihood who could imagine himself to have sounded the depths of a single book or a single sentence of Scripture.'

It has been said that the time for such commentaries as the present is gone by. Verbal criticism, verbal illustration, verbal examination of any kind, is pronounced to have had its day. The time is now come, we are told, for something larger, something bolder, more philosophical, at all events more startling. We are reminded that there is progression in all things, and not least in the interpretation of Scripture. Scripture itself, if it expects still to be listened to, must be made to say something new: 'one generation passeth away, and another generation cometh'-each, we are told, must have its own Bible, or it will look elsewhere than to Revelation for its 'lively oracles.' Still less can we expect permanence for the work of any individual toiler: he may carry the lamp for one stage of the race, but it is only that he may relinquish and hand it on.

Not with the hope of arresting the course of such changes of taste in divine things, but under a strong conviction of the truth of what I say, let me write it down—that I have never known the application of the microscope to one phrase or one word of holy Scripture, which did not discover something not only interesting to the expositor, but profitable also spiritually to the student.

Some impatience has been expressed, in recent reviews, of an accumulation of parallel passages in illustration of the phraseology of the Greek Testament. Any one, it is said, can write out a column of his Bruder or his Trommius. If this were all, the impatience would be just and might be salutary. But this is not all. It is no mechanical process, but one of great nicety and delicacy, which examines and weighs, chooses and refuses, among the endless apparent parallels of which only one in ten or one in a hundred may be real. The expenditure of eyesight and of brainwork demanded by this part of the task is at once severe and for the most part thankless. Even the decision between passages to be only mentioned for reference and passages demanding full quotation is often perplexing, little as it may impress or even be noticed by the reader. But he who would interpret Scripture by Scriptureand this alone deserves the name of interpretationmust gird himself for the effort, and if but one thoughtful reader follows him the effort is not made in vain.

I have added in an Appendix a very few longer comments than the notes admitted upon special texts and topics. It was scarcely possible to avoid altogether the great question of Inspiration. The one postulate of the Epistle to the Hebrews is the Inspiration of the Old Testament. How much this involves, and what it does not involve, seemed to require a few suggestions, negative and affirmative. It is the glory of this great Epistle to be in many senses the Gospel of the Old Testament. To assert the presence and influence of 'the breath of God' in the whole structure and composition of the Bible; to see an intention in its dark sayings, a meaning in its types, and a sequence in its arrangement; to show that, although 'the testimony of Jesus is (throughout) the spirit of prophecy,' the education of the world nevertheless required that the revelation should be made gradually, 'in divers parts and ways,' leading up to a 'dispensation of the fulness of times' in which God should at last manifest Himself in His Son; this is the special office of the Epistle before us-Epistle, treatise, and homily in one: no generation needed it more than our own, and the growing attention paid to it shows that the need is felt.

I leave to larger works and more learned writers the discussion of the still unanswered questions, who was the writer, and who were the first readers, of the Epistle. These are interesting and important enquiries. But the authorship in this case is not vital to the authority. And as to the authority, which is in other words the canonicity, of the Epistle, the brief summary of fact is unchallenged, (1) that, although it suffered an eclipse lasting for two centuries (not the first, however, after its writing) in the Latin half of the Church, yet from earliest times it was accepted as inspired Scripture by that other half of the Christian world to which it first spoke, and which had a nearer access to its witnesses and its credentials; and (2) that a time came, before the fourth century ended, when, under the judicial guidance of the two greatest of the Latin fathers. the authoritative verdict of the third Council of Carthage stamped it with that seal of canonical sanctity which the Church of all later generations has recognized as final.

The question of authorship is secondary to that of authority. It was not usual with the very earliest fathers to name authors in their quotations. As soon as the Epistle before us is ascribed to any author, it is ascribed to St Paul. No adverse testimony to this authorship is found before Tertullian. The great Alexandrine fathers, Clemens and Origen, impressed by its unlikeness in style to St

Paul's acknowledged writings, account for this discrepancy, the one by the supposition of a Hebrew original translated by St Luke, the other by that of a composition of which the thoughts are St Paul's but the words those of St Luke or Clement of Rome. The very conjectures should reprove the arrogance which imputes to the early Church either haste or credulity in the formation of the sacred Canon. Neither candour nor intelligence had its birth, as some would persuade us, in the opening years of the century now closing. The criticism of Alexandria was as keen and as outspoken as that of this day in Germany or England: and the particular criticism of which we are speaking has taken no step, certainly no stride, towards finality since the age of Clement and Origen.

It is easy to make a long list of resemblances and differences between the language of the Epistle to the Hebrews and that of the undoubted letters of St Paul. There are passages in the Epistle in which we might seem to hear his very voice. Such are the closing words, telling of the release of Timothy, and of the prospect of the writer's visiting with him the Church addressed. Like, yet not too much like, the passage in Phil. ii. 19–24, in which he purposes presently to send Timothy, and hopes that he also himself shall come shortly. The second chapter of our Epistle gives us a quotation used by St Paul himself in writing to the Corinthians, and comments upon it almost to the same purpose. The argument of the fourth chapter recalls, at least by its ellipses, that of the third chapter of the letter to the Galatians; and the reproofs of the sixth and tenth chapters rival in their severity, and not less in their alternations of severity and tenderness, those of the fourth and fifth chapters of the same Epistle to Galatia. To say that there is no indication in the Epistle of any other doctrine than the Evangelical system of St Paul is to say little more than that both are Scripture; but the Scripture of both alike differs widely in expression from the Scripture of St James or of St John. Even passages of which the first reading suggests the comment, 'This cannot be St Paul,' may find their parallels somewhere, if not in his written words, yet in records of his speeches by St Luke: as, for example, the grand opening of the Epistle before us in the main paragraph of his address at Athens (Acts xvii. 24); and the clause most unlike him of all, 'confirmed unto us by them that heard Him' (Heb. ii. 3), in his own argument at Antioch in Pisidia (Acts xiii. 31), 'He was seen many days of them which came up with Him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who are His witnesses unto the people.'

Nevertheless, and in the face of all resemblances and parallels, we echo the voice of Clement and

xiv

Origen in declaring that, however Pauline, the Epistle as we possess it is not St Paul's. Those who have lived for long years in the study of the Epistles can scarcely err in their instinctive perception of a something here which is not there. The position is altogether unlike that, for example, of the Pastoral Epistles. In them we have many more words, and many more topics, new to St Paul since he wrote even to the Colossians, than we have in this letter. But the living man is there, in those letters, and the living man, his very self, is not here. New words are nothing, new topics are nothing: a man lives and learns, a man lives and changes; but a man whose differentia of thought and speech was of one kind, a man whose whole method of treatment and dealing was of one kind, does not turn, in either respect, into another kind as life advances: least of all can we imagine a change into the different kind followed by a change back again-in other words, the Paul of the Romans and the Ephesians changed into the Paul of the Hebrews, and changed back again into the Paul of the Pastoral Epistles. We feel instinctively that such characteristics as we notice in this Epistle-inversions, transpositions, effects artistic rather than natural-belong to another personality than that of St Paul, whose own words (even if we demur to their rendering, or count the words themselves needlessly self-depreciatory) make him 'rude in speech,' while the author of the Epistle to the Hebrews everywhere presents himself as an 'eloquent man' as well as 'mighty in the Scriptures.'

The last reference might suggest the name of Apollos in connexion with the authorship of this Epistle. It is a plausible guess, but the silence of antiquity is unfavourable if not fatal to it. Many similarities of style and language suggest the name of St Luke: they are indeed striking and abundant, and the conjecture of Clement and Origen gives some weight to the inference. Still we could not safely go beyond the position of those great men, which assigns to St Luke not the ideas or the arguments, but at most the shape and the dress. There is no reason to suppose St Luke to have been of Hebrew parentage, and no Hellenist, certainly no proselyte, could have been imbued and saturated, like the author of the Epistle, with all the symbolical mysteries of the Tabernacle. More might be said for Tertullian's ascription of the authorship to Barnabas was a Levitethe Apostle Barnabas. but a Levite whose country was Cyprus, far away from the central home of Judaism, and possessing no recorded connexion with any Church to which it is natural to imagine the Epistle before us to have been addressed.

There are many things which we would know, and which we know not. The authorship of the Epistle to the Hebrews is one of them. Even the Church to which it was addressed is uncertain. Certain indeed it is that it was one Church, local and definite. A man cannot be 'restored' to a 'dispersion.' such as would be the 'Hebrews' if Jewish birth or Jewish speech were the definition of the title. Scarcely could he be 'restored' to the Churches of a nation or district, such as those of Palestine or of Syria collectively. The Church of Alexandria, as such, does not seem to justify the application of the term 'Hebrews' to it distinctively : nothing but the conjectural authorship of Apollos lends any probability to this view, and Apollos himself, so far as history tells, was an Alexandrian by birth only, not by permanent residence, certainly not by ministerial charge.

We come back to the belief that the Church of Jerusalem was the community addressed in the Epistle to the Hebrews. It alone could enter with full appreciation into the imagery and the typology of the letter. Living in the very focus and centre of Levitical and Rabbinical Judaism, it could feel, as no other Church could feel, the force of every allusion, every argument, every appeal of the absent but (to it) not anonymous writer. The dangers predicted in the great Prophecy were already gathering around Jerusalem. On the very eve of the dreadful catastrophe, the charge laid upon the disciples to recognize the hand of God in the overthrow of the City and Temple was becoming more and more repugnant to flesh and blood. To the Israelite patriotism and religion were one. His was the nation chosen out of all the earth to be God's people. His was the city in which God had set His Name : outside of it there was but the waste howling wilderness of heathenism and the world. Can we wonder that the Voice from the far past sounded more and more faintly in the Jewish-Christian ear, 'When ye shall see Jerusalem compassed with armies, then let them which are in Judea flee to the mountains?' How strong must have been the temptation to say, 'Christ and country, if both can be—at all events, country first, and, if both cannot be, then country alone.'

It was to guard the imperilled Church from this fatal apostasy that a voice from Italy, sympathetic but uncompromising, spoke in this Epistle. Evidently the supremacy of Christ is its key-note. And not the supremacy only, as of one having authority. Rather the thought of Christ as embodying all that the old Dispensation could but prefigure and foretell; the substance of which Sinai was the shadow, the Antitype of Legislator and Priest, of Sabbath and Altar, of Sacrifice and Sanctuary. To have Him is to have all, to lose Him is to lose all. Meanwhile to sit loose to Him is to risk the loss of Him. Stagnation is retrogression, retrogression is towards

apostasy, apostasy is perdition, only a resolute faith can 'win the soul.'

This may suffice to enable us to enter upon the exposition. It will have been seen, in these few sentences, that the Epistle has a direct bearing upon many burning questions of our own day; involving as it does the fulfilment of all earlier Dispensations in the Faith of Jesus Christ, and the supersession of all precedents of Priesthood and Ritual—unless indeed it shall have pleased Him who is 'the end of the Law' to reenact old things as ordinances of the new, by a precept as peremptory as it would be reactionary.

Πολυμερώς και πολυτρόπως πάλαι ο Θεός Ι. Ι

Ι. Ι. Πολυμερώς και πολυ- $\tau \rho o \pi \omega s$ ] The opening of the Epistle is characteristic of the whole. (1) It is a homily rather than a letter. Only in the closing verses does it adopt the epistolary style. (2) It is an anonymous composition ; thus leaving entirely open the question of its authorship. It is no forgery, whoever be the writer. The question is altogether different from that of the genuineness (for example) of the 2nd Epistle of St Peter, where the name is incorporated in the composition. (3) Yet the author was known as such to the readers. This, implied throughout, is asserted at the close. (4) The style is oratorical, marked by artistic inversion and antithesis.

Πολυμερώς] In many parts or portions (Rev. xvi. 19, τρία μέρη. John xix. 23, τέσσαρα μέρη. Neh. xi. 1, έννέα μέρη). Wisdom vii. 22, ἔστι γὰρ ἐν αὐτỹ πνεῦμα ... μονογενές, πολυμερές, κ.τ.λ., where the English Version renders it manifold. The prophetic revelations were made in portions, like the  $\lambda \delta \gamma \iota o \nu$  Kupiou of Isai. xxviii. 13,  $\xi \tau \iota \mu \iota \kappa \rho \delta \nu$ ,  $\xi \tau \iota \mu \iota \kappa \rho \delta \nu$ . The Gospel is one and indivisible, like the  $\chi \iota \tau \omega \nu$  $a \dot{\rho} \dot{\rho} a \phi o s$ ,  $\dot{\upsilon} \phi a \nu \tau \delta s$   $\dot{\delta} \lambda o \nu$  (John xix. 23), because it is the revelation of God in a Person.

πολυτρόπως] In many ways or modes. 4 Macc. iii. 21, πολυτρόποις (Α, πολυτρόπως Β) έχρήσαντο συμφοραîs. It is the opposite of µovórpoπos, uniform, simple: and is found in combination with such words as  $\pi o \iota \kappa i \lambda o \varsigma$  and  $\pi \epsilon \rho \tau \tau \delta s$ , in the sense of versatile, multifarious, &c. The revelations of God to the prophet were various in the manner of their communication (1) to him, as well as (2) by him. (1) Num. xii. 6-8: έὰν γένηται προφήτης ὑμῶν Κυρίῳ, έν δράματι αὐτῷ γνωσθήσομαι, καὶ έν υπνω λαλήσω αυτώ. ούχ ούτως ο θεράπων μου Μωυσής...στόμα κατα στόμα λαλήσω αὐτῷ ἐν εἴδει καί ου δι' αίνιγμάτων, και την δόξαν Kupiov eide  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . (2) Compare the typical acts of Ezekiel or Hosea with the visions of Zechariah and the evangelical predictions of Isaiah. The Gospel is of one mode and form, because in it God reveals Himself ἐν νίφ.

 $\pi a \lambda a_i$ ] A somewhat rare word in Scripture. The only appropriate reference is Jude 4, where, as here, it is applied to Scripture utterances. In 2 Cor. iii. 14 we have  $\tau \eta s \pi a \lambda a u a s \delta a - \theta \eta \kappa \eta s$ , and in connexion with its  $a \nu a \gamma \mu \omega \sigma \iota s$ .

λαλήσας] Having spoken. The agrist sums up the whole series of patriarchal, Mosaic, and prophetic revelations in a single past act. The word  $\lambda a \lambda \epsilon i \nu$ is used (as here) of God's utterances in Luke i. 55, καθώς ἐλάλησεν πρός τοὺς πατέρας ήμῶν. John ix. 29, ήμεις οίδαμεν ότι Μωυσεί λελάληκεν ο Θεός. Acts iii. 21, ών ελάλησεν ο Θεος δια στόματος τών...προφητών. vii. 44, καθώς διετάξατο ο λαλών τῷ Μωυση. I Cor. xiv. 21 (varied from Isai. xxviii. 11, 12, Septuagint) λαλήσω τῷ λαῷ τούτψ...λέγει Κύριος. Heb. v. 5, ό λαλήσας προς αὐτόν, Yiós µov el ov. xii. 25.

τοῖς πατράσιν] In its wider sense; the ancestors of this generation; them of old time. Thus 2 Pet. iii. 4, ἀφ ἦς γὰρ οἱ πατέρες ἐκοιμήθησαν κ.τ.λ. More often with ἡμῶν, ὑμῶν, or αὐτῶν, as iii. 9. Matt. xxiii. 30, 32, ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τῶν πατέρων ὑμῶν. ...τὸ μέτρον τῶν πατέρων ὑμῶν. Luke vi. 23, 26. John vi. 49. Acts vii. 45, 51, 52, τίνα τῶν προφητῶν οὐκ ἐδίωξαν οἱ πατέρες ὑμῶν; xv. 10, ὑν οὕτε οἰ πατέρες ἡμῶν οὕτε ἡμεῖς ἰσχύσαμεν βαστάσαι. xxviii. 25. 1 Cor. x. 1. Elsewhere in the more restricted meaning of the patriarchs; (1) Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; as in Deut. i. 8, τὴν γῆν ῆν ὥμοσα τοῖς πατράσιν ὑμῶν, τῷ ᾿Αβραὰμ καὶ Ἱσαὰκ καὶ Ἱακώβ κ.τ.λ.; or (2) the twelve sons of Jacob; as in Acts vii. 12, 15, Ἱακώβ...ἐξαπέστειλεν τοὺς πατέρας ἡμῶν...καὶ ἐτελεύτησεν αὐτὸς καὶ οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν.

er tois] The contrast with iv vi@ suggests the sense of in the persons of rather than in the writings of. The latter might be supported by Mark i. 2,  $\kappa a \theta \omega_s$ γέγραπται έν τῷ 'Ησαία τῷ προφήτη. John vi. 45, έστιν γεγραμμένον έν τοις προφήταις. Acts xiii. 40, το είρημένον έν τοις προ- $\phi \eta \tau \alpha s$ . xxiv. 14,  $\pi \hat{\alpha} \sigma v \tau \hat{\sigma} s$  kata τόν νόμον καί τοις έν τοις προφήrais yeypaµµévois. Elsewhere the phrase is dia (Matt. i. 22. ii. 5, 15. viii. 17. &c., &c.), δια στόμα-705 (Luke i. 70. Acts i. 16. iii. 18, 21. iv. 25), or έν βίβλω (Acts vii. 42). Here the idea of speaking in seems more suitable than that of speaking by.

τοῖς προφήταις] Not in the more technical sense in which οἱ προφῆται form one division of the Old Testament (as Luke xxiv. 44, πάντα τὰ γεγραμμένα ἐντῷνόμῷ Μωυσέως καὶ τοῦς προφήταις καὶ ψαλμοῦς. John i. 45, ὅν ἔγραψεν

έσχάτου των ήμερων τούτων έλάλησεν ήμιν έν

Μωυσής έν τῷ νόμφ και οι προ- $\phi \eta \tau \alpha i$ , but in the wider use, including all God's 'utterers' prior to the Gospel, whether writers of Books of Scripture, or representatives of Him to their generation. In Luke xiii. 28 ( Άβρααμ και Ισαακ και Ιακώβ καί πάντας τούς προφήτας) it might seem to include even the Patriarchs themselves. At all events the title is expressly given in the New Testament to Moses (Acts vii. 37), to Samuel (Acts xiii. 20. &c.), to David (Acts ii. 30), to Elisha (Luke iv. 27), to Isaiah (Matt. iii. 3. &c.), to Jeremiah (Matt. ii. 17. &c.), to Daniel (Matt. xxiv. 15), to Joel (Acts ii. 36), to Jonah (Matt. xii. 39. &t.), to John the Baptist (Matt. xi. 9. &c.). Compare Matt. v. 12, τούς προφήτας τούς πρό ύμων. xiii. 17, πολλοί προφήται καὶ δίκαιοι ἐπεθύμησαν ίδειν α βλέπετε. Luke i. 70, τών άγίων απ' αιώνος προφητών αύτου. ix. 8, 19, προφήτης τις των άρχαίων. John viii. 52, 'Aβραάμ απέθανεν και οι προφήται. James 1 Pet. i. 10. &c. &c. V. IO.

The one ( $i\sigma\chi\dot{a}\tau\sigma\nu$ ) is at a latest point of these days; the other ( $i\sigma\chi\dot{a}\tau\omega\nu$ ) is at (in the time of) the latest (days) of these days. The one suggests an epoch, the other an era. Compare Matt. XXIV. 31 ( $\dot{a}\pi$ )  $\ddot{a}\kappa\rho\omega\nu$  o $\dot{v}\rho\alpha\nu\omega\nu$   $\ddot{e}\omegas$  $\ddot{a}\kappa\rho\omega\nu$  a $\dot{v}\tau\omega\nu$ , where however an alternative reading inserts  $\tau\omega\nu$ before the second  $\ddot{a}\kappa\rho\omega\nu$ ) with Mark xiii. 27 ( $\dot{a}\pi$ )  $\ddot{a}\kappa\rhoo\nu$   $\gamma\eta$ s  $\ddot{e}\omega$ s  $\ddot{a}\kappa\rhoo\nu$  o $\dot{v}\rho\alpha\nu\omega$ ).

τών ήμερών τούτων] These days, as contrasted with those days. The pre-Messianic in contrast with the Messianic period. In such phrases the interval between the two Advents is left out of view (as generally in the prophecies of the Old Testament), and the days of the Messiah begin with the first Epiphany, regarded as a single manifestation, though including the several stages of the Incarnation, Ministry, Death, Resurrection, Ascension, &c. When the fact of the long interval between the first and the second Advent began to reveal itself, the phrase modified its meaning accordingly. Even in this Epistle we shall find recognitions of the postponement of that world, those days, into a period still future though the Messiah is come. The exact expression, at ημέραι avrai, does not occur elsewhere; but it is implied in the opposite phrase, ήμέραι ἔρχονται, of Jer.

The common form is that of a aiw outos. o vir alwr, &c. contrasted with o alwr ereiros, o alwr o µerran, dc., to which the above remark is equally applicable. See Matt. xii. 32, ούτε έν τούτω τω αίωνι ουτε έν τῷ μέλλοντι. Mark x. 30, έν τῷ αἰῶνι τῷ ἐρχομένψ. Luke xvi. 8. xviii. 30. xx. 34, 35, τοῦ αἰῶνος τούτου...τοῦ αἰῶνος ereivou. Rom. xii. 2. I Cor. i. 20. ii. 6, 8. iii. 18. 2 Cor. iv. 4. Gal. i. 4, τοῦ ἐνεστῶτος alŵros πονηροῦ. Eph. i. 21. I Tim. Tit. ii. vi. 17. 2 Tim. iv. 10. The idea of the text is 12. otherwise expressed in Gal. iv. 4. ότε δε ήλθεν το πλήρωμα του xpórov. Eph. i. 10, els olkoroplar τοῦ πληρώματος τῶν καιρῶν. The xpoiros of the one passage, the Kaipoì of the other, are equivalent to the  $\eta\mu\epsilon\rho a\iota$  of the text; and the  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho\omega\mu a$  of those passages is (in effect) the exarov of this. Compare also I Cor. x. ΙΙ, είς ούς τα τέλη των αιώνων κατήντηκεν. The alwves there are the  $\eta\mu\epsilon\rhoai$  here, the ages of the pre-Messianic time; and the  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \eta$ of those alwres are the egyator of these nuépai.

 $\lambda \lambda \lambda \eta \sigma \epsilon \gamma$  [Spake. As in  $\lambda a$ - $\lambda \eta \sigma \sigma s$  above, the whole utterance is gathered into one moment of past time, though the reference is not to one discourse, or one action, or one event, but to the entire revelation of God in the Incarnate Son. For the thought compare Mark xii. 6, έτι ένα είχει υίον άγαπητόν ἀπέστειλεν αὐτον ἐσχατον προς αὐτούς, λέγων ὅτι ἐντραπήσονται τὸν υίόν μου.

er vi@] In One who is (not Prophet, but) Son. The absence of the article lays stress upon the quality of the Person. It says not, one of many sons; but it says. One whose characteristic it is to be, in an emphatic and distinctive sense, Son of God. Matt. xiv. 33, 'AAndûs Ocoû vids εl. xxii. 45, πως υίος αύτοῦ ἐστίν; xxvii. 43, 54, είπεν γάρ ότι Θεού είμι υίός... Αληθώς υίος Θεού ήν ovros. Luke i. 32, 35. Acts xiii. 33, Yiós µov el ov. Rom. i. 4, του ορισθέντος υίου Θεου έν δυνάμει. Heb. v. 8, καίπερ ŵν υίός.

έθηκεν] Sei, appointed, constituted. John xv. 16, έθηκα  $i\mu as$  iva κ.τ.λ. The reference is, not to the original glory, but to the εὐδοκία η̂ν προέθετο ἐν αὐτῷ (Eph. i. 9) as the Christ.

κληρονόμον πάντων] Rom. iv. 13, τὸ κληρονόμον αὐτὸν (Abraham or his seed) εἶναι κόσμου. The figure appears in the Parable of Matt. xxi., Mark xii., Luke xx. Οῦτός ἐστιν ὁ κληρονόμος. It is involved in the Sonship: Rom. viii. 17, εἰ δὲ τέκνα, καὶ κληρονόμοι. Gal. iv. 7, εἰ δὲ υἰος, καὶ κληρονόμοι. But the υἰοί are κληρονόμοι only in the υἰος. They are κληρονόμοι μὲν

έποίησεν τους αίωνας δε ων απαύγασμα της 3

Θεοῦ, συνκληρονόμοι δὲ Χριστοῦ. The fulfilment of the heirship is in the consummation of the great day : Rev. xi. 15, ἐγένετο ή βασιλεία τοῦ κόσμου τοῦ Κυρίου ήμῶν καὶ τοῦ Χριστοῦ αὐτοῦ.

δι' οῦ καί] John i. 3, 10, πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο, καὶ χωρὶς αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο οὐδὲ ἐν ὅ γέγονεν... ὅ κόσμος δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο. 1 Cor. viii. 6, δι' οῦ τὰ πάντα. Col. i. 16, τὰ πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ...ἔκτισται.

ἐποίησεν] Acts iv. 24, Δέσποτα, σὺ ὁ ποιήσας τὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ τὴν γῆν καὶ τὴν θάλασσαν καὶ πάντα τὰ ἐν αὐτοῖς. xiv. 15. xvii. 24, 26, ὁ Θεὸς ὁ ποιήσας τὸν κόσμον...ἐποίησέν τε ἐξ ἐνὸς πῶν ἔθνος ἀνθρώπων κ.τ.λ. The commoner word in this sense is κτίζειν. The two are combined in Matt. xix. 4, ὁ κτίσας ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἄρσεν καὶ θῆλυ ἐποίησεν αὐτούς.

Toùs alŵras] The thought of duration is never wholly lost in the Scripture use of alwr, though in this place, and in xi. 3 ( $\pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon \iota$ νοοῦμεν κατηρτίσθαι τοὺς αἰῶνας ρήματι Θεού), it is all but effaced. The world as material is Kóoµos, the world as temporal is aiw. Once the two are combined in one phrase: Eph. ii. 2, katà tòy alώνα τοῦ κόσμου τούτου (the timestate of this matter-world). The plural, peculiar (in this sense) to these two passages of this Epistle, seems to suggest the idea not of continuous but of aggregate duration; the world as marked by

ôs ŵv] Six points may be distinguished in this grand summary of the doctrine of the Divine Son: (1) the original glory ( $\hat{\omega}\nu$   $a\pi a \hat{\nu} \gamma a \sigma \mu a \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ); (2) the destined empire  $(\delta \nu$ έθηκεν κληρονόμον πάντων); (3) the creative action (di ou rai  $\epsilon \pi o (\eta \sigma \epsilon \nu \kappa. \tau. \lambda.);$  (4) the sustaining operation ( $\phi \epsilon \rho \omega \nu \tau \epsilon \kappa \tau \lambda$ .); (5) the redemptive work ( $\kappa a \theta a$ ρισμόν τών άμαρτιών κ.τ.λ.); (6) the mediatorial exaltation (čká- $\theta_{i\sigma\epsilon\nu}\epsilon\nu\delta\epsilon\xi_{i\hat{q}\kappa.\tau.\lambda.}$ ). The parallel passages are John i. 1, &c., where we have the first, third, and fifth of the above points enlarged upon; Phil. ii. 6, &c., dwelling upon the first, fifth, and sixth; and Col. i. 15, &c., embracing all the particulars of the above enumeration.

 $\vec{\omega}\nu$ ] The place of  $\vec{\omega}\nu$  gives it emphasis. This is what the Son is essentially. John i. I,  $\vec{\epsilon}\nu \ \dot{\alpha}\rho\chi\eta \ \dot{\eta}\nu\dots\dot{\eta}\nu \ \pi\rho\deltas \ \tau\delta\nu \ \Theta\epsilon\delta\nu$ ,  $\kappa a \ \Theta\epsilon\deltas \ \dot{\eta}\nu$ . Phil. ii. 6,  $\vec{\epsilon}\nu \ \mu\rho\rho\phi\eta \ \Theta\epsilon\delta\vartheta \ \dot{\nu}\pi\dot{\alpha}\rho\chi\omega\nu$ . Col. i. 15, os  $\vec{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\iota\nu \ \epsilon \vec{\epsilon}\kappa\dot{\omega}\nu \ \tau\delta\vartheta \ \Theta\epsilon\delta\vartheta$ .

άπαύγασμα] Wisdom vii. 26, ἀπαύγασμα γάρ ἐστι φωτὸς αἰδίου. From ἀπαυγάζειν, to beam or flash forth (light), comes the passive noun ἀπαύγασμα, a thing beamed forth, a substance formed by the emission of splendour; differing just so far from ἀπαυγασμός that it expresses the result, not the act, of shining, and # δόξης και χαρακτήρ της ύποστάσεως αὐτοῦ, is therefore the more suitable word for the Person in whom all the rays of the divine glory are concentrated for communication. Effulgence may be the nearest English word, but it lacks the characteristic idea of the embodiment of the emitted splendour, the  $\phi \hat{\omega} \hat{s} \stackrel{\epsilon}{\epsilon} \kappa \phi \omega \tau \hat{o} \hat{s}$ , the Person in whom  $\theta \epsilon \hat{\omega} \mu \epsilon \theta a$  $\tau \hat{\gamma} \nu \delta \hat{o} \hat{\xi} a \nu$  (John i. 14).

τής δόξης Glory is the forthshining of light. The λύχνος set υπό τον μόδιον η υπό την κλίνην (Mark iv. 21) has no 'glory:' the Sófa begins όταν ό λύχνος τη άστραπη φω-The  $\tau i \zeta \eta \sigma \epsilon$  (Luke xi. 36). glory of God is His self-manifestation, John i. 14. xi. 40, οψει την δόξαν του Θεου. xii. 41. Rom. i. 23. vi. 4, ηγέρθη... δια της δύξης του Πατρός. ix. 23. 2 Cor. iii. 18. Eph. iii. 16. &c. &c. The text seems to speak of a selfmanifestation, not to created beings only, whether angelic or human, but also prior even to creation, and having place in the mysteries of the divine Trinity itself; intimated in the τῷ ήγαπημένω of Eph. i. 6, in the τοῦ υἱοῦ τῆς ἀγάπης αὐτοῦ of Col. i. 13, in the o wv els τον κόλπον τοῦ Πατρόs of John i. 18. Compare also John xvii. 5, 24,  $\tau \hat{\eta}$ δόξη ή (or ήν) είχον προ του τον κόσμον είναι παρά σοί... ίνα θεωρώσιν την δόξαν την εμήν ην δέδωκάς (or έδωκάς) μοι, ότι ηγάπησάς με πρό καταβολής κόσμου.

χαρακτήρ] From χαράσσειν, to mark, or engrave, as the image and superscription upon a coin (Ecclus. l. 27, maideiav συνέσεως καὶ ἐπιστήμης ἐχάραξα έν τῷ βιβλίψ τούτψ), comes χαρακ- $\tau \eta \rho$ , (1) the agent or instrument for engraving; but commonly (2) the stamp or impress so made, the engraven or incised letter or figure; (3) the characteristic and distinctive form, whether of person, disposition, speech, style, &c. Lev. xiii. 28, o yap χαρακτήρ (distinctive mark) τοῦ катакай μато́з е́оть. 2 Масс. iv. 10, εύθέως πρός τόν Έλληνικόν χαρακτήρα (characteristic style) τοὺς ὁμοφύλους μετέστησε. These passages show that the idea of exact likeness, characteristic representation, is involved in the word, in Hellenistic as well as classical usage, and may incline us to the rendering of the English Version, express (or exact) image, in preference to the vaguer term impress. The latter suggests rather the wax than the seal. For the general idea, compare 2 Cor. iv. 4, os έστιν είκών του Θεού. Col. i. 15, ός έστιν είκων του Θεού του αορά-But xapaktyp is more deτου. finite than eikov as to the exactness of the likeness.

ύποστάσεως] The verb ὑφιστάναι, to set or place under, passes in the middle voice and

φέρων τε τὰ πάντα τῷ ῥήματι της δυνάμεως

the intransitive tenses into two chief uses: (1) with a dative, to stand under so as to support (Zech. ix. 8, υποστήσομαι τῷ οἴκφ μου); or with an accusative, to stand (instead of giving way) under, to withstand (Prov. xiii. 8, πτωχός δε ούχ υφίσταται απειλήν. 1 Macc. v. 40. &c. &c.): (2) absolutely, to stop (1 Sam. xxx. 10, υπέστησαν δε διακόσιοι ανδρες), to take up a position (Num. xxii. 26, υπέστη έν τόπω στενώ. Prov. xxv. 6, μηδε εν τόποις δυναστών υφίστασο), to stand one's ground (Psalm cxlvii. 17, κατά πρόσωπον ψύχους αύτου τίς υποστήσεται; &c. &c.). The substantive υπόστασις (occurring sixteen times in the Septuagint, as the rendering of almost as many Hebrew words) takes the colour of this twofold use, and means (1) support (Deut. i. 12, πως δυνήσομαι φέρειν μόνος τον κόπον ύμων καί την υπόστασιν υμών; the task of supporting the weight of you. Jer. xxiii. 22, εί έστησαν έν τή υποστάσει μου. Ezek. xxvi. 11, και την υπόστασιν της ισχύος σου επί την γην κατάξει. xliii. 11, και την υπόστασιν αυτού. Wisdom xvi. 21, ή μέν γαρ υπό- $\sigma \tau a \sigma i s \sigma o v$ , thy sustenance, the manna); and so confidence (sometimes we find υπόστασιν καὶ τόλμαν) regarded as an act of the mind supporting, instead of sinking under, a weight laid upon it (Ruth i. 12, čotí μοι υπόστασις του γενηθήναί με aνδρί. Psalm xxxix. 7, ή υπόστασίς μου παρά σοί έστιν. Ezek. xix. 5, και απώλετο ή υπόστασις 2 Cor. ix. 4, έν τη αύτης. ύποστάσει ταύτη. xi. 17, èv ταύτη τη ύποστάσει της καυχήσεως. Heb. iii. 14, την άρχην της υποστάσεως. xi. I, έστιν δέ πίστις έλπιζομένων υπόστασις); (2) a position (1 Sam. xiv. 4, είς την υπόστασιν των άλλοφύλων); a firm standing (Psalm lxix. 2, καὶ οὖκ ἔστιν ὑπόστασις); and hence, finally, substance, in all senses, whether of wealth (Job xxii, 20, ηφανίσθη ή υπόστασις αύτων, καί το κατάλειμμα αύτων καταφάγεται πῦρ. Jer. X. 17, συνήγαγεν έξωθεν την υπόστασίν σου), bodily frame (Psalm cxxxix. 15, οὐκ ἐκρύβη τὸ όστουν μου από σου...και ή υπόστασίς μου έν τοις κατωτάτοις της  $\gamma \eta s$ ), or essential being (Psalm xxxix. 5, ή υπόστασίς μου ώσει ουθεν ενώπιόν σου. lxxxix. 47, μνήσθητι τίς μου ή υπόστα- $\sigma_{is}$ ). This last is the meaning of the word here; substance or essence. We are not to import the theological distinction between υπόστασις (person) and ovoía (substance): that distinction would carry us into subtleties which have no place in Scripture. The statement is, that the Son is the xapaktyp of

αύτοῦ, καθαρισμόν τῶν ἀμαρτιῶν ποιησάμενος

God's essence; the Person in whom the essential nature of Deity is so embodied that the Gospel sayings are true, 'O  $\epsilon\omega\rho a\kappa\omega s \ i\mu \epsilon \ \epsilon\omega\rho a\kappa\epsilon\nu \ ro\nu$  Πατέρα (John xiv. 9), and Έθεασάμεθα  $\tau\eta \nu$  δόξαν αντοῦ, δόξαν ώς μονο- $\gamma \epsilon \nu οῦs \pi a ρ à Πατρόs$  (John i. 14).

τῷ ῥήματι] The dative expresses the instrument of the upholding. The φέρων, like the έποίησεν, is by a word of command. Compare xi. 3,  $\pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon i$ νοούμεν κατηρτίσθαι τούς αίωνας ρήματι Θεοῦ. The γενηθήτω of creation passes into the  $\epsilon \sigma \tau \omega$ For phua, of the sustentation. always (conceptionally at least) a single thing said, compare its first use in the Septuagint, Gen. xv. I, μετά δε τα ρήματα ταύτα έγενήθη βήμα Κυρίου προς 'Αβραμ έν δράματι, λέγων κ.τ.λ. The peculiarity is never lost, even where the whole Gospel (for example) is the βήμα in question, as in Rom. x. 8, το βήμα τής πίστεως ὅ κηρύσσομεν. Eph. v. 26, ἐν βήματι. vi. 17, καὶ τὴν μάχαιραν τοῦ πνεύματος, ὅ ἐστιν βήμα Θεοῦ. Heb. vi. 5, καὶ καλὸν γευσαμένους Θεοῦ βήμα. 1 Pet. i. 25, τοῦτο δέ ἐστιν τὸ βήμα τὸ εὐαγγελισθὲν εἰς ὑμᾶς.

τῆς δυνάμεως αὐτοῦ] Belonging to, characteristic of, His power (potency). Luke vi. 19, ὅτι δύναμις παρ' αὐτοῦ ἐξήρχετο. 2 Cor. xii. 9, ἡ δύναμις τοῦ Χριστοῦ. Heb. vii. 16, κατὰ δύναμιν ζωῆς ἀκαταλύτου. 2 Pet. i. 16, ἐγνωρίσαμεν ὑμῖν τὴν τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ δύναμιν.

καθαρισμόν τ. α. ποιησάμενος Job vii. 21, δια τί ου λήθην έποιήσω της άμαρτίας μου, καί καθαρισμόν τής ανομίας μου; The peculiarity of the expression is the simple genitive; purification, not from, but of sins. So in Exod. xxx. 10, aπο τοῦ αίματος τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ τῶν ἀμαρτιών. 2 Pet. i. 9, λήθην λαβών τοῦ καθαρισμοῦ τῶν πάλαι αὐτοῦ άμαρτημάτων. The same abbreviation is involved in the transition from the  $\lambda \epsilon \pi \rho o \lambda$   $\kappa a \theta a \rho i$ -Corrai of Matt. xi. 5, to the ἐκαθαρίσθη αὐτοῦ ή λέπρα of Matt. viii. 3.

ἐκάθισεν] viii. 1. x. 12. xii. 2. Rev. iii. 21, καὶ ἐκάθισα μετὰ τοῦ Πατρός μου ἐν τῷ θρόνῳ αὐτοῦ. The origin of the expression is found in Psalm cx. 1, εἶπεν ὁ

εκάθισεν έν δεξιά της μεγαλωσύνης έν ύψηλοις,

ἐν δεξιά τῆς μεγαλωσύνης] On the right hand of majesty. Like Matt. xxvi. 64. Mark xiv. 62, όψεσθε τον υίον τοῦ ἀνθρώπου έκ δεξιών καθήμενον της δυνάμεως. Majesty here, as power there, is used as a name for God Himself. Heb. viii. 1, ev detia τοῦ θρόνου τῆς μεγαλωσύνης. The word μεγαλωσύνη occurs also in Jude 25 as an attribute of God. In the Septuagint it is more frequent. Deut. xxxii. 3,δότε μεγαλωσύνην τῷ Θεῷ ήμῶν. I Chron. xxix. 11, σοί, Κύριε, ή Psalm cxlv. 3, μεγαλωσύνη. καί τής μεγαλωσύνης αύτου ούκ  $\vec{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\iota\pi\epsilon\rho$ as. cl. 2. &c. &c. The form μεγαλειότης also occurs three times in the New Testament; Luke ix. 43. Acts xix. 27. 2 Pet. i. 16. For the figure εν δεξιά, compare 1 Kings ii. 19, ο βασιλεύς... έκάθισεν έπι του θρόνου αυτού · και ετέθη θρόνος τή μητρί του βασιλέως, και εκάθισεν έκ δεξιών αύτοῦ. Psalm xlv. 10, παρέστη ή βασίλισσα έκ δεξιών σου. Zech. vi. 13, και καθιείται καί κατάρξει έπι του θρόνου αυτου, καί έσται ό ίερεύς έκ δεξιών αύτου, καί βουλή είσηνική έσται άναμέσον αμφοτέρων.

ἐν ὑψηλοῖs] Not to be connected with μεγαλωσύνης, but with ἐκάθισεν. And so ἐν τοῖs ούρανοῖς in viii. I. Compare Eph. i. 20, καὶ καθίσας ἐν δεξιậ αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις. For ἐν ὑψηλοῖς, see Psalm xciii. 4, θαυμαστὸς ἐν ὑψηλοῖς ὁ Κύριος. cxiii. 5, τίς ὡς Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν, ὁ ἐν ὑψηλοῖς κατοικῶν; An equivalent phrase is ἐν ὑψίστοις. Job xvi. 19, ἐν οὐρανοῖς ὁ μάρτυς μου, ὁ δὲ συνίστωρ μου ἐν ὑψίστοις. Luke ii. 14, δόξα ἐν ὑψίστοις Θεῷ. xix. 38, ἐν οὐρανῷ εἰρήνη, καὶ δόξα ἐν ὑψίστοις.

4. τοσούτω κρείττων] Introduction of the first great topic of the Epistle. The object of the whole book is to keep the Hebrew Christians true to Christ amidst the temptations of the last struggle of Judaism. The preeminence of Christ (Col. i. 18, ίνα γένηται έν πασιν αυτός  $\pi \rho \omega \tau \epsilon \dot{\nu} \omega \nu$ ) is therefore the general subject. This is shown in a series of comparisons : (1) Christ and the Angels (chapters i. and ii.); (2) Christ and Moses (iii. and iv.); (3) Christ and Aaron (v. to x.). Each topic is introduced as it were incidentally, almost allusively; here in a participial clause, as also in iii. 2 and v. 10. It is only by study that we detect the transitions: there is no formal scheme: sometimes a coming topic casts its shadow before it upon the earlier: see άρχιερέa in iii. 1, and Μελχισεδèκ in v. 5.

4 τοσούτω κρείττων γενόμενος των άγγέλων όσω

τοσούτψ....ὄσφ] An idiom peculiar (in Scripture) to this Epistle. See x. 25, καὶ τοσούτφ μᾶλλον ὄσφ κ.τ.λ. Also vii. 20, 22, καθ ὅσον...κατὰ τοσοῦτο. In Rev. xviii. 7 there is an approach to it: ὅσα ἐδόξασεν αὐτὴν ...τοσοῦτον δότε κ.τ.λ.

κρείττων] This word occurs thirteen times in this Epistle, and only seven times elsewhere in Scripture (1 Cor. vii. 9, 38. xi. 17. xii. 31. Phil. i. 23. 1 Pet. iii. 17. 2 Pet. ii. 21). In the Septuagint, it is chiefly found (21 times) in the Book of Proverbs.

yevouevos] Mark the contrast with w above. We reach now the exaltation of the Son, not as God, but as the God-Man. Compare Eph. i. 20, &c. καθίσας... έν τοις επουρανίοις ύπεράνω πάσης άρχης κ.τ.λ. Phil. ii. 9, διο και ο Θεος αύτον υπερύψωσεν καὶ ἐχαρίσατο αὐτῷ τὸ ὄνομα το υπέρ παν ονομα. Col. i. 18, πρωτότοκος έκ των νεκρών, ίνα γένηται κ.τ.λ. Ι Pet. i. 21, τον έγείραντα αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν, καὶ δόξαν αὐτῷ δόντα. iii. 22, օঁς ἐστιν έν δεξιά Θεού, πορευθείς είς ούρανόν, υποταγέντων αυτώ αγγέλων κ.τ.λ.

 $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \hat{a} \gamma \gamma \hat{\epsilon} \lambda \omega \nu$ ] The prominence given to this topic, the exaltation of Christ above the Angels, is accounted for by the place ascribed in Scripture to the ministry of Angels, whether generally (as Gen. xvi. 7. xxiv. xxviii. 12. xxxii. 1. 7. T Kings xix. 5. Psalm xxxiv. 7. xci. 11. Dan. iii. 28. vi. 22. &c.) or specially. (1) In the giving of the Law on Mount Sinai. Acts vii. 53, oirwes elabere rov νόμον είς διαταγάς άγγέλων. Gal. iii. 19, ο νόμος...διαταγείς δι' άγγέλων έν χειρί μεσίτου. Heb. ii. 2, ο δι άγγέλων λαληθεις λόyos. Compare Deut. xxxiii. 2, Κύριος έκ Σινά ήκει...έκ δεξιών αύτοῦ ἄγγελοι μετ' αὐτοῦ. Psalm lxviii. 17, tò appa toù Θεοῦ μυριοπλάσιον, χιλιάδες... Κύριος έν αυτοίς έν Σινά έν τώ aγίω. The phenomena of wind and fire, of voice and trumpet (Exod. xix. 16, &c. Deut. iv. 11, &c. v. 22, &c.), even the preparation and engraving of the tables of stone (Exod. xxiv. 12. XXXII. 16), were doubtless assigned to angelic ministry: Psalm civ. 4, o ποιών τους αγγέλους αὐτοῦ πνεύματα, καὶ τοὺς λειτουργούς αύτοῦ πῦρ φλέγον. (2) In connexion with the march of Israel into Canaan. Exod. xiv. 19, ο άγγελος τοῦ Θεού ο προπορευόμενος τής παρεμβολής των υίων Ισραήλ. xxiii. 20, αποστέλλω τον αγγελόν μου προ προσώπου σου, ίνα φυλάξη σε έν τη όδφ, όπως είσαγάγη σε είς την γην ην ητοίμασά σοι. xxxii. 34. # διαφορώτερον παρ' αὐτοὺς κεκληρονόμηκεν ὄνομα.

όσω διαφορώτερον ] The actual exaltation of Christ above Angels is proportioned to the prophetic. The Name defined in Scripture is the measure of the superiority actually attained. (1) The adjective διάφορος occurs also in ix. 10, and in Rom. xii. 6, in the sense of different; as also in Deut. xxii. 9. Dan. vii. 19. Here the sense is excellent; different by superiority; as in viii. 6, διαφορωτέρας τέτευχεν λειτουρyías. The same twofold meaning is seen in the verb  $\delta_{ia}\phi_{\epsilon\rho\epsilon\nu}$ (to differ, Dan. vii. 3. &c.; to excel, Matt. x. 31. &c. : in Rom. ii. 18 and Phil. i. 10, it may be either). (2) The comparative  $\delta_{ia}\phi_{op}\omega_{\tau\epsilon\rhoos}$  occurs only here and in viii. 6. (3) The use of  $\pi a \rho a$  after a comparative is peculiar to this Epistle (ii. 7, 9. iii. 3. ix. 23. xi. 4. xii. 24) and Luke iii. 13,  $\pi\lambda\epsilon ov \pi a \rho a \tau o$ διατεταγμένον υμίν.

κεκληρονόμηκεν] The Son, manifested in the fulness of time, has entered upon the inheritance of the predicted Messiah. Scripture has marked out the boundaries of the great ὄνομα in many passages of promise: the Divine Son, as the Christ, has entered upon its possession. The word  $\kappa\lambda\eta\rho oro\mu \hat{\epsilon}\nu$  occurs more than 125 times in the Septuagint; generally with an accusative of the thing  $(\tau \eta \nu \gamma \eta \nu, \tau \lambda s \pi \delta \lambda \epsilon_{1S}, \&c.)$ ; sometimes absolutely (Num. xviii. 20. &c.); sometimes with an accusative of the person (to be a man's heir; Gen. xv. 3, 4,  $\kappa \lambda \eta \rho o \nu o \mu \eta \sigma \epsilon_{1}$   $\mu \epsilon \dots o \nu$   $\kappa \lambda \eta \rho o \nu o \mu \eta \sigma \epsilon_{1}$   $\sigma \epsilon \kappa . \tau. \lambda$ .). In the New Testament it is found 18 times  $(\tau \eta \nu \gamma \eta \nu, \zeta \omega \eta \nu$ alwrov,  $\beta a \sigma \iota \lambda \epsilon (a \nu \Theta \epsilon o \nu), \sigma \omega \tau \eta - \rho (a \nu, \epsilon \nu \lambda o \gamma (a \nu, \tau \lambda s \epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda (a s)).$

ovoµa] The name of a person is that which sets him before the mind as that which he is. In Scripture, the name of God, or the name of Christ, is the sum of His attributes, the whole of His revealed nature, character, work, &c. See Exod. xxxiii. 19. xxxiv. 5-7, καὶ ἐκάλεσε τώ ονόματι Κυρίου...Κύριος ο Θεός, οἰκτίρμων καὶ ἐλεήμων, μακρόθυμος καί πολυέλεος κ.τ.λ. John i. 12, τοις πιστεύουσιν είς το δνομα αὐτοῦ, xvii. 6, ἐφανέρωσά σου το ύνομα τοις ανθρώποις κ.τ.λ. XX. 31, ζωήν έχητε έν τῷ ονόματι aurov. Acts iii. 16, rovrov... έστερέωσεν το όνομα αυτού. Phil. ii. 9, καὶ ἐχαρίσατο αὐτῷ τὸ δνομα το υπέρ παν δνομα, ίνα έν τῷ ὀνόματι Ἰησοῦ πῶν γόνυ κάμψη  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . 5.  $\tau i \nu \gamma a \rho$ ] Upon the quotations which follow it may be remarked in general, that the Epistle is addressed to persons

5 τίνι γάρ είπέν ποτε τών άγγέλων, Υίός μου εί

(1) who believe in Jesus as the Christ, the Son of God, (2) who believe in the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures, and in their Messianic reference. It cannot be expected of those who are destitute of this twofold belief, that they should appreciate the argument of this passage. On the other hand, there is nothing arbitrary in the selection of the texts adduced. It is not that, wherever the name of God occurs in the Old Testament, the name of Christ may be substituted for it. The principles of the selection are two: (1) God in manifestation. whether for mercy or judgment, is always God in Christ; (2) where that is written of a man, which no mere man can satisfy (as, for instance, universal dominion, everlasting existence, &c.), there always lies in the background that one Person, divine as well as human, of whom alone these things can be spoken with literal truth. To be assured of this is the only postulate of this section. Known unto God are all His works from the beginning of the world (Acts xv. 18): God, purposing to reveal Himself in Christ, keeps that purpose in view throughout His Dispensations. The human writer is never obliterated, but there is a voice within his voice, a prophecy in his history, and a type in his life. To say otherwise is to deny, not verbal inspiration alone, but inspiration in any sense.

τίνι γάρ...τών άγγέλων] Το which one of the Angels. &c. Whom did God ever single out from among the Angels to address him as His Son? The argument is not shaken by the application of the title sons of God to Angels collectively (Job i. 6. ii. 1. xxxviii. 7; in all which places however the Septuagint has not viol but αγγελοι). any more than by the application of the same title to Israelites of old (Exod. iv. 22, vios πρωτότοκός μου Ισραήλ. Jer. xxxi. 9, Ἐφραίμ πρωτότοκός μού έστιν. Hos. i. 10, κληθήσονται vioì Θεοῦ ζώντος), or to Christians now (Luke vi. 35. Rom. viii. 14, 10, ούτοι υίοι είσιν Θεού... τών νίων τοῦ Θεοῦ. 2 Cor. vi. 18, ύμεις έσεσθέ μοι εις υίους καί θυγατέρας. Gal. iii. 26, πάντες γαρ υιοί Θεού εστέ. iv. 6, 7, ούκέτι εί δούλος, άλλα υίός. Heb. xii. 5, υμίν ώς υίοις διαλέγεται). The whole stress lies on the individualization of the name.

Yiós  $\mu ov \epsilon l \sigma v$ ] Psalm ii. 7. We know not with what human hopes the words were first written. History is the key of Prophecy; and as the earthly kings of David's line successively fell on sleep, till at last I. 5, 6.

σύ, έγω σήμερον γεγέννηκά σε; και πάλιν, Έγω έσομαι αυτώ είς πατέρα, και αυτός έσται μοι είς υίόν; όταν δε πάλιν εισαγάγη 6 the line itself was dethroned and effaced, it became plain that only in a Divine Person could the prediction be fulfilled, whatever shadows of fulfilment might be thrown before Him.

σήμερον γεγέννηκά σε In its first meaning σήμερον must have been the time of the decisive establishment of the throne of David; his recognition as the head of the theorracy against all rivals and antagonists (2 Sam. vii. 1, υτε εκάθισεν ο βασιλεύς έν τῷ οἶκῳ αὐτοῦ, καὶ Κύριος κατεκληρονόμησεν αὐτὸν κύκλω από πάντων των έχθρων airoî). In its application, it is the day of Christ's Resurrection, and the Psalm was rightly selected for Easter Sunday. Compare Acts xiii. 33, avaornoas Inoour, ώς και...γέγραπται, Υίός μου εί σύ, έγω σήμερον κ.τ.λ. Rom. i. 4, του δρισθέντος υίου Θεου έν δυνάμει... έξ άναστάσεως νεκρών. Heb. v. 5, where the same text is quoted in proof of the Priesthood of Christ, with which Resurrection virtually invested Him, as Ascension actually. There is no direct reference in the passage either (1) to the Eternal Sonship, or (2) to the Incarnation.

'Εγώ ἔσομαι] 2 Sam. vii. 14. The subject is the promised seed of David (verse 12, avagthow to σπέρμα σου μετά σέ...καὶ ἑτοιμάσω την βασιλείαν αυτού). Of him it is said, ανορθώσω τον θρόνον aŭroŭ čws eis rov alŵva (verse 13). The very phrase made preparation for one greater than man. No earthly throne can be everlasting. The seed of David was evidently identifying itself (in such predictions) with the seed of Abraham in whom all nations should be blessed (Gen. xxii, 18), and with the seed of the woman which should bruise the serpent's head (Gen. iii. 15).

čooµaı eis...čoraı eis] For the Hebraism, compare Matt. xix. 5. Mark x. 8. Luke iii. 5. 1 Cor. vi. 16. 2 Cor. vi. 18. Eph. v. 31. Heb. viii. 10. James v. 3.

6.  $\delta \tau av \delta \delta \pi a \lambda v$  The place of  $\pi a \lambda v$  makes its sense ambiguous. Is it, like the  $\pi a \lambda v$ of verse 5 and ii. 13 (twice) and x. 30, the again of quotation; And when, again, He bringeth in, dc. ? Or is it to be read with eloayayn, And when He again bringeth in, dc.; making the clause refer to the second Advent, the second introduction of the Son into the visible universe? (1) There is perhaps no precisely parallel instance of a transposed or parenthetical  $\pi a$  τόν πρωτότοκον είς την οικουμένην, λέγει, Καί λιν. But this Epistle deals much in thetorical transpositions; and there is something easy and natural (in English at all events) in an again thus thrown in. (2) On the other hand, the particular word πρωτότοκος is more evidently suitable to the Risen Christ than to the Eternal Son. It suggests, if it does not compel, the thought of sons later born; a thought inappropriate altogether to the Second Person in the Trinity as such, but most suitable to the Incarnate Son alive again from the dead (see references in the note on tor πρωτότοκον). And the quotation introduced by the clause or av  $\delta \hat{\epsilon}$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ , though appropriate to either Advent, or to the Advent as a whole, cannot but be especially suitable to the Advent in glory.

όταν είσαγάγη...λέγει] When He shall have brought in, He saith. That is, He saith in the foreview of His bringing in. The passage which follows has reference to the (then future) introduction. For the construction, see I Cor. xv. 27, 28, όταν δε είπη ότι πάντα ύποτέτακται ... όταν δε ύποταγή αὐτῷ τὰ πάντα, τότε αυτός ο υίος υποταγήσεται  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . When He shall have said the word, All things are subjected (manifestly excepting Him that subjected them)-when, I say, all things shall have been subjected, then shall the Son also Himself, &c. Compare verses 24, 54, όταν καταργήση... όταν ἐνδύσηται. xvi. 2, 3, 5, ἐλεύσομαι προς νμας όταν Μακεδονίαν διέλθω. 2 Cor. x. 6. Col. iii. 4. iv. 16. &c. &c.

τον πρωτότοκον] Here alone absolutely. In Luke ii. 7 with τον νίον aurns. Rom. viii. 29, είς το είναι αυτόν πρωτότοκον έν πολλοίς αδελφοίς. Col. i. 15, 18, πρωτότοκος πάσης κτίσεως...πρωτότοκος έν τών νεκρών. Rev. i. 5, ο πρωτότοκος τών νεκρών. See note on  $\delta \tau a \nu \delta \epsilon \pi a \lambda i \nu$ . If the eisayáyy refers to the first Advent (or to the Advent generally, without marking the difference), then the  $\pi \rho \omega \tau \dot{\sigma} \tau \sigma \kappa \sigma s$  will mean simply the Eternal Son, the vios of verse 2. If to the second, there may be an allusion to the Resurrection, as in the yeyévvyka of verse 5, and as in the above quotations from Col. i. 18 and Rev. i. 5.

The word The word occurs almost forty times in the Septuagint, in the wider sense of the inhabited earth (Psalm xxiv. 1, τοῦ Κυρίου ή γη καὶ το πλήρωμα αύτης, ή οίκουμένη καί πάντες οι κατοικούντες έν αύτ $\hat{\eta}$ ). And so Matt. xxiv. 14. Luke iv. 5. xxi. 26. Acts xvii. 31. xix. 27 (a rhetorical hyperbole). Rom. x. 18 (from Psalm xix. 4). Rev. iii. IO. XII. 9. xvi. 14. In Heb. ii. 5 it has I. 7.

προσκυνησάτωσαν αὐτῷ πἀντες ἄγγελοι Θεοῦ. καὶ πρὸς μὲν τοὺς ἀγγέλους λέγει, Ὁ 7 ποιῶν τοὺς ἀγγέλους αὐτοῦ πνεύματα, καὶ the peculiar sense given it by the addition of  $\tau \eta \nu$   $\mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda o \sigma a \nu$ (see note there). In Luke ii. I and Acts xi. 28 the context limits it to the Roman Empire. Here it is equivalent to  $\kappa \delta \sigma \mu os$ , and the parallel passages are those of St John in which the Incarnation is spoken of as a coming into the κόσμος (John i. 9. iii. 17, 19. vi. 14. ix. 39. x. 36. xi. 27. xii. 46. xvi. 28. xvii. 18. xviii. 37. 1 John iv. 9). The Eternal Son is outside the οἰκουμένη (John i. 1, ὁ λόγος  $\eta v \pi \rho \delta s \tau \delta v \Theta \epsilon \delta v$ ). Incarnation brings Him into it (John xvi. 28, έξηλθον έκ τοῦ Πατρός καὶ ελήλυθα είς τον κόσμον). Ascension again withdraws Him from the οἰκουμένη (πάλιν ἀφίημι τον κόσμον καί πορεύομαι πρός τόν  $\Pi a \tau \epsilon \rho a$ ). The Advent brings Him back into it (John xiv. 3, έὰν πορευθώ...πάλιν ἔρχομαι). The peculiarity of the expression here is the eloayeuv instead of the usual  $\pi \epsilon \mu \pi \epsilon \iota \nu$  or  $d \pi o \sigma \tau \epsilon \lambda$ - $\lambda \epsilon \nu$  of the Gospels. Even of the second Advent we have  $a\pi o\sigma \tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon v$  in Acts iii. 20. The nearest approach to the eigayeur here is the ayew of I Thess. iv. 14 (ο Θεός τούς κοιμηθέντας δια τοῦ Ἰησοῦ ẩξει σὺν αὐτῷ).

Kaì  $\pi \rho \circ \sigma \kappa v v \eta \sigma a \tau \omega \sigma a v$ ] The kaì is part of the quotation.

This, and the third person, point to Deut. xxxii. 43 (καὶ προσκυνησάτωσαν αυτώ πάντες άγγελοι [B, viol A]  $\Theta co\hat{v}$ ) rather than to Psalm xcvii. 7 (προσκυνήσατε αὐτῷ, πάντες οἱ ἄγγελοι αὐτοῦ) as the intended reference. In both passages, however, the subject is God's self-manifestation in judgment; and therefore the application to Christ is at once justified by the principle stated in the note on verse 5,  $\tau i \nu i \gamma a \rho$ . The Angels themselves are bidden in prophecy to worship God manifested in the Son. The word  $\pi \rho o \sigma \kappa v \kappa v \epsilon v$  is only once used by St Paul (1 Cor. xiv. 25).

7.  $\kappa a i \pi p \delta s \mu \epsilon v$ ] The  $\mu \epsilon v$ and  $\delta \epsilon$  have the effect of subordinating the first clause to the second. And whereas the language of Scripture concerning the Angels is this...the language concerning the Son on the contrary is, &c.

πρός] The towards of πρὸς varies according to the context between of (with regard to) and to. The one is the mental, the other the physical, looking to. Here, of the Angels ...to the Son. Compare, for example, Rom. x. 21 (πρὸς δὲ τὸν Ἰσραὴλ λέγει) with Heb. vii. 21 (τοῦ λέγοντος πρὸς αὐτόν).

8 τούς λειτουργούς αύτοῦ πυρὸς φλόγα· πρὸς

(1) In the Psalm itself, which is a hymn of praise to the God of creation, the evident idea of the verse is, Who maketh His Angels winds, &c. The natural phenomena of wind and fire are traced up to an Angelic ministry. (See note on verse 4, τŵν ἀγγέλων.) (2) The secondary application is, Who maketh His Angels (swift as) winds, (penetrating, pervasive, &c.) as fire. (3) The third sense, assigned to the words here, and more expressly in verse 14, is evidently a derived one; Who maketh His Angels spirits, &c.: they are spirits, by nature and essence. The same ambiguity, between wind and spirit, lying necessarily in the word  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$ , is felt even in the great passage. John iii. 8, το πνεύμα όπου θέλει  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\iota}, \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$  (4) The rendering. Who maketh winds His messengers, and a flaming (or flame of) fire His ministers, is obviously impossible in the Greek, and involves, besides, a solecism in language as well as grammar, by combining (in the latter clause) a singular subject with a plural predicate.

λειτουργούς] From its original sense of a people's workman, a public servant (λείτος, from λεώς, and ἕργον), the word λειτουργός passes into that of minister generally. It is specially applied in the Septuagint (where, with its kindred forms, λειτουργείν, λειτουργία, and λειroupyinos, it occurs about 140 times) to the sacred offices of the Priests and Levites (Neh. x. 39, και έκει σκεύη τα άγια, και οί ίερεις οι λειτουργοί. Isai. lxi. 6, ίερεις Κυρίου κληθήσεσθε, λει-Toupyoi Ocoi. dc., dc.). The attendant upon a prophet or king is called his Autoupyos, as in Josh. i. 1, τῷ Ἰησοῦ νίῷ Ναυη τῷ λειτουργῷ (Α, ὑπουργῷ Β) Μωυση. I Kings i. 4, 'Αβισαγ...ελειτούργει αὐτῷ. Χ. 5, καὶ τὴν στάσιν λειτουργῶν αὐτοῦ. ΧΙΧ. 21, ἐπορεύθη οπίσω 'Ηλιού, και ελειτούργει αὐτῷ. 2 Kings vi. 15, ώρθρισεν ο λειτουργός Ελισαιέ avagrifvat. In Psalm ciii. 21 the word is applied, as here, to the Angels (εὐλογεῖτε τον Κύριον, πάσαι αι δυνάμεις αύτοῦ, λειτουργοί αύτοῦ, ποιοῦντες τὸ θέλημα airoû). In the New Testament the use is equally various. It includes service rendered by man to God (Luke i. 23. Rom. xiii. 6, λειτουργοί γάρ Θεού είσίν. Phil. ii. 17. Heb. ix. 21) or Christ (είς το είναι με λειτουργόν Χριστοῦ Ἰησοῦ εἰς τὰ έθνη); by man to man (2 Cor. ix. 12. Phil. ii. 25, 30, καὶ λειτουργόν τής χρείας μου...τής πρός με λειτουργίas); or by Christ to God (Heb. viii. 2, 6, Tŵr ayiwr λειτουργός...διαφορωτέρας τέτευχεν λειτουργίας).

πυρος φλόγα] In the Septuagint it is  $π\hat{v}\rho$  φλέγον.

8. O  $\theta \rho \delta \nu \sigma \sigma \sigma \nu$ ] Psalm xlv. 6, 7. The occasion of the Psalm is apparently a royal marriage. But it contains expressions, like those of the text, involving an immense hyperbole in their application to any human sovereign. (See again the note on verse 5,  $\tau i \nu \iota \gamma \alpha \rho$ .)

ό Θεός] Evidently a vocative. God is thy throne might possibly have been said (Psalm xlvi. 1, ό Θεός ήμῶν καταφυγή καὶ δύναμις. &c., &c.): thy throne is God seems an unnatural phrase. And even in its first (human) application the vocative would cause no difficulty (Psalm lxxxii. 6, ἐγῶ εἶπα, θεοί ἐστε καὶ νίοὶ ὑψύστου πάντες. John x. 34, 35, ἐκείνους εἶπεν θεούς, πρὸς οῦς ὁ λόγος τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐγένετο).

eis τὸν aἰῶνa τοῦ aἰῶνος] Amongst the multitude of like combinations found in the Septuagint (δι aἰῶνος, eis τὸν aἰῶνa, ἔως τοῦ aἰῶνος, ἔως aἰῶνaς, ἔως eis τοὺ aἰῶνaς, eis τοὺ aἰῶνaς, ἔως eis τοὺ aἰῶνaς, eis τὸν aἰῶνa καὶ ἐπέκεινα, eis τοὺ aἰῶνaς καὶ ἔτι, ἔως τοῦ aἰῶνος ἔτι, eis τὸν aἰῶνoς, eis aἰῶνa aἰῶνος, τὸν aἰῶνa καὶ ἐπ΄ aἰῶνa καὶ ἔτι, ἕως aἰῶνoς τῶν aἰῶνων) the precise form of the text seems to occur only in the Book of Psalms (lxxxiii. 17. xcii. 7. civ. 5. lxxxix. 29. cxi. 3, 8, 10. cxii, 3, 9). In the New Testament we have ouly (of the above) eis ror aiwra, eis roùs alŵvas, and (peculiar to it) eis alŵra (Jude), eis πάντας roùs alŵras (Jude), els alŵras alwvwv (Rev.), eis roùs alwvas τών alώνων (Gal., Phil., I Tim., 2 Tim., 1 Pet., Rev.), είς πάσας τας γενεάς του αίωνος των αίώνων (Eph.). The aim of all these varieties of expression is the same; to heap up masses of time as an approximation to the conception of eternity. The age of the age is that vast expanse of duration which has itself for its only definition. Without entering into controverted matters, it may be said that, where such expressions occur, they must be read according to the subject matter. If an earthly kingdom or a human lineage is in question, infinite duration is precluded not by the language but by the context. If the terms are applied to spiritual existences, or to a world beyond death, we have at least no limit fixed by our knowledge of the nature of the case.

· as the clause which it introduces follows immediately upon the former, it seems better to regard the sal as an accidental addition, than as the preface to a separate quotation. (2) In the Septuagint the article stands before the second (not before the first) ράβδος, just inverting the subject and the predicate. Here it is, The sceptre of uprightness is (the) sceptre of Thy kingdom. (3) The most doubtful point is the reading of the last word. There is very considerable authority for avrov instead of oov. This reading may have been occasioned by missing the vocative use of o Θεός above (see note on δ Θεός). If avrov is read, we must suppose the direct address of the former clause to be changed into the third person in the latter.

διà τοῦτο] The Divine approbation of the character is made the reason of the anointing. In its application to the human subject, this approbation (whether of David, or Solomon, or Hezekiah) could be but comparative and partial. In its application to the Messiah, this is one of the texts which speak of the perfect obedience, in action and suffering, as the procuring cause of the exaltation. The anointing is the investiture with universal sovereignty, consequent upon Resurrection. . The dia touto is the διο of Phil. ii. 9: γενόμενος υπήκοος μέχρι θανάτου, θανάτου δε σταυρού · διο και ο Θεος αυτόν υπερύψωσεν κ.τ.λ. Compare John xvii. 4, 5, έγώ σε εδόξασα επί τής γής, τὸ έργον τελειώσας...καί νύν δόξασύν με σύ, Πάτερ, παρά σεαυτώ κ.τ.λ.

 $\epsilon_{\chi\rho\iota\sigma\epsilon\nu\sigma\epsilon}$  In other places the anointing is connected with the entrance of our Lord upon His earthly Ministry. Luke iv. 18, 21, έχρισέν με εὐαγγελίσασθαι πτωχοίς...σήμερον πεπλήρωται ή γραφή αύτη κ.τ.λ. Acts iv. 27, συνήχθησαν... επί τον αγιον παιδά σου Ίησοῦν ὅν ἔχρισας Ἡρώδης τε καί Πόντιος Πιλάτος κ.τ.λ. Χ. 38, ώς έχρισεν αύτον ο Θεός πνεύματι αγίω και δυνάμει, δε διηλθεν εὐεργετών κ.τ.λ. Here the reference is evidently to a later anointing (see last note). And although the figure would apply to the prophetic (I Kings xix. 16, χρίσεις είς προφήτην) or priestly (Exod. xl. 13, rai xpises αὐτόν, καὶ ἱερατεύσει μοι. &c. &c.) consecration as well as to the royal, yet this last is clearly the subject here. I Sam. xvi. 12, ανάστα, χρίσον τον Δαυίδ. Psalm Ιχχχίχ. 20, εύρον Δαυίδ τον δούλόν μου, ἐν ἐλαίφ (Α, ἐλέει Β, and omit μου) αγίω μου έχρισα αὐτόν. In other passages of the New Testament, xpiew and xpioma are applied to the gift of the Holy Spirit to Christians. 2 Cor. i. 21. 1 John ii. 20, 27.

ο Θεός σου] The Person addressed is God (verse 8); and yet God is His God. Compare John xx. 17 (λέγει Ἰησοῦς... 'Αναβαίνω προς τον...Θεόν μου) with verse 28 (Θωμᾶς εἶπεν αὐτῷ, 'Ο...Θεός μου). See Eph. i.

έλαιον άγαλλιάσεως παρά τούς μετόχους

17, δ Θεός τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. In the frequently occurring phrase, ὁ Θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ τοῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, it is not quite certain that the genitive depends on both nominatives.

έλαιον] Elsewhere χρίειν has the dative. Num. xxxv. 25, δν έχρισεν (Α, έχρισαν Β) αὐτὸν τῷ ἐλαίψ τῷ ἀγίψ. Acts x. 38. Or έν. 2 Sam. i. 21. Psalm lxxxix. 20. Ezek. xvi. 9, καὶ ἐχρισά σε ἐν ἐλαίψ. Ecclus. xlv. 15. Or έξ. Exod. xxx. 25, 26, ἐλαιον χρίσμα ἄγιον ἔσται· καὶ χρίσεις ἐξ αὐτοῦ τὴν σκήνην κ.τ.λ.

άγαλλιάσεως] (1) In the Septuagint, this form is peculiar to the Book of Psalms. See, for instance, Psalm xxx. 5, κλαυθμός ... aγaλλíaσις. xlii. 4,  $\epsilon v \phi \omega v \hat{\eta}$ αγαλλιάσεως και έξομολογήσεως. li. 12, απόδος μοι την αγαλλίασιν τοῦ σωτηρίου σου. exviii. 15, φωνή αγαλλιάσεως καί σωτηρίας έν σκηναίς δικαίων. cxxvi. 2, 5, 6, χαράς...άγαλλιάσεως...εν δάκρυσιν, έν άγαλλιάσει κ.τ.λ. The form ἀγαλλίαμα (a subject of exultation) is frequent in Isaiah and elsewhere. In the New Testament ayalliaris is found in Luke i. 14, 44, χαρά σοι καί αγαλλίασις κ.τ.λ. Acts ii. 46. Jude 24. The verb ayalliar occurs in Luke i. 47. Rev. xix. 7: ἀγαλλιασθαι in Matt. v. 12. Luke x. 21. John v. 35. viii. 56. Acts ii. 26 (from Psalm xvi. 9).

xvi. 34. I Pet. i. 6, 8. iv. 13. The genitive here expresses the characteristic. What is often in Scripture called the ελαιον της χρίσεως (Exod. xxix. 21. &c. &c.) is here an ελαιον ἀγαλλιάσεως, a chrism of exultation, for the dignity which it confers; thus raising into a higher sphere the words of Psalm civ. 15, τοῦ ἰλαρῦναι πρόσωπον ἐν ἐλαίφ.

 $\pi a \rho a$  From the sense of (1) beside, parallel to, comes that of (2) in comparison with; and so (3) in advantageous comparison with, more than, beyond. τοὺς μετόχους σου] Thy partners; partakers with thee in the dignity of royalty. (1) Compare I Kings x. 23, καὶ ἐμεγαλύνθη Σαλωμών ὑπὲρ πάντας τοὺς βασιλεῦς τῆς γῆς πλούτω καὶ ἀρονήσει. In the application to Christ, only the general idea can be maintained; other potentates, whether earthly or angelic. Compare Rom. xiv. 9. Eph. i. 21, ὑπεράνω πάσης ἀρχῆς καὶ ἐξουσίας καὶ δυνάμεως κοὶ κυρύτηI. 10.

A more exclusive (or even explicit) reference to the Angels as  $\mu \epsilon \tau o \chi o \iota$  of the Messiah seems out of place in a passage of which the object is rather to disparage than to exalt them. (2) The word μέτοχος is peculiar (in the New Testament) to this Epistle, excepting only Luke v. 7, where, as here, it is used absolutely (κατένευσαν τοις μετό- $\chi o_{is}$ ). In the four other places of its occurrence it has a genitive (Heb. iii. 1, 14, κλήσεως έπουρανίου μέτοχοι...μέτοχοι τοῦ Χριστού. vi. 4, μετόχους πνεύματος άγίου. xii. 8, ής μέτοχοι γεγόνασιν πάντες). In the Septuagint it is always absolute, as here; partner, not partaker. I Sam. xx. 30, μέτοχος εί σύ τώ việ leoraí. Psalm exix. 63. Eccles. iv. 10, ό είς εγερεί τον μέτοχον αυτού. ination after autous. There is nothing in the Psalm itself to mark its application to Christ. But (1) the principle above stated fully justifies this use of Its subject is the interit. position of God to avenge His people; and this interposition means to a Christian reader His interposition in Christ. (2) There is also, in the quotation itself, a rehearsal of the work of Creation; and it is a first principle of the Gospel, that πάντα δι' αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο καὶ χωρίς αύτοῦ έγένετο ουδε εν ΰ yéyovev (John i. 3).

Siapéveis] It is the word applied by the scoffers, in 2 Pet. iii. 4, to the permanence of matter: πάντα ούτως διαμένει απ άρχής κτίσεως. Here it expresses the everlastingness of God in contrast with all else. In Psalm cxix. 89, 90, the two thoughts are combined; the permanence of matter is made dependent upon the permanence of the upholding word: eis tor alwra, Κύριε, ο λόγος σου διαμένει έν τώ ούρανώ είς γενεάν και γενεάν ή αλήθεια σου εθεμελίωσας την γην rai Siaméres. But the above quotation from Psalm civ. 6 (see note on  $\pi\epsilon\rho_{i}\beta\dot{\alpha}\lambda a_{i}\sigma_{i}$ ) gives a striking parallel. It seems best to connect is  $i\mu\dot{\alpha}\tau_{i}\sigma_{i}$  with the preceding clause, thus: and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, even as a garment; and they shall be changed.

άποστελλόμενα] The present participle expresses a repeated or continuous mission. Psalm ciii. 20, 21, ποιοῦντες τὸν λόγον αὐτοῦ...ποιοῦντες τὸ θέλημα (Α, τὰ θελήματα Β) αὐτοῦ. John i. 51, καὶ τοὺς ἀγγέλους τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀναβαίνοντας καὶ καταβαίνοντας κ.τ.λ.

διὰ τοὺς] For the sake of. The ministry of Angels has the good of individual men for its object. This is implied in the aὐτῶν of Matt. xviii. 10, ol ἄγγελοι aὐτῶν...βλέπουσιν τὸ πρόσωπον τοῦ Πατρός μου. Psalm xci. 11, 12, τοῖς ἀγγέλοις aὐτοῦ ἐντελείται περὶ σοῦ τοῦ διαφυλάξαι σε ἐν πάσαις ταῖς ὅδοῖς σου.

σωτηρίαν] The verb σώζειν has the two senses, to keep safe and to make safe, to preserve and to save, according to the subject and context. In classical Greek σωτηρία is most often safety or welfare, whether bodily or mental, personal or public. And the same general idea is seen in such places as Acts xxvii. 34, τοῦτο γάρ προς της ύμετέρας σωτηρίας ύπάρχει. Psalm cxviii. 15, φωνη αγαλλιάσεως καί σωτηρίας έν σκηναίς δικαίων. cxix. 155. &c. The more definite sense, of spiritual well-being, the sound and healthy condition of the whole man in his relation to God and eternity, is the commoner one in Scrip-And inasmuch as this ture. condition is represented as having been lost through sin, the context generally gives to owrypia the idea of rescue, restoration to well-being, rather than that of preservation in it. Acts xiii. 26, υμίν ο λόγος της σωτηρίας ταύτης έξαπεστάλη. xvi. 17, καταγγέλλουσιν ήμιν όδον σωτηpías. And so throughout the Epistles. The adjective ownplos (saving) occurs in Tit. ii. 11: σωτήριον (τό) in Luke ii. 30. iii. 6 (from Isai. xl. 5). Acts xxviii. 28. Eph. vi. 17 (from Isai. lix. 17), and often in the Septuagint: σωτήρια (τά), thankofferings for safety, peace-offerings, Exod. xx. 24, τα όλοκαυτώματα καί τα σωτήρια ύμων  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ ; and so about 70 times in Leviticus, Numbers, &c.

II. 1-4. Διά τοῦτο δεῖ] Inference from the foregoing contrast. If such is the Scripture doctrine of the exaltation of the Son, in right of person, work, and office, above all angelic being, how far must the Gospel of our salvation, introduced by the ministry of the Son, transcend in dignity, and in the awfulness of its sanctions, that περισσοτέρως] This form is peculiar (with the exception of this place and xiii. 19) to St Paul's Epistles, especially the Second to the Corinthians (i. 2. ii. 4. vii. 13, 15. xi. 23. xii. 15. Gal. i. 14. Phil. i. 14. 1 Thess. ii. 17). The adjective  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \sigma \delta s$ (from  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ) in its sense of over and above) means remaining over (Exod. x. 5, το περισσόν, τὸ καταλειφθέν); and so either (1) abundant (John x. 10, kai περισσόν έχωσιν), superior, excellent (Dan. v. 12, 14, πνεθμα περισσον...σοφία περισσή), or (2) redundant, superfluous, excessive (2 Cor. ix. 1,  $\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\delta\nu$ μοί έστιν το γράφειν ύμιν). Sometimes with a genitive, exceeding, more than (Matt. v. 37, to de περισσόν τούτων κ.τ.λ.).

προσέχειν] Acts viii. 6, προσείχον...τοίς λεγομένοις. xvi. 14, προσέχειν τοίς λαλουμένοις. 2 Pet. i. 19, τὸν προφητικὸν λόγον, & καλῶς ποιεῖτε προσέχοντες. Elsewhere with a dative of the person (Luke xvii. 3, προσέχετε έαυτοῖς. xxi. 34. Acts v. 35. viii. 10, 11. xx. 28), or with aπ∂ (Matt. vii. 15. x. 17. xvi. 6, 11, 12. Luke xx. 46, προσέχετε aπ∂ τῶν γραμματέων), or with both (Luke xii. 1, προσέχετε έαυτοῖς aπ∂ τῆς ζύμης τῶν Φαρισαίων). It is a favourite word with St Luke. St Paul uses it only in the Pastoral Epistles (1 Tim. i. 4. iii. 8. iv. 1, 13. Tit i. 14).

τοῖς ἀκουσθεῖσιν] The things which were heard; which were taught us in our first instruction as Christians. Eph. i. 13, ἀκούσαντες τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀληθείας. iv. 21, εἶ γε αὐτὸν ἡκούσατε καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ ἐδιδάχθητε. Col. i. 6, 23, ἀφ ἡς ἡμέρας ἡκούσατε καὶ ἐπέγνωτε τὴν χάριν...τοῦ εὐαγγελίου οὖ ἡκούσατε. 2 Tim. i. 13. ii. 2. I John ii. 7, 24, ὅ ἀπ° ἀρχῆς ἡκούσατε. iii. 11. 2 John 6.

 $\mu \eta' \pi \sigma \tau \epsilon$ ] The temporal sense, lest at any time, would not be unsuitable here, nor in Luke xxi. 34, and a few other passages. But the other sense, lest haply, is so clearly required in most places (see, for instance, Matt. xiii. 29. xv. 32. xxv. 9. Luke xiv. 8, 29) that it may be with some confidence adopted here.

ing aside instead of flowing along; as a river escaping from its channel through chinks and fissures in the banks, and so losing its proper volume of water. In classical Greek the word is used, for example, of a thing which has slipped from the memory, or a person who has slipped from his senses. It is used once in the Septuagint exactly as here. Prov. iii. 21, υίέ, μη παραρρυής, τήρησον δέ  $\epsilon \mu \eta \nu \beta o \nu \lambda \eta \nu$ . The figure is like that of Psalm lviii. 7, ¿ξουδενωθήσονται ώς ύδωρ διαπορευόμενον (let them fall away like water that runneth apace). Lest haply we be found to have leaked or ebbed away. The aorist expresses the possible suddenness as well as completeness of the defection. Bébaios] Stedfust, firm to the tread (from βάω, βαίνω. Thuc. iii. 23, κρύσταλλος οὐ βέβαιος ώστ' επελθείν). The word occurs five times in this Epistle (iii. 6, 14. vi. 19. ix. 17), and only four times besides in the New Testament (Rom. iv. 16. 2 Cor. i. 7. 2 Pet. i. 10, 19, έχομεν βεβαιότερον τον προφητικόν λόγον). In the Septuagint it is found only in Wisdom vii. 23, πνεύμα...βέβαιον ασφαλές αμέριμνον. For the verb BeBawwv, see verse 3. And for BeBaiwous vi. 16.

μισθαποδοσίαν] A word peculiar to this Epistle: x. 35, ήτις έχει μεγάλην μισθαποδοσίαν. xi. 26, ἀπέβλεπεν γὰρ εἰς τὴν μισθαποδοσίαν. Also μισθαποδότης, xi. 6. We have the elements of the word in Deut. xxiv. 15, αὐθημερὸν ἀποδώσεις τὸν μισθὸν αὐτοῦ. Jerem. xxii. 13. Wisdom x. 17. Matt. xx. 8, ἀπόδος τὸν μισθόν. The classical form is μισθοδοσία.

3.  $\pi \hat{\omega} s$   $i \mu \hat{\epsilon} \hat{s} \hat{\epsilon} \kappa \phi \epsilon \upsilon \xi \dot{\omega} \epsilon \theta a$ ] If the Law, with its interposition of Angels, was thus formidable in its self-assertion, judge ye if it can be safe to trifle with the Gospel, which has the Son Himself for its Mediator. This is the direct inference. But a further suggestion follows, involved in the word salvation. The superior greatness of the Mediator is the leading thought. The opposite character of the Dispensation—a Dispensation of mercy, not of judgment—is the subordinate. The danger of neglecting the Gospel has thus two measures, each in the way of comparison with the Law.

έκφευζόμεθα] Elsewhere with an accusative of the thing to be escaped: Luke xxi. 36, ταῦτα πάντα. Rom. ii. 3, τὸ κρίμα τοῦ Θεοῦ. Here the thing to be dreaded is left in mysterious silence. So in 1 Thess. v. 3, καὶ οὖ μὴ ἐκφύγωσιν. Heb. xii. 25, ἐκείνοι οὖκ ἐξέφυγον.

τηλικαύτης] So great, (1) by reason of the majesty of the Introducer, (2) in its own character. The word τηλικοῦτος occurs only (besides) in 2 Cor. i. 10. James iii. 4, τὰ πλοῖα τηλικαῦτα ὅντα. Rev. xvi. 18, τηλικοῦτος σεισμός, οὖτω μέγας.

άμελήσαντες] (1) The tense expresses, if, in the retrospect of the life, as one whole, from the judgment, we be found to have neglected. (2) It is the word used of the invited guests in Matt. xxii. 5, oi δè ἀμελήσαντες ἀπῆλθον. 1 Tim. iv. 14. Compare Jer. xlviii. 10, ἐπικατάρατος ὁ ποιῶν τὰ ἔργα Κυρίου ἀμελῶς. The danger is that of

λαλεισθαι διά τοῦ Κυρίου ὑπὸ τῶν ἀκουσάντων

slighting rather than of refusing.

σωτηρίας] Here made a synonym of the Gospel. This is its gracious import and purport as a whole. Acts xiii. 26, ό λόγος τῆς σωτηρίας ταύτης. See note on i. 14, σωτηρίαν.

 $η_{\tau IS}$  apχην κ.τ.λ.] (I) The Gospel had Christ Himself for its original Preacher. (2) We received it on the sure testimony of its first hearers. (3) That testimony was not human only: God bore witness with it in all manner of supernatural gifts.

 $\eta_{TIS}$ ] One which. A salvation which, having, &c. Compare viii. 5, 6. ix. 2, 9. x. 8, 11, 35. xii. 5. xiii. 7. It is a classifying relative; but often, as here, rhetorical in its use, and conveying no intimation of there being others of the same class. Its object is to introduce the mention of a characteristic quality which explains or emphasizes the thing in question.

άρχην λ. λαλείσθαι] Literally, having received a beginning to be spoken. Not implying an imperfect, partial, or inceptive speaking; but simply equivalent to having been first spoken. Compare Acts i. I,  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ i πάντων...ών ήρξατο Ίησοῦς ποιεῖν τε καὶ διδάσκειν (all that Jesus did and taught as a beginning of the new Dispensation). Gen. ii. 3, κατέπαυσεν από πάντων των έργων αύτοῦ, ῶν ἤρξατο ὁ Θεὸς ποιήσαι.

διὰ τοῦ Κυρίου] Through the Lord. By (ὑπό) would have been equally true: but διὰ better suits the δι' ἀγγέλων of verse 2, as well as the thought that of both Dispensations God is the Originator. See i. 1, 2, πάλαι ὁ Θεός λαλήσας...ἐλάλησεν ἡμῶν ἐν υἰῷ Acts x. 36, τὸν λόγον [ὅν] ἀπέ στειλεν τοῖς υἰοῖς Ἱσραὴλ εὐαγγελιζόμενος εἰρήνην διὰ Ἱησοῦ Χριστοῦ· οῦτός ἐστιν πάντων κύριος κ.τ.λ.

τοῦ Κυρίου] The Lord (absolutely) as a title of Christ is characteristic of St Luke. See Luke vii. 13. x. 1. xi. 39. xii. 42. xiii. 15. xvii. 5, 6. xviii. 6. xix. 8, 34. xxii. 61. xxiv. 34. Acts v. 14. ix. 1, 10, 11, 15, 17, 27, 35, 42. &c., &c. Of the other Evangelists, St Matthew uses it in xxi. 3. and St Mark in xi. 3 (as St Luke in xix. 31), in the phrase, The Lord hath need of him (or of them); and the propriety of the title there speaks for itself. In Matt. xxviii. 6 the reading is disputed; and Mark xvi. 20 cannot be confidently quoted as a part of that Gospel. St John uses it six times in his last two chapters (xx. 2, 18, 20, 25. xxi. 7, 12), and once in vi. 23. It is found in St Paul's Epistles frequently τών ἀκουσάντων] Called in Luke i. 2, οἱ ἀπ' ἀρχής αὐτόπται καὶ ὑπηρέται γενόμενοι τοῦ λόγου. And in Acts x. 41, μάρτυσιν... οἶτινες συνεφάγομεν καὶ συνεπίομεν αὐτῷ μετὰ τὸ ἀναστῆναι αὐτὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν. Compare John xiv. 26, ὑπομνήσει ὑμᾶς πάντα ἃ εἶπον ὑμῖν. xv. 27, καὶ ὑμεῖς δὲ μαρτυρεῖτε, ὅτι ἀπ' ἀρχῆς μετ' ἐμοῦ ἐστέ. Acts iv. 20, ἃ είδαμεν καὶ ἠκούσαμεν.

είς ήμας έβεβαιώθη Was certified unto us (so as to reach us; like 1 Thess. ii. 9, inpúfaμεν είς ύμας. iv. 8, τον διδόντα το πνεθμα...είς ύμας). Compare 1 Cor. i. 6, τὸ μαρτύριον τοῦ Χριστοῦ έβεβαιώθη έν υμίν. For βεβαιoûv, see also Mark xvi. 20, tov λόγον βεβαιοῦντος. Rom. xv. 8. 1 Cor. i. 8. 2 Cor. i. 21. Col. ii. 7. Heb. xiii. 9. This reference to the testimony of the original hearers of Christ is exactly that of Luke i. 2,  $\kappa a \theta \omega_s \pi a \rho \epsilon \delta \rho$ σαν ήμιν οι απ' άρχης κ.τ.λ. But it is most unlike St Paul, who everywhere claims to be himself an original witness (1 Cor. ix. 1,  $oi\chi$ i Inσοῦν τὸν κύριον ἡμῶν ἐώρακα; xi. 23. xv. 8. Gal. i. 1, 12, οἰκ ἀπ ἀνθρώπων οἰδὲ δἰ ἀνθρώπου...οἰδὲ γὰρ ἐγῶ παρὰ ἀνθρώπου παρέλαβον αὐτό κ.τ.λ. Eph. iii. 3), and could scarcely be supposed for any reason to waive or dissemble his direct authority.

4. συνεπιμαρτυρούντος This double compound is only here used in Scripture. But we have έπιμαρτυρείν in 1 Pet. v. 12, and συμμαρτυρείν in Rom. ii. 15. viii. 16. ix. 1. The  $\epsilon \pi i$  might seem to mean further testimony; but the examples, classical and scriptural, suggest rather the sense of attesting, bearing witness to something. God bearing witness to it (the σωτηρία) along with them (the human witnesses). Acts xiv. 3, παρρησιαζόμενοι επί τώ Κυρίω τῷ μαρτυροῦντι τῷ λόγω τής χάριτος αυτού, διδόντι σημεία καὶ τέρατα γίνεσθαι διὰ τῶν χειρῶν autov. Compare 1 Cor. i. 6, where the μαρτύριον τοῦ Χριστοῦ (the thing testified about Christ) is said, as here, to have been confirmed by the supernatural gifts of the Spirit to the hear-Also I Thess. i. 5, 7ò ers. ευαγγέλιον ήμων ούκ έγενήθη είς ύμας έν λόγφ μόνον, άλλα και έν δυνάμει καὶ ἐν πνεύματι άγίω κ.τ.λ.

Θεού σημείοις τε και τέρασιν και ποικίλαις δυνάσημείοις τε A fourfold description is here given of the supernatural evidences. Elsewhere we have (1) on per and répara, Matt. xxiv. 24. Mark xiii, 22. John iv. 48. Acts ii. 19, 43. iv. 30. v. 12. vi. 8. vii. 36. xiv. 3. xv. 12; (2) σημεία and δυνάμεις, Acts viii. 13; (3) δύναμις σημείων και τεράτων, Rom. xv. 19; (4) σημεία, τέρατα, and δυνάμεις (or δύναμις), Acts ii. 22. Cor. xii. 12. 2 Thess. ii. 9. Of these various terms, répas (miracle) denotes the marvellousness; on usion (sign) points to the object of miracle, as a signal of something or some one; Súvamus (power) marks the superhuman agency involved; while the fourth particular, found only here in this combination, traces up the phenomena of Christian miracle to their source in the Pentecostal gift.

σημείοις] Found in this sense in all the Gospels, but especially characteristic of St John. Matt. xii. 38, 39, σημείον ίδεῦν... σημείον ἐπιζητεῖ...σημείον οὐ δοθήσεται &c. &c. John ii. 11, 18, 23, ἀρχὴν τῶν σημείων κ.τ.λ. iii. 2, ταῦτα τὰ σημεία ποιεῦν ἇ σῦ ποιεῖs. iv. 54, δεύτερον σημείον. vi. 2, 26, 30. &c. &c. Acts iv. 16, 22, γνωστὸν σημείον κ.τ.λ. viii. 6. &c. &c. 2 Cor. xii. 12, τὰ σημεία τοῦ ἀποστόλου.

τέρασιν] Rarely found alone. Exod. iv. 21, πάντα τὰ τέρατα  $\mathring{u}$  έδωκα (Α, δέδωκα Β). xv. 11, θαυμαστός έν δόξαις, ποιών τέρατα. 1 Kings xiii. 3, 5, τοῦτο τὸ τέρας ὅ ἰλάλησε Κύριος κ.τ.λ. 2 Chron. xxxii. 31. Psalm xlvi. 8.

ποικίλαις From the literal sense, variegated, many-coloured (Gen. xxxi. 8, τέξεται πάντα τα πρόβατα ποικίλα. ΧΧΧΥΠ. 3, χιτώνα ποικίλον. Ezek. xvi. 10. de. Zech. i. 8, ίπποι ποικίλοι), comes that of various or manifold in all applications. Matt. iv. 24, ποικίλαις νόσοις. Mark i, 34. Luke iv. 40. 2 Tim. iii. 6, επιθυμίαις ποικίλαις. Tit, iii. 3, επιθυμίαις και ήδοναις ποικίλαις. Heb. xiii. 9, διδαχαΐς ποικίλαις καί ξέναις. James i. 2, πειρασµois  $\pi$ oikilois. I Pet. i. 6, iv. 10, ποικίλης χάριτος Θεού. Add Eph. iii. 10, η πολυποίκιλος σοφία τοῦ Θεοῦ.

δυνάμεσιν Powers ; exercises of power. Matt. vii. 22, Suraμεις πολλάς έποιήσαμεν. ΧΙ. 20, 21, 23, αί πλείσται δυνάμεις αυτού κ.τ.λ. xiii. 54, 58, ή σοφία αυτη καί αι δυνάμεις κ.τ.λ. xiv. 2, αί δυνάμεις ένεργούσιν έν αὐτῷ. Mark V1. 2, 5, 14, δυνάμεις τοιαθται δια τών χειρών αυτού γινόμεναι κ.τ.λ. Luke x. 13. xix. 37, wv eldov δυνάμεων. Acts xix. 11, δυνάμεις ου τώς τυχούσας. I Cor. xii. 10, 28, 29. Gal. iii. 5, rai ένεργών δυνάμεις έν υμίν. St John does not use the word δύναμις.

μεσιν καί πνεύματος άγίου μερισμοῖς κατά την αὐτοῦ θέλησιν.

 $\pi v \epsilon \dot{v} \mu a \tau o s \dot{a} \gamma i o v$  The article is wanting, as it usually is when the communication of the Holy Spirit is the point in view. The Holy Spirit personally is to ayior πνεύμα, or το πνεύμα το άγιον. Examine Matt. xii. 32. xxviii. 19. Mark xiii. 11. Luke ii. 26. iii. 22. xii. 10, 12. John xiv. 26. Acts i. 8, 16. ii. 38. v. 3, 32. vii. 51. ix. 31. x. 44, 45, 47. xi. 15. xiii. 2, 4. xv. 8, 28. xvi. 6. xix. 6. xx. 23, 28. xxi. 11. xxviii. 25. 1 Cor. vi. 19. 2 Cor. xiii. 13. Eph. iv. 30. Heb. iii. 7. ix. 8. x. 15. A communication of the Holy Spirit, whether in gift or grace, is  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$  aylov. Compare, for example, (1) Luke ii. 25 with 26: πνεύμα ην άγιον έπ' αὐτόν (there was upon him a Holy Spirit; that is, an inspiration of the Holy Spirit); και ήν αὐτῷ κεχρηματισμένον ύπο του πνεύματος τοῦ ἀγίου (and it had been communicated to him by the Holy Spirit, who is the Author of inspiration)  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . (2) John vii. 39 with xiv. 26: oun yap n  $\pi v \in \hat{v} \mu a$  dylov (for not yet was there a Holy Spirit; that is, an effusion of the Holy Spirit upon the Church according to the promise); το πνεύμα το άγιον ο πέμ- $\psi \epsilon \delta \pi a \tau \eta \rho$  (the sending of the Holy Spirit is equivalent to the existence of a Holy Spirit). (3) Acts xix. 2 with 6:  $\epsilon i \pi v \epsilon \tilde{v} \mu a$  άγιον ἐλάβετε...οὐδὲ εἰ πνεῦμα άγιον έστιν ήκούσαμεν (did ye receive a Holy Spirit on becoming believers? We did not even hear whether there is a Holy Spirit: that is, in either case, an effusion of the Holy Spirit in the sense of the great promise);  $\eta \lambda \theta \epsilon v \tau \dot{o}$ πνεῦμα τὸ ἄγιον ἐπ' αὐτούς (the Holy Spirit came upon them, and that coming of the Holy Spirit is equivalent to the receiving, or the existence, of a Holy Spirit). The seven Spirits of God (Rev. i. 4. iii. 1. iv. 5. v. 6), meaning the one Holy Spirit in diffusion, might be said to be, each one, a Holy Spirit.

μερισμοίς] Josh. xviii. 10, καί εμέρισεν Ίησους εκεί την γην υίοις Ίσραήλ κατά μερισμούς αυ- $\tau \hat{\omega} r$  (clause omitted in B). The noun occurs (in the New Testament) only here and in iv. But the verb is frequent. 12. Mark vi. 41. Rom. xii. 3, čkáστω ως ο Θεός εμέρισεν μέτρον πίστεως. I Cor. vii. 17. 2 Cor. x. 13. Heb. vii. 2. For the sense, compare Eph. iv. 7, ένὶ δὲ ἐκάστω ήμῶν ἐδόθη [ή] χάρις κατὰ τὸ μέτρον τής δωρεάς του Χριστου. The communication of the Holy Spirit, whether ordinary, in grace, or (as here) extraordinary, in gift, is a distribution: see the Parables of Matt. xxv. 14, &c., and Luke xix. 11, &c.

κατὰ τ. αὐτοῦ  $θ \epsilon \lambda \eta \sigma \iota v$ ] (1) The

(2) The autou probably refers to tou Θεού, and not to πνεύματος ayiov. It would be a straining of the parallel to argue the latter from I Cor. xii. 11, πάντα δε ταῦτα ένεργεί το έν και το αυτό πνεύμα, διαιρούν ίδία έκάστω καθώς βού- $\lambda \epsilon \tau a \iota$ . For there the personality · of the Spirit is as clearly prominent as here it is subordinate. (3) The form  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \sigma \iota s$  (volition, the act of willing) is found only here in the New Testament. But see 2 Chron. xv. 15. Psalm xxi. 2, την επιθυμίαν της καρδίας...και την θέλησιν (Α, δέησιν Β) τών χειλέων avrov. Prov. viii. 35. 2 Macc. xii. 16, τή τού Θεού θελήσει.

5-18. Où yàp K.T.A.] It must be so. Christ must be above the Angels. For thus only can the Scripture be fulfilled. Scripture bears witness to the destined supremacy, not of Angels, but of man, over the world that shall be. All things are put under him. This universal subjugation we see not in the present. But we see preparation made for it. We see Jesus crowned. Crowned after, and as the result of, suffering. This experience of suffering was necessary. So only could there be that conscious brotherhood between the Saviour and the saved, which is the predicted relationship. The incarnation was necessary to the death, and the death was the condition of the salvation. So only could the power of the devil be broken, and the fear of death be taken away. Not Angels, but men, are the object of the interposition : and He who would mediate for men must first be made like them; He who would succour the tempted must first have been Himself tempted.

5.  $i\pi \epsilon ra\xi \epsilon \nu$ ] The nominative is evidently  $o \Theta \epsilon o s$ , not understood from  $\tau o \Theta e o s$  above, but rather as the universal nominative to providences and to Scriptures.

την οἰκουμένην την μέλλουσαν] For οἰκουμένη, see note on i. 6. The peculiarity here is the addition of την μέλλουσαν. Compare vi. 5, μέλλοντος alŵros. The contrast is between the world of the present, with its predominant sin and suffering, and the new heaven and earth wherein dwelleth righteousness (2 Pet. iii. 13).

περl ηs λαλοῦμεν] The real subject, when we speak of the exaltation of the Son, is the world not yet seen, the βασιλεία ασάλευτος which waits for the

6. διεμαρτύρατο] The forms  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho \epsilon i \nu$  and  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  (or the strengthened form Siapap- $\tau \dot{\nu} \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta \alpha \iota$ ) are always kept distinct. The former is to bear witness, as in Num. xxxv. 30, μάρτυς είς ου μαρτυρήσει έπι  $\psi v_{\chi \eta \nu}$ . &c., &c. The latter is to call to witness, as in Jer. xxxii. 10, καὶ διεμαρτυράμην μάρτυ-(1) To this acpas. &c., &c. cusative of the witness appealed to may be added a dative of the person addressed, or for whose information, warning, &c., the appeal is made; as Deut. iv. 26, διαμαρτύρομαι υμίν σήμερον τον τε ουρανόν και την γην (I call heaven and earth to witness against you). (2) Often, the accusative of the witness being dropped, there remains the dative of the person to or for whom, &c.; as Gen. xliii. 3, διαμαρτυρία διαμεμαρτύρηται (Α, μεμαρτύρηται Β) ήμιν ο ανθρωπος, λέγων (the man did solemnly protest unto us, saying). Psalm lxxxi. 8, akovorov, raós µov, καί διαμαρτυρούμαι (Α, διαμαρτύpopul B) oor. (3) To this dative is often added an accusative of the subject spoken of; as Deut. xxxii. 46, τους λόγους τουτους ούς έγω διαμαρτίρομαι ύμιν σήμερον (declare solemnly, as if with an appeal to witnesses). Acts xx. 21, διαμαρτυρέμενος Ιουδαίοις τε και "Ελλησιν την είς Θεόν μετάνοι-

 $a\nu \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$  (4) Or, by a slight variation, the dative of the person is exchanged for  $\pi p o s$  with an accusative; as Zech. iii. 6, διεμαρτύρατο ο άγγελος Κυρίου προς Ίησοῦν, λέγων κ.τ.λ. (5) Or the accusative of the subject is turned into a clause with ort, iva, or the infinitive; as Acts x. 42, κηρῦξαι τῷ λαῷ καὶ διαμαρτύρασθαι ότι κ.τ.λ. Luke xvi. 28,  $\delta \pi \omega s$ διαμαρτύρηται αύτοῖς ἶνα μη καὶ αύτοι έλθωσιν κ.τ.λ. I Tim. v. 21, διαμαρτύρομαι... ίνα ταῦτα φυλά-Eys. Acts xviii. 5, Siapapropoμενος τοις Ιουδαίοις είναι τον Χριστόν Ίησοῦν, 2 Tim. ii. 14, διαμαρτυρόμενος...μή λογομαχείν. (6) Finally, the dative of the person is dropped, and the accusative of the subject (or some equivalent for it, as  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \omega \nu \kappa \tau \lambda$  here) alone retained; as in Acts xx. 24, διαμαρτύρασθαι τὸ εὐαγγέλιον. xxiii. 11, διεμαρτύρω τα περί épov. The simple verb μαρτύ- $\rho\epsilon\sigma\theta a\iota$  occurs three times in the New Testament (Acts xx. 26. Gal. v. 3. Eph. iv. 17), and not once in the Alexandrine Septuagint. The compound διαμαρτύ- $\rho\epsilon\sigma\theta a\iota$  is found 26 times in the Alexandrine Septuagint, and in 15 places of the New Testament, of which ten are in St Luke's Gospel and the Acts.

 $\pi o \dot{\tau} \tau s$ ] The indefinite form of expression is characteristic of the rhetorical style of the Epistle; avoiding the stiffness and bald-τί ἐστίν] Psalm viii. 4-6, Septuagint. The Psalm bears on its surface only the marvelling adoration of the human writer as he contemplates the glory of the celestial bodies, sun, moon, and stars, and contrasts with it the ascendancy of frail and feeble man over God's irrational But there is a sense creatures. within this sense, to which the πάντα υπέταξας of verse 6, taken in its literal meaning, bears wit-Universal dominion can ness. be asserted for Him alone who is not man only. Yet it is not of the Son as God of God, but of the Son as the God-Man, that this deeper meaning of the Psalm speaks. It is not to the original glory, but to the Mediatorial exaltation, of Christ, that the language is applicable.

τί ἐστὶν ἄνθρωπος] Compare Psalm cxliv. 3, Κύριε, τί ἐστὶν ἄνθρωπος, ὅτι ἐγνώσθης αὐτῷ; η̈ viòς ἀνθρώπου, ὅτι λογίζη αὐτόν; But the whole tone and context there are opposite to those of Psalm viii.

äνθρωπος...νίος ἀνθρώπου] In the first meaning of the Psalm, a man...a son of man; any human being. See, for instance, Jer. xlix. 17, 18, mai corrat  $\eta'$ 'loovpaía eis a barov...où  $\mu\eta$  ka-  $\thetai\sigma\eta$  èkeî av $\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ , kai où  $\mu\eta$  karouký og èkeî viôs av $\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ . li. 43,  $\gamma\eta$  èk  $\eta$  où karouký ou èk av $\tau\eta$  où ôc els, où òè  $\mu\eta$  karalý og èk av $\tau\eta$  où ôc els, où òè  $\mu\eta$  karalý og èk av $\tau\eta$  où ôc av $\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ . The idea of man collectively is not in the word; still less that of the Son of Man distinctively. Indeed the introduction of the latter thought is unsuitable even to the application of the passage; for the point is, not Christ as distinct from man, but Christ as man. μμνήσκη] xiii. 3, μιμνήσκεσθε τών δεσμίων. The present tense is rare. Isai. xii. 4. xlviii. 1, καὶ (A, omitted in B) Θεοῦ Ἰσραὴλ μιμνησκόμενοι. lxii. 6. Ecclus. vii. 36, μιμνήσκου τὰ ἔσχατά σου. 1 Macc. vi. 12, μιμνήσκομαι τῶν κακῶν ῶν ἐποίησα. xii. 11. The usual forms are μέμνημαι and ἐμνήσθην.

iπισκiπτη] A verb of frequent use in the Septuagint, both in the judicial and the merciful sense. For the former, see Jer. v. 9, 29, μη iπi τούτοις ούκ iπισκίψομα...ούκ iκδικήσει ή ψυχή μου; &c. &c. The former is indicated here, and in the akár $\theta$  iros  $\sigma$ ré $\phi$ aros of Mark xv. 17 (and the parallel passages), and in the  $\sigma$ ré $\phi$ aros  $\chi$  $\rho$ v $\sigma$ éoi of Rev. iv. 4. In other passages the alternative is open; but, as a rule, in St Paul's Epistles the wreath of victory is the probable allusion, whereas in the Book of Revelation (as in the Septuagint) the idea of the royal crown is predominant. The verb occurs only here (and in verse 9), and in 2 Tim. ii. 5. Psalm v. 12. ciii. 4. Song iii. 11.

kai karéornoas] The retention of this clause of the Psalm as a part of the quotation must remain in doubt. In number, the authorities for it preponderate: but there is the obvious counterprobability of its having been inserted by copyists to complete the quotation.

κατέστησας ἐπὶ τά] We find καθιστάναι ἐπὶ with the three cases: (1) Matt. xxiv. 45. xxv. 21, 23, ἐπὶ πολλῶν σε καταστήσω. Luke xii. 42. Acts vi. 3. vii. 27. (2) Matt. xxiv. 47. Luke xii. 44, ἐπὶ πᾶσιν τοῦς ὑπάρχουσιν αὐτοῦ καταστήσει αὐτόν. (3) Luke xii. 14, τίς με κατέστησεν κριτὴν ἢ μεριστὴν ἐφ' ὑμᾶς; In Dan. ii. 48 we have both (1) and (3): κατέστησεν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ πάσης χώ ρας... ἐπὶ πάντας τοὺς σοφούς. Compare I Sam. viii, 5 with x. 19, κατάστησον ἐφ' ἡμῶς βασιλέα ...βασιλέα καταστήσεις ἐφ' ἡμῶν. Also I Kings iv. 7 with v. 16, καθεστάμενοι ἐπὶ πάντα Ἰσραήλ... ἐπὶ τῶν ἔργων. And so throughout the Septuagint. The dative seems to be rare.

πάντα ὑπέταξας] Quoted also in I Cor. xv. 27 and Eph.
 22 (ὑπὸ τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ). The thought here is thoroughly that of St Paul; but the length of the quotation, and the πού τις of its introduction, suggest a different writer.

 $iπ \sigma \kappa \alpha \tau \omega$ ] Mark vi. 11. vii. 28. Luke viii. 16. John i. 50. Rev. v. 3, 13. vi. 9. xii. 1. Always with a genitive. In form and sense it is the direct opposite of  $iπ \epsilon \rho \alpha i \omega$  (Eph. i. 21. iv. 10. Heb. ix. 5). In neither case does the compound seem to differ materially from the simple form  $(a \nu \omega, \kappa \alpha \tau \omega)$ , except in turning the adverb into a preposition.

 $o\vec{v}\pi\omega$ ] xii. 4. St Paul uses  $o\vec{v}\pi\omega$  once only, I Cor. iii. 2. It is found oftenest in St John.

ορώμεν] A comparatively rare word in Scripture (except in the imperative). I Cor. ix. I. Col. ii. I, 18. St John, however, uses it no less than 28 times in his Gospel and Epistles.

aὐτῷ] Throughout this verse aὐτῷ is man. The application to Christ does not begin till verse 9.

 τὸν δὲ] But, though we see not yet the fulfilment of the saying, we see thus much accomplished towards it. The universal reign is not yet: but the destined King is already crowned.

τον δε βραχύ τι] Him who has been diminished a little beyond Angels. That which is represented in the Psalm as man's glory, that he has a position assigned him just below that of the Angels, becomes, in the application to Christ, an act of humiliation, by reason of the (original) glory that excelleth. It is not necessary, therefore, to vary the sense of  $\beta \rho \alpha \chi \acute{\tau} \tau$ into for a little while (see note on verse 7). The point is, the condescension of Christ to man's position below the Angels, when He, as the Eternal Son, was high above them.

'Iησοῦν] The position of the word gives it this meaning. Man, who has been placed (as the Psalm says) below the Angels, we behold, in the person of Jesus, crowned (as the Psalm further says) with glory and honour.

δια το πάθημα του θανάτου] The place of these words makes them somewhat ambiguous. If connected with narroutevor, they give the motive of the hu-If connected with miliation. coreφarωμένον, they give the cause of the exaltation. Either connexion is defensible. (1) For the former, see verse 14, where the ability to die is made the object of the Incarnation. He partook of flesh and blood, that through death He might, &c. Also the difficult clause, onws

χάριτι Θεού κ.τ.λ., might thus be taken as explanatory of Sia to πάθημα τοῦ θανάτου, the words δόξη καί τιμή έστεφανωμένον having been thrown in, out of their strict order, to prevent too long a suspension of the principal statement. Him who had been made a little lower than the Angels, even Jesus, for the sake of suffering death-in other words, that by the grace of God He might taste death for every man—Him we now behold crowned with glory and honour. The chief objection to this arrangement of the construction is its interrupted and dislocated order. Also  $\pi \hat{a} \theta \eta \mu a$  seems rather to point to a suffering already endured, than to a suffering intended and future. (2) For the latter, we have the  $\delta i \partial o f$  Phil. ii. o, making the death the cause of the exaltation. Him who had been made a little lower than the Angels, even Jesus, we behold now, because of His having suffered death, crowned with glory and honour. This would be unquestionably the right interpretation, were it not for the clause following, όπως χάριτι Θεοῦ κ.τ.λ. But, to make this last clause intelligible, we have then to render it, that by the grace of God He may have tasted death for every man ; or, that by the grace of God the death which He tasted may be for every man (available for the sins of the whole world). This represents the exaltation of Jesus as essential to the efficacy of His death. It is like Rom. iv. 25, kai  $\eta\gamma\epsilon\rho\eta\eta$  dua  $\tau\eta\nu$ duration  $\eta\mu\omega\nu$ . The death requires the resurrection (and all that follows upon the resurrection) to make it justifying. Thechief objection to this second interpretation lies in the  $\delta\pi\omega$ s  $\gamma\epsilon\nu\sigma\eta\tau\alpha$ , to which it would be difficult to find a clear parallel, in the sense of that He may have tasted.

διά] See the foregoing note. If (1) is adopted, compare (for the διά) Phil. ii. 30, διὰ τὸ ἔργον Χριστοῦ (for the sake of doing Christ's work) μέχρι θανάτου η̈γγισεν. If (2), I Thess. v. I3, ηγεῦσθαι αὐτοὺς ὑπερεκπερισσῶς διὰ τὸ ἔργον αὐτῶν (because of their work done).

 $\pi \dot{a} \theta \eta \mu a$ ] (1) For  $\pi \dot{a} \theta \eta \mu a$  in the general sense of a thing suffered, compare x. 32. Rom. viii, 18. 2 Cor. i. 6. Col. i. 24. 2 Tim. iii. 11. 1 Pet. v. 9. In application to Christ, ii. 10. 2 Cor. i. 5. Phil. iii. 10. 1 Pet. i. 11. iv. 13. v. 1. (2) The genitive τοῦ θανάτου is peculiar. defining the  $\pi \dot{a} \theta \eta \mu a$  (suffering consisting of death). In Rom. viii. 18, the genitive τοῦ νῦν raipoù expresses that to which the sufferings belong. In the other examples, the genitive is that of the person (τοῦ Χριστοῦ,

II. 10.

έστεφανωμένον, ύπως χάριτι Θεοῦ ὑπὲρ παντὸς γεύσηται θανάτου. ἕπρεπεν γὰρ αὐτῷ, δι ὃν 10

&c.). (3) In two instances (Rom. vii. 5. Gal. v. 24)  $\pi \dot{a} \theta \eta \mu a$  runs into the sense of  $\pi \dot{a} \theta o s$ .

όπως χάριτι Θεοῦ] See note on διὰ τὸ πάθημα. The curious reading χωρὶς Θεοῦ (sanctioned by Origen, &c.) was variously understood as (1) apart from His Divine Nature (a Nestorian perversion), or (2) apart (in separation) from God (Matt. xxvii. 46), or (3) except God (as a caution against a too inclusive interpretation of ὑπὲρ παντός, and perhaps suggested by I Cor. xv. 27, δῆλον ὅτι ἐκτὸς τοῦ ὑποτάξαντος κ.τ.λ.).

 $\chi \alpha \rho_{i\tau} \Theta_{\epsilon} \circ \hat{v}$  The exact phrase occurs only in I Cor. xv. 10, χάριτι δέ Θεοῦ εἰμὶ ο εἰμι. The dative is that of the instrument. Compare 1 Cor. x. 30, el éyè χάριτι μετέχω. Eph. i. 5. &c. &c. From the first sense of  $\chi \alpha \rho is$ , free favour, the opposite alike of οργή (Eph. ii. 3, 5, ήμεθα τέκνα φύσει οργής...χάριτί έστε σεσωσμένοι) and of οφείλημα (Rom. iv. 4, ού κατα χάριν, άλλα κατὰ  $\dot{o}\phi\epsilon i\lambda\eta\mu a$ ), comes that of free favour exercised and manifested (as in 2 Cor. xii. 9, apreî σοι ή χάρις μου ή γαρ δύναμις к.т.л. &с. &с.).

ύπερ παντύς] (1) We have ύπερ πάντων in 2 Cor. v. 14, 15, εδς ύπερ πάντων. 1 Tim. ii. 6, αντίλυτρον ύπερ πάντων. The singular is poculiar to this place, and suggests the idea of the individual object of the Atonement. Other phrases with  $i\pi \epsilon \rho$ in reference to the death of Christ are υπέρ πολλών (Mark xiv. 24), υπέρ της εκκλησίας (Eph. v. 25), υπερ ημών (Rom. v. 8. Gal. iii. 13. Eph. v. 2. Tit. ii. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 21. 1 John iii. 16), υπερ εμού (Gal. ii. 20), ύπερ ασεβών (Rom. v. 6), δίκαιος υπέρ αδίκων (1 Pet. iii. 18). (2) Of the three prepositions found in this connexion,  $\sqrt[1]{\pi\epsilon\rho}$ ,  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ , and  $dv\tau i$ ,  $\upsilon \pi \epsilon \rho$  is simply in behalf of (with no definition of the mode).  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$  concerning (Matt. xxvi. 28. I John ii. 2. &c. with a special reference to the sin-offering, the  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ i auaptías of Leviticus, &c., and thence deriving a definiteness beyond its inherent meaning), avtí in exchange for (Matt. xx. 28. Mark x. 45, λύτρον  $dv\tau i \pi o\lambda\lambda \hat{\omega} v$ ). Only the last of these contains any idea of vicariousness, and even this can scarcely be confidently pressed beyond the idea of an equivalent price.

γεύσηται θανάτου] Matt. xvi. 28. Mark ix. 1. Luke ix. 27. John viii. 52, where the Jews quote the θάνατον οὐ μὴ θεωρήση of verse 51 in the form οὐ μὴ γεύσηται θανάτου.

 Επρεπεν γαρ αὐτῷ] Ι say πάθημα, and I say θανάτου. For, Δc. It was so, and it ought so

τὰ πάντα και δι' οῦ τὰ πάντα, πολλούς υίους είς

to be. Such an arrangement was suitable to the character of God, and to the purpose of the interposition. The airŵ here is God.

έπρεπεν] Matt. iii. 15, οῦτως γὰρ πρέπον ἐστὶν ἡμῶν πληρῶσαι πᾶσαν δικαιοσύνην. In Heb. vii. 26 there is a personal nominative (τοιοῦτος γὰρ ἡμῶν καὶ ἔπρεπεν ἀρχιερεύς κ.τ.λ.); and in 1 Tim. ii. 10 and Tit. ii. 1 a neuter nominative ( $\delta$  and  $\mathring{a}$ ). Here the infinitive following serves as the nominative.

 $\delta i \delta v \dots \delta i \delta v \end{bmatrix}$  (1) The former might be either because of whom, or for whose sake. The two ideas, of the first cause and the final cause, are equally admissible. But, considering the use elsewhere of  $\epsilon$  is in the second of these senses (Rom. xi. 36, els αύτον τα πάντα. I Cor. viii. 6,  $\eta \mu \epsilon \hat{i} \hat{s} \epsilon \hat{i} \hat{s} a \hat{v} \tau \hat{o} \hat{v}$ ; it will be better to render Si' or because of whom, owing to whom. Between  $\delta i' \delta v$ and the (commoner)  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi$  ov (Rom. xi. 36. I Cor. viii. 6) there is the difference of the two ideas, cause and origin. (2) The Si ou, through whom, by whose agency, is more commonly the attribute See 1 Cor. viii. 6, of Christ. καί είς κύριος Ίησοῦς Χριστός, δι ού τα πάντα, και ήμεις δι' αύτου. Compare John i. 3. Rom. i. 5. v. 2, 9, 11, 17, 21. &c. &c. But it is used, as here, of God the Father in Rom. xi. 36, or i if αύτου και δι' αύτου και είς αυτόν τὰ πάντα (God is the Origin, the Agent, and the Object, of all things). Compare Gal. i. 1, διὰ Ίησοῦ Χριστοῦ καὶ Θεοῦ πατρός. iv. 7, κληρονόμος διὰ Θεοῦ. This interchange of attributes between Christ and God is one of the incidental evidences of our Lord's Divinity. To Him is assigned, in common with the Father, the δι oῦ and the εἰς ὄν (Col. i. 16), and even (in one relation) the ἐξ οῦ (Eph. iv. 16. Col. ii. 19). Of the δι ὄν we have no instance but this one.

πολλούς vious] This clause is rendered very difficult by the past tense of ayayórra. On the whole, it may best be taken thus. It became Him (God)... that, having (in His eternal counsels, which foresee the end from the beginning, and in which the thing purposed is the thing as good as done) brought many sons to glory, He should perfect through sufferings the Author of their salvation. No evasion of the aorist must be attempted. The bringing of many sons to glory is (conceptionally) prior to the perfecting of Christ through sufferings. And the explanation is not helped by making dyayóvta agree with tov apynyóv. It was not the Incarnation, it was the Resurrection. which saved: and to speak of Christ as having brought sons to glory before He actually sufII. 10.

fered is far harsher than to regard the bringing to glory as done because purposed in God's counsels from the beginning. There is the same anticipative glorifying in the great passage in Rom. viii. 29, 30, ous  $\pi po \epsilon \gamma$ - $\nu \omega \dots \tau o \tau \sigma v \kappa al \ell \delta \delta \xi a \sigma \epsilon \nu$ . Compare also Eph. i. 3, &c.,  $\delta \epsilon v \lambda o \gamma \eta$ - $\sigma as \eta \mu a s \dots \epsilon \nu$   $\tau \sigma c s \epsilon \pi o v p a \nu (o s \epsilon \nu)$  $X \mu \sigma \tau \phi$ ,  $\kappa a \theta \omega s \ell \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \ell a \tau \sigma \eta \mu a s \ell v$  $a v \tau \phi \eta \rho \delta \kappa a \tau a \beta o \lambda \eta s \kappa \delta \sigma \mu o \nu \kappa. \tau . \lambda.$ 2 Thess, ii. 13.

 $\delta \delta \xi a v$  From the idea of the forthshining of light, as, for instance, the Shechinah in the tabernacle or temple (I Kings ΙΙ, έπλησε δόξα Κυρίου viii. olkov), is derived τύν the figurative sense of the manifestation of excellence; (1) whether of God Himself, His power, wisdom, love, &c. (John xi. 4, 40, υπέρ της δόξης του Θεού, ίνα δοξασθή ό υίος του Θεου... έαν πιστεύσης όψη την δόξαν τοῦ Θεοῦ. Rom. vi. 4, ηγέρθη Χριστος έκ νεκρών δια της δόξης του Πατρός. &c. &c.); or (2) of His people in the world to come, when they shall be seen as His. perfected alike in character and in condition (Rom. viii. 18, 21, εἰς τὴν ἐλευθερίαν τῆς δύξης τῶν τέκνων τοῦ Θεοῦ κ.τ.λ. ix. 23, ἇ προητοίμασεν εἰς δόξαν. 1 Cor. xv. 43, ἐγείρεται ἐν δόξη. 2 Cor. iv. 17, αἰώνιον βάρος δόξης. ἀγαγόντα] See note on πολλοὺς υἱούς.

 $a \rho \chi \eta \gamma \delta v$  The meaning of  $a\rho\chi\eta\gamma\delta$ s varies (like that of  $a\rho\chi\eta$ ) between the ideas of beginning and rule; of principium and principatus. Thus (1) the sense of author, originator, is clearly intended in such places as Mic. 13, αρχηγός αμαρτίας αύτη έστὶ τή θυγατρί Σιών. I Macc. ix. 61, τών ἀρχηγών της κακίας. And so in Heb. xii. 2, where it is expressly contrasted with  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \omega$ - $\tau \eta s$ . But (2) the idea of leader, ruler, prince, is more common. Exod. vi. 14, ούτοι άρχηγοι οίκων πατριών αὐτών. Num. xiv. 4, δωμεν αρχηγόν, και αποστρέψωμεν eis Αίγυπτον. xvi. 2, αρχηγοί συναγωγής...και ανδρες όνομαστοί Isai. iii. 6, 7,  $d\rho\chi\eta\gamma\delta s \eta\mu\omega\nu \gamma\epsilon$ νοῦ...οὐκ ἔσομαί σου ἀρχηγός. And so in Acts v. 31, Toutor o Θεός αρχηγόν και σωτήρα υψωσεν  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Here, and in Acts iii. 15 (τον δε αρχηγον της ζωης απεκτεί $va\tau\epsilon$ ), the appended genitive causes some ambiguity. The prince of life seems more natural in the one place, and is favoured by the only other instance of its occurrence in that Book of Scripture (Acts v. 31). On the other hand, the author of their salvation seems slightly more appropriate here, and the only other use of the word in this Epistle (xii. 2,  $\tau \partial r \tau \eta \pi$  i  $\sigma \tau e \omega \pi$  $a \rho \chi \eta \gamma \partial r$  kai  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \omega \tau \eta \gamma$ ) may be allowed to decide in favour of it.

παθημάτων] See note on verse 9, πάθημα.

τελειώσαι] The verb τελειούν (occurring nine times in this Epistle, and fourteen times elsewhere in the New Testament) means to make rédeior, to complete, perfect, consummate, &c. according to the nature of the thing or person spoken of. Thus (1) with an accusative of the thing : Luke ii. 43 (ras nµéρas). John iv. 34 (τὸ ἔργον). v. 36. xvii. 4. xix. 28 ( ) ypa \$\phi \). Acts xx. 24 (τον δρόμον μου καί τήν διακονίαν). Heb. vii. 19. James ii. 22 (ή πίστις). I John ii. 5 (ή αγάπη). iv. 12, 17. And so 1 Kings vii. 22. 2 Chron. viii. 16 (ror olkor). Neh. vi. 3. &c. &c. (The peculiar expression of Exod. xxix. 9, &c. Lev. viii. 33, &c. Num. iii. 3, eredeiwore τας χείρας αυτών του ίερατεύειν, forms a transition to the personal use of  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \omega \nu \nu$  in the sense of consecrating.) (2) With an accusative of the person: (a) in the general sense of moral or spiritual perfecting (John xvii. 23. Phil. iii. 12. 1 John iv. 18); (b) in the more special sense of absolving, or freeing from guilt (Heb. ix. 9. x. 1, 14); (c) of bringing into a state of entire blessedness (Heb. xi, 40. xii. 23, δικαίων τετελειωμένων). In three remaining passages of this Epistle the word is applied to Christ Himself. In vii. 28 the general idea of consummating is defined by the context into that of consecrating (aνθρώπους καθίστησιν αρχιερείς...υίον είς τον αίωνα τετελειωμένον). Compare Lev. xxi. 10, kai teteλειωμένου τας χείρας αυτού ένδύσασθαι τὰ ίμάτια αὐτοῦ. Here, and in v. q ( $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \iota \omega \theta \epsilon i s$ ), the idea is that of perfectly qualifying for the office undertaken.

11.  $\circ \tau \epsilon \gamma \epsilon \gamma$ the  $\epsilon \pi \rho \epsilon \pi \epsilon v$ . There ought to be an identity of experience because there is an identity of parentage. Christ and His people have a common Father. The Christ of prophecy is the brother, the fellow-worshipper, the fellow-believer, as well as the parent, of His people. This entire incorporation presupposes an incarnation; demands a fellowship of flesh and blood; a body in which He can suffer, a body in which He can die.

άγιάζων και οι άγιαζόμενοι έξ ένος πάντες.

αγιάζων...αγιαζόμενοι] From aylos, belonging to God (the opposite of Kowós, belonging to any one) the verb derives the sense of making to belong to God, whether by consecration, which is the act, or by sanctification, which is the process. The latter gives reality to the former, by bringing the consecrated person into harmony of life and character with the consecration. Sometimes the one thought predominates, sometimes the other. (1) Thus, (i) where the subject is a thing, the idea of a yiá (eiv is the act of consecrating. See Gen. ii. 3, ηὐλύγησεν ὁ Θεὸς τὴν ἡμέραν την έβδόμην, και ήγίασεν αυτήν. Exod. xix. 23, αφορίσαι το öpos, και άγιάσαι αυτό. xl. 9, 10, χρίσεις την σκηνήν...και άγιάσεις αυτήν...και αγιάσεις το θυσιαστήριον κ.τ.λ. Lev. xxv. 10, άγιάσετε τὸ έτος κ.τ.λ. ΧΧΝΙΙ. 14, 18, ΰς αν άγιάση την οἰκίαν αὐτοῦ ...τον άγρον αυτού κ.τ.λ. Jud. xvii. 3, άγιασμῷ (Α, άγιάζουσα B) ήγίασα τὸ ἀργύριον τῷ Κυρίῳ. 1 Kings ix. 3, ήγίασα (Α, ήγίακα B) τον οἶκον τοῦτον ὅν ψκοδόμησas. Matt. xxiii. 17, 19, ο vaos ό άγιάσας τὸν χρυσόν...τὸ θυσιαστήριον το άγιάζον το δώρον. 1 Tim. iv. 5, άγιάζεται γαρ δια λόγου Θεού και έντεύξεως. And so (ii) with a person, where (a) office is in view (Exod. xxx. 30, ayıáσεις αύτούς ίερατεύειν μοι. Jer. i. 5, προ τοῦ έξελθεῖν σε ἐκ μήτρας ηγίακά σε, προφήτην είς έθνη τέθεικά σε), or (b) religious privilege (Ezek. XX. 12, iyù Kúpios ο αγιάζων αυτούς. Heb. ix. 13, άγιάζει πρός την της σαρκός κα- $\theta$ apótητα), or (c) derived sanctity (1 Cor. vii. 14, ήγίασται γαρ ο άνηρ ο απιστος έν τη γυναικί  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ), or (d) initiation into the Christian life (as is the case wherever the past or perfect tenses of the verb are used with regard to the living; as I Cor. i. 2, ήγιασμένοις έν Χριστῷ Ίησοῦ. vi. 11, ἀλλὰ ἡγιάσθητε. Heb. x. 10, 29, ήγιασμένοι έσμεν διά τής προσφοράς κ.τ.λ. το αίμα ... i v ψ  $\eta \gamma i a \sigma \theta \eta$ ). To this head (that of consecration) belong the places where ayiágeiv is applied to Christ Himself (John x. 36, δν ο Πατήρ ήγίασεν και απέστειλεν είς τον κόσμον. xvii. 19, ύπερ αυτών εγώ άγιάζω εμαυτόν, I consecrate myself wholly to God by a self-devotion even unto death. 1 Pet. iii. 15, κύριον δε τον Χριστόν αγιάσατε έν ταις καρδίαις  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{\omega}\nu$ ), or even to God (Matt. vi. 9, άγιασθήτω τὸ ὄνομά σου, Thy Name, that which Thou art, be hallowed, or consecrated, in the thoughts, words, and acts of Thy creatures. Isai. viii. 13, τόν Κύριον τῶν δυνάμεων αὐτὸν άγιάσατε, καί αύτος έσται σου  $\phi \delta \beta o_{s}$ ). (2) On the other hand, sanctification is the prominent idea wherever (a) a gradual process is implied (as in Heb. x. 14, # δι' ην αιτίαν ουκ επαισχύνεται αδελφους αυτους 12 καλειν, λέγων, 'Απαγγελώ το όνομά σου τοις τοὺς ἀγιαζομένους) or (b) a work still to be done (as John xvii 17, 19, ἀγίασον αὐτοὺς ἐν τῇ ἀληθεία ...ἶνα ὦσιν καὶ αὐτοὶ ἡγιασμένοι κ.τ.λ. Eph. v. 26, ἶνα αὐτὴν ἀγιάσῃ κ.τ.λ. I Thess. v. 23, ἀγιάσαι ὑμᾶς ὀλοτελεῖς). Here the present tense (ἀγιάζων, ἀγιαζόμενοι) suggests the idea of sanctifying, though in fact the articles make the phrase equivalent to two nouns, the Sanctifier and the sanctified.

έξ ένός] Out of (sprung from, originating in) one Person, even God. (1) Matt. vii. 11, 21, ö πατήρ ὑμῶν ὁ ἐν τοῦς οὐρανοῖς... τοῦ πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν τοῦς οὐρανοῖς... τοῦ πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν τοῦς οὐρανοῖς. John xx. 17, ἀναβαίνω πρὸς τὸν πατέρα μου καὶ πατέρα ὑμῶν κ.τ.λ. (2) For ἐξ, compare John i. 13, οῦ οὐκ ἐξ αἰμάτων... ἀλλ ἐκ Θεοῦ ἐγεννήθησαν. viii. 47, ὁ ῶν ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ τὰ ῥήματα τοῦ Θεοῦ ἀκούει. 1 Cor. i. 30, ἐξ αὐ-τοῦ δὲ ὑμεῖς ἐστὲ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἱησοῦ.

 $\pi \acute{a} \imath \tau \epsilon_{S}$ ] He and they. The plural of  $\acute{a} \imath \imath \imath \imath \acute{a} \acute{c} \iota \iota \iota \iota \iota$  prevents the use of the dual both, which would otherwise be clearer.

δι'  $\eta v$  airíav] Because He and they have one Father. The phrase δι'  $\eta v$  airíav is only found in 2 Tim. i. 6, 12. Tit. i. 13. Its construction in Luke viii. 47 is different.

άδελφούς αυτούς καλείν] Matt. xii. 50, αυτός μου άδελφός. xxv. 40, ένὶ τούτων τῶν ἀδελφῶν μου. xxviii. 10, ἀπαγγείλατε τοῖς ἀδελφοῖςμου. Mark iii. 35. Luke viii. 21. John xx. 17, πορεύου προς τοὺς ἀδελφούς μου. Rom. viii. 29, πρωτότοκον ἐν πολλοῖς ἀδελφοῖς.

12. λέγων, Άπαγγελώ] Psalm xxii. 23, διηγήσομαι τὸ ἶνομά σου τοις αδελφοις μου κ.τ.λ. The Psalm, which opens with the Eloi, Eloi, and contains the σωσάτω aυτόν, and the ώρυξαν χειράς μου καὶ πόδας μου, and the διεμερίσαντο τα ιμάτιά μου, may well be quoted with confidence as full of Christ. The depth of the humiliation expressed in it, the height of the exaltation, are alike ov  $\kappa a\tau$  av $\theta \rho \omega \pi o v$ , and can only find their fulfilment in the God-Man. The clause quoted is from the triumphant reverse which begins with it, and which contains the words  $\tau \dot{o} \sigma \pi \epsilon \rho \mu a$ μου δουλεύσει αὐτῷ (verse 30). The statement is, that the suffering and now glorified Person, who is the speaker within the human speaker, will carry back the tidings of God's Name, of that which God is, to certain other persons whom He calls His brethren, and in the midst of a congregation of worshippers will sing God's praise.

ev μεσφ εκκλησίας] The second clause of the quotation introduces a new particular. The glorified Saviour is not only the Church's brother, revealing to it the Father; He is also the Church's precentor, leading its worship. So entire is the unity between Christ and His people, as set forth in prophetic Scripture.

έκκλησίας] From the original sense, of a body called out from a larger body (as, for example, an assembly of qualified citizens from amidst a promiscuous population of women and children, slaves and aliens), ex- $\kappa\lambda\eta\sigma ia$  becomes the congregation of God's people, gathered out of the world by His summons. whether in occasional or permanent session. ύμνήσω σε] Acts xvi. 25, Παύλος καὶ Σίλας προσευχόμενοι ὕμνουν τὸν Θεόν. Compare 2 Chron. xxix. 30, ὑμνεῦν τὸν Κύριον ἐν λόγοις Δαυίδ. Isai. xii. 4, ὑμνεῖτε Κύριον. Elsewhere with a dative: Isai. xlii. 10, ὑμνήσατε τῷ Κυρίῳ ὕμνον καινόν.

13. kai  $\pi a \lambda v$ ,  $E \gamma \omega$ ] A further proof from Scripture of the entire unity between Christ and His people. The Messiah of prophecy is not only the brother, and the fellow-worshipper, of the Church: He is also its fellowbeliever. He can say of Himself that He is one who puts His trust in God. The quotation may be either from 2 Sam. xxii. 3 (ο Θεός μου φύλαξ έσται μου, πεποιθώς έσομαι έπ' αὐτῷ), or Isai. viii. 17 (μενώ τον Θεόν...καί πεποιθώς έσομαι έπ' αυτώ· ίδου έγώ κ.τ.λ.), or Isai. xii. 2 (ίδού, ο Θεός μου σωτήρ μου, πεποιθώς έσομαι έπ' αυτώ, και ου φοβηθήσομαι). The first of these is recommended by the occasion and by the writer: king David is reviewing the whole course of God's dealing with him, and in terms both of grandeur (such as erapáχθη καί έσείσθη ή γή, και τά θεμέλια τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἐταράχθησαν κ.τ.λ. φυλάξεις με είς κεφαλήν έθνων, λαός όν ούκ έγνων έδούλευσάν μοι κ.τ.λ.), and of self-assertion (such as  $a\pi o\delta\omega\sigma\epsilon\iota$  µor Kúpros κατά την δικαιοσύνην μου, καί κατά τήν καθαριότητα τών χειρών μου έναντίον των όφθαλμων αυτού  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ), which would involve an immense hyperbole as applied to the human author. The second (Isai. viii. 17) might seem to be recommended by its standing (in the original) immediately before the next quotation here (idoù  $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\omega \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ): but the separation of it from that by another καὶ πάλιν is rather against this reference. On the whole, it is best to regard it as coming from 2 Sam. xxii. 3.

καὶ πάλιν, 'Ιδου] As the Messiah is the brother, and the fellow-worshipper, and the fellowμοι έδωκεν ό Θεός. ἐπεὶ οὖν τὰ παιδία 14 κεκοινώνηκεν αίματος καὶ σαρκός, καὶ αὐτὸς παbeliever, so He is also (in another Scripture phrase) the parent, of His people. In all possible aspects the unity between Him and the Church is the subject of Scripture prophecy. The quotation is from Isai. viii. 18. As David was a typical king, so Isaiah was a typical prophet, and the children spoken of (see Isai. vii. 3. viii. 3) were, even in their names, typical children. See the rest of the verse: kal eoral (τα παιδία) είς σημεία και τέρατα έν τῷ Ἰσραήλ παρὰ Κυρίου Σαβαώθ  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Thus the way was prepared for the transfer of the passage to Christ.

α μοι έδωκεν] Gen. xvii. 16, δώσω σοι έξ αὐτῆς τέκνον. xlviii. 9, νἱοί μού εἰσιν, οὖς ἔδωκέ μοι ὅ Θεός.

14.  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i o v$  ] The figure has changed from brotherhood to sonship; but the inference is the same. Such union with the human implies incarnation. And the further thought follows, Incarnation is necessary to death, and death is necessary to redemption. The combination  $\epsilon\pi\epsilon i$  our occurs only here and in iv. 6. Of the forms  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i$  and  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \delta \eta$ , the former occurs in each of the four Gospels, the latter in the first and third: the former twice as often as the latter in St Paul's Epistles: the former alone in the Hebrews, the latter alone in the Acts.

rà  $\pi ai\delta ia$ ] Quoted from the last quotation. As an appellation of Christians,  $\pi ai\delta ia$  is peculiar to St John (John xxi. 5. I John ii. 14, 18), as indeed  $\tau \epsilon \kappa i a$  also, with the more than doubtful exception of Gal. iv. 19. But the idea is not far distant in the  $\omega s$   $\tau a$   $\pi ai\delta i a$  and  $\tilde{*}r$   $\pi ai \delta ior$   $\tau \sigma iov \tau \sigma iov \tau or Matt. xviii. 3, 5,$  $the <math>\tau \omega r$   $\tau \sigma iov \tau \sigma iov \tau or Matt. xix.$ 14, and the parallels in St Mark and St Luke.

κεκοινώνηκεν...μετέσχεν Are partakers...took part. The one is the perfect, the other the aorist. (1) The proper sense of KOLVWVELV is to go shares with another (τινί) in something (τινός). Sometimes the dative is omitted; as here, and in Prov. i. 11,  $\epsilon \lambda \theta \epsilon$ μεθ ήμων, κοινώνησον αίματος. 2 Macc. xiv. 25, εκοινώνησε βίου. Sometimes the genitive is omitted; as Wisdom vi. 25, ouros ou κοινωνεί (has no fellowship with) σοφία. Ecclus. xiii. 2, πλουσωτέρω σου μή κοινώνει. I Tim. v. 22, μηδε κοινώνει αμαρτίαις αλλοτρίαις. I Pet. iv. 13, κοινωνείτε τοις του Χριστου παθήμασιν. 2 John 11, κοινωνεί τοις έργοις aurou rois  $\pi$  or  $\eta$  pois. Lastly, the going shares with divides into the two senses, of partaking in (Rom. xv. 27, rois πνευματικοίς ραπλησίως μετέσχεν τῶν αὐτῶν, ίνα διὰ τοῦ αὐτῶν ἐκοινώνησαν τὰ ἔθνη), and imparting to (Rom. xii. 13, ταῖς χρείαις τῶν ἀγίων κοινωνοῦντες. Gal. vi. 6, κοινωνείτω ὁ κατηχούμενος...τῷ κατηχοῦντι. Phil. iv. 15, οὐδεμία μοι ἐκκλησία ἐκοινώνησεν). (2) For μετέχειν (τινός) see v. 13. vii. 13, φυλῆς ἑτέρας μετέσχηκεν. I Cor. ix. 12. x. 21. Absolutely (to be partaker), 1 Cor. ix. 10. x. 17, 30, ἐκ τοῦ ἐνὸς ἄρτου μετέχωμεν...εἰ ἐγὼ χάριτι μετέχω).

αίματος καὶ σαρκός] Matt. xvi. 17, σὰρξ καὶ αίμα. 1 Cor. xv. 50, σὰρξ καὶ αίμα. Gal. i. 16, σαρκὶ καὶ αίματι. Eph. vi. 12, αίμα καὶ σάρκα.

παραπλησίως] From the idea of close alongside comes that of in precisely like manner. The adverb occurs only here in Scripture. Phil. ii. 27, ήσθένησεν παραπλήσιον θανάτω (he was sick nigh unto, close alongside of, death), explained in verse 30, μέχρι θανάτου ήγγισεν.

τών αὐτών] That is, αίματος καὶ σαρκός.

iva διà τοῦ θανάτου] He must partake of flesh and blood, that He may be capable of dying. It is by dying that He can alone conquer death, first in its personal head, and then in its individual action. The sting of death is sin (1 Cor. xv. 56). Sin is the tyranny of a usurper, who must be personally vanquished if his subjects are to be freed. The whole work of Christ is a conflict with the devil (Luke xi. 21, 22). Every instance of successful ministry was an omen of final victory (Luke x. 18). But His death was the decisive battle (John xii. 31, 32). His death as our atonement. His resurrection to be our life, His ascension to be our Lord, defeated, despoiled, dethroned the devil, making death no longer the terror of those who believe, and securing for them the eventual reversal of death in the resurrection at the last day (John xvi. Rom. v. 10. viii. 3, 11. II. Col. ii. 15. Rev. xii. 5, 7-11).

δια τοῦ θανάτου] Rom. v. 10, κατηλλάγημεν τῷ Θεῷ δια τοῦ θανάτου τοῦ υἰοῦ αὐτοῦ. Eph. i. 7, ἔχομεν τὴν ἀπολύτρωσιν δια τοῦ αἶματος αὐτοῦ. ii. 16, καὶ ἀποκαταλλάξη...τῷ Θεῷ δια τοῦ σταυροῦ. Heb. ix. 12, 26, διὰ δὲ τοῦ ἰδίου αἴματος...διὰ τῆς προσφορῶς τοῦ σώματος Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ xiii. 12.

καταργήση] The word καταργείν (not found in the Septuagint except in four places in Ezra) occurs 27 times in the New Testament, of which 25 are in St Paul's Epistles, and is rendered in our Version by II. 14.

no less than 17 phrases; to cumber, loose, deliver, abolish, destroy, do away, put away, put down, make void, make without effect, make of none effect, bring to nought, besides five paraphrastic renderings of the passive. The original idea, to render idle, inactive, inoperative, is clearly seen in the passages in Ezra (iv. 21, 23. v. 5. vi. 8) where it is applied to the compulsory making to cease from the labour of building. In Luke xiii. 7 (ίνα τί και την γην καταργεί;) the barren tree is said to render inactive the ground which it The same idea is occupies. prominent in Rom. iii. 3, 31, τήν πίστιν τοῦ Θεοῦ καταργήσει... νόμον ούν καταργούμεν κ.τ.λ. iv. 14, κεκένωται ή πίστις και κατήργηται ή έπαγγελία. Gal. iii. 17. In the remaining passages the making inoperative passes on into a stronger idea of annulling or destroying. Rom. vi. 6, ίνα καταργηθή τὸ σώμα τής άμαρ-1 Cor. i. 28. ii. 6. vi. τίας. 13. xiii. 8, 10, 11. xv. 24, 26, έσχατος έχθρος καταργείται ό θάvatos. 2 Cor. iii. 7, 11, 13, 14. Gal. v. 11, άρα κατήργηται τό σκάνδαλον τοῦ σταυροῦ. Eph. ii. 15. 2 Thess. ii. 8. And so here. In three places (Rom. vii. 2, 6. Gal. v. 4) the passive of  $\kappa a \tau a \rho \gamma \epsilon i v$ is followed by  $a\pi o$ , in the sense of abolished from, cut off from (τοῦ νόμου, τοῦ Χριστοῦ).

τόν τό κράτος έχοντα τ. θ.] The possessor of the power of death. In what sense? Not that of the power over death. Not that in which Christ is said (Rev. i. 18) exew ra's kleis τοῦ θανάτου. The genitive expresses the power belonging to death; death's power. The devil possesses this (see note above, ίνα δια τοῦ θανάτου) as being the personal spiritual head of the empire of sin, which gives death its sting (1 Cor. xv. 56), its real and reasonable terror for the mind and heart of the fallen.

κράτος] The rarest (in Scripture) of the various words for power. It stands by itself in Luke i. 51, εποίησεν κράτος εν βραχίονι αύτοῦ. Ι Pet. v. II (revised text), αὐτῷ τὸ κράτος. Elsewhere it is found in combination; as (1) in the doxologies of 1 Tim. vi. 16, τιμή καί κράτος αἰώνιον. I Pet. iv. II, ή δόξα καί τὸ κράτος. Jude 25. δύξα μεγαλωσύνη κράτος και έξου-Rev. i. 6, ή δόξα και το σία. κράτος. V. ally might (possession of power), κράτος strength (force of power), εξουσία authority (legality of power), ενέργεια operation (exercise of power).

τον διάβολον] The word διάβoλos (originally perhaps διαβό- $\lambda os$ , one who sets at variance, but by usage a slanderer) is the Septuagint rendering of the Hebrew Satan, an adversary (1 Chron. xxi. 1. Job i. 6, 7, 9, 12. ii. 1-4, 6, 7. Zech. iii. 1, 2). The original form Zatav is found in the Septuagint only in I Kings xi. 14, 23, where it is applied to Hadad and Rezon in the general sense of adversary (avrikeiµevos, verse 25); and o Saravas (the devil) in Ecclus. xxi. 27. In the New Testament Zaravas and SiaBolos occur with almost equal frequency; each writer, except St Mark, using Sid Bolos, and each writer, except St James, St Peter, and St Jude, using Zaravâs. St Paul uses Saravas ten times, and Siábolos (as a proper name) five times. In Rev. xii. 9 and xx. 2 the two words are combined : δ καλούμενος διάβολος, και ο Σατανάς... ος έστιν διάβολος και ο Σατα-The idea of SuaBolos as vâs. the traducer seems to be modified in its use as a translation of Zaráv. But that it is not obliterated appears, on the one side, in such passages as Gen. iii. 1-5; on the other, in Job i. 9. ii. 5. Rev. xii. 10.

15.  $a\pi a\lambda\lambda a\xi\eta$  From  $a\lambda$ λάσσειν, to alter (Acts vi. 14, αλλάξει τα έθη κ.τ.λ. Ι Cor. xv. 51, 52. Gal. iv. 20, και αλλάξαι την φωνήν μου. &c. See note on Heb. i. 12, αλλαγήσονται), various compounds are formed with propositions;  $\mu\epsilon\tau a\lambda\lambda\dot{a}\sigma\sigma\epsilon\iota\nu$ ,  $\pi a$ ραλλάσσειν, καταλλάσσειν, &c. Of these,  $\dot{a}\pi a\lambda\lambda\dot{a}\sigma\sigma\epsilon\nu$  is properly to change away; and so (1) to remove (Jer. xxxii. 31, απαλλάξαι αὐτήν ἀπὸ προσώπου  $\mu ov \quad \kappa \tau . \lambda$ , and (2) to deliver (Luke xii. 58, δος έργασίαν απηλ-λάχθαι απ' αυτοῦ). So here. Might deliver from the life-long bondage of a fear of death, and from the reality of the apprehended consequences.

τούτους όσοι] These as many as. All those who. There is no limitation intended. It is descriptive of mankind generally, prior to the redemption. The exact phrase is peculiar: it is more often πάντες ὄσοι (Acts v. 36, 37. &c.), or ὄσοι...οῦτοι (Rom. viii. 14. Gal. vi. 12. &c.).

φόβω θανάτου] Psalm lv. 4, 5, δειλία θανάτου ἐπέπεσεν ἐπ' ἐμέ· φόβος καὶ τρόμος ἦλθεν ἐπ' ἐμέ.

δια παντός τοῦ ζην] This does not seem to occur elsewhere in Scripture. Equivalent phrases are those of Josh. iv. 14, or  $\chi \rho \delta \nu \sigma \nu \chi \rho \delta \nu \sigma \nu \xi \eta$ . Jer. lii. 33,  $\delta \iota a \pi a \nu \tau \sigma \delta \dots \pi a \sigma \sigma \sigma \sigma \sigma \delta \eta \mu \epsilon \rho a \delta \delta \delta \eta \sigma \epsilon \nu$ . Rom. vii. 1 and 1 Cor. vii. 39,  $\epsilon \phi^* \delta \sigma \sigma \nu \chi \rho \delta \nu \sigma \nu \zeta \eta$ .

ένοχοι ήσαν δουλείας] See end of note on  $a\pi a\lambda\lambda\lambdaa\xi\eta$  above. The fear of death makes the life one long bondage. A man feels himself not his own. He is at the mercy of a coming event, certain in fact, uncertain in time, uncertain in its circumstances and preliminaries, which must stop all his activities, defeat all his plans, and usher him into an unknown future upon which the 'conscience of sins' (x. 2) casts a deep shadow. The construction of ivoxos, holden in or under, is (1) with a dative of the penalty, crime, charge, court, or law, to which a person is liable; as Deut. xix. 10, alparı evoyos. Josh. ii. 19, evoxos éauto (as his own accuser). Job xv. 5, evoxos εί βήμασι στόματός σου (as thy crime). Matt. v. 21, 22, evoxos έσται τη κρίσει κ.τ.λ.: (2) with a genitive in the same senses; as 2 Macc. xiii. 6, rov icpoor valas Evoyov orta. Matt. xxvi. 66, ένοχος θανάτου έστίν. Mark iii. 29, ένοχός έστιν αίωνίου άμαρτήµatos. xiv. 64. 1 Cor. xi. 27, ένοχος έσται τοῦ σώματος κ.τ.λ. James ii. 10: (3) with els, Matt.

V. 22,  $\tilde{\epsilon}vo\chi os \epsilon \tilde{\epsilon}s \tau \eta v \gamma \epsilon \tilde{\epsilon}vvar \tau o \tilde{v}$   $\pi v \rho o \tilde{s}$  (to the extent of): (4) absolute; as Exod. xxii. 3,  $\tilde{\epsilon}vo\chi o \tilde{s}$   $\tilde{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \iota v$ ,  $a v \tau a \pi \sigma \theta a v \tilde{\epsilon} \tau a \iota$ . Xxxiv. 6. Lev. xx. 9. &c. Here  $\tilde{\epsilon}vo\chi o \iota$   $\delta ov \lambda \epsilon \tilde{\iota} as$  is the exact equivalent of Gal. v. 1,  $\zeta v \gamma \tilde{\varphi}$   $\delta ov \lambda \epsilon \tilde{\iota} as$   $\tilde{\epsilon} v - \tilde{\epsilon} \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ . The sense is, holden of, subject to, as a penal condition. It is the description of all mankind, as fallen, and not yet redeemed, or not yet conscious of redemption.

δουλείας] Is the δουλεία (I) a servitude to death, or (2) a slavish feeling towards God, or (3) a servile condition of mind and life generally? The first of these senses would be tautology, after  $\phi \delta \beta \varphi$  θανάτου above. The second would find a parallel in Rom. viii. 15 and Gal. iv. 7. But in those places the contrast with vioθεσία and viòs (severally) expressly defines the meaning. The more general idea of servitude seems the most suitable here.

16. où  $\gamma \alpha \rho$ ] This participation of flesh and blood was rendered necessary by the very object of His intervention. Not Angels, but men, are those whom He comes to save.

δήπου] Surely. Of course. I may assume. Used here only in Scripture.

ἐπιλαμβάνεται] Lays hold upon. Sometimes ἐπιλαμβάνεσθαι is used literally, to lay hold of ; as Jud. xvi. 3, καὶ ἐπελάβετο τών θυρών τής πύλης τής πόλεως. Acts xxiii. 19, επιλαβόμενος δε τής χειρός αύτοῦ ὁ χιλίαρχος... έπυνθάνετο κ.τ.λ. Or in a mental or spiritual sense, to apply oneself to, to grasp; as Prov. iv. 13, ἐπιλαβοῦ ἐμῆς παιδείας, μὴ άφής. I Tim. vi. 12, 19, έπιλαβοῦ τής αἰωνίου ζωής... ίνα επιλάβωνται της όντως ζωής. Sometimes the context gives a clear intimation of a purpose; whether(1) unfriendly, as Isai. v. 29, καὶ ἐπιλήψεται και βοήσεται (Α, βοήσει B) ωs θηρίον. Luke xx. 20, 26, ίνα ἐπιλάβωνται αὐτοῦ λόγου...οὐκ ΐσχυσαν ἐπιλαβέσθαι τοῦ ῥήματος. Acts xvi. 19. xvii. 19. xviii. 17. xxi. 30, καὶ ἐπιλαβόμενοι τοῦ Παύλου είλκον αὐτὸν ἔξω τοῦ ἱεροῦ  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.; or(2)$  gracious, for helping, healing, leading, or saving; as Jer. xxxi. 32, εν ημέρα επιλαβομένου μου της χειρός αυτών, έξαγαγείν αὐτοὺς ἐκ γῆς Αἰγύπτου. Matt. xiv. 31. Mark viii. 23. Luke ix. 47. xiv. 4, καὶ ἐπιλαβόμενος ιάσατο αυτόν. Acts ix. 27, επιλαβόμενος αὐτον ηγαγεν προς τους αποστόλους. This last is the sense here given to it by the context: He comes to the help, not of Angels, but of men. Of the 10 times of its occurrence in the New Testament 12 are in St Luke's writings.

ject of Christ's interposition is here described as Abraham's seed, in the sense of that expression in Gal. iii. 29, ei dè ύμεις Χριστοῦ, ἄρα τοῦ 'Αβραάμ  $\sigma \pi \epsilon \rho \mu a \epsilon \sigma \tau \epsilon$ , not in that of John viii. 33, &c. In other words, Christ is said to come to the rescue of such as believe. Elsewhere the redemption is spoken of as world-wide. John iii. 17, ίνα σωθή ό κόσμος δι' αυτού. The contrast between the two modes of expression is seen in a comparison of Matt. xx. 28 (λύτρον arti πολλώr) with I Tim. ii. 6 (αντίλυτρον υπέρ πάντων). The one speaks of the result, the other of the scope. The virtue of the Atonement is infinite. but its efficacy is in those that accept it. These last are described as Abraham's true offspring, like him in his faith. It is to the help of these, how many scever they be, in all lands and in all ages, that Christ comes, and in order to help He must take upon Him their human nature.

17.  $\delta\theta\epsilon v$ ] Whence. As the consequence of which fact namely, that He comes to the help of human beings. This use of  $\delta\theta\epsilon v$  is confined to the Epistle to the Hebrews (iii. 1. vii. 25. viii. 3. ix. 18) with the exception of Matt. xiv. 7.

18 είς τὸ ἱλάσκεσθαι τὰς ἀμαρτίας τοῦ λαοῦ. ἐν

the Epistle togive in this manner an intimation of what is to be afterwards a leading topic. It is a shadow cast before from the great section of chapters v.—x. Yet it is no sudden or premature obtrusion of the topic. It is prepared for by i. 3, καθαρισμον τών άμαρτιών ποιησάμενος, by ii. 9, όπως χ. Θ. ὑπλρ παντος γεύσηται θανάτου, and by ii. 11, ό τε γὰρ ἀγιάζων καὶ οἱ ἀγιαζόμενοι.

τὰ πρὸς τὸν Θεόν] As to those things which are towards God. In reference to all man's relations with God. For τὰ πρός, compare Luke xix. 42, εἰ ἔγνως ...τὰ πρὸς εἰρήνην. Acts xxviii. 10, τὰ πρὸς τὰς χρείας. 2 Pet. i. 3, τὰ πρὸς ζωὴν καὶ εὐσέβειαν. For the whole phrase, v. 1. Rom. xv. 17, καύχησιν ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ τὰ πρὸς τὸν Θεόν.

είς το ίλάσκεσθαι] The tense shows that it is not the one sacrifice of propitiation which is spoken of, but the exercise of the perpetual priesthood. To the end that He may continually secure the forgiveness of the continually recurring sins of the The verb iláσκεσθαι people. occurs (in the New Testament) only here and in Luke xviii. 13, ό Θεός, ίλάσθητί μοι τῷ ἁμαρτωλῷ. In the Septuagint, it is always used (as in this latter passage) in a middle sense, though often in a passive form, to become propitious (ilaos, ilews), favourable or gracious (compare Exod. ΧΧΧΙΙ. 12, ίλεως γενοῦ ἐπὶ τῆ κακία τοῦ λαοῦ σου. Jer. xxxi. 34, ίλεως έσομαι ταις άδικίαις autŵr. Matt. xvi. 22, ίλεώς σοι, Kúpie), (1) with  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$ , as Exod. xxxii. 14, ιλάσθη Κύριος περί της κακίας ής είπε ποιήσαι τον λαόν aυτοῦ κ.τ.λ.; or (2) with a dative, (a) of the person, as 2 Kings v. 18, ίλάσεται Κύριος τῷ δούλω σου... ίλασθήσεται δη Κύριος τώ δούλω σου κ.τ.λ.; (b) of the thing, as Psalm xxv. 11, iλάση τη αμαρτία μου. Ιχχίχ. 9, ίλάσθητι ταις άμαρτίαις ήμῶν κ.τ.λ. ; or (3) absolutely, as Lam. iii. 42, nμαρτήσαμεν, ήσεβήσαμεν, και ούχ ίλάσθης. Dan. ix. 19, ακουσον, Κύριε, ίλάσθητι, Κύριε, πρόσχες, Kύριε κ.τ.λ. The peculiarity of the text is the accusative, not (as in classical usage) of the Deity to be propitiated, but of the sin to be explated. The scriptural usage avoids the expression, rendering God gracious to the sinner (though there is a sense in which this might be made consistent with true doctrine), as tending to obscure the divine love which originates redemption. John iii. 16, outws γαρ ήγμπησεν ο Θεος τον κόσμον ώστε τον υίον τον μονογενή έδωκεν  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Thus, although the literal rendering of ιλάσκεσθαι τὰς άμαρ- $\tau$ ias might seem to be, to render God gracious as to our sins, this would be an unscriptural phrase. The real thought is, to secure the forgiveness of sins, from day to day and from hour to hour, by His presence with God as the Propitiation first and then the Intercessor. I John ii. I, καὶ ἐάν τις ἀμαρτῷ, παράκλητον ἔχομεν πρὸς τὸν Πατέρα Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν δίκαιον, καὶ αὐτὸς ἰλασμός ἐστιν περὶ τῶν ἀμαρτιῶν ἡμῶν κ.τ.λ.

τοῦ λαοῦ] The expression suits the thought of the  $d\rho\chi\iota\epsilon$ ρείς. Lev. xvi. 24, και εξιλάσεται...περί του λαού, ώς περί των To the Hebrew readers ίερέων. it would express that transference of the term people of God from the natural to the spiritual Israel which is so often marked in the New Testament. See iv. 9, τῷ λαῷ τοῦ Θεοῦ. viii. 10. xiii. 12, διό και 'Ιησούς, ίνα άγιάση δια του ίδίου αξματος τον λαύν  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Also Matt. i. 21, aυτός γαρ σώσει τον λαόν αύτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν άμαρτιών αυτών. Acts xv. 14, λαβείν έξ έθνων λαόν τω ονόματι αύτοῦ. Tit. ii. 14, ἶνα λυτρώσηται ήμας από πάσης ανομίας και καθαρίση ξαυτώ λαόν περιούσιον. I Pet. ii. 9, υμεῖς δέ...λαὸς εἰς περιποίησιν. Compare Gal. vi. 16, καί έπι τον Ισραήλ του Θεου. Phil. iii. 3, ήμεις γάρ έσμεν ή περιτομή κ.τ.λ.

18.  $\epsilon v$   $\tilde{\psi}$  γάρ] A reason for the κατὰ πάντα, and for the  $\epsilon \lambda \epsilon \eta \mu \omega v$ , of verse 17. For in that He Himself has suffered by having been subjected to all manner of bodily, mental, and spiritual trial, He is able, &c. The alternative construction,  $\pi\epsilon\iota\rhoa\sigma$ - $\theta\epsilon$ is iv  $\tilde{\varphi}$   $\pi\epsilon\pi\sigma\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu$ , having been tempted (or tried) in that which He has suffered, is excluded by the tense of  $\pi\epsilon\pi\sigma\nu\theta\epsilon\nu$ , which would have been (in that case)  $\epsilon\pi\pi\theta\epsilon\nu$ , as in verse 8. In fact  $\pi\epsilon\pi\epsilon\iota\rhoa\sigma\mu\epsilon\nu\sigma$  is  $\tilde{\varphi}$   $\epsilon\pi\pi\theta\epsilon\nu$  would have been the more natural phrase for that construction.

 $i v \hat{\psi}$ ] In that. The phrase is contracted from  $i v \tau \sigma v \tau \psi$  (or  $i \kappa \epsilon i v \psi$ )  $\delta$ , in this (or in that) as to which. Compare  $i \phi^* \hat{\psi}$ , Rom. v. 12. 2 Cor. v. 4. The i v says that His ability to help is contained (or involved) in the fact that He has Himself suffered.

πέπονθεν] For πάσχειν without an accusative, compare 1 Cor. xii. 26, εἶτε πάσχει ἐν μέλος. Phil. i. 29, ὑμῶν ἐχαρίσθη...τὸ ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ πάσχειν. 2 Thess. i. 5, ὑπὲρ ἡς καὶ πάσχετε. 1 Pet. ii. 19, 20, 23, πάσχων ἀδίκως... πάσχοντες ὑπομενεῖτε...πάσχων οὐκ ἡπείλει. iii. 14, 17. iv. 15, 19.

 $\pi\epsilon\iota\rho\alpha\sigma\theta\epsilon\iotas$ ] The two senses, tried and tempted, are scarcely separable here. Both spring out of the idea of piercing ( $\pi\epsilon\iota$ - $\rho\epsilon\iota\nu$ ) for discovery of the contents of a thing, and so for ascertainment of character; and the difference between the two is made by the context. The agent and object distinguish them. God tries, the devil tempts. To tempt is malevolent, to try is for discipline. Compare James i. 2 and 13: in the former verse the thought of trial, in the latter that of temptation predominates. To rejoice in temptations is impossible: to say that trial cannot be from God is untrue. Our Lord was both tried and tempted, and so is it with His people.

III. 1 'Οθεν, άδελφοι άγιοι, κλήσεως επουρανίου μέτ-

δύναται] Compare iv. 15, δυνάμενον συμπαθήσαι ταις ασθενείαις ήμων. v. 2, μετριοπαθειν δυνάμενος τοις άγνοουσιν και πλαvunévois. The ability spoken of belongs to Him as God, and waited not for any experience to acquire it for Him. But its exercise requires that its possession should be known and felt by those whom it is to aid; and this assurance can only be inspired in them by His having actually suffered like them and with them.

τοῖς πειραζομένοις] Those who are undergoing trial. It is a description of life. Each day of life is an exploration of character. God tries, and the devil tempts. (1) Circumstances of difficulty, thwartings of the will, dispensations of sorrow, severely try the patience and faith of the man. (2) Good and evil are presented to him, and the choice lies between them. Nor is that choice unbiassed. A fallen nature, and a busy tempter, combine to influence it in favour of evil.

βοηθήσαι] Illustrations of the versatility of this helping abound in Scripture. Matt. xv. 25, 28, ελθοῦσα προσεκύνει αὐτῷ λέγουσα, Κύριε, βοήθει μοι...καὶ ἰάθη ἡ θυγατὴρ αὐτῆς. Mark ix. 22, 24, εἶ τι δύνῃ, βοήθησον ἡμῦν σπλαγχνισθεὶς ἐψ ἡμᾶς ...βοήθει μου τῇ ἀπιστία κ.τ.λ.

Thus the preceding argument is summed up. and made the starting-point of a new departure. The exaltation of Christ above Moses the mediator of the Law Dispensation is the next topic, and it occupies chapters iii. and iv. ayioi] The idea of consecration predominates over that of sanctification (as commonly understood) in the use of this word. The thought is of the setting apart by God for God, in contrast with that of the unclaimed or secularized being. Compare Lev. xx. 26, Kai eocobé μοι άγιοι, ὅτι ἐγὼ άγιός εἰμι Κύριος ό Θεός ύμων, ο αφορίσας ύμας áπò πάντων τῶν ἐθνῶν εἶναι μοι. Thus I Pet. ii. 9, in two parallel clauses,  $\delta \theta vos \delta v ov, \lambda a \delta s$ eis  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \pi o i \eta \sigma i v$ , a holy race, a people unto acquisition (that is, whom God has willed to make His own).

κλήσεως έπουρανίου] Compare Phil. iii. 14, The avw κλήσεως τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν Χριστῷ 'Ιησού. The call is from heaven (1 Pet. i. 12, τών εὐαγγελισαμένων ύμας πνεύματι άγίω αποσταλέντι απ' ουρανού) and to heaven (1 Thess. ii. 12, Tou Θεού του καλούντος υμάς είς την έαυτοῦ βασιλείαν καὶ δόξαν), but it is also, and principally, above, or heavenly, because God is (always in Scripture) the Caller. See Rom. viii. 30, ous de  $\pi powplatev$ , τούτους και εκάλεσεν. I Cor. θητε είς κοινωνίαν του υίου αύτου. vii. 17, εκαστον ώς κεκληκεν ό Ocos. Gal. i. 15. I Thess. iv. 7. Eph. i. 18. iv. 1, 4. 2 Thess. 2 Tim. i. 9, καὶ καλέi. 11. σαντος κλήσει αγία. 2 Pet. i. 10, βεβαίαν ύμων την κλησιν καί  $\epsilon \kappa \lambda o \gamma \eta \nu \pi o i \epsilon i \sigma \theta a L$  The word is used (as here) nine times by St Paul, and once by St Peter.

Eph. i. 3, 20. ii. 6. iii. 10. vi. 12. Sometimes as a title of God, as in Psalm lxviii. 14, έν τῷ διαστέλλειν τον ἐπουράνιον βασιλείς έπ' αυτής (compare 2 Macc. iii. 39, o the katolkian κατανοήσατε] Set your minds upon. Fasten your attention upon. Thus x. 24, κατανοώμεν αλλήλους κ.τ.λ. Gen. xlii. 9. Exod. ii. II, κατανοήσας δὲ τὸν πόνον αὐτών δρά ανθρωπον κ.τ.λ. Psalm xxxvii. 32, κατανοεί ό άμαρτωλός τον δίκαιον. cxix. 18, άποκάλυψον τούς οφθαλμούς μου, καί κατανοήσω τα θαυμάσιά σου (Β onits σου) έκ τοῦ νόμου σου. Matt. vii. 3. It is noticeable that, of the fourteen places of its occurrence in the New Testament, eight are in St Luke's writings.

τον ἀπόστολον] The two titles here given to our Lord, ἀπόστολος and ἀρχιερεύς, may be said to contain in them two whole sections of the Epistle, the comparison with Moses, and the comparison with Moses, and the latter is postponed till chapter v. The former is at once entered upon. The word ἀπόστολος is not elsewhere applied either to Moses or to our Lord. In the Old Testament it occurs but once (I Kings xiv. 6, εγώ είμι απόστολος πρός σε  $\sigma \kappa \lambda \eta \rho \sigma s$ ). But the verb  $a \pi \sigma$ στέλλειν is frequently thus applied. See (1) Exod. iii. 10, 13, 14, 15, καὶ νῦν δεῦρο, ἀποστείλω σε προς Φαραώ...ο ων απέσταλκέ με πρὸς ὑμῶς κ.τ.λ. v. 22, ίνατί ἀπέσταλκάς με; Num. xvi. 28. Deut. xxxiv. 11. Josh. xxiv. 5. 1 Sam. xii. 8, antéoτειλε Κύριος τον Μωυσην και τον 'Aaρών. &c. &c. (2) Matt. xxi. 37, απέστειλεν πρός αύτους τον Mark ix. 37, oùr ẻµè υίόν. δέχεται άλλα τον αποστείλαντά με. τη̂ς ὁμολογίας ἡμῶν] This genitive depends upon both the accusatives, ἀπόστολον and ἀρχιερέα. The Apostle and High Priest belonging to (that is, who is the subject of ) our ὁμολογία.

όμολογίας] From όμόλογος, of one speech with (τινί), holding the same language with (ὁμόλογός εἰμί τινι περί τινος), comes ὁμολογεῖν (τινί τι or κατά τι), to consent to another's statement; and so, to acknowledge, in all senses, whether a thing (as I John i. 9, έαν δμολογώμεν τας άμαρτίας ήμων. iv. 15, ΰς έαν όμολογήση ότι κ.τ.λ.), or a person (as I John ii. 23, ο όμολογών τον υίόν). Sometimes, to make open acknowledgment to (Heb. xiii. 15) or on the subject of (ev, Matt. x. 32) a person. And thus ή όμολογία (without any defining genitive) is the acknowledgment, or open confession, of the faith, or of the Object of faith, by the Church or the Christian; as here, and iv. 14. x. 23. 2 Cor. ix. 13, τη ύποταγη  $τ\eta$ ς όμολογίας ύμων (the obedience of your confession, that is, the obedience shown by you to the faith which you profess). I Tim. vi. 12, ώμολόγησας την καλήν όμολογίαν. In I Tim. vi. 13 it is applied to the avowal made by Christ Himself before Pilate of His own Person and Mission.

2.  $\pi \iota \sigma r \delta v$   $\delta v r a$ ] As being faithful. Fix your thoughts upon Him in this particular aspect, namely, His faithfulness. It is thus that the new topic (the comparison of Christ with Moses) is introduced, in that incidental manner which is characteristic of the Epistle. See i. 4. v. 6.

 $\tau \hat{\varphi} \pi o i \eta \sigma a \tau \tau i$ ] For this use of  $\pi o i \epsilon i \nu$ , to make or create an official person, compare I Sam. xii. 6,  $\mu \dot{\alpha}\rho \tau \nu s$  Kúριοs ὁ  $\pi o \iota \dot{\eta} \sigma a s$  $\tau \dot{\rho} \nu$  Mωυσ $\hat{\eta} \nu$  καὶ  $\tau \dot{\rho} \nu$  'Aaρών. The choice of the word here, in instituting a comparison between Christ and Moses, may have been suggested by its occurrence in connexion with Moses in this very verse of the Septuagint. See also Mark iii. 14, καὶ ἐποί ήσεν δώδεκα, οὖs καὶ αποστόλουs ὡνόμασεν. Acts ii. 36, καὶ Κύριον αὐτὸν καὶ Χριστὸν ἐποί ησεν ὁ Θεόs, τοῦ τον Ἱησοῦν κ.τ.λ.

ώς καὶ Μωυσής] The reference is to Num. xii. 7, οἰχ οὖτως ὁ θεράπων μου Μωυσής, ἐν ὅλῷ τῷ οἶκῷ μου πιστός ἐστι.

 $oi\kappa \omega$ ] The two senses of oikos, house and household, run into one another in many passages, nor does karaokevá(eu (below) absolutely fix the sense here, though it best suits the former. The two metaphors, building and family, are applied to the Church in various places: the former, for example, in I Cor. iii. 9. Eph. ii. 21. 2 Tim. ii. 20; the latter in I Tim. iii. 15.

if they escaped not who made light of the divine mission of Moses, how shall we escape if we neglect the mission of One who is greater than he? Compare ii. 2, 3. X. 28, 29.

οῦτος] See viii. 3, ἔχειν τι καὶ τοῦτον κ.τ.λ. Χ. 12, οῦτος δὲ κ.τ.λ.

ήξίωται] The perfect expresses the permanence of the estimate. He was, and is, counted worthy, &c. For a Ecouv, compare x. 29, χείρονος αξιωθήσεται τιμωρίας. 2 Thess. i. 11. ίνα ύμας αξιώση της κλήσεως ό Θεός ήμων. Ι Tim. v. 17, διπλής τιμής αξιούσθωσαν. Elsewhere with accusative and infinitive, as Luke vii. 7, ovôè έμαυτον ήξίωσα πρός σε έλθειν. (And so kataξιοῦν, in both constructions: as (1) 2 Thess. i. 5. (2) Luke xx. 35. Acts v. 41.) Or with infinitive alone (to count a thing worthy, to think fit), as Acts xv. 38, Παῦλος δὲ ήξίου ...μή συμπαραλαμβάνειν τοῦτον. xxviii. 22, αξιούμεν δε παρά σού άκοῦσαι & φρονεῖς.

καθ όσον] Moses, though officially charged with an iπισκοπη in the house, is personally a part of the house, and, as such, is essentially the inferior of its maker. The following verse explains and completes the argument.

κατασκευάσας] The classical shade of difference between kaτασκευάζειν and παρασκευάζειν (the latter being used of the less permanent kinds of preparation) is noticeable in Scripture also. Compare Acts x. 10, ήθελεν γεύσασθαι, παρασκευαζόντων δε αυτών κ.τ.λ., with Heb. ix. 2, σκηνή γαρ κατεσκευάσθη κ.τ.λ. xi. 7. I Pet. iii. 20. See Wisdom ix. 1, 2, o ποιήσας τα πάντα ...καί τη σοφία σου κατασκευάσας  $a\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\nu$ . In its application to a house, κατασκευάζειν may include the three functions, of the architect, builder, and furnisher. See I Chron. XXIX. 19, Kai TOU έπι τέλος άγαγειν την κατασκευήν τοῦ οἴκου σου.

4.  $\pi \hat{a}s \gamma \hat{a}\rho o \hat{k} \sigma s ] I say,$ its maker (o κατασκευάσας αυτόν). For, as every house has a maker, so the house universal, the house which is the universe, has God for its maker-and Moses was a part of it. It was not needful to add, for Christian readers. that God made this house which is the universe by Jesus Christ. who is of one substance with the Father. The whole force of the argument lies in this: but so obviously, that the writer can leave the readers to supply it. There seems to be no reason for limiting the  $\pi a \nu \tau a$  to the Church universal: the larger sense given above is equally true, and at least equally to the purpose.

5. καὶ Μωυσῆς μέν] The  $\mu \epsilon \nu$  and  $\delta \epsilon$  have their usual effect in subordinating the first clause of the sentence to the second. And, while Moses was faithful in (iv) God's house, and as a servant, Christ was faithful over  $(\epsilon \pi i)$  God's house, and as Son. The former point of contrast was between the house (or one individual part of it) and its maker. The present point of contrast is (1) between in and over, (2) between servant and Son.

 $\theta \epsilon \rho \dot{a} \pi \omega v$  The word occurs only here in the New Testament. It is quoted from the passage in Numbers, which is the text of the paragraph. It is applied to Moses in other passages of the Septuagint, Exod. iv. 10. xiv. 31, ἐπίστευσαν τώ Θεώ, και Μωυσή τώ θεράποντι avrov. Num. xi. 11. Deut. iii, 24. Josh. i. 2, Mwvon's o  $\theta \epsilon \rho a \pi \omega \nu \mu o \nu$ τετελεύτηκε. viii. 31, 33. The other chief appropriation of the word is to Job: Job i. 8. ii. 3. xlii. 7, 8.

εis μαρτύριον] In evidence of. So as to supply a testimony to the then future revelations of the Gospel. The Law, in both its parts, the moral and the ceremonial, was a testimony borne to the need and the hope of a Saviour: the moral, acting as an experimental revelation of sin (Rom. vii. 7, &c); the ceremonial, as a perpetual prophecy of atonement (Heb. x. 3, &c.) The distinction between μαρτυρία (testatio) and μαρτύριον (testimonium) is never obliterated, though in many cases either would be suitable.  $\mathbf{St}$ John uses μαρτυρία only (a seeming exception in Rev. xv. 5 is not really such). For μαρτύριον see Acts iv. 33, απεδίδουν το μαρτύριον οι απόστολοι του κυρίου Ίησοῦ τῆς ἀναστάσεως (rendered, exhibited, presented, their great subject of testimony, namely, the resurrection). I Cor. i. 6. 2 Cor. i. 12, to μαρτύριον τής συνειδήσεως ήμων (that which is borne witness of by our conscience). 2 Thess. i. 10. I Tim. ii. 6, το μαρτύριον καιροίς ίδίοις (which was to be the subject of testimony, &c.).

τών λαληθησομένων] See i. 2, ἐλάλησεν ήμιν ἐν υίῷ.

6.  $\omega_{s}$  vios] And therefore of one rank and order with  $\delta$  $\kappa a \tau a \sigma \kappa \epsilon v a \sigma a s$ . The contrast here with  $\theta \epsilon \rho a \pi \omega v$  is like that in

 $i\pi i$ ] The change from  $i\nu$  to  $i\pi i$  cannot be accidental. The Son is not in the house, whether κόσμος or  $i\kappa\kappa\lambda\eta\sigma ia$ . John xvi. 28,  $a\phi i\eta\mu i$  τον κόσμον καὶ πορεύομαι προς τον Πατέρα. xvii. II, οὐκέτι εἰμὶ ἐν τῷ κόσμῷ κ.τ.λ. Compare Acts xx. 28, παντὶ τῷ ποιμνίῷ, ἐν ῷ ὑμᾶς τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἄγιον ἔθετο ἐπισκόπους. a $\dot{v}\tau o\hat{v}...o\hat{v}$ ] As before, God's. The rendering of the Authorized Version, His own house, carries us away from the true antithesis, which lies in the  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi$  i and the viós.

 $i\sigma\mu\epsilon\nu\dots i\dot{\alpha}\nu$ ] The combination is peculiar, and most suggestive. We are God's house not, we shall be, or may be: and yet there is no place for that kind of confidence which would be carelessness: there is a condition ( $i\omega\nu$ ), that of perseverance. Such is the teaching of Scripture—quietness and confidence, yet with the undersong of warning.

 $\pi a \rho \rho \eta \sigma (av)$  The idea of freedom of speech ( $\pi av - \rho \eta \sigma (a)$  is never lost in the use of this word. But it is a sincere and a reverent freedom, suggesting, as the full thought of the word, frankness of speech, toward (1) God and (2) man, springing out of freedom of heart-a heart enlarged or set at liberty (Psalm cxix. 32) by faith and grace. For (1) see iv. 16, προσερχώμεθα ουν μετα παρρησίας τῷ θρόνω της χόριτος. X. 19,  $\xi_{\gamma 0} = 0$  and  $\eta_{\gamma} = 0$ σίαν είς την είσοδον των άγίων έν τῷ αίματι Ίησοῦ. Eph. iii. 12. 1 John ii. 28. iii. 21. iv. 17. v. 14. For (2) see Acts iv. 29, 31. xxviii. 31. 2 Cor. iii. 12. vii. 4. Eph. vi. 19.

καύχημα] Between καύχημα and καύχησιs there is the obvious difference between subject and act, between boast and boasting. The word καυχασθαι, with both its derivatives, is almost exclusively St Paul's, who uses καυχασθαι 34 times (St James twice), καύχησιs eleven times (St James once), and καύχημα ten times.

τὸ καύχημα τῆς ἐλπίδος] The subject of glorying belonging to (contained in) our great hope. That which our Christian hope gives us to glory in. It is doubtful whether τῆς ἐλπίδος belongs to both accusatives, or only (perhaps better) to τὸ καύχημα.

μέχρι τέλους  $\beta \epsilon \beta a(av)$  In verse 14 these three words are found again, and are there unchallenged by varieties of reading. It seems unlikely that so careful and so eloquent a writer should have repeated himself within so short a series of verses. The words are omitted by the Vatican manuscript here, and may have come in (as an appendage to  $\kappa a \tau a \sigma \chi \omega \mu \epsilon \nu$ ) from verse 14.

κατάσχωμεν] The acrist expresses, if we shall have held fast: if, when the great day comes, we shall be found to have held fast, &c.

7.  $\Delta i\delta$ ] Wherefore. Considering the superiority of Christ to Moses, and in the same degree the greater danger of trifting with Him. Thus the quotation is aptly introduced, which speaks of the sin of those who disobeyed Moses and fell in the wilderness. Compare the  $\pi\epsilon\rho i\sigma\sigma\sigma \sigma \epsilon \rho \omega s$  of ii. 1, and the  $\pi \delta \sigma \omega \chi \epsilon \ell \rho \sigma v s$  of x. 29.

διό, καθώς] What is the construction of the sentence thus begun? Is it (1) διδ...μη σκληρύνητε κ.τ.λ. (verse 8)? Is it (2) διδ...βλέπετε, αδελφοί, κ.τ.λ. (verse 12)? Or is (3) a suppressed imperative to be supplied mentally from the general sense of the quotation? Against (1) is the first person (God being the speaker) of verses 9-11: τα έργα μου ... προσώχθυσα ... τας όδούς μου κ.τ.λ. Against (2) is the long suspension of the sentence by the interposition of so many verses of quotation. On the whole therefore (3) is to be adopted. The quotation begins parenthetically, but the long extension of it loses the thread of the sentence, and the practical resumption in verse 12 may better be regarded as (in form) a fresh start.

λέγει το πνεῦμα] A strong testimony to the inspiration of Old Testament Scripture. Compare x. 15, μαρτυρεί δὲ ἡμῖν καὶ το πνεῦμα το ἄγιον μετὰ γὰρ το εἰρηκέναι κ.τ.λ. 2 Tim. iii, 16, πῶσα γραφὴ θεόπνευστος κ.τ.λ. 2 Pet. i. 21, ὑπο πνείματος ἁγίου φερόμενοι ἐλαλήσαν ἀπο Θεοῦ ἄνθρωποι.

 $\Sigma_{\eta'\mu\epsilon\rho\sigma\nu}$ ] Psalm xcv. 7—11. The authorship of the Psalm is ascribed to David in iv. 7, but nothing turns upon it, and the argument of that verse ( $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$  rocourov  $\chi\rho\dot{o}\nu\sigma\nu$ ) would be rather strengthened than weakened by the supposition of a later author. There is no reason, however, to doubt the obvious inference that it is a Psalm of David.

εαν...ακούσητε] If ye shall (or should) hear His voice. The will of the Authorized and Prayer-Book Versions is a clear mistake. If ye will hear would make the harden not a tauto-logy: if ye will listen, do listen. The point is, If God should be pleased, after so much inattention on our part, to speak again, see that ye give heed to Him.

8.  $\mu\eta$   $\sigma\kappa\lambda\eta\rho\nu\eta\tau\epsilon$  ] The tense (aoristsubjunctive) expresses the prohibition in a lively and forcible way, as that of a single act of hardening. The figure is from the stiffening, by cold or disease, of what ought to be supple and pliable. It is applied in Scripture (1) to the man's own action in refusing grace, and (2) to the judicial sentence which at last endorses it. (1) Exod. xiii. 15, ήνίκα δε εσκλήρυνε Φαραώ εξαποστείλαι ήμας. Deut. x. 16, καί τον τράχηλον υμών ου σκληρυνeîte ett. 2 Kings xvii. 14, kai έσκλήρυναν τον νώτον αύτών. 2 Chron. xxx. 8. xxxvi. 13. Neh. ix. 16, 17, 29. (2) Exod. iv. 21, έγω δε σκληρυνώ αύτου την καρ-Síav. vii. 3. ix. 12. x. 20, 27. xi. 10. xiv. 4, 8, 17. Deut. ii. 30, ἐσκλήρυνε Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν το πνεύμα αύτου. Isai. lxiii. 17. έσκλήρυνας ήμων τας καρδίας του μη φοβείσθαί σε. Sometimes the passive is used, leaving the agency ambiguous. Exod. vii. 22, καί έσκληρύνθη ή καρδία Φαραώ, καί ούκ είσήκουσεν αύτων. viii. 19. ix. 35.

τàs καρδίας] The word καρδία is not restricted in Scripture to our common use of heart as denoting the affections only, but includes the whole inner man, will, judgment, understanding, as well as feeling. See, for example, Mark ii. 6, διαλογιζόμενοι έν ταις καρδίαις αυτών. Rom. ii. 15, το έργον του νόμου γραπτον έν ταΐς καρδίαις αὐτῶν, where the alternative following (Kathyoρούντων ή και απολογουμένων) shows that understanding rather than affection is the prominent thought. I Cor. vii. 37, έστηκεν έν τη καρδία...καί τουτο κέκρικεν έν τη ίδία καρδία. Here, though the hardening of the heart may seem to lie in the region of affection rather than of intellect, yet the whole man moves together. See Eph. iv. 18, where δια την πώρωσιν της raphias is made a parallel and equivalent clause to  $\delta u a \tau \eta v$ άγνοιαν την ούσαν έν αύτοις.

 $\pi a pa \pi i \kappa p a \sigma \mu \hat{\omega} \dots \pi \epsilon \iota p a \sigma \mu \sigma \hat{\upsilon}]$ These words are the translation in the Septuagint of the Hebrew Meribah and Mussah. As at Meribah, as the day of Massah. The reference may thus be special and local, to two signal murmurings, one near the close, the other at the opening, of the long wandering in the wilderness. But the quotation follows the Septuagint in generalizing the illustration. The noun  $\pi a \rho a$

 $\pi \kappa \rho a \sigma \mu \delta s$  (exacerbation) is found only here. (In Exod. xvii. 7 Meribah is rendered Lowoopy ris, and in Num. xx. 12 avriloyía.) But παραπικραίνειν occurs often in this application; as in Deut. xxxi. 27. Psalm lxxviii. 8, 17, 40, ποσάκις παρεπίκραναν αυτόν έν τη ερήμω, παρώργισαν αυτόν εν  $\gamma \hat{\eta}$  ανύδρ $\psi$  (the following verse adding interparan and mapuferran as further equivalents). Ezek. ii. 3, 5---8. &c. &c. For melpas  $\mu$  is see note on ii. 18,  $\pi \epsilon \mu$  $\sigma\theta\epsilon$  is. For its use here, as the trial of God by men, the experimenting upon His power or forbearance, compare Exod. xvii. 7. Deut. vi. 16. ix. 22 (in all which places it is the rendering of Massah). And so the verb (πειράζειν) in Exod xvii. 2, 7. Num. xiv. 22. Psalm lxxviii. 41, 56. evi. 14. &c.

 $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha \tau \eta \nu \eta \mu \epsilon \rho \alpha \nu$ ] According to, after the likeness of, the day, dc. The Hebrew (as the day) suggests this rendering, and the sense of on the day is scarcely borne out by such uses of  $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha$ as Acts xii. 1. xvi. 25. xix. 23. xxvii. 27, in all of which the idea may be that of about rather than of at definitely.

9.  $o\tilde{v}$ ] Either (1) where, referring to  $\epsilon v \tau \hat{y} \epsilon \rho \eta \mu \varphi$  above; or (2) wherewith, by attraction of the regular ov (cognate accusative) to the genitive  $\pi\epsilon\mu\sigma\mu\sigma\nu$ preceding. The latter is the more probable.

οῦ ἐπείρασαν κ.τ.λ.] The text (verses 9 and 10) varies from the Septuagint (1) in the omission of  $\mu\epsilon$  after ἐπείρασαν, which nevertheless must be mentally supplied, (2) in the substitution of ἐν δοκιμασία for ἐδοκίμασάν με (B omits με), (3) in the insertion of διὸ after ἔτη, thus connecting the τεσσεράκοντα ἔτη with verse 10, (4) in the substitution of ταύτη for ἐκείνη.

oi πατέρες  $i\mu\omega v$ ] See note on i. 1, τοῖς πατράσιν.

iv dokuparia The mode of the tempting. In putting me to the proof, (1) as to my power to help, or (2) as to the extent of Thus (1) my longsuffering. Exod. xvii. 7, δια το πειράζειν aυτούς (B omits aυτούς) Κύριον, λέγοντας, εί έστι Κύριος έν ήμιν, η ου; (2) Isai. lxiii. 10, αυτοί δέ ήπείθησαν, και παρώξυναν το πνεῦμα το άγιον αύτοῦ κ.τ.λ. The noun dokiparía occurs in Ecclus. vi. 21, ώς λίθος δοκιμασίας ισχύος (ἰσχυρος Β) ἔσται ἐπ' αὐτῷ. The verb δοκιμάζειν (from δέχομαι,  $\delta_{0}(\mu_{\eta})$  in the sense of to prove, is common in both Testaments: as Prov. xvii. 3, ωσπερ δοκιμάζεται έν καμίνω αργυρος και χρυσός. Zech. xiii. 9, πυρώσω αὐτους ώς πυρούται το αργύριον, καί δοκιμῶ αὐτοὺς ὡς δοκιμάζεται τὸ χρυσίον. Luke xiv. 19. 1 Cor. iii. 13. 1 Pet. i. 7. &c. In its other sense, to approve, it appears only in the New. In its application to the proving of God by men, it seems to be found only here.

τα έργα μου] The και είδον may seem to point to God's works of judgment rather than of mercy. They tempted me, and (as the consequence of that tempting) witnessed my acts of righteous punishment. Isai. xxviii. 21, μετά θυμοῦ ποιήσει τα έργα αύτοῦ, πικρίας έργον. But the more inclusive sense is Compare Num. xiv. 22, better. οί δρώντες την δόξαν μου και τα σημεῖά μου (B omits μου) å έποίησα έν Αιγύπτω, και έν τη έρήμω ταύτη (B omits ταύτη), καί επείρασάν με τοῦτο δέκατον κ.τ.λ.

10. προσώχθισα] A postclassical form of the Homeric  $\delta \chi \theta \epsilon \hat{\nu}$  ( $\tilde{a} \chi \theta \sigma s$ ,  $\tilde{a} \chi \theta \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ ), denoting a burden of grief or displeasure at, towards, or against (πρὸs) a thing or person (with τινι, τινα, έν τινι, or ἀπό τινος). First in Gen. xxvii. 56, προσώχθικα τῆ ζωῆ μου διὰ τὰς θυγατέρας. Levit. xviii. 25, 28, προσώχθισεν ἡ γῆ ἐν (Bomits ἐν) τοῖς ἐγκαθημένοις ἐπ' αὐτῆς...ἶνα μὴ προσοχθίση υμιν ή γη έν τῷ μιαίνειν υμας αυτήν, δν τρόπον κ.τ.λ. Num. xxi. 5. xxii. 3, προσώχθισε Μωάβ από προσώπου υίων Ισραήλ. 1 Chron. xxi. 6, προσώχθισεν (Α, κατίσχυσε λ. Β) ο λόγος του βασιλέως τον Ιωάβ. &c. And so  $\pi \rho o \sigma \delta \chi \theta \iota \sigma \mu a$ , (1) displeasure, disgust, as Deut. vii. 26, προσοχθίσματι προσοχθίσεις αὐτῷ, καὶ βδελύγματι βδελύξη avró (B omits avrô and avró) κ.τ.λ. (2) an object of displeasure, an abomination, as 2 Kings xxiii. 13, δν ωκοδόμησε Σαλωμών βασιλεύς Ισραήλ τη Αστάρτη προσοχθίσματι Σιδωνίων κ.τ.λ. For the application of  $\pi \rho o \sigma o$ - $\chi\theta i\zeta \epsilon \nu$  (as here) to God Himself, compare Levit. xxvi. 44, ούχ υπερείδον αυτούς ούδε προσώχθισα αύτοις ώστε έξαναλώσαι αύτούς.

 $\tau \alpha \dot{\tau} \gamma$ ] This which is under review. The sense is not affected by the change of reading from  $\epsilon \kappa \epsilon i \gamma \gamma$ .

 $\pi\lambda av\hat{\omega}r\tau a$ ] Sometimes the passive of  $\pi\lambda av\hat{a}v$  is strongly emphasized, as in the  $\pi\lambda av\hat{\omega}r\tau \epsilon_{S}$  $\kappa ai \pi\lambda av\hat{\omega}\mu\epsilon voi of 2 Tim. iii. 13,$  $and (by implication) in the <math>\mu\eta$ - $\delta\epsilon i_{S}\pi\lambda av\hat{a}\tau \omega \psi\mu\hat{a}_{S}$  of 1 John iii. 7. Here the middle is more suitable. The thought is expanded, and the latent idea of

τ $\hat{y}$  καρδ( $\hat{q}$ ] The dative (of the part affected, as, for example, in Eph. iv. 18, έσκοτωμένοι τ $\hat{y}$  διανοία δντες) makes the roving imputed a heart-roving, (1) not literal but metaphorical, (2) not superficial but heartdeep.

airoi  $\delta \epsilon$ ] The pronoun airoi (always emphatic in the nominative) suggests the colon at  $\kappa a \rho \delta i a$ , and the antithetical rendering of the clause airoi  $\delta \epsilon$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . But, though I was thus displeased, and though I thus characterized their conduct, yet they refused to take knowledge of my dealings with them, so as to give effect to my purpose.

El είσελεύσονται] A Hebraistic form of strong negation; the clause of  $\zeta \hat{\omega}$  (or the like) being understood before  $\epsilon i$ . For the abruptness of the appeal (without connecting particle) compare xii. 25,  $\beta\lambda \dot{\epsilon}\pi\epsilon\tau\epsilon \mu \eta$ ,  $\pi a \rho a i \tau \eta \sigma \eta \sigma \theta \epsilon$  $\tau \delta \nu$ ,  $\lambda a \lambda o \vartheta \nu \tau a$ , Col. ii. 8,  $\beta\lambda \dot{\epsilon}$ - $\pi\epsilon\tau\epsilon \mu \eta$ ,  $\tau i \varsigma$   $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ .

έν τινι ύμῶν] In any one of you. The singular individualizes the need of watchfulness. Compare the τις έξ ύμῶν of verse 13.

καρδία πονηρὰ ἀπιστίας] A bad heart of (characterized by) unbelief. Compare x. 22, συνειδήσεως πονηρός. Luke vi. 45, καὶ ὁ πονηρὸς ἐκ τοῦ πονηροῦ προφέρει τὸ πονηρόν· ἐκ γὰρ περισσεύματος καρδίας λαλεῖ τὸ στόμα αὐτοῦ.

ἀπιστίας] Of the two groups, απειθής (ἀπείθεια, ἀπειθεῖν) and ἁπιστος (ἀπιστία, ἀπιστεῖν), the former is found 14 times in St Paul's Epistles and four times in the Hebrews, the latter 23 times in St Paul and twice in the Hebrews. In the former the idea of disobedience predominates (see Acts xxvi. 19. Rom. i. 30), in the latter that of unbelief (Mark ix. 24. John xx. 27. Acts xxviii. 24). But the two are but two sides of the same character.

aπoστηναι] To stand off or away from: (1) whether to depart (clearly so in Luke iv. 13. Acts xii, 10. xv. 38. xix. 9. xxii. 20. 2 Cor. xii. 8), or (2) to stand aloof from (which might best suit Acts v. 38. 2 Tim. ii. To stand off (depart) from 19). God would suit those who had once known Him. To stand aloof from Him would leave it in doubt whether He had ever been known. Perhaps the former is the best here, considering the implication of chapters vi. and x.

παρακ. έαυτούς See x. 25 (where no accusative is expressed). Compare 1 Thess. iv. 18 and v. 11 (αλλήλους). The difference between taurous and aλλήλous is next to none: see Eph. iv. 32, eis a  $\lambda \eta \lambda ovs \chi \rho \eta$ στοί...χαριζόμενοι έαυτοις. Col. iii. 13, ανεχόμενοι αλλήλων και χαριζόμενοι έαυτοις. I Pet. iv. 9, 10, φιλόξενοι είς αλλήλους... είς έαυτούς αυτό διακονούντες. The use of eavt. expresses the unity of the Christian body: they who forgive each other forgive themselves. (In the New Testament we have always taurŵr do. never ήμων or ύμων αύτων as more roflexives. See Bp. Lightfoot on Gal. v. 14.) The classical usage of  $\epsilon a v \tau \hat{\omega} v$  for  $a \lambda \lambda \eta \lambda \omega v$  &c. is more rare.

καθ ἐκάστην ήμ.] An emphatic form (of the common καθ ήμέραν) found only here in the New Testament, $\tau_{is}$ ] Any single one (individualizing the danger).

 $\dot{a}\pi \dot{a}\tau \eta \tau \eta \hat{s} \dot{a}\mu$ .] By a deceit belonging to (characteristic of) sin (all sin). See 2 Thess. ii. 10,  $\pi \dot{a}\sigma \eta \dot{a}\pi$ .  $\tau \eta \hat{s} \dot{a} \partial \kappa \dot{a}s$ . Also Gen. iii. 13. 1 Tim. ii. 14. Rom. vii. 11. 2 Cor. xi. 3. All sin is committed under a deception, momentary at least, as to (1) the satisfaction to be found in it, (2) the excuse to be made for it, (3) the probability of its punishment.

And so always in the Septuagint. But in this Epistle in the three other places of its occurrence it has a genitive of the thing partaken of; and so here Christ is spoken of as the great inheritance, or possession, or even feast, of which all Christians partake. Compare John vi. throughout.

 $\gamma i \rho$ ] Reason for guarding against the forfeiture of so great a standing.

 $\gamma \epsilon \gamma \delta r \alpha \mu \epsilon r$ ,  $\epsilon \delta \sigma \mu \epsilon r$ . See note on verse 6,  $\epsilon \sigma \mu \epsilon r$ ... $\epsilon \delta \alpha r$ . The same thought of present possession coupled with the one condition of perseverance.

την ἀρχην της ὑπ.] The beginning of our confidence. That is, the confidence, the assured persuasion of truth and Christ, with which we began our Christian life. Equivalent to την ὑπόστασιν ην είχομεν ἀπ' ἀρχης (compare I John ii. 7. iii. II). ὑποστάσεως] Confidence. See note on i. 3. From ὑφίστασθαι (with a dative) comes the use of ὑπόστασις as an act of the mind supporting the weight of a difficult revelation. For the sense compare x. 32.

μέχρι κ.τ.λ.] See note on the same words in verse 6.

15.  $\epsilon v \tau \hat{\varphi} \lambda \epsilon \gamma$ .] In (within, during) its being said. While it is still said. While the saying is still applicable. The thought goes back to verse 13 (14 being treated as parenthetical). There will come a time when  $\sigma \eta \mu \epsilon \rho \sigma \nu$ will have become yesterday, and when its encouraging voice will be silent.

16. tives] Or twis. The former is now generally adopted, and would certainly be preferable if we could settle iv. 2 (roîs akoúoaou) as having no reference to Caleb and Joshua. While that verse remains ambiguous, we cannot positively settle whether here the writer disregards the two excepted cases, and asks 'Who ... ? nay, did not all?' or recognizes the two exceptions, and says, 'Some ... but not quite all—there were two exceptions.' We must leave it in doubt till we reach iv. 2.

έξ Αἰγύπτου διὰ Μωυσέως; τίσιν δὲ προσώ- 17 χθισεν τεσσεράκοντα ἔτη; οὐχὶ τοῖς ἀμαρτήσασιν, ὧν τὰ κῶλα ἔπεσεν ἐν τῆ ἐρήμϣ; τίσιν 18 δὲ ὥμοσεν μὴ εἰσελεύσεσθαι εἰς τὴν κατάπαυσιν αὐτοῦ εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἀπειθήσασιν; καὶ 19 βλέπομεν ὅτι οὐκ ἠδυνήθησαν εἰσελθεῖν δι' ἀπιστίαν.

iii. 17. От анартугаты; бы...ерунц.

So that mere hearing is no safeguard.

δια M.] by means of. Equivalent to δια χειρός Μωυσέως.

17. προσώχθ.] See note on verse 10, προσώχθισα.

 $\tau i \sigma \iota v \ \delta \epsilon$ ] If we read  $\tau \iota v \epsilon s$ in verse 16, the sense is: Some —not all: what made the difference ? Sin (verse 17). Disobedience (verse 18).

ov $\chi$ i roîs  $\dot{a}\mu$ ] Some put the interrogation at  $\dot{a}\mu a\rho \tau \eta \sigma \sigma \sigma \nu$ , and make the rest of the verse a statement: And their carcases (accordingly) fell, &c. If so, Rom. iii. 8 would resemble this ( $\delta\nu$  rò  $\kappa\rho(\mu a \ \epsilon \nu \delta \iota \kappa \delta \nu \ \epsilon \sigma \tau \nu$ ). And this would balance well with the close of verse 19,  $\kappa a \lambda \beta \lambda \ \epsilon - \pi \sigma \mu \epsilon \nu \kappa \tau \cdot \lambda$ .

κωλα] Levit. xxvi. 30, καὶ θήσω τὰ κωλα ὑμῶν ἐπὶ τὰ κωλα τῶν εἰδώλων ὑμῶν, καὶ προσοχθιεῖ ἡ ψυχή μου ὑμῖν. Num. xiv. 29, 32, 33. 1 Sam. xvii. 46. Isai. lxvi. 24.

ἔπεσεν ἐν τῦ ἐρ.] See Num. xiv. 29, 32, 33, ἐν τῦ ἐρήμω ταύτῃ πεσείται τὰ κῶλα ὑμῶν κ.τ.λ.

18.  $\tau i \sigma i \nu \delta \epsilon$ ] See note on verse 17,  $\tau i \sigma i \nu \delta \epsilon$ . On the same supposition (of  $\tau i \nu \epsilon s$ , not  $\tau i \nu \epsilon s$ , being read in verse 16), this verse gives the second answer to the question, What made the difference? Disobedience. For  $a \pi \epsilon i \theta$ . see note on verse 12,  $a \pi i \sigma \tau i s$ .

19. Kal  $\beta\lambda$ imoury] And the result was in accordance with the threat. They did not enter. They could not enter. And why? Because of their importa. So that imit imit important important import in the terms, the shad a convertible terms, though with a shade of distinction between them. See again note on verse 12, important.

βλέπομεν] We see on the Scripture page. For βλέπειν in this mental sense, see, for example, ii. 9. x. 25.

IV. 1 Φοβηθώμεν οὖν μή ποτε καταλειπομένης ἐπαγγελίας εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὴν κατάπαυσιν αὐτοῦ 2 δοκῆ τις ἐξ ὑμῶν ὑστερηκέναι. καὶ γάρ ἐσμεν

IV. 1. oiv] It is an inference from the case of the Exodus generation.

καταλειπομένης] Being left in continuous succession. (I) Left behind by former generations. (2) The present tense marks a repeated and successive leaving behind. (3) There is no iµûν or ηµûν expressed after καταλειπ. It is quite general. Left for others, whoever they may be, by former possessors.

έπαγγελίας] The verb έπαγ- $\gamma \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  has two senses (1) to profess, (2) to promise. (The active voice, though classical, in the obvious sense of announce, proclaim, &c., is not found in the New Testament.) Probably both are traceable to the idea of to announce as one's own, in different ways: (1) to announce as one's business, occupation, character, &c., (2) to announce as one's undertaking or engage-The substantive  $i\pi a\gamma$ ment. yelía occurs about 50 times in the New Testament, always as promise. In the Septuagint it is found only twice or thrice, and the verb no oftener.

εἰσελθεῖν] To enter. Of entering. That we (or some) should enter. The construction is loose: we might have expected τοῦ with εἰσελθεῖν. Compare Rom. iv. 13, ή επαγγελία...τό κλ. αυτόν είναι.

eis  $\tau \eta \nu$  κατάπαυσιν] No such promise is anywhere made in express terms. But the inference is from Psalm xcv. David's exhortation to the people of his generation, not to sin like the Exodus generation, lest they should incur its penalty of forfeiture of God's rest, implies that the rest, or its equivalent, or its antitype, was still open, to be entered or to be forfeited. Otherwise the exhortation itself would lack its point.

 $\delta o \kappa \hat{\eta}$  A difficult word here. We cannot (at all events without a sai before it) make it mean even seem to have missed it, even in appearance incur such a loss. It is better to take it in the forensic sense, in which Soke would be the way of pronouncing a verdict. Did o Seiva commit such or such a crime? Soke? (he seems to have done it: I am of opinion that he did it). So here: lest any one of you should seem (should be judged) to have missed it. Another possible interpretation, that of a merely mitigating and softening form of expression, seems inadequate.

ύστερηκέναι] That is, αὐτῆς. No clear difference appears to lie between ὑστερεῖν and ὑστερεῖσθαι. Can the latter be a

εὐηγγελισμένοι καθάπερ κἀκεῖνοι· ἀλλ' οὐκ ὦφέλησεν ὁ λόγος τῆς ἀκοῆς ἐκείνους, μὴ strict passive (to be reduced to want)? This sense might suit Luke xv. 14. 2 Cor. xi. 8. Phil. iv. 12. Heb. xi. 37 (where it occurs with two strict passives following). In 1 Cor. i. 7 it stands in a sort of contrast with  $\epsilon \pi \lambda o v \tau (\sigma \theta \eta \tau \epsilon \text{ in verse 5. In 1 Cor.}$ viii. 8, however, it simply stands over against περισσεύειν. And in Rom. iii. 23 the passive sense can scarcely be maintained. Indeed in all places the sense to be behind, to come later than, or to come too late for, to miss or lack, seems sufficient for either voice of the word. Luke xxii. 35, µή τινος ύστερήσατε; 2 Cor. xi. 5. xii. 11. Sometimes the construction varies from that with a genitive following: for example, Matt. xix. 20, τί (as to what) έτι ύστερώ; Mark x. 21, ev or (as to thee) ύστερεί. John ii. 3, ύστερήσαντος olvov. I Car. i. 7 (with iv). xii. 24, τῷ ὑστερουμένω (absolute).

2.  $\kappa \alpha i \gamma \alpha \rho$ ] For also. Besides other points of resemblance, there is this ( $\kappa \alpha i$ ), that we (no stress on we, no  $\eta \mu \epsilon \hat{s}$ ) have been evangelized (have had a message of good brought to us) even as also were they.

έσμεν εὐηγγελ.] The choice of this phrase suggests the view taken of the promise of Canaan as being not only typical, but representative too, of the great hope of rest, spiritual and heavenly, which is the Christian Gospel.

 $\kappa a \theta \acute{a} \pi \epsilon \rho \kappa \dot{a} \kappa \epsilon \hat{i} \kappa o i$ ] Under the promise of Canaan lay (for the believing Israelite) that other promise without which the former would have been transitory and illusory. This thought runs through the chapter, and finds its parallel in the unhesitating assertions of the 11th chapter as to the far-reaching faith of the saints of earlier dispensations.

 $\dot{\omega}\phi \epsilon \lambda \eta \sigma \epsilon v$ ] See xiii. 9,  $\dot{\epsilon} v$  ols oùk  $\dot{\omega}\phi \epsilon \lambda \dot{\eta}\theta \eta \sigma av$  ol περιπατοῦντες. For this sense of spiritual and everlasting benefiting, see also (for example) Luke ix. 25. John vi. 63. I Cor. xiii. 3.

ό λ. τής ακοής] The word of the tidings or divine message. For this sense of akon, a thing for hearing, tidings, a message or announcement, see 1 Sam. ii. 23, ούκ αγαθή ή ακοή ήν εγώ ακούω. I Kings ii. 28, ή akon ήλθεν έως 'Ιωάβ. Psalm cxii. 7. Isai. lii. 7, akon eipyvys. Matt. iv. 24, ή άκοη αὐτοῦ, xiv. 1. Mark i. 28. John xii. 38. dc. The Hellenistic use of  $\mu \eta$ with the participle includes the various subjective ideas of because not, though not, as not, such as not, &c. as well as the classical if not. For example, (1) If not: Gen. xliv. 34, πω̂s γαρ αναβήσομαι πρός τον πατέρα, τοῦ παιδίου μη ὄντος μεθ ήμων; Rom. v. 13, μη όντος νόμου. I Cor. vii. 37, μη έχων ανάγκην. Gal. vi. 9, µn ekhvóµevol. ourker.] More questions of formation (συνκεκερασμ., συνκε- $\kappa \rho a \mu$ .) may be disregarded. The point of the interpretation lies in the case of the word. Is it the accusative plural, or is it the nominative singular? For the latter the Sinaitic alone (of great manuscripts) is quoted, and the former must be preferred on a balance of authorities. (1) If the former, the rendering must be, because they were not commingled by faith with those who heard. Because they were not united by faith with those who heard effectually. This will bring the two faithful hearers (Caleb and Joshua) into unexpected and unexplained prominence. It would at least require us to read rivès (not rives) in iii. 16, and without interrogation. Even then, considering how slightingly ἀκούειν is used in iii. 16 (ἀκού- $\sigma a \nu \tau \epsilon s \pi a \rho \epsilon \pi i \kappa \rho a \nu a \nu)$ , it is unsatisfactory to have it here employed, without further explanation, for obedient hearing, in contrast with that which is negligent and disobedient. A slenderly supported reading akovorteiow would mend the είσερχόμεθα γὰρ εἰς τὴν κατάπαυσιν οἱ πιστεύ- 3 σαντες, καθώς εἴρηκεν, ʿΩς ὤμοσα ἐν τῆ ὀργῆ μου, Εἰ εἰσελεύσονται εἰς τὴν κατάπαυσίν iv. 3. Or elsepx. our. Or omit the.

sense : because they were not commingled by faith with (united by faith to) the things heard. Compare ii. 1, προσέχειν ήμας τοις ακουσθείσιν. A conjectural emendation is akovo paoir, more like akovoraow, but unbiblical. (2) If the nominative singular, agreeing with  $\lambda \dot{0} \gamma o s$ , the meaning is, because it was not commingled by faith with them that heard (conveying the idea of the assimilating effect of digestion, as in the Collect for the second Sunday in Advent); or, because it was not commingled with faith for (in the case of) them that heard (making faith as it were the chyle in the process of digestion). This rendering is somewhat easier than that afforded by the other reading, but it is less well supported. 'After much hesitation we have marked this passage as probably containing a primitive corruption' (Professors Westcott and Hort).

εἰσερχόμεθα γάρ] Or οὖν.
 (1) With γάρ, the verse gives the reason for εὐηγγελισμένοι καθάπερ κἀκεῖνοι. I say, evangelized like them—for, &c. (2) With οὖν, it is an inference from it. In accordance with the above assertion (einyy. Kal. Kak.) we do enter, &c.

 $\epsilon i\sigma \epsilon \rho \chi \circ \rho \mu \epsilon \theta a$ ] The present tense expresses the confidence of the assertion. We do, as a matter of fact, enter, &c.

 $\tau \eta \nu$ ] An alternative reading omits  $\tau \eta \nu$ . The difference is between the rest and a rest: the rest spoken of in Psalm xcv.; or, a rest, whatever it be.

ol mustevisavtes] We, I say, who became (or are become) believers. This is the definition of the we involved in  $\epsilon lor \epsilon p \chi \acute{o}$ - $\mu \epsilon \theta a$ .

καθώς εἴρηκεν] Even as He (God) hath said. It is the Scripture perfect. In accordance with the saying of the xcvth Psalm, written all those long centuries after the completion of creation, and clearly implying that the κατάπαυσις of God was still accessible in David's time, and, if so (for what has occurred since to close it?), still and now.

 $\dot{\omega}$ ;  $\ddot{\omega}\mu\sigma\sigma\alpha \kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ] The whole stress lies on the last words of the quotation—enter into my rest. They shall not enter implies that they might have entered if they would have believed and obeyed.

τών ἕργων] God's works of creation. Gen. ii. 2, 3, τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ ἅ ἐποίησε· καὶ κατέπαυσε τῷ ἡμέρα τῷ ἐβδόμῃ ἀπὸ πάντων τῶν ἔργων αὐτοῦ ῶν ἐποίησε.

άπο κατ. κ.] From the time of. The same phrase occurs in ix. 26. Matt. xxv. 34. Luke xi. 50. Rev. xiii. 8. xvii. 8.

 $\gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \theta \epsilon \nu \tau \omega \nu$ ] Had come into being, as by a single act of creating. The passive form  $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \theta \eta \nu$ does not appear to differ in sense from the middle  $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \epsilon \eta \eta \nu$ . See, for example, Acts iv. 4. I Thess. ii. 14,  $\mu \mu \eta \tau \alpha i \epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \theta \eta \tau$ . I Cor. xv. 10,  $\sigma i \kappa \epsilon \nu \eta \epsilon \gamma \epsilon \nu \tau \eta \theta \eta$ . But the use of  $\delta \iota a$  or  $i \pi c$  with other forms of  $\gamma \ell \nu \alpha \mu \alpha \ell$  (Acts ii. 43. iv. 16. Luke xiii. 17. xxiii. 8) shows that spontaneity is no necessary part of the idea of the word.

4.  $\epsilon \ell \rho \eta \kappa \epsilon \nu \gamma \alpha \rho \pi \sigma \nu$ ] Reason for connecting the rest after creation with the rest of Psalm xcv. The Scripture phrase for both is the same ( $\kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \pi \alpha \nu \sigma \epsilon \nu$ ,  $\kappa \alpha \tau \alpha \pi \alpha \nu \sigma \epsilon \nu$ ). For  $\pi \sigma \nu$ , see note

ούτως] More often refers to something foregoing: here to a quotation following, as in Matt. ii. 5. Acts vii. 6. xiii. 34, 47. I Cor. xv. 45.

κατέπαυσεν] The verb is used both transitively and intransitively. See note on iii. 11, την κατάπαυσίν μου.

5.  $i v \tau o v \tau \phi$  Probably neuter. Here. See v. 6,  $i v i \tau e \phi \phi$ . Also Acts xiii. 35,  $\delta i \phi \tau i \kappa a i e v$  $i \tau e \phi \phi \lambda e \phi \phi$ , where there is no ambiguity, the next preceding quotation not having been from a Psalm.

El  $elos \epsilon \lambda$ .] They shall not enter; but in the very fact of so saying is implied that the rest was accessible, and only forfeited by the personal fault of those to whom it was offered.

 ϵπϵὶ oἶν] The argument is close and cogent. God never speaks in vain. If His rest is offered to man, it is quite certain that the offer will not be made

τινας είσελθειν είς αυτήν, και οι πρότερον ευαγγελισθέντες ουκ είσηλθον δι απείθειαν, in vain. If one set of persons (say, one generation) refuses it, another will have the offer of it. (Compare Matt. iii. 9.) The Exodus generation refused God's rest, David's generation is offered it. This offer of God's rest to David's generation shows that something better than an earthly Canaan was meant by it. If that had been all, the entrance of Canaan under Joshua would have fulfilled it. But the xcvth Psalm says that the rest was still to be had or still to be forfeited three centuries after Joshua. If so, it is still to be had or still to be forfeited, for certainly no subsequent fulfilment of the promise can be pointed to, if the entrance under Joshua was not such. There remains therefore a katámavous, or its equivalent a saßßarispis, for the real people of God.

άπολείπεται] It is left over; that is, from God's resting. The resting of God Himself did not exhaust the rest. It remains over, from and after God's resting, that His creatures, or some of them, are to enjoy the rest with Him and in Him. The present tense (like that of καταλειπομένηs in verse 1) expresses a successive or continuous leaving over until the promise is fulfilled. For ἀπολείπετα, see also verse 9. x. 26. Here the nominative to απολείπεται is the phrase τινάς είσελθεῖν είς αὐτήν.

τινάς] Some, not none. Like the τινές of iii. 16, if the interrogative be given up there.

και οι πρότερον Some must God's purpose of adenter. mitting into His rest cannot be defeated by any number of refusals. (Compare Rom. iii. 3. τί γαρ εί ηπίστησάν τινες; κ.τ.λ.) That is the first postulate. The second is, that the former recipients of the offer, the Exodus generation, did refuse it. Consequently, so far as they are concerned, the promise remains (as it were) looking for a response, waiting its opportunity of fulfilment, which yet must come. The of  $\pi p \acute{o} \tau \epsilon p o \nu$  are the ekeivor of verse 2, the Exodus generation of Israelites.

our eiσηλθον] Failed to enter. And why?

δι' ἀπείθειαν] Equivalent to δι' ἀπιστίαν, iii. 19. See notes on iii. 12, 18, 19.

7.  $\pi \acute{\alpha}\lambda v \kappa.\tau.\lambda$ ] These two things being so—(1) that the rest must be occupied, and (2) that the Exodus generation failed to occupy it—God again fixes a day, &c.

 $\pi \dot{a} \lambda \iota \nu$ ] Over again. The first defining of a day had been to the Exodus generation. Now opiled From opos, a bound or limit, whether of space or time (Exod. ix. 5, rai čowrev ο Θεος όρον, λέγων, [έν τη Β] αύριον κ.τ.λ. Nehem. ii. 6, καί έδωκα αυτώ όρον), the verb opi-Lew means, to mark out as by a boundary line, to determine, define, fix, settle, &c. Thus in the Septuagint it means, (1) in the literal sense, to bound, Num. xxxiv. 6, [ή B] θάλασσα ή μεyan opier. Josh. xiii. 27. &c.; (2) in the middle voice, to lay down limits for oneself, as in the case of vows, Num. xxx. 3, 4, 5, καί τους όρισμους αυτής ούς ώρίσατο κατά της ψυχης αύτης. &c. In the New Testament, Acts xvii. 26, δρίσας προστεταγμένους καιρούς και τας δροθεσίας της κατοικίας αὐτῶν. And so in all senses of ordaining or determining. Luke xxii. 22, Karà το ώρισμένον. Acts ii. 23, τη ώρισμένη βουλή. Χ. 42, ο ώρισμένος υπό τοῦ Θεοῦ. xi. 29, ώρισαν...πέμψαι. xvii. 31, έν ανδρί ψ ώρισεν. Rom. i. 4.

Σήμερον κ.τ.λ.] Saying in David, so long after the Excdus period, To-day; as it has been above quoted, To-day, if ye shall hear His voice, &c. The Σήμερον is put first to give it greater emphasis. But in order of construction it comes after χρόνον.

ἐν Δαυείδ] In the person of David as His inspired utterer (προφήτης). See i. I, ἐν τοῦς προφήταις.

μετά τοσοῦτον χρόνον] After so long a lapse of intervening time since the Exodus period.

καθώς προείρ.] According to the above quotation from Psalm xcv. Whether we read προείρηται or προείρηκεν, the προ in either case refers to the quotation, not to the passage itself.

8.  $\epsilon i \gamma \alpha \rho$  I say that the rest was still open when David wrote his To-day; for, if the entrance into Canaan under Joshua had fulfilled the promise of the karáπavous, there would have been no place for the To-day of the xouth Psalm.

ầν περὶ ἄλλης ἐλάλει μετὰ ταῦτα ἡμέρας. ἄρα 9 ἀπολείπεται σαββατισμὸς τῷ λαῷ τοῦ Θεοῦ.

Ίησοῦς] Joshua. So Acts vii. 45, οἱ πατέρες ἡμῶν μετὰ Ἰησοῦ ἐν τῆ κατασχέσει τῶν ἐθνῶν.

κατέπαυσεν] Had rested them, had given them rest. See note on iii. 11, τὴν κατάπαυσίν μου. The text does not contradict the repeated statements of the Old Testament on this point (Josh. i. 13, Κύριος ὁ Θεος ὑμῶν κατέπαυσεν ὑμῶς καὶ ἔδωκεν ὑμῶν τὴν γῆν ταύτην), but only says that that resting was not the resting. The entrance into Canaan left the true rest of God still open, to be accepted or to be refused.

oùr  $dv...\epsilon\lambda d\lambda \epsilon i$ ] He, that is, God, would not have been speaking (as He is speaking in the xcvth Psalm) of another day.

άλλης] Not έτέρας. Another (further, additional) day, not a day of a different kind. Compare Gal. i. 6, 7, εἰς ἔτερον εὐαγγέλιον, ο οὐκ ἐστὶν ǎλλο.

μετὰ ταῦτα] After the entrance into Canaan. Acts vii. 7. xiii. 20. &c.

 άρα ἀπολείπεται] To complete the argument, we must understand, And if up to David's time the rest was still open, certainly nothing has occurred since to close it.

ãρa] So. Sometimes with γε added, as Matt. vii. 20, ãρa aπoλείπεται] See note on verse 6.

σaββaτισμός] Not used elsewhere in the New Testament or the Septuagint. But σaββaτιζειν occurs in Exod. xvi. 30, κaì ἐσaββάτισεν ὁ λαὸς τŷ ἡμέρα τŷ ἐβδόμῃ. Levit. xxiii. 32, σaββατιêιτε τὰ σáββατα ὑμῶν. xxvi. 35. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. The substitution of σaββατισμὸς for κατάπαυσις here serves to identify the rest of God (Gen. ii. 2, 3) with the rest promised to His people.

τῷ λαῷ τοῦ Θεοῦ] xi. 25. And see note on ii. 17, τοῦ λαοῦ.

10.  $\delta \gamma d\rho \, \epsilon i\sigma \epsilon \lambda \theta \omega \nu$ ] I say, a  $\sigma a\beta \beta a \tau i\sigma \mu \delta s$ —for, &c. This verse justifies the interchange of the two words  $\kappa a \tau a \pi a \nu \sigma is$  and  $\sigma a \beta \beta a \tau i\sigma \mu \delta s$ . The rest promised has the peculiar feature of God's rest after creation, that it is a ceasing from works.

eloeλθων...κατέπανσεν] The aorists point to the single, decisive, once-for-all act. The act of entering is an ipso facto resting. He that has once entered has at once rested.

aບ້າວນີ້...ລບ້າວນີ້] The former ລບ້າວນີ້ is God's, the latter the man's.

κατέπαυσεν ἀπὸ τ. ἐ αὐτοῦ] Rev. xiv. 13, μακάριοι οἱ νεκροὶ... iva ἀναπαύσονται ἐκ τῶν κόπων αὐτῶν, τὰ γὰρ ἔργα αὐτῶν ἀκολουθεὶ μετ αὐτῶν. There the rest is from the κόποι, the ἔργα are not done with. An instructive suggestion as to the difference between earthly activity and heavenly.

 $\tau \hat{\omega} v \ i \delta (\omega v)$  The word  $i \delta \omega s$ is rare in the Septuagint, occurring only ten or eleven times till we reach the Apocrypha. In the New Testament it is frequent, used more than a hundred times, and used by every writer.

11. Σπουδάσωμεν] The word occurs nine or ten times in the Septuagint, of which six are in the Book of Job. Sometimes transitive, (1) to hasten, (2) to hurry or agitate; more often intransitive, (1) to make haste, to be eager, and so (2) to be flurried or troubled. In the New Testament its use is confined to St Paul and the 2nd Epistle of St Peter; and it is always intransitive, to be earnest or eager. Gal. ii. 10. Eph. iv. 3. 1 Thess. ii. 17. 2 Tim. ii. 15. iv. 9, 21. Tit. iii. 12. 2 Pet. i. 10, 15. iii. 14.

ov] Inference from the continuance of the promise, and the risk of forfeiting it.

ἐκείνην] That rest which has been the subject of the foregoing passage.

iv] As the footprint in which a following step is placed. Lest any one fall (by placing his foot) in the mark left by the step of the Exodus generation.

a substratum for action of some kind: for example, a copy set to practise writing or drawing, or an act done to be imitated, or a representation of something for instruction, &c. The word υπόδειγμα occurs three times in the Apocrypha: Ecclus. xliv. 16, Ένωχ...υπόδειγμα μετανοίας raîs yeveais. 2 Macc. vi. 28, 31. In the New Testament, John xiii. 15, ὑπόδειγμα γαρ ἔδωκα ὑμιν ίνα καθώς έγὼ έποίησα ύμιν καὶ ύμεις ποιήτε. Heb. viii. 5, ύποδείγματι...των ἐπουρανίων...δρα γάρ, φησίν, ποιήσεις πάντα κατα τόν τύπον τόν δειχθέντα σοι. ix. 23. James v. 10. 2 Pet. ii. 6, πόλεις ... υπόδειγμα μελλύντων ασεβείν (or ασεβέσιν) τεθεικώς.

 $\pi \epsilon \sigma \eta$  Rom. xi. 11,  $\mu \eta$ έπταισαν ίνα πέσωσιν; xiv. 4, στήκει η πίπτει. 1 Cor. x. 12, βλεπέτω μη πέση. James v. 12, ίνα μη ύπο κρίσιν πέσητε.

12. [ŵr yáp] Think not to escape their punishment if you sin their sin—for, &c.

ζών... όλ.] I Pet. i. 23, διà λύγου ζώντος (where the καὶ μévovtos following, shown by the quotation in verse 25 to belong to  $\lambda \dot{\alpha} \gamma \sigma v$ , fixes the appropriation of Lurros also to Loyou, not to Θεού).

ό λόγος τοῦ Θεοῦ] Not the V. H.

personal Word of John i. 1, &c., to which τομώτεροs and διικνούnevos would scarcely be appropriate; but the utterance of God, specially in judging, that is, in discerning and discriminating. See John xii. 48, o λόγος ΰν ελάλησα εκείνος κρινεί αύτον έν τη έσχάτη ήμέρα.

everyis] The later form of ¿νεργός, at work, active, energetic. Not in the Septuagint (everyo's Ezek. xlvi. 1). In the New Testament, I Cor. xvi. 9, θύρα... μεγάλη και ένεργής. Philem. 6, όπως ή κοινωνία της πίστεώς σου ένεργής γένηται.

τομώτερος] Only here. Not in the Septuagint. (In Isai. viii. I τόμος is a substantive, slice, piece, tome.) The adjective is classical (Sophocles, Plato, &c.).

 $v\pi\epsilon\rho$ ] After a comparative, as in Luke xvi. 8, φρονιμώτεροι υπέρ τους υίους του φωτός. 2 Cor. xii. 13, ήσσώθητε υπέρ τας λοιπας έκκλησίας. More often παρά. See note on i. 4.

µáxaıpav] First in Gen. xxii. 6, 10: then frequent in the Septuagint (especially in Jeremiah and Ezekiel). In the New Testament it occurs 27 times, (1) literally, and (2) figuratively: as (1) Matt. xxvi. 47, µera µaxaıρών και έύλων. John xviii. 10.

δίστομον] Jud. iii. 16, καὶ ἐποίησεν ἐαυτῷ 'Αωδ μάχαιραν δίστομον, σπιθαμῆς (span) τὸ μῆκος αὐτῆς. Psalm cxlix. 6, καὶ ρομφαῖαι δίστομοι ἐν ταῖς χερσιν αὐτῶν. Prov. v. 4, καὶ ἤκονημένον μᾶλλον μαχαίρας διστόμου. Ecclus. xxi. 3. Rev. i. 16, ῥομφαία δίστομος ὀξεῖα. ii. 12. The figure is that of a devouring animal. See 2 Sam. xi. 25, ποτὲ μὲν οὖτως καὶ ποτὲ οὖτως καταφάγεται (A, φάγεται B) ἡ μάχαιρα.

διικνούμενος] Reaching right through, going the whols length. Applied in Exod. xxvi. 28 and xxxvi. 33 to the middle bar which reached (or shot through the boards) from end to end. In the New Testament only here. But we have ἀφικν. in Rom. xvi. 19, and ἐφικν. in 2 Cor. x. 13, 14.

 $a\chi\rho i$ ] The two forms,  $\mu \epsilon \chi\rho i$ ( $\mu a \kappa \rho o s$ ), to the length of, and  $a\chi\rho i$  ( $a\kappa \rho o s$ ), to the extremity of, occur often in the New Testament, and apparently with no difference of meaning; for we have  $a\chi\rho i$   $\theta a \nu a \tau o v$  in Acts xxii. 4. Rev. ii. 10. xii. 11, and  $\mu \epsilon \chi\rho i \theta a \nu a \tau o v$  in Phil. ii. 8, and  $\mu \epsilon \chi\rho s a \mu a \tau o s$  in Heb. xii. 4.

μερισμοῦ] From μερίζειν, to portion or parcel out, whether for distribution (as in 1 Cor. vii. 17. &c.) or for severance (as in 1 Cor. i. 13. vii. 34). Here the latter: in ii. 4 the former.

ψυχής καί πνεύματος] The full division (σώμα, ψυχή, πνεῦ- $\mu a$ ) is found only in I Thess. Elsewhere only  $\sigma a \rho \xi$ V. 23. and  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$  ( $\sigma a \rho \xi$  including both  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a$  and  $\psi v \chi \eta$ ). The immaterial part of man is one and but one, and confusion of thought and language arises from forgetting this. When  $\psi v \chi \eta$  and  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$  are distinguished, as here,  $\psi v \chi \eta$  means the immaterial part of man in its aspect towards this world, its affections, interests, ambitions, occupations (including even the intellectual), and  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$  the same immaterial part in its capacity of communicating with and receiving communications from God. Study 1 Cor. ii. 13-15. xv. 44-46. Jude 19, ψυχικοί, πνεθμα μή έχοντες. Τhe μερισμός ψυχής καί  $\pi v \epsilon \dot{\nu} \mu \alpha \tau \sigma s$  here spoken of may be regarded either as an absolutely impossible thing (for the reason given above), mentioned only in rhetorical hyperbole, or else as a thing impossible with man, possible only with God.

άρμῶν τε καὶ μυελῶν] The τε is not both, but and. It couples the second pair to the first. The μερισμός of άρμοι and μυελοι is made the parallel in the material to the  $\mu\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\mu\dot{\sigma}s$  of  $\psi\nu\chi\dot{\eta}$  and  $\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu a$  in the immaterial part of man. It need not be anatomically treated, in either case. The severance of the marrow from the containing and transmitting joints is made the acme of dissecting power.

μυελών, καί κριτικός ένθυμήσεων καί έννοιών καρδίας καί ούκ έστιν κτίσις άφανής ένώπιον 13

άρμῶν] The word occurs in Ecclus. xxvii. 2, ἀναμέσον ἀρμῶν λίθων κ.τ.λ. In Eph. iv. 16 and Col. ii. 19 ἀφη is its equivalent (one from ἀρω, the other from ἀπτω).

μυελών] Gen. xlv. 18, τόν μυελόν της γής. Job xxi. 24, ό δε μυελός αύτοῦ διαχείται (is diffused through his bones).

κριτικός] Capable of discerning or discriminating by a process of sifting and separating. (The word is used by Plato, Aristotle, Lucian, &c.)

ένθυμήσεων καί έννοιών Processes of the  $\theta v \mu \delta s$  and processes of the vovs. Feelings and In the Septuagint thoughts. (especially in Ezekiel) ἐνθύμημα Both in it and in is the form. intum idea of feeling or passion seems to be prominent, in the Septuagint at least. In the New Testament ivoupous occurs in Matt. ix. 4 and xii, 25, in both of which places passion rather than reflexion is in view. And so in the verb, in Matt.

ix. 4. In Matt. i. 20 and Acts x. 19 (where the revised text has  $\delta \iota \epsilon \nu \theta$ .) it would be difficult to maintain this. The word  $\tilde{\epsilon} \nu$ - $\nu o \iota a$  is almost confined (in the Septuagint) to the Book of Proverbs, in which it is found ten times; as in xxiii. 19,  $\kappa a \tilde{\iota} \kappa a \tau \epsilon \tilde{\nu}$ - $\theta \nu \nu \epsilon \tilde{\iota} \nu \nu o (a s \sigma \tilde{\eta} s \kappa a \rho \delta (a s. In the$ New Testament it occurs only $in 1 Pet. iv. 1, <math>\tau \eta \nu a \tilde{\nu} \tau \eta \nu \tilde{\iota} \nu \nu o a \nu$ (thought or idea)  $\delta \pi \lambda (\sigma a \sigma \theta \epsilon.$

13. κτίσις] From its first sense, of the act of creating (Mark x. 6. xiii. 19. Rom. i. 20. dc.), κτίσις passes into that of created being, whether universal or particular: the latter here, and in Rom. viii. 39, ούτε τις κτίσις έτέρα.

άφανής] Unmanifest, obscure. Ecclus. xx. 30, σοφία κεκρυμμένη καὶ θησαυρὸς ἀφανής, τίς ὡφέλεια ἐν ἀμφοτέροις; Also 2 Macc. iii. 34-avroû...avroû] The latter, considering the roîs  $\delta\phi\theta a\lambda\mu o\hat{s}$ with it, and the  $\pi\rho\delta\hat{s}$   $\delta\nu$   $\eta\mu\hat{v}$  $\delta$   $\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma\hat{s}$  following it, may seem to be most naturally understood of God rather than of His word. It is not unnatural that the sentence should slide from the  $\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma\hat{s}$  into the  $\Theta\hat{c}\hat{s}$  whose  $\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma\hat{s}$ it is. But this is not absolutely necessary: even the  $\pi\rho\delta\hat{s}$   $\delta\nu$ clause may be understood as saying that our  $\lambda\delta\gamma\sigma\hat{s}$  has to do

γυμνά] Job xxvi. 6, γυμνὸς ὁ ἄδης ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ (mark the ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ of that passage in this also), καὶ οὐκ ἔστι περιβόλαιον τῆ ἀπωλείφ.

 $\tau \epsilon \tau \rho a \chi \eta \lambda \iota \sigma \mu \epsilon \nu a$ ] A difficult word. Some senses of it are quite inappropriate here, such as that of the horse throwing its rider, and the oraqoos rpaχηλιζύμενον είς βάθος. Two chief lines of explanation present themselves. (I) It is a To seize by wrestler's word. the neck (back or front), to grip or throttle. Hence to overmaster (as ταîs επιθυμίαιs in Plutarch, Philo, &c.). (2) It is also a sacrificial word. To bare the neck for the knife. Hence da $v \epsilon \rho o \pi o \iota \hat{\omega}$  (patefacio) is given as its synonym. Decisive authority seems to be wanting for this sense, which yet would best suit the passage: for, with  $\tau o\hat{i}s$  $\partial \phi \theta a \lambda \mu o \hat{i} s$  following it, there must lie in it some notion of Some insist upon exposure.  $\tau \rho \alpha_{\chi \eta} \lambda o_{S}$  being always the back of the neck, adducing the other New Testament places of its use (Matt. xviii. 6. Mark ix. 42. Luke xv. 20. xvii. 2. Acts xv. 10, xx. 37. Rom.

xvi. 4). The lexicons make no such distinction, nor does it lie on the surface of the texts quoted. On the whole, whatever the starting-point of the word, it seems as if  $\pi \epsilon \phi a \nu \epsilon \rho \omega$ µéra must be its terminus. Naked and opened to the eyes. Some have seen in it the idea of the guilty creature hanging its head before the judge, but having it raised by the baring of the throat so as to be forced. to meet the eye fixed upon it.

aὐτοῦ, πρὸς ὅν] This is not to be read, of Him to whom. The aὐτοῦ is not emphatic but goes with τοῖς ὀφθαλμοῦς, His eyes. Then πρὸς ὅν begins an independent clause.

προς δν ήμιν ο λόγος] Literally, unto whom our word is. Mark the contrast of the repeated & Noyos. The word of God...unto whom our word is. In either case the  $\lambda \delta \gamma \sigma \sigma$  has to be interpreted by the context. God's word of judgment. Our word of account. For the latter, see Luke xvi. 2, ἀπόδος τον λόγον της οίκονομίας σου. Acts xix. 40, αποδούναι λόγον περί της συστροφής ταύτης. Rom. xiv. 12, έκαστος ήμων περί έαυτου λόγον αποδώσει τῷ Θεῷ. 14-16. These three verses are best regarded as forming a sort of transitional paragraph from the second to the third topic, from Christ and Moses to Christ and Aaron. The word apxiepéa twice repeated might claim them for the latter, but not decisively: see ii. 17 and iii. I, in both of which the same word occurs, evidently by anticipation. At all events the ovrshows them to be an inference from the foregoing, as the  $\gamma a \rho$ of v. I shows them to be a preparation for the following. The incidental way of introducing new topics, characteristic of the Epistle, has been noticed on i. 4 and iii. 2.

14. ἀρχιερέα] See note on ii. 17, ἀρχιερεύς.

άρχιερέα μέγαν] See x. 21, καὶ ἰερέα μέγαν κ.τ.λ. In both places the stress lies on μέγαν, great, mighty, powerful, in tacit contrast with the merely human and therefore frail and weak Levitical high-priest.

διελ. τ. οὐρ.] Having passed through the (lower) heavens into heaven itself, the very presence of God. Compare vii. 26, ὑψηλότερος τῶν οὐρ. γενόμενος. ix. 24, εἰσηλθεν...είς αὐτὸν τὸν οὐρανόν, νῦν έμφανισθήναι τῷ προσώπψ τοῦ Θεοῦ ὑπερ ήμῶν. Eph. iv. 10, ο άναβάς υπεράνω πάντων των οιparŵr. It is not necessary to define the number of heavens which may have been in the idea of the writer (any more than on 2 Cor. xii. 2, αρπαγέντα τόν τοιούτον έως τρίτου ούρανοῦ). (1) The atmospheric heaven is called an ovpavo's in Matt. vi. 26. xvi. 3. James v. 18. &c. (2) The starry sky in Matt. Rev. vi. 13. &c. XXIV. 29. (3) The abode of Angels, Matt. xxiv. 36. Mark xii. 25. Luke xxii. 43. (4) Above all there is the heaven of the Divine Presence itself, Matt. vi. 9. John iii. 13. vi. 32. I Cor. XV. 47.

'I.  $\tau \partial \nu \nu \partial \nu \tau$ . (0, 0) First the human name, then the august dignity. The one the assurance of sympathy (ii. 17, 18), the other the groundwork of confidence (Rom. i. 4).

κρατώμεν] From κράτος (strength) κρατεῖν is (1) absolutely, to have strength, to rule, as Job ix. 19. Prov. xii. 24. Wisd. xiv. 19, κρατοῦντι βουλόμενος ἀρέσαι. (2) to get or have the mastery of, to rule over, to lay or keep hold of, to seize or hold firmly, (a) with a geni-δυνάμενον] See note on ii. 18, δύναται.

 $\mu\eta$  Such as cannot. See note on iv. 2,  $\mu\eta$ .

συνπαθήσαι] The two verbs, συνπάσχειν and συνπαθεῦν, occur twice each in the New Testament (neither of them in the Septuagint). The one is literally to suffer with, to undergo something along with some one. Rom. viii. 17, είπερ συνπάσχομεν κ.τ.λ. (compare 2 Cor. i. 5, περισσεύει τὰ παθήματα τοῦ Χριστοῦ εἰς ἡμᾶς. Col. i. 24, ἀντ-αναπληρώ τα ύστερήματα τών θλίψεων τοῦ Χριστοῦ ἐν τῆ σαρκί μου). I Cor. xii. 26, εί τι πάσχει έν μέλος, συνπάσχει πάντα τα μέλη. Community of suffering is all that the word speaks of. (Passages quoted from Plato as implying sympathy are capable, I think, of the lower meaning.) The other word  $(\sigma v \pi a$ - $\theta \epsilon i \nu$ ) comes through  $\pi a \theta os$  and  $\sigma \nu \mu \pi a \theta \eta s$ , and takes the higher idea, not of fellow-suffering but of fellow-feeling. Here, and x. 34, τοις δεσμίοις συνεπαθήσατε (in both of which places ourπάσχειν would have been untrue).

aσθevelaus] Want of strength is the idea of  $a\sigma\theta$  évera, and in a large majority of its uses bodily strength and weakness is the thing spoken of. But our Lord enlarges its scope when He says, το μέν πνεῦμα πρόθυμον, ή δε σαρξ ασθενής (Matt. xxvi. 41), and St Paul repeatedly applies it to the infirmities of a scrupulous conscience (Rom. xiv. 2. xv. 1. 1 Cor. viii. 11, 12), a feeble faith (Rom. iv. 19), a defective spirituality (Rom. vi. 19. 8. 26), or an unstable character (2 Cor. xi. 29).

 $\pi \epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \rho a \sigma \mu \epsilon' r o r$ ] See notes on ii. 18. The aorist there, the perfect here, is applied to our Lord; the former regarding His trials and temptations as actually past, the latter as permanent in their result. The present is used only of those who are still on earth, and whose life is a life of temptation and trial still.

κατὰ πάντα] See note on ii. 17.

καθ ομοιότητα] According to (by a rule, on a principle, of) similarity. So vii. 15, κατὰ τὴν ομοίοτητα Μελχισεδέκ. Jude 7, τὸν ομοίον τρόπον τοίτοις. The same thought is expressed in ii. 17, κατὰ πάντα τοῖς ἀδελφοῖς ομοιωθήναι, followed by πέπονθεν πειρασθεὶς in verse 18.

χωρίς αμαρτίας] So in ix. 28, έκ δευτέρου χωρίς αμαρτίας  $\dot{o}\phi\theta\eta\sigma$ εται κ.τ.λ. But the application differs in the two places. Here it is the personal apartness from all contact with or contagion of sin. There it is the apartness of the second Advent from all connexion with that work of sin-bearing and propitiation which was the special object of the first. In vii. 26, κεχωρισμένος από των αμαρ- $\tau \omega \lambda \hat{\omega} \nu$ , there is a third thought, the present separation from a world lying in wickedness (I John v. 19) of the glorified Saviour, who must personally leave the world (John xvi. 28. xvii. 11) in order to the mediatorial work which is His now. The rendering here should not be except sin (Art. 15, sin only except), but without sin. Tempted in all points like us, but in absolute severance from any the least admission of sin.

16. προσερχώμεθα] A great word in this Epistle. Sometimes with τῷ Θεῷ, vii. 25. xi. Sometimes with no dative, 6, as in x. 1, 22, τους προσερχομένους τελειώσαι...προσερχώμεθα μετά αληθινής καρδίας. Let us be drawing nigh. This is religion in exercise—a constant coming to God. It is the opposite to that aloofness from God which is either the original condition of the fallen, or else the beginning of apostasy in the Christian. See note on iii. 12, aroornyval. (The word is the root of  $\pi \rho o \sigma \eta'$ -Autos. Lov. xix. 33, dar dé tis προσέλθη προσήλυτος υμιν... υτι προσήλυτοι έγενήθητε έν γη Αίγύπτου.) For another application see I Pet. ii. 4, 5. mpos ΰν προσερχόμενοι, λίθον ζώντα... καὶ αὐτοὶ ὡς λίθοι ζῶντες οἰκοδομείσθε οίκος πνευματικός κ.τ.λ. There also, though the approach is to Christ, and the figure not that of a worshipper, but that of a temple, the same present tense of the  $\pi \rho \circ \sigma \epsilon \rho \chi \circ \mu \epsilon v \circ \iota$  speaks of an habitual and constant access, not of one effected by a single effort. In the other place of its occurrence in this Epistle (xii.

St Paul only once uses  $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon \rho \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta a$ , and that in a peculiar sense, I Tim. vi. 3, kaì  $\mu \eta$   $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon \rho \chi \epsilon \tau a$  (does not accede to)  $\dot{\upsilon} \gamma a \dot{\iota} r o \sigma s \kappa \tau.\lambda$ .

In some passages the idea of seeking is minimized, and finding seems to be equivalent to gaining without any implication of previous search. Matt. xi. 29. John x. 9. 2 Tim. 1. 18. &c.

 $i\lambda cos...\chi \dot{a} ριν$ ] See the Rubric in the Communion Service before the Commandments. In  $\chi \dot{a} ριs$  the thought is free favour, implying entire absence of merit; it is the opposite of  $\dot{o} \phi \epsilon i\lambda \eta \mu a$ (Rom. iv. 4); but it might be shown to a worthy and irreproachable person. In  $\dot{\epsilon} \lambda cos$ there is the further thought of the presence of demerit; it is kindness to the sinful.

eðraipor] Mark vi. 21,  $\eta\mu \epsilon$ pas eðraipor. We have eðraipía in Matt. xxvi. 16. Luke xxii. 6. Also eðraipos Mark xiv. 11. 2 Tim. iv. 2. And eðraipeir Mark vi. 31. Acts. xvii. 21. 1 Cor. xvi. 12.

V. 1.  $\pi \hat{a}s \gamma \hat{a}\rho$ ] We enter here upon the third and largest section of the Epistle. Christ and Aaron. It embraces three subsections. (1) The priesthood, (2) the sanctuary, (3) the sacrifice. An exact assignment of chapter and verse to each of these topics is not possible, for reasons already assigned. Each topic shades off into the next, and the exact point of transiμενος ύπερ ανθρώπων καθίσταται τα προς τον Θεόν, ίνα προσφέρη δωρά τε και θυσίας ύπερ

v. 1. Or omit re.

tion might be fixed differently. But speaking cautiously we may yet say that the subsection of the priesthood occupies chapters v. vi., and vii.; that of the sanctuary chapters viii. and ix.; and that of the sacrifice chapter x., in which however application and exhortation begin at verse 19, and fill the rest of the Epistle.

 $\gamma \dot{a} \rho$ ] Reason for the above description of our High Priest, and for the exhortation founded upon it. That reason is, that Christ satisfies the two conditions of priesthood, which are (1) a human nature, and (2) a divine appointment. The former condition is stated in verses I to 3, the latter in verse 4. The application to Christ begins in verse 5 with the latter of the two conditions, and turns to the former in verse 7.

if  $iv \theta \rho \omega \pi w v$ ] Not, every high priest that is taken from among men, but, every high priest, being taken, &c. The clause if  $iv \theta \rho \omega \pi w \lambda a \mu \beta a v \delta - \mu \epsilon v os$  belongs not to the subject but to the predicate of the sentence. To be taken from among men, for a particular purpose, is one of two conditions of priesthood.

6, λάβε τοὺς Λευίτας ἐκ μέσου τῶν (B omits τῶν) υἰῶν Ἰσραήλ, καὶ ἀφαγνιεῖς αὐτούς. The present participle expresses from time to time.

καθίσταται] vii. 28, ἀνθρώπους καθίστησιν ἀρχιερεῖς. Matt. xxiv. 45. Acts vi. 3. vii. 10. &c.

τα πρός τόν Θεόν] See note on ii. 17.

 $\pi \rho \circ \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta$  The verb  $\pi \rho \circ \sigma$ φέρειν occurs 20 times in this Epistle (and  $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi o \rho a$  five). It is not used by St Paul (who however has mpoor popa twice) nor in any other Epistle. St James and St Peter use avapépeur, which occurs also four times in this Epistle. The exact idea of  $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \epsilon w$  is the bringing of the victim to the altar of sacrifice; of avapé- $\rho\epsilon v$  the bringing up (with some thought perhaps of an elevated altar, James ii. 21, άνενέγκας 1. έπι το θυσιαστήριον. I Pet. ii. 24, ανήνεγκεν ... ἐπὶ τὸ ξύλον). The tense here expresses may keep offering.

δώρά τε κ. θ.] When δώρα and θυσίαι occur together, it is most natural to understand the latter of animal sacrifices, and the former of all other offerings. Otherwise either might cover both. See Matt. xxiii. 18, 19,  $\tau \delta$   $\theta \upsilon \sigma i a \sigma \tau \eta \rho \iota o \tau \delta$   $\dot{a} \gamma \iota a \dot{\zeta} o \sigma \tau \delta \delta \rho o \sigma v.$  Lev. vii. 9 (B vi. 39),  $\pi \hat{a} \sigma a \theta \upsilon \sigma \dot{a} \eta \tau i \varsigma \pi \epsilon \phi \theta \eta \sigma \epsilon \tau a (A,$  $<math>\pi \circ \eta \theta \eta \sigma \epsilon \tau a : B) \quad \delta \tau \quad \tau \hat{\phi} \quad \kappa \lambda \iota \beta \dot{a} \tau \phi$  $\kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . The combination,  $\delta$ .  $\kappa a i$  $\theta$ , is found also in viii. 3 and ix. 9. If the distinction is to be made here between  $\delta \omega \rho a$ and  $\theta \upsilon \sigma i a \iota$ , then  $\upsilon \pi \delta \rho \ a \mu a \rho \tau \iota \hat{\omega} r$ must be read only with the latter.

2.  $\mu \epsilon \tau \rho \iota \sigma \pi a \theta \epsilon \hat{\iota} v$ ] Only here. (Even  $\mu \epsilon \tau \rho \iota os$  is not in the Septuagint, and in the New Testament only in the adverb, Acts xx. 12.) It is formed from  $\mu\epsilon\tau\rho\iota\sigma\pi a\theta\eta$ s, the mean between passionateness and indifference. So here, to be temperately affected towards, the opposite alike of violent anger and utter indiffer-To be patient with, gentle ence. to. It differs from  $\sigma v \mu \pi a \theta \epsilon i \nu$ in not expressing fellow-feeling but feeling towards.

άγνοοῦσιν] Compare ix. 7, τῶν τοῦ λαοῦ ἀγνοημάτων. It is the mildest of the names for sin, but does not imply total or absolute ignorance of its being sin, but rather that confused idea of it which is itself brought about by the ἀπάτη τῆς ἁμαρτίας (iii. 13) acting upon frailty through passion. See I Tim. i.

13, αγνοών εποίησα εν απιστία. Acts iii. 17, κατά άγνοιαν έπράξατε. xvii. 30. Eph. iv. 18, δια την άγνοιαν την έν αυτοίς, διά την πώρωσιν της καρδίας avror (an instructive parallel). 1 Pet. i. 14, ταῖς πρότερον ἐν τῆ άγνοία ύμων επιθυμίαις. The Litany distinguishes 'sins, negligences, and ignorances.' Ignorance is not innocence, except it be (1) total, (2) involuntary, and (3) irremovable by effort and enquiry.

πλανωμένοις] See Matt. xviii. 12, 13. Heb. xi. 38, ἐπὶ ἐρημίαις πλανώμενοι καὶ ὅρεσιν. The idea is that of straying or roving from the right way or the true owner. See iii. 10. 2 Tim. iii. 13, πλανῶντες καὶ πλανώμενοι (showing that the error is not necessarily venial or excusable). Tit. iii. 3, ἀπειθεῖς, πλανώμενοι, δουλεύοντες ἐπιθυμίαις κ.τ.λ.

περίκειται From to lie around, with περί (Mark ix. 42. Luke xvii. 2, περίκειται περί τον τράχηλον αυτού), or a dative (Heb. xii. 1, περικείμενον ήμιν vépos) comes a secondary use, to have lying around one, to be surrounded by, with an accusative. See 4 Macc. xii. 3, opw ήδη τὰ δεσμὰ περικείμενον. Acts xxviii. 20, την άλυσιν ταύτην περίκειμαι. Is compassed with infirmity.

 $d\sigma\theta \epsilon v \epsilon u a v$ ] See note on iv. 15.

3. Kai  $\delta i' a v \tau \eta v$ ] And because of it is bound, &c. Remove the stop from the end of verse 2, to mark the intimate connexion of the two thoughts.

οφείλει] See note on ii. 17. üφειλεν. He incurs the obligation of the kal  $\pi\epsilon\rho$  i tautoù  $\pi\rho\sigma$ φέρειν. The change from  $\tau a \dot{\nu}$ -The to autily eases the interpretation, which might otherwise have seemed to make this a condition of priesthood in the abstract, and so to involve an imputation of personal need of atonement in Christ. This last is a supposition so utterly adverse to the plain statements of this Epistle, as well as of all Scripture, that it confutes it-But in fact this clause is self. secondary and subordinate to the general thought, which is that the priest himself must be human.

 $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ... $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ... $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ... $\pi\epsilon\rho$ . The revised text substitutes the third  $\pi\epsilon\rho$  for the  $i\pi\epsilon\rho$  of the received. It is the regular preposition for the sin-offering.

See, for example, Lev. xvi. 5. Psalm xl. 7. Rom. viii. 3.

kai  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$  iavroî] The reference is to the ceremonies of the day of Atonement. See Lev. xvi. throughout. 'This was the only occasion on which the high priest, as such, concurred with the congregation of Israel, gathered together as one whole, in a common acknowledgment both of a moral and legal need of Atonement.'

4.  $\kappa a i o i \chi$ ] Second condition. The first was a common humanity, the second is a divine appointment.

 $\tau \eta \nu \tau \iota \mu \eta \nu$ ] The honour attaching to the high priesthood. It is not necessary to depart from the common use of  $\tau \iota \mu \eta$  so as to make it mean the office. Perhaps we might render it the dignity, which combines the two ideas.

άλλα καλούμενος] Not to himself does a man take this dignity, but he takes it when called by God. For καλεῖν see Matt. iv. 21. Mark i. 20.

καθώσ $\pi$ ερ] Only here.

5. ovrws] Application to Christ of the two conditions of έαυτον έδόξασεν γενηθήναι ἀρχιερέα, ἀλλ' ό λαλήσας προς αὐτόν, Υἰός μου εἰ σύ, ἐγω priesthood. And first of the latter, the divine appointment.

ούχ ξαυτον ζδόξασεν] John viii. 54, ζαν ζγώ δοξάσω ξμαυτόν, ή δόξα μου ούδέν ζστιν ξστιν ό Πατήρ μου ό δοζάζων με. Also xiii. 32. xvii. 1, 5.

γενηθήναι] He took not to Himself the δόξα of becoming. Explanatory infinitive. 2 Cor. xi. 2. Rev. xvi. 9. &c.

άλλ' ο λαλήσας He who said, and who called Him to the priesthood by saying, Yiós µov  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Compare Acts xiii. 33, where St Paul quotes the same verse (Psalm ii. 7) in proof of the resurrection of Christ : avaστήσας Ίησοῦν (verse 34, ἐκ νεκρών) ώς καί...γέγραπται, Υίός μου εί σύ κ.τ.λ. This is rightly read as a Psalm for Easter Day. Compare also Rom. i. 4. The resurrection was the virtual investiture of Christ with the Priesthood. The exercise of it waited for the Ascension, which was to the Resurrection as the coronation is to the accession of a sovereign.

σήμερον] See note on i. 5.

6. καθώς καί] And this testimony accords with another.

ἐν ἐτέρφ] Elsewhere (namely in Psalm cx. 4). But ἑτέρφ is neuter, not masculine. See note on iv. 5, ἐν τούτφ.

τάξιν] Properly arranging, and so arrangement, order, position, rank, class, &c. Num. i. 52, παρεμβαλούσιν οι νιοι 'Ισραήλ, άνηρ έν τη αύτοῦ τάξει. Jud. v. 20, αστέρες έκ της τάξεως (Α, έκ τρίβων Β) αὐτῶν κ.τ.λ. Job xxxviii. 12. &c. Hab. iii. 11, και ή σελήνη έστη έν τη τάξει αὐτῆς. Luke i. 8, ἐν τῆ τάξει τής έφημερίας αύτου. I Cor. xiv. 40, κατά τάξιν γινέσθω. Col. ii. 5, βλέπων ύμων την τάξιν. Here, according to (on the scale of) the rank (or position) of Melchizedek.

7.  $\delta s \ \epsilon \nu$ ] This is practically the transition to the former of the two conditions of priesthood as satisfied in Christ, namely, the possession of a human nature. But, like other transitions of the Epistle, it is not formal but natural and almost casual in its introduction.

ταῖς ήμ. τ. σ. αὐτοῦ] Α phrase formed like those of Luke i. 23, aἰ ἡμέραι τῆς λειτουργίας αὐτοῦ. ii. 22. ix. 51, τὰς

σαρκός αύτοῦ, δεήσεις τε καὶ ἰκετηρίας πρός τὸν δυνάμενον σώζειν αὐτὸν ἐκ θανάτου μετὰ

ήμέρας τῆς ἀναλήμψεως αὐτοῦ. xvii. 26, ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τοῦ νἰοῦ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου. Acts v. 37. xxi. 26. &c. Somewhat characteristic (apparently) of St Luke, and, if so, one of the many links between him and the style of this Epistle.

τη̂s σαρκόs] Of His abode on earth in flesh. John i. 14, ό λόγος σὰρξ ἐγένετο. Rom. i. 3, τοῦ γενομένου ἐκ σπέρματος Δ. κατὰ σάρκα. viii. 3. ix. 5. Eph. ii. 15. Col. i. 22, ἐν τῷ σώματι τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ. 1 Tim. iii. 16, ἐφανερώθη ἐν σαρκί. Heb. x. 20, τοῦτ ἔστιν, τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ. 1 Pet. iii. 18. iv. 1. 1 John iv. 2, ἐν σαρκὶ ἐληλυθότα. 2 John 7, ἐρχόμενον ἐν σαρκί.

δεήσεις] For the plural see Luke ii. 37, νηστείαις καὶ δεήσεσιν. V. 33. I Tim. ii. I, δεήσεις, προσευχάς, εντεύξεις, εὐχαριστίας. 2 Tim. i. 3.

iκετηρίας] Originally a feminine adjective (with  $\dot{\rho}\dot{\alpha}\beta\delta\sigma$ s understood), the olive branch which was the badge of the suppliant, iκετηρία became afterwards a synonym of iκετεία, supplication. None of the cognates of iκέτης occur elsewhere in the New Testament. In the Septuagint they are frequent. Thus iκετηρία (as here, with δέησις), Job xl. 27 (B 22), λαλήσει δέ σοι δεήσεις καὶ iκετηρίας (A, δεήσει, ίκετηρία Β) μαλακώς ; Also ίκέτης, Mal. iii. 14, ἐπορεύθημεν ίκέται προ προσώπου Κυρίου παντοκράτορος. Ecclus. iv. 4. xxxvi. 17, εἰσάκουσον, Κύριε, δεήσεως τῶν ίκετῶν σου. And ἰκετεὖειν, Job xix. 17. Psalm xxxvii. 7. Wisd. xiii. 18. xix. 3. 2 Macc. xi. 6. Also iκετεία, Ecclus. xxxv. 14. li. 9. 2 Macc. iii. 18. viii. 29. xii. 42. And iκεσία, 2 Macc. x. 25.

προς τον δυνάμενον] Unto (addressed to) Him that was able to save Him out of death, and with reference to that ability. It is not a mere attribute of God, one out of many, but the appropriate one for the time and case. See xi. 19, λογισάμενος ότι και έκ νεκρών εγείρειν δυνατὸς ὁ Θεός.

σώζειν] See note on i. 14 (σωτηρίαν) for the two ideas of σώζειν, to preserve and to save.

σώζειν έκ] John xii. 27, σωσόν με έκ της ωρας ταύτης. James v. 20, σώσει ψυχήν έκ θανάτου. The meaning might be either to save out of a thing threatened, or to save out of a thing incurred. In the one case σώζειν έκ θανάτου would be to save from dying, in the other to raise from death. Either sense would be true as a divine attribute. The latter seems the higher and the more inclusive. He who can raise the κραυγής ίσχυρας καὶ δακρύων προσενέγκας καὶ 8 εἰσακουσθεὶς ἀπὸ τῆς εὐλαβείας, καίπερ ῶν υἰὸς dead can do all things. Mark xiv. 36, 'Αββά, ο πατήρ, πάντα δυνατά σοι· παρένεγκε το ποτήριον τοῦτο ἀπ' ἐμοῦ.

μετὰ κρ. ἰσχ. κ. δακρ.] An evident reference to the Agony, though neither of the two particulars is actually expressed in the Gospel record. Matt. xxvi. 37, 38, ἦρξατο λυπεῖσθα....περίλυπός ἐστιν ἡ ψυχή μου. Mark iv. 24, περίλυπός ἑστιν ἡ ψ. μ. Luke xxii. 44, καὶ γενόμενος ἐν ἀγωνία ἐκτενέστερον προσηύχετο καὶ ἐγένετο ὁ ἰδρώς αὐτοῦ ὡσεὶ θρόμβοι αἴματος καταβαίνοντες ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν.

κραυγής] A cry (1) of alarm, Matt. xxv. 6, κραυγή γέγονεν, 'Ιδού κ.τ.λ. (2) Of strife, Acts xxiii. 9. Eph. iv. 31. (3) Of anguish, here, and Rev. xxi. 4. Compare the κράζειν of Matt. xxvii. 50.

δακρύων] The only decisive mention of the tears of Christ is in John xi. 35. For in Luke xix. 41 the word used is  $\kappa \lambda a i \epsilon u v$ , of which the point is rather wailing than weeping, though both might be true.

προσενέγκας] The sacrificial word, as though the δεήσεις καὶ iκετηρίαι of the days of His flesh were a kind of anticipation of the future priestly mediation. For προσφέρειν see note on verse I. There is no instance, among the 25 uses of the word  $(\pi\rho\sigma\sigma-\phi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\nu)$  and  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\phi\rho\sigma$  in this Epistle, of any slighter or vaguer thought having place in it.

καὶ εἰσακουσ $\theta$ είς] The prayer was heard, listened to, that is, accepted, granted. This is always the force of eloakover in connexion with prayer. Matt. vi. 7. Luke i. 13, είσηκούσθη ή δέησίς σου. Acts x. 31. The prayer of Christ was not granted, if it was a prayer to be saved from dying. This should guide our interpretation of the prayer in Gethsemane, and its anticipation in John xii. 17. The prayer was not for deliverance from dying (which was the very purpose for which He came) but for relief from the horror of great darkness (Gen. xv. 12) which was upon Him in the conscious sin-bearing of Gethsemane and Calvary. He was heard, (1) in the appearance of the Angel from heaven strengthening Him (Luke xxii. 43); (2) in the support given Him through the agony and passion; (3) in the safe entrance of the soul into paradise; (4) in the quickening and resurrection. The primary reference of the passage to the Agony in Gethsemane cannot be doubted. But that particular conflict was only the crowning instance of others before it and of the final one following it.

έμαθεν ἀφ' ὦν ἕπαθεν τὴν ὑπακοήν, καὶ τελειωθεὶς 🧕

ἀπό] In consequence of, as the result of. Matt. xiv. 26, ἀπὸ τοῦ φόβου ἔκραξαν. xviii. 7, οὐαὶ τῷ κόσμῷ ἀπὸ τῶν σκανδάλων. Luke xix. 3, οὐκ ἠδύνατο ἀπὸ τοῦ ὅχλου. xxii. 45, κοιμωμένους ἀπὸ τῆς λύπης. xxiv. 41, ἀπὸ τῆς χαρῶς. John xxi. 6, ἀπὸ τοῦ πλήθους τῶν. ἰχθύων. Acts xx. 9, ἀπὸ τοῦ ὑπνου. xxii. 11, ἀπὸ τῆς δύξης τοῦ φωτὸς ἐκείνου.

 $\epsilon v \lambda a \beta \epsilon a s$  ] The idea of  $\epsilon v \lambda a$ - $\beta \eta$ 's is that of care in taking or grasping, and so (1) cautious, (2) scrupulous, (3) reverent, devout. Lev. xv. 31. Mic. vii. 2. Luke ii. 25, δίκαιος καὶ εὐλαβής. Acts ii. 5. viii. 2. xxii. 12 (revised text). Hence εὐλάβεια, here, and in xii. 28, µετà εύλα- $\beta \epsilon i \alpha s$  kai  $\delta \epsilon o v s$  (revised text). Josh. xxii. 24. Prov. xxviii. 14, μακάριος άνηρ ΰς καταπτήσσει πάντα δι' ευλάβειαν. Wisd. xvii. 8. The verb ειλαβείσθαι occurs (in the New Testament) only in xi. 7 of this Epistle, but very often in the Septuagint (more than 30 times, including the Apocrypha). Here the attribute of reverence or devoutness is given to Christ, and is even made the ground of His acceptance in prayer. So human.

8. viós Son. Not a son, as one of many. Yet not the Son, because the stress is to be laid upon the quality, not upon the personality. See note on i. 2, iv vi $\hat{\omega}$ .

έμαθεν] Not as though He had once been ignorant of it, but because it was a true discipline which developed it in action. The same thought lies in the γενόμενος ὑπήκοος of Phil. ii. 8.

 $\check{\epsilon}\mu a \theta \epsilon v \dots \check{\epsilon} \pi a \theta \epsilon v$ ] A classical antithesis.

την ὑπακοήν] Either (1) His obedience; that which all know to have been His; or (2) obedience universal, all obedience. The latter perhaps is best.

υπακοήν] Properly submissive hearing. Rom. v. 19, Sia τής υπακοής του ένός. Phil. ii. 8, εταπείνωσεν εαυτόν, γενόμενος ύπήκοος μέχρι θανάτου κ.τ.λ. And for the thought, John v. 30, καθώς ακούω κρίνω. viii. 26, 29, α ήκουσα παρ' αυτού, ταῦτα λαλῶ...τὰ ἀρεστὰ αὐτῷ ποιώ πάντοτε. &c. &c. In the Septuagint unakon occurs only in 2 Sam. xxii. 36. In the New Testament it occurs eleven times in St Paul (Rom. seven times, 2 Cor. three, Philem. once), three times in I Pet. For the contrast between  $\sqrt{\pi}a\kappa on$ and  $\pi a \rho a \kappa o \eta$ , see note on ii. 2, παράβασις καὶ παρακοή.

9. τελειωθείς] See note on ii. 10, τελειώσαι. Consum ἐγένετο πᾶσιν τοῖς ὑπακούουσιν αὐτῷ αἴτιος mated. Perfectly qualified for the office undertaken.

τοῖς ὑπακ.] Who habitually obey Him. A brief description of Christians. See ὑπακοὴ above. His obedience to the Father, theirs to Him.

airios] The personal cause of. An adjective, answering the purpose of a masculine of the substantive airia. Not elsewhere in the New Testament. In the Septuagint 1 Sam. xxii. 22. And four times in the Apocrypha.

σωτηρίας] See note on ii. 3. alwríou] See note on i. 8, είς τον alŵra τοῦ alŵros.

10. προσαγορευθείς] This clause is appended in explanation of the air.  $\sigma$ . alwriov. It is as the Melchizedek Priest that He saves. The word  $(\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\alpha\gamma.)$ only here in the New Testa- $\mathbf{In}$ the Septuagint, ment. Deut. xxiii. 6, ου προσαγορεύσεις εἰρηνικὰ αὐτοῖς. Wisd. xiv. 1 Macc. xiv. 22 (B 40), 22. προσηγόρευνται Ιουδαίοι υπό 'Ρωμαίων φίλοι καὶ σύμμαχοι καὶ άδελφοί. 2 Macc. i. 36. iv. 7. x. 9. xiv. 37, ката тру сочоши πατήρ των Ιουδαίων προσαγορευόμενος. To address or accost as, especially in public (ἀγορεύειν from ἀγορά). The aorist here expresses one solemn utterance of divine recognition in this new character, whether at the time of the prophecy of Psalm cx. or at the moment of its fulfilment in Resurrection and Ascension.

11. Περὶ οῦ] Concerning whom; that is, concerning Christ as Melchizedek Priest.

πολὺς ἡμῖν] Literally, our intended speech (discourse) is large (copious), and mysterious to speak (utter), for the reason which follows. For πολὺς here compare Acts xv. 32, διὰ λόγου πολλοῦ. xx. 2, λόγψ πολλῷ.

δυσερμήνευτος] Difficult of interpretation. Formed like δυσβάστακτος (Luke xi. 46) and δυσνόητος (2 Pet. iii. 16). Not used elsewhere in the Septuagint or the New Testament. But έρμηνεύειν Ezra iv. 7. John i. 42. ix. 7. Heb. vii. 2. (Oftener μεθερμην. and διερμην.) Also έρμηνεία Ecclus. Prologue and xlvii. 17. I Cor. xii. 10. xiv. 26. And έρμηνευτής Gen. xlii. 23. καὶ γὰρ ὀφείλοντες εἶναι διδάσκαλοι διὰ τὸν 12 χρόνον πάλιν χρείαν ἔχετε τοῦ διδάσκειν ὑμῶς νωθροί] Dull, sluggish. Also vi. 12. Not elsewhere in the New Testament. But in the Septuagint in Prov. xxii. 29. Ecclus. iv. 29, μη γίνου ταχύς (Α, τραχύς Β) έν γλώσση σου, καί νωθρός καί παρειμένος έν τοις έργοις σου. Χί. 12, έστι νωθρός [καί] προσδεόμενος αντιλήψεως, ύστερών Ισχύϊ, και πτωχεία περισσεύει. Also νωθροκάρδιοs in Prov. xii. 8. Probably derived (and  $\nu\omega\theta\eta$ 's also) from the Homeric δθομαι, to regard (our aλεγίζει, ουδ' δθεται).

 $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i$  This clause obviously belongs only to  $\delta v \sigma \epsilon \rho \mu$ .  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \epsilon i v$ , not to  $\pi o \lambda v \hat{v}$  also.

ταîs ἀκοaîs] Literally, in (as to) your ears. Mark vii. 35, ηνοίγησαν αὐτοῦ aἱ ἀκοaί.

12.  $\kappa ai \gamma a \rho$ ] For even. It is even the case that, &c. It has come to this, that, &c. The  $\kappa a i$ prefaces and prepares for a strong and startling statement. Compare Mark x. 45. Rom. xv. 3. 2 Cor. v. 4. &c. A close examination will always find either an also or an even in  $\kappa a i \gamma a \rho$ .

οφείλοντες] When (or though) you ought.

δια τον χρόνον] Because of the lapse of time since you became V. H. Christians.

xpeiar exerc] The phrase χρείαν έχειν is properly followed by a genitive, as here, and in verse 12, and x. 36. Sometimes by an infinitive (without  $\tau o \hat{v}$ ), as Matt. iii. 14 ( $\beta a \pi \tau i \sigma \theta \hat{\eta} v a i$ ). xiv. 16. John xiii. 10. I Thess. i. 8. iv. o. v. I. Sometimes by iva, as John xvi. 30. I John ii. 27, ου χρείαν έχετε ίνα τις διδάσκη υμάς. Sometimes it stands absolutely, as Mark ii. 25. Acts ii. 45. iv. 35. I Cor. xii. 24. Eph. iv. 28. 1 John iii. 17.

του διδάσκειν υμας] The construction depends upon the alternative accentuation of the τινα (τινά or τίνα). If τινά, it is the accusative before διδάσκειν, which will then have two accusatives after it: ye have need of some one's teaching you the rudiments, &c. For this διδάσκαν τινά τι, compare Mark vi. 34. John xiv. 26. Acts xxi. 21. If  $\tau$ iva, it is, ye have need of the teaching you what are the rudi-It is then like ments &cc. (though with the addition here of  $\tau o \hat{v}$  before the infinitive) I Thess. iv. 9, ου χρείαν έχετε γράφειν υμίν (with no accusative expressed before ypápeiv, as here none before διδάσκειν). In I Thess. v. I the active γράφειν is replaced by the passive ypatà otoixeîa] Derived from στοίχος (a row), it seems to suggest as its first meaning the members of a στοίχος, the elements which compose it, and so (as its readiest illustration) the letters of the alphabet. More elaborate accounts of it have been given, but this seems adequately to explain its two scriptural senses, which are (1) the rudiments of learning, and (2) the elements of nature. Of the former application we have examples in Gal. iv. 3, 9, and in Col. ii. 8, 20, where the ceremonial law is described (with the addition of TOU KOTHOU in three of the four places) as a rudimentary system using the material world as its instrument of instruction. The latter sense, that of the natural elements (earth, air, fire, water), is found in Wisd. vii. 17, eidévai σύστασιν κόσμου καὶ ἐνέργειαν 2 Pet. iii. 10, 12, στοιχείων. στοιχεία δε καυσούμενα λυθήσεται...στοιχεία καυσούμενα τήκε- $\tau a \iota$ . In the present instance the former is clearly the meaning, the rudiments, the alphabet, of Christian doctrine.

 $\tau \hat{\eta} s \, \hat{a} \rho \chi \hat{\eta} s$ ] May either (1) be attached to ta otoixeia, the rudiments belonging to the beginning, the initial rudiments. upon which combined phrase τών λογίων hangs; or (2) be taken as the substantial genitive on which  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$   $\lambda o \gamma i \omega \nu$  is suspended, in the sense of the beginning (first principles) of the loyia. The same question will arise upon v. 1, tor τής αρχής του Χριστού λόγον, which also might bear either interpretation; the initial doctrine of Christ, or the doctrine of the beginning (first principles) of Christ. The Revised Version prefers the latter. But the phrase the beginning of Christ seems to want the help of some parallel use of  $d\rho\chi\eta$ . In the absence of this the former construction appears to be preferable.

λογίων] Řom. iii. 2, ἐπιστεύθησαν τὰ λόγια τοῦ Θεοῦ. Num. xxiv. 4, 16, φησὶν ἀκούων λόγια Θεοῦ. Psalm xii. 7, τὰ λόγια Κυρίου λόγια ἁγνά. cxix. 103. Acts vii. 38. I Pet. iv. 11. The term λόγια is used also of human words. Psalm xix. 15, καὶ ἔσονται εἰς εὐδοκίαν τὰ λόγια τοῦ στόματός μου κ.τ.λ.

γάλακτος κ.τ.λ.] For the metaphor, compare 1 Cor. iii. 2,

13.  $\pi \hat{a}_s \gamma \hat{a}_\rho$  Reason for hesitation in entering upon the new topic. The λόγος is δυσερμήνευtos to persons in your condition, for those who require milk for their sustenance are in that infantine state which is  $d\pi \epsilon cost$ λόγου δικαιοσύνης. There is a little blending of the figure and the thing signified by it-that is, of the natural and the spiritual infancy-in the introduction of the words  $a\pi\epsilon i\rho os \lambda$ . S. where they occur. They compel us to understand the  $\mu\epsilon\tau$ . yal. more or less metaphorically.

äneipos] Without experience of. The word is used only here in the New Testament. In the Septuagint it occurs three times. Jer. ii. 6, ir  $\gamma \hat{\eta}$  à bar wai à neipoy (endless, limitless). Zech. xi. 15, noupéros à neipov (inexperienced, ignorant). Wisd. xiii. 18, ròv à neipórarov (most helpless). In the Septuagint it is always used absolutely, without a genitive.

λόγου δικ.] The absence of the article lays the stress on the quality. Such a thing as a λόγος δικαιοσύνης. The phrase is like that of I Cor. xii. 8, λόγος σοφίας...λόγος γνώσεως. 2 Cor. vi. 7, ἐν λόγω ἀληθείας. Phil. ii. 16, λόγον ζωῆς. I Thess. ii. 5,  $\epsilon \nu \lambda \delta \gamma \psi \kappa \delta \lambda a \kappa \epsilon i a s.$  James i. 18,  $\lambda \delta \gamma \psi a \lambda \eta \theta \epsilon i a s.$  Speech, discourse, doctrine, having as its eharacteristic feature righteousness, Christian holiness in relation to God and man. For  $\delta \iota$ καιοσύνη in this broad general sense compare Rom. vi. 13, 16, 18, 19. 2 Cor. vi. 7, 14. Eph. iv. 24. v. 9. vi. 14. Phil. i. 11. 1 Tim. vi. 11. &c. νήπιος] Ι Cor. iii. Ι, ώς νηπίοις ἐν Χριστῷ.

14.  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon (\omega \nu \ \delta \epsilon]$  In verse 13 the spiritual infancy predominated, here the natural. The two are inextricably blended.

τελείων] Mature. The opposite of νήπιος. Eph. iv. 13, 14, εἰς ἄνδρα τέλειον...ἶνα μηκέτι ῶμεν νήπιοι. Ι Cor. xiii. 10, 11, ὅταν δὲ ἔλθη τὸ τέλειον...ὅτε ἡμην νήπιος κ.τ.λ. xiv. 20, μὴ παιδία γίνεσθε ταῖς φρεσίν, ἀλλὰ τῆ κακία νηπιάζετε, ταῖς δὲ φρεσὶν τέλειοι γίνεσθε.

ή στερεά τρ.] Either (1) the στερεάς τροφής (without the article) of verse 12 is here taken up with the article. That στ. τρ. Or (2) the article may be generic. All στ. τρ.

 $\xi w$ ] Habit. The result of practice. The word occurs only here in the New Testament. In the Septuagint it seems to be used (sometimes if not al-

In the Septuagint, 2 Macc. x. 15 (only).

διάκρισιν] Discrimination. Rom. xiv. 1, μη εἰς διακρίσεις διαλογισμῶν. 1 Cor. xii. 10, ἀλλφ δὲ διακρίσεις πνευμάτων. In the Septuagint, Job xxxvii. 16 (only). For διακρίνειν, see Matt. xvi. 3, τὸ μὲν πρόσωπον τοῦ οὐρανοῦ γινώσκετε διακρίνειν. Also Job xii. 11, οὖς μὲν γὰρ ῥήματα διακρίνει, λάρυγξ δὲ σῖτα γεύεται [ἑαυτῷ].

καλοῦ τε καὶ κακοῦ] Gen. ii. 9, καλὸν εἰς βρῶσιν...καὶ τὸ ξύλον τοῦ εἰδέναι γνωστὸν καλοῦ καὶ πονηροῦ. iii. 6 (7 B), καλὸν τὸ ξύλον εἰς βρῶσιν...2 Sam. xix. 35, μὴ (A, εἰ μὴν B) γνώσομαι ἀναμέσον ἀγαθοῦ καὶ κακοῦ; Isai. vii. 16, πρὶν ἢ γνῶναι τὸ παιδίον ἀγαθὸν ἢ κακόν. The primary idea of the text is the physical, for which ἀγαθὸν and καλόν, κακόν and πονηρόν, seem (from the above passages) to be used indiscriminately. And the word  $al\sigma \theta \eta \tau \eta \rho \mu a$  seems decisive in favour of this interpretation.

VI. 1.  $\Delta \omega$  Wherefore. Considering the shamefulness of such backwardness.

àφέντες] Letting go. Leaving alone. Not in the sense of forgetting or discarding, but in that of taking for granted, presupposing, and rising from these to higher attainments.

τον της άρχης τ. Χ.  $\lambda$ .] See note on v. 12. The initial (elementary) word (doctrine) of Christ.

την τελ.] The article either (1) refers to the τελείων of v. 14, that τελειώτης which has been implied in the mention of τέλειοι above. Or (2) it is generic. All τελειώτης.

τελειότητα] Maturity. Ripeness of age in Christ. The noun occurs only here and in Col. iii. 14. See note on v. 14, τελείων.

φερώμεθα] Let us be borne along. The idea is that of (1) impulse, (2) impetuosity. Movement under a motive power. Acts ii. 2. Heb. ix. 16. 2 Pet. i. 21, ὑπὸ πνεύματος ἁγίου φερόμενοι ἐλάλησαν ἀπὸ Θεοῦ ἄνθρωποι. The question arises, whether (1) the author speaks here, using the plural of authorship, and proposing a thesis for treatment in an opening section; or (2) the man, identifying himself with his fellow Christians, and animating himself and them to a higher attainment in Christian knowledge and life. The former view appears to be that of the Revised Version, which evidently regards λόγον as *dis*course, not doctrine (perhaps on the strength of v. 11, ο λόγος), and renders it, let us cease to speak of, &c. But this seems far less touching and beautiful than the alternative, and less suitable to the grave passage which follows in verse 4 as the reason for the  $\phi \epsilon \rho \omega \mu \epsilon \theta a$ . There may well, however, be so much of the other thought, in combination with this, as that the writer hopes to aid them in the higher attainment by his proposed teaching, and says, Let us press on together in this course, I in my place and you in yours; I teaching and leading, you learning and following.

 $\mu\eta \pi \alpha \lambda \nu$ ] Not laying again and again a foundation, composed of elementary particulars of Christian doctrine such as these six which follow.

 $\theta \epsilon \mu \epsilon \lambda \iota o \nu$ ] See 1 Cor. iii. 10-12. There the foundation is described as a single unit, Jesus Christ Himself. Here, the point of view being different, a few separate elements of fundamental doctrine are enumerated, as specimens doubtless of many. For  $\theta \in \mu \in \lambda_{105}$  as a masculine in the singular, see the passage just referred to  $(a\lambda) o \cdots \tau o \nu$ Keiµevov). Also 2 Tim. ii. 19, o μέντοι στερεός θεμέλιος κ. τ. λ. Rev. xxi. 19, 20, δ θεμέλιος δ  $\pi\rho\omega\tau$ os  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . The other passages are indecisive as to the gender in the singular, and both genders are found in the plural:  $\theta \in \mu \in \lambda$ in Heb. xi. 10 and Rev. xxi. 14, 19:  $\theta \epsilon \mu \epsilon \lambda \iota a \operatorname{Acts xvi}$ . 26. In the Septuagint the masculine only seems to be used in the singular, and the neuter to preponderate greatly in the plural.

καταβαλλόμενοι] The middle voice of καταβάλλειν is found only here in the New Testament. Compare 2 Macc. ii. 13, καταβαλλόμενος (founding) βιβλιοθήκην. v. 6. Depositing for ourselves (as if low down in the ground). Plato, &c., are quoted for this use.

 $\mu\epsilon\tau avoias a\pi \delta$  Six elementary points follow, forming three pairs. Repentance and faith are naturally the first two.

 $\mu$ eravoías] An after-thought, a changed state of mind. The word is formed like  $\epsilon$ vvoia (iv. 12). Here (with  $a\pi o$ ) it expressly refers to a former state.

2 έργων και πίστεως έπι Θεόν, βαπτισμών διδαχής

vi. 2. Or διδαχη.

And so the verb, with ἀπὸ (Acts viii. 22, μετανόησον οῦν ἀπὸ τῆς κακίας σου ταύτης), οτ ἐκ (Rev. ii. 21, 22, οὐ θέλει μετανοῆσαι ἐκ τῆς πορνείας αὐτῆς κ.τ.λ. ix. 20, 21, ἐκ τῶν ἔργων ...ἐκ τῶν φόνων κ.τ.λ. xvi. 11), or ἐπὶ (2 Cor. xii. 12, ἐπὶ τỹ ἀκαθαρσία κ.τ.λ.). Elsewhere with εἰς τὸν Θεόν (Acts xx. 21).

νεκρών] Dead, lifeless, because destitute of the true life towards, from, and in God. So ix. 14, καθαριεί την συνείδησιν ύμων από νεκρών έργων εἰς τὸ λατρεύειν Θεῷ ζώντι.

πίστεως] Soul's sight. Realization of the invisible (xi. 1). Specially, Christian conviction, apprehension of things and persons revealed by and in Christ. With a genitive, Mark xi. 22, έχετε πίστιν Θεοῦ. Acts iii. 16. Rom. iii. 22, 26, δια πίστεως Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ...τὸν ἐκ πίστεως Ίησοῦ. Gal. ii. 16, 20. iii. 22. Eph. iii. 12. Phil. iii. James ii. 1. Rev. xiv. 12. Or with els, Acts xx. 21, The eis Θεόν μετάνοιαν καί πίστιν εis τον Κύριον ήμων Ίησουν. xxiv. 24. xxvi. 18. Col. ii. 5. Or with  $\pi \rho \circ s$ , I Thess. i. 8,  $\eta \pi \circ \sigma$ τις υμών ή πρός τόν Θεόν. Or with ev, I Tim. iii. 13, ev πίστει τη έν Χριστώ Ίησου. Or with  $\epsilon \pi i$  and an accusative, as here. The verb ( $\pi\iota\sigma\tau\epsilon\dot{\nu}\epsilon\iota\nu$ ) with  $\epsilon\dot{\tau}\iota$ and an accusative is more common than the noun ( $\pi i \sigma \tau \iota s$ ). See Acts ix. 42,  $\epsilon \pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon \upsilon \sigma a \nu$  $\pi \sigma \lambda \lambda o i \epsilon \pi i \tau o \nu K \nu \rho \iota o \nu$ . Xi. 17. xvi. 31. xxii. 19. Rom. iv. 5, 24. Each construction enumerated above has its point of difference. The simple genitive is the least marked, realization of. With  $\epsilon l s$ , the thought is that of union; with  $\pi \rho o s$ , that of relation; with  $\epsilon \nu$ , that of rest; with  $\epsilon \pi i$ , that of direction.

2. βαπτισμών διδαχής] In construction διδαχής precedes βαπτισμών. We have here the first member of a second pair of fundamental truths. Doctrine (instruction) of (concerning)  $\beta a \pi \tau i \sigma \mu o i$ . The form  $\beta a \pi$ - $\tau_{i\sigma\mu a}$  is the regular one for the distinctive ordinance of baptism, whether that of John (Matthew, Mark, Luke, Acts) or of Christ (Rom. vi. 4. Eph. iv. 5. 1 Pet. iii. 21). In Col. ii. 12 the reading varies between  $\beta a \pi \tau i \sigma \mu \hat{\varphi}$  and  $\beta a \pi \tau i \sigma$ -The masculine form µatı. (always in the plural) is found only here and ix. 10 (Suapópois Bantiopois) and Mark vii. 4, where it is expressly applied to the Jewish ceremonious washings of vessels and tables. (Neither form occurs in the Septuagint.) It cannot be regarded here as synonymous with the rite of baptism. though from its position as one of the foundation truths of the Gospel we might be inclined so to understand it. The doctrine of washings seems rather to point to the typical ablutions of all kinds preserved by the ceremonial law, and to their intended testimony to the defilement of fallen nature and its purification by the blood of Christ. This seems better than to explain the peculiar form and the plural number by bringing in other baptisms, such as that of Jewish proselytes, or that of the Baptist, of which the former was of human institution and the latter temporary in its in-The  $\delta_i \delta_a \chi \eta$  of types tention. was no inappropriate part of the elementary instruction of Hebrew Christians, whether in its reference to atonement or to sanctification.

έπιθέσεώς τε χ.] If the above interpretation of the διδαχή βαπτισμῶν is correct, it may be well to keep that clause distinct and separate, and so to make έπιθέσεως depend not upon διδαχής but upon θεμέλιον. (This however is doubtful, and not of much importance.) Of the ἐπίθεσις χειρῶν, not as an act of blessing (Matt. xix. 15. &c.), and not as a preliminary to healing (Matt. ix. 18. Acts xxviii. 8. &c.), but as a Christian ordinance, there are two kinds. The one is ordination (Acts vi. 6. 1 Tim. iv. 14. v. 22. 2 Tim. i. 6), the other that sequel and complement of baptism of which we have examples in Acts viii. 17, &c. and xix. 6. To this last the text refers. It is made one of the rudimentary truths of Christianity, doubtless with reference to that communication of the Holy Spirit, testified in the early Church by supernatural gifts, which shared with the forgiveness of sins the foremost place in the new Gospel (Acts ii. 38). Of this ordinance confirmation is either the continuation or the imitation. Why not the former? Miraculous gifts were never the chief part of the spiritual endowment (1 Cor. xiii. 1, 2). Supernatural grace is as necessary and as real now. Infant Baptism, when it became the rule of the Church, made a spiritual coming of age indispensable. It is significant that the outward rite, the  $\epsilon \pi i \theta \epsilon \sigma i s$  $\chi \epsilon \omega \tilde{\nu}$ , is the same in confirmation and in ordination. Confirmation too is a gift of ministry, though it be only in lay offices, or in very humble offices, in the Church which is Christ's body. We have thus, in the second pair of foundation truths, virtually the two all-important doctrines of Atonement and of the Spirit, and the apparent inferiority of this pair to the preceding and the following is exchanged for an absolute equality. And if there might seem at first sight to be something casual or arbitrary in the choice of these six fundamentals, that view has disappeared in the examination of them. Repentance and Faith—Atonement and the Spirit—Resurrection and Judgment—what could have been added of equal dignity ?

avaorásews re] Like the rest of the list this clause depends upon  $\theta \epsilon \mu \epsilon \lambda i o v$ . The absence of articles gives the whole the character of a catalogue. The phrase avaoraois νεκρών (without articles) occurs in Acts xvii. 32. xxiii. 6. xxiv. 21. 1 Cor. xv. 12, &c. In Acts xxiv. 15 it is expanded into έλπίδα έχων είς τον Θεον...ανάστασιν μέλλειν έσεσθαι δικαίων τε και αδίκων. In John v. 29 it is distributed into an avaoraous ζωής and an avaστασις κρίσεως.

καὶ κρίματος] We might have expected κρίσεως. But see John ix. 39, εἰς κρίμα ἐγώ... ηλθον. Acts xxiv. 25, καὶ τοῦ κρίματος τοῦ μέλλοντος. The difference is that between trial and sentence. See ix. 27, ẳπαξ ἀποθανεῖν, μετὰ δὲ τοῦτο κρίσις.

aiwriou] See v. 9, and note on i. 8. When the subject is (as here) a world beyond death, we can know nothing of limitations save what Scripture may tell.

3. καὶ τοῦτο ποιήσομεν] We will execute this purpose—of rising to a higher height of Christian attainment—you and I together.

ἐάνπερ ἐπιτρέπῃ ὁ Θεός] A reverent recognition of the difficulty of the task undertaken. Compare I Cor. xvi. 7, ἐἀν ὅ Κύριος ἐπιτρέψῃ (revised text). There the permission is spoken of as a single act, here as continuous. Compare James iv. 15, ἐἀν ὁ Κύριος θελήσῃ.

4. αδύνατον γάρ] Reason for pressing forward. Backwardness is of the genus of apostasy, and apostasy is the sin unto There is some difficulty death. in arranging the five participial clauses which follow. They are all included in the  $\tau o \dot{v} s$ . But are they five separate clauses, or are some of them combined first and then appended? It seems best to combine the words from the former yevorapévous to alŵros inclusive, and to attach them by the former  $\tau \epsilon$  (and) to anaf  $\phi \omega \tau i \sigma \theta \epsilon v \tau as$ , thus making the members of the whole phrase three instead of five in number. Thus: roùs (1) anag

φωτισθέντας, γευσαμένους τε της δωρεάς της

φωτισθέντας, (2) γευσαμένους τε ...καί γενηθέντας...και γευσαμένους, (3) και παραπεσόντας. This differs (1) from the text of the Revised Version in detaching γευσαμένους τε from φωτισθέντας and attaching it to what follows; (2) from the margin of the Revised Version (which it otherwise resembles) in rendering the former  $\tau \epsilon$  and instead of Compare 1 Cor. i. 30, os both. έγενήθη ήμιν σοφία από Θεοῦ, δικαιοσύνη τε και άγιασμός και απολύτρωσις. There also the margin of the Revised Version makes  $\tau \epsilon$  both instead of and, and introduces into its text a further unnecessary complication. It is simpler and better to begin by combining the three nouns (δικαιοσύνη, άγιασμος, ά- $\pi o \lambda \upsilon \tau \rho \omega \sigma \iota s$ ) with each other, and then to append them (thus combined) by the particle  $\tau\epsilon$ (and) to the oropia above. A doubt will sometimes suggest itself whether, after all, such a particularity may not be hypercriticism, and whether the Authorized Version may not have done wisely in reading all the clauses (in both passages) as consecutive and separate.

as semel from quondam. The place where it is most difficult to preserve its proper sense is Jude 5 ( $\epsilon i \delta \delta \tau a s \pi a \xi \pi a \tau a$ ), which however the Revised Version rightly renders, though ye know all things once for all. (Like I John ii. 20,  $\chi \rho \tilde{i} \sigma \mu a$  $\xi \chi \epsilon \tau \epsilon a \pi \delta \tau o \tilde{v} a \gamma (ov, \kappa a) o \delta a \tau \epsilon \pi a \tau a$ .)

φωτισθέντας The verb  $\phi \omega \tau i \zeta \epsilon \iota \nu$  is used with (1) things, and (2) persons. (1) To light up, to bring to light; as I Cor. iv. 5, τὰ κρυπτὰ τοῦ σκότους. 2 Tim. i. 10, ζωήν και αφθαρσίαν. Rev. xviii. 1. &c. (2) To enlighten or illuminate; as Luke xi. 36. John i. 9, πάντα ανθρωπον. Eph. i. 18. iii. o. Here, and in x. 32 (pwriothévres), it is applied to that first great illumination which is the believing reception of Christ.

 $\tau \eta s \delta$ .  $\tau \eta s \epsilon \pi o v \rho$ .] At first sight we might understand this of the Holy Spirit. See John iv. 10 (comparing vii. 37-39). Acts ii. 38, την δωρεάν του άγίου πνεύματος. viii. 20. x. 45. xi. But the express mention 17. of the Holy Spirit in the next clause forbids this. We must take it as expressing the great all-including gift of redemption itself (John iii. 16). Compare Rom. iii. 15-17, 1 xápis rov Θεοῦ καὶ ή δωρεα...τὸ δώρημα... τής χάριτος καὶ τής δωρεάς τής μετόχους] See note on i. 9. γενηθέντας] That is, when you first believed and were baptized.

πνεύματος άγίου] See note on ii. 4.

5. καί καλόν γευσ.] Here  $\gamma \epsilon \dot{\nu} \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  has the accusative : in verse 4 it had its usual genitive. The two constructions seem to be equally used in the Septuagint. Thus Job xii. 11, λάρυγξ δε σίτα γεύεται. xxxiv. 3, λάρυγξ γεύεται βρώσιν. Ecclus. ΧΧΧΥΙ. 19, φάρυγξ γεύσεται βρώματα θήρας. But in the New Testament the accusative is found only here and in John ii. 9, εγεύσατο ό αρχιτρίκλινος το ύδωρ οίνον γεγενημένον (tasted the water as having become wine; tasted that the water had become wine). Such a writer as the author of this Epistle would scarcely have repeated the word, and at the same time varied the construction, in two contiguous verses, without a reason, and the place of kalov suggests it. The sense is, and tasted @coû δήμα as καλόν, or, tasted that the word of God is good, or, tasted the goodness of the word of God.

It is in fact equivalent to γευσαμένους ὅτι καλόν ἐστιν. See I Pet. ii. 3 (from Psalm xxxiv. 8), είπερ ἐγεύσασθε ὅτι χρηστὸς ὁ Κύριος.

Θεοῦ ἡῆμα] Without the article. Such a thing as. The stress lies upon the quality. The ἡῆμα is, however, the Gospel. See note on Rom. x. 8, ἐγγύς σου τὸ ἡῆμά ἐστιν...τοῦτ ἔστιν, τὸ ḥῆμα τῆς πίστεως ὅ κηρύσσομεν. Eph. v. 26, ἐν ḥήματι. vi. 17, τὴν μάχαιραν τοῦ πνεύματος, ὅ ἐστιν ḥῆμα Θεοῦ. 1 Pet. i. 25, τοῦτο δέ ἐστιν τὸ ḥῆμα τὸ εὐαγγελισθὲν εἰς ὑμᾶς.

δυνάμεις τε] Evidently depending upon γευσαμένους, and still accusative. Is it that the καλον still accompanies the γευσαμένους, as though to say, and tasted the goodness of the δυνάμεις? Or is it only that it would have been stiff and awkward to change back to the genitive? The former explanation seems the right one: καλας γευσαμένους (that is, ὅτι καλαί είσαν).

 $\mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega \tau \sigma s$  alwos] Powers of (belonging to) a future alw, but capable of imparting their glory and beauty (see last note) to dwellers in the present. The  $\mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega \nu$  alw is the  $\delta$  alw  $\epsilon \kappa \epsilon i \nu \sigma s$ (in contrast with  $\delta$  alw  $\delta \nu \sigma \sigma \sigma \sigma$  of

It is the Messianic age (see note on i. 2, τῶν ἡμερῶν τούτων) which, though nominally and doctrinally begun with the first Advent (as completed on the day of Pentecost), is still practically postponed till the second The aiw is still  $\mu \epsilon \lambda$ -Advent.  $\lambda \omega v$ , but it projects its  $\delta v v \dot{a} \mu \epsilon s$ upon the believing inmates of These Surápers the present. were once, in part at least, miraculous gifts (see ii. 4, ποικί- $\lambda_{\alpha is} \delta_{\nu \nu \alpha} (\mu \epsilon \sigma_{i \nu})$ , but their higher manifestation, even then, was in spiritual graces and therefore the yeverbau is still applicable.

6. καὶ παραπεσόντας] This brief clause bears the whole weight of the terrible contrast between the past state (with its many gracious particulars) and the lapse from it. All these experiences of grace—and all forfeited.

the Septuagint it is often used by Ezekiel, generally in combination with its cognate noun παράπτωμα, as in xiv. 3. xv. 8. xviii. 24, έν τῷ παραπτώματι αύτου ψ παρέπεσε...αποθανείται (where the last word gives to the  $\pi a \rho a \pi i \pi \tau \epsilon i \nu$  the emphasis of the passage before us). xx. 27. xxii. 4. The substantive παράπτωμα, a fall beside (the way), is St Paul's word for (1) the fall of man in Rom. v. 15, 17, 18, τῷ τοῦ ἐνὸς παραπτώματι ο θάνατος έβασίλευσεν δια τοῦ ἐνὸς κ.τ.λ. (2) the national fall of Israel in Rom. xi. II, 12. Elsewhere its use is more general, as in Matt. vi. 14. Rom. iv. 25. 2 Cor. v. 19. Gal. vi. 1. Eph. i. 7. ii. 1, 5. Col. ii. 13. &c. The context points to the actual sin of apostasy as the meaning of the text. Thus it corresponds with the unpardonable sin in its application to disciples in Luke xii. 10, 1 John v. 16, and Heb. x. 29. It is the final throwing away of grace, not any one sin of exceptional heinousness, which is the subject of all these passages. The other form of the unpardonable sin is that of obstinately resisting the evidences of the Gospel as borne by the Holy Spirit in Christ and His Church (Matt. xii. 31, 32. Mark iii. 29).

 $\pi$ άλιν] Again. They had έαυτοῖς τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ παραδειγματίζον-7 τας. γῆ γὰρ ἡ πιοῦσα τὸν ἐπ' αὐτῆς ἐρχόμενον πολλάκις ὑετόν, καὶ τίκτουσα βοτάνην εὕθετον been renewed once when they became Christians.

άνακαινίζειν] Only here in the New Testament. (Elsewhere άνακαινοῦν is the form of the verb. 2 Cor. iv. 16. Col. iii. 10.) In the Septuagint it occurs in Psalm xxxix. 2. ciii. 5. civ. 30, ἀνακαινιεῖς τὸ πρόσωπον τῆς γῆς. Lam. v. 21. I Macc. vi. 9.

avaoravpovras] Added in aggravation of the guilt of apostasy. Crucifying as they do, &c. The apostate Christian treats Christ as an impostor. and joins those who said (John xix. 7), οφείλει αποθανείν, ότι υίον Θεού έαυτον εποίησεν. The word avagravpour occurs nowhere else in the New Testament or the Septuagint. In classical use it means simply to crucify (ava in the sense of  $u_p$ ). But since oraupour is constantly used in the New Testament for the act of crucifying, the compound with ava may well have the further sense of crucifying again or afresh, a well-known use of ava in composition.

čavroîs] To (or for) themselves. The thought is that of wilfulness rather than of detriment. Rom. xiii. 2, čavroîs κρίμα λήμψονται.  $\tau \partial r v \partial r \tau$ . (0.] The august title marks the heinousness of the treatment.

παραδειγμ.] Only here in the New Testament. (Matt. i. 19, δειγματίσαι, revised text.) In the Septuagint, Num. xxv. 4, παραδειγμάτισον αὐτοὺς τῷ Κυρίφ κατέναντι τοῦ ἡλίου. Jer. xiii. 22. Ezek. xxviii. 17. To make an example of, to put to open shame. (Jude 7, πρόκεινται δεῖγμα.)

7.  $\gamma \hat{\eta} \gamma \hat{\alpha} \rho$ ] It is in grace as it is in nature. Opportunity lost, beneficent influence thrown away, is irrecoverable. Impossible to renew them again—for, dc. They are like land upon which rain has fallen with no response of fertility, and which now must be given up to its barrenness.

 $\gamma \hat{\eta}$ ] Land, ground. Luke xiii. 7, iva tí kai thr  $\gamma \hat{\eta} v$  katap- $\gamma \hat{\epsilon}_i$ ; &c.

πιοῦσα] Deut. xi. 11, ή δὲ γῆ εἰs ην [συ] εἰσπορεύη...ἐκ τοῦ ὑετοῦ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ πίεται ὕδωρ. The aorist sums up the past receiving of rain into a single act, and then the present (τίκτουσα) expresses its continuous consequence.

ύετόν] Acts xiv. 17, οὐρανόθεν ὑμῶν ὑετοὺς διδοὺς καὶ καιροὺς καρποφόρους.

βοτάνην] Only here in the New Testament. See Gen. i. 11, 12, βλαστησάτω ή γη βοτάνην χόρτου κ.τ.λ. Exod. x. 12, 15. &c.

εύθετον] Properly, wellplaced; and so, convenient, suitable, serviceable, &c. Luke ix. 62, εύθετός έστιν τŷ βασιλεία τοῦ Θεοῦ. xiv. 35. Psalm xxxii. 6, ἐν καιρῷ εὐθέτφ.

δι' ovs] For the sake of whom. For whose benefit.

καὶ γ.] Also (as well as being serviceable to them). The verb occurs only here in the New Testament (γεώργιον, I Cor. iii. 9: γεωργός often). I Chron. xxvii. 26, ἐπὶ δὲ τῶν γεωργούντων τὴν γῆν τῶν ἐργαζομένων.

εὐλογίας] Gen. xxvii. 27, ὡς ὀσμὴ ἀγροῦ πλήρους ὅν ηὐλόγησε Κύριος.

 εκφέρουσα δέ] But if it (ή γή, understood from γή above) brings forth. Gen. i. 12, και εξήνεγκεν ή γή βοτάνην χόρτου.

ἀκάνθας καὶ τρ.] Gen. iii. 17, 18 (18, 19 B), ἐπικατάρατος ή γῆ ἐν τοῖς ἔργοις σου...ἀκάνθας καὶ τριβόλους ἀνατελεῖ σοι. Hos. x. 8, ἄκανθαι καὶ τρίβολοι ἀναβήσονται ἐπὶ τὰ θυσιαστήρια αὐτῶν. The New Testament has ἄκανθαι (from ἀκή, a point) in three connexions. (1) Matt. vii. 16, ἀπὸ ἀκανθῶν σταφυλάς. (2) Matt. xiii. 7, &c., ἔπεσεν ἐπὶ τὰs ἀκάνθας κ.τ.λ. Mark iv. 7, &c. Luke viii. 7, &c. (3) Matt. xxvii. 29, στέφανον ἐξ ἀκανθῶν. John xix. 2. For τρίβολοι (τριβελής, three-pointed) in the New Testament see only Matt. vii. 16, ἢ ἀπὸ τριβόλων σῦκα; άδόκιμος] The opposite of δόκιμος (from δέχεσθαι), and so unacceptable, unapprovable, unworthy, rejected after trial, refuse, reprobate. Isai. i. 22, τὸ ἀργύριον ὑμῶν ἀδόκιμον. I Cor. ix. 27. 2 Cor. xiii. 5, 6, 7. 2 Tim. iii. 8. Tit. i. 16, πρὸς πῶν ἕργον ἀγαθὸν ἀδόκιμοι.

κατάρας ἐγγύς] Compare viii. 13, ἐγγὺς ἀφανισμοῦ. The thought of κατάρα may come from Gen. iii. 17, ἐπικατάρατος ή γῆ. The expression is softened, to avoid the appearance of absolutely condemning the readers.

ης το τέλος] In form like 2 Cor. xi. 15, ών το τέλος ἔσται κατὰ τὰ ἔργα αὐτῶν. Phil. iii. 19, ῶν το τέλος ἀπωλεια.

eis kaûour] Deut. xxix. 22,

Πεπείσμεθα δε περί ύμων, άγαπητοί, τα 9 κρείσσονα και έχόμενα σωτηρίας, εί και ούτως 10 λαλούμεν. οι γαρ άδικος ο Θεός έπιλαθέσθαι 23, δψονται τὰς πληγὰς τῆς γῆς έκείνης...θείον και άλα κατακεκαυμένον πασα ή γη αυτής ου σπαρήσεται... ώσπερ κατεστράφη Σόδομα και Γόμορρα κ.τ.λ.

 πεπείσμεθα δέ Such is the fate of the Christian who has sinned the fatal sin, of having finally received the grace of God in vain. But we have better hopes for you. For  $\pi\epsilon$ πείσμεθα, compare Rom. xv. 14, πέπεισμαι δέ, αδελφοί μου, καὶ αύτος έγω περί ύμων, ότι καί αύτοι μεστοί έστε αγαθωσύνης  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . And for a like turn from severity to tenderness, Gal. V. 10, έγω πέποιθα εἰς ὑμᾶς έν Κυρίψ ότι ούδεν άλλο φρονή-OETE.

 $a\gamma a \pi \eta \tau o i$  Only here in this Epistle. Rom. xii. 19. 2 Cor. vii. 1. xii. 19. Phil. iv. 1. 1 Pet. ii. 11. iv. 12. 2 Pet. iii. 1, 8, 14, 17. 1 John ii. 7. iii. 2, 21. iv. 1, 7, 11. Jude 3, 17, 20.

 $\tau \dot{\alpha} \kappa \rho. \kappa. \dot{\epsilon} \chi. \sigma.$  Those things which are better (than the above) and pertaining to salvation. For speisoova, see note on i. 4, κρείττων.

έχόμενα] The middle έχεσ- $\theta a (\tau v o's)$  is to hold or cling to, and so (of a thing) to be next to. Mark i. 38, eis ràs exopévas κωμοπόλεις. Acts xx. 15. xxi. 26, τη έχομένη ήμέρα. (Hence έξης, Luke ix. 37, έν τη έξης ήμέρα. Acts xxi. 1. &c.) Here, pertaining to.

σωτηρίas] See note on i. 14. el sai] Only here in this Epistle. Most frequent in 2 Cor. If even. If it is even the case that. Often with no touch of uncertainty. 2 Cor. iv. 7, εί δε και ελαβες. vii. 12, apa ei kai eypaya. Col. ii. 5, ei yap καί τη σαρκί απειμι. And so it is found even with ov. Luke xi. 8, εί και ού δώσει. xviii. 4. 2 Cor. xii. 11, εἰ καὶ οὐδέν €iµι.

ourus] So as above (v. 11vi. 8).

10. aduros] Unjust, not because withholding a reward earned by merit, but because faithless to His promise and engagement in Christ. Compare another aspect of the same thought in 1 John i. 9,  $\pi \iota \sigma \tau \delta s$ έστιν καὶ δίκαιος ἴνα ἀφή ήμιν τàs aµaptías κ.τ.λ. The justice there is not founded on man's abstract right to forgiveness (a contradiction in terms), but on the διαθήκη of God in Christ.

ἐπιλαθέσθαι] xiii. 2, 16. τοῦ ἔργου] The life work. The sum of the individual Christian action. See I Cor. iii. 13 --- 15. Gal. vi. 4, to be epyon

τοῦ ἕργου ὑμῶν καὶ τῆς ἀγάπης ἧς ἐνεδείξασθε εἰς τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ διακονήσαντες τοῖς ἀγίοις καὶ διακονοῦντες. ἐπιθυμοῦμεν δὲ ἕκαστον ὑμῶν 11 ξαυτοῦ δοκιμαζέτω ἔκαστος. Ι Thess. i. 3, μνημονεύοντες ὑμῶν τοῦ ἔργου τῆς πίστεως. V. I3, διὰ τὸ ἔργον αὐτῶν. I Pet. i. I7, κατὰ τὸ ἑκάστου ἔργον.

καὶ τῆς ἀγάπης] The revised text omits τοῦ κόπου before τῆς ἀγάπης. It probably came from 1 Thess. i. 3.

 $\eta_s$ ] For  $\eta_v$ . The common attraction of the relative to the antecedent. See ix. 20,  $\tau\eta_s$  dia- $\eta_{\eta\kappa\eta_s}$   $\eta_s$  èvere(lato.

èνεδείξασθε] The middle voice of ἐνδεικνύναι (to indicate or point out) expresses to show as one's own, to manifest as a quality or attribute; as (1) of God, Rom. ix. 17, 22 (from Exod. ix. 16). Eph. ii. 7. 1 Tim. i. 16. &c.; (2) of man, as here, and Rom. ii. 15. 2 Cor. viii. 24. Tit. ii. 10, πάσαν πίστιν ἐνδεικινμένους ἀγαθήν. iii. 2.

eis τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ] Towards His name. That is, towards Him as He is; towards Him as His word reveals Him. See note on i. 4.

διακ. καὶ διακ.] By having ministered and still ministering. Rom. xv. 25, διακονών τοῖs ἀγίοιs. (In this Epistle διακονών occurs only here, διακονία only in i. 14.) Of uncertain derivation (conjecturally from an obsolete verb διάκω to hasten), διάκονος and its cognates (occurring nearly 100 times in the New Testament) are applied to service of any kind, whether to God or man. For example, (1) to serving in the house or at the table, in Matt. viii. 15. Mark i. 31. Luke iv. 39. x. 40. xvii. 8. xxii. 27. John xii. 2; (2) to personal attendance, Acts xix. 22. Philem. 13; (3) to charitable service, Acts vi. 2; (4) to the ministry of the Gospel, Acts vi. 4. Rom. xi. 13; (5) to angelic ministry, Matt. iv. 11. Heb. i. 14; (6) to Christ's own service on earth, Matt. xx. 28. Luke xxii. 27.

II.  $\epsilon \pi i \theta \nu \mu o \hat{\nu} \mu \epsilon v$ ] It is our heart's desire. We desire is ambiguous. The Revised Version has sought to make it clear by substituting may show for do For enteupeiv in this show. good sense (and with an infinitive following it), compare Matt. xiii. 17, πολλοί προφήται και δίκαιοι επεθύμησαν ίδειν ά Luko xxii. 15, enβλέπετε. θυμία επεθύμησα τ. τ. π. φαγείν μεθ ύμών.  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho o\phi o\rho (av]$  Col. ii. 2,  $\pi av$ το πλούτος της πληροφορίας της συνέσεως. I Thess. i. 5, καί πληροφορία πολλη̂. Heb. vi. 11, The έν πληροφορία πίστεως. original meaning of the verb  $\pi \lambda \eta \rho o \phi o \rho \epsilon i v$  is to bring full, to fill the measure of, and so to fulfil, complete, or satisfy. With an accusative sometimes (1) of the thing : Luke i. I,  $\pi\epsilon\rho i \tau \hat{\omega} v$ πεπληροφορημένων (fully established or proved) in huir mpayμάτων. 2 Tim. iv. 5, 17, τήν διακονίαν σου πληροφόρησον... ίνα δι' έμοῦ τὸ κήρυγμα πληρο- $\phi_{0}\rho_{\eta}\theta_{\eta}$ . Sometimes (2) of the person: Rom. iv. 21,  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho\sigma$  $φ_{0}$ ορηθείς (fully assured) ότι κ.τ.λ. Rom. xiv. 5, έκαστος έν τώ ίδίω νοι πληροφορείσθω. Col. iv. 12, τέλειοι και πεπληροφορημένοι. The Revised Version here gives fulness in the text, full assurance in the margin. There is nothing in the derivation to suggest assurance, and the word satisfy, satisfaction, seems to be the sufficient idea both of verb and noun.

άχρι τέλους] In iii. 6 and 14 it is μέχρι τέλους. See note on άχρι, iv. 12.

12. νωθροί] See note on v. 11.

 $\gamma \epsilon \nu \eta \sigma \theta \epsilon$ ] In v. 11 we have  $\gamma \epsilon \gamma \sigma \sigma \sigma \epsilon$ . Here the condition is spoken of as not yet determined. A merciful discrepancy. That ye may not turn out (be in the result) that which too many symptoms point to as your state now.

μιμηταί] Not in the Septuagint (where however we have µ1µ cîobai, Wisd. xv. 9, and µíµηµa, Wisd. ix. 8). In the New Testament, verb and noun are peculiar to St Paul and this Epistle (xiii. 7,  $\mu \iota$ μείσθε την πίστιν), with the single exception of 3 John II (μή μιμοῦ το κακόν), for in 1 Pet. iii. 13 the revised text reads ζηλωταί. See I Thess. i. 6, μιμηται ήμων εγενήθητε. ii. 14. 2 Thess. iii. 7, 9, πως δεί μιμείσθαι ήμας κ.τ.λ. Ι Cor. iv. 16. xi. 1, μιμηταί μου γίμακροθυμίας] From μακρόbuyos, long or slow of wrath (first found in Exod. xxxiv. 6, οικτίρμων και ελεήμων, μακρόθυ  $\mu os$  kai  $\pi o \lambda v \epsilon \lambda \epsilon os$ ), the substantive μακροθυμία is used both of God (Rom. ii. 4. ix. 1 Tim. i. 16. 1 Pet. iii. 22. 2 Pet. iii. 15) and of man 20. (2 Cor. vi. 6. Gal. v. 22. Eph. iv. 2. Col. i. 11. iii. 12. 2 Tim. iii. 10. iv. 2. James v. 10). In its human application it is most often employed as between man and man,  $i\pi o\mu o\nu \eta$ being the more distinctively suitable as between man and God κληρονομούντων] See note on i. 4. The idea of κληρονομεῖν (τι) is not to be heir to, but to inherit, to enter upon the inheritance of. In κληρονόμος both senses (heir and inheritor) are found, the former more frequently (Matt. xxi. 38. Gal. iv. 1. James ii. 5. &c.).

τὰς ἐπαγγελίας] Plural as in Rom. ix. 4, Ἱσραηλεῖται, ῶν...ai διαθῆκαι...καὶ ai ἐπαγγελίαι κ.τ.λ. Gal. iii. 16, τῷ δὲ ᾿Αβραὰμ ἐρρέθησαν ai ἐπαγγελίαι κ.τ.λ. Heb. vii. 6. xi. 13, 17. The promises. All the various announcements of God's purposes of good, made from time to time to Abraham and his descendants. It is possible that later promises, like those of Isaiah and other prophets, may be included in the plural phrase.

13.  $\tau \hat{\psi} \gamma \dot{\alpha} \rho$ ] I say dia ma-  $\kappa \rho o \theta \nu \mu i \alpha s$ , and I say  $\epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda i \alpha s$ — for, &c. He takes the latter first, and the former in verse 15. But indeed even the  $\omega \mu o \sigma \epsilon \nu$  prepared the recipient for delay, and so for the need of  $\mu \alpha \kappa \rho o - \theta \nu \mu i \alpha$ .

ἐπαγγειλάμενος Having made promise. The promise was prior to the oath, and was repeated again and again (Gen. xii, xiii, xv. xvii, xviii, &c.) before the δρκωμοσία of Gen. xxii. The verb  $\epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda$ - $\lambda \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  has the two chief senses (in biblical as in classical Greek) of (1) promising, (2) Thus (1) x. 23, professing. πιστός γάρ ο έπαγγειλάμενος. xi. 11. xii. 26. simple dative or accusative.) Matt. xxvi. 63, έξορκίζω σε κατα τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ζώντος.

είχεν ... ὀμόσαι] For this (classical) use of ἔχειν with an infinitive, to have where with to do, to be able to do, compare Luke vii. 42, μὴ ἐχόντων αὐτῶν ἀποδοῦναι. xii. 4, καὶ μετὰ ταῦτα μὴ ἐχόντων περισσότερόν τι ποιῆσαι. xiv. 14, οὐκ ἔχουσιν ἀνταποδοῦναί σοι. Acts iv. 14. xxv. 26. Tit. ii. 8.

14. Ei  $\mu\eta'\nu$ ] Given in the Septuagint  $\eta'\mu\eta'\nu$ . But found in Ezek. xxxiii. 27,  $\zeta\omega' \epsilon\gamma\omega, \epsilon i \mu\eta\nu$ ... $\pi\epsilon\sigma\sigma\vartheta\nu\tau\alpha ... xxxiv. 8, \zeta\omega' \epsilon\gamma\omega,$  $\lambda\epsilon\gamma\epsilon ... It is difficult not to imagine it a mixed and corrupt phrase, made up of  $\epsilon i$  $\mu\eta$  and  $\eta'\mu\eta\nu$ , though equivalent in use to the latter.

εὐλογῶν εὐλ.] This is the usual way of reproducing the Hebrew form of strong asseveration, in which what in the Greek is a participle is an abbreviated infinitive. Sense: I will abundantly bless thee, and abundantly multiply thee.

ευλογών] To speak well of becomes, if God speaks, to do good to. With Him benediction and benefaction are one.

15. eπervxer Vet in xi. 39, it is said of the Old Testament saints, ούκ έκομίσαντο την έπαγ- $\gamma \epsilon \lambda i a v$ , and the reason is added. ίνα μή χωρίς ήμῶν τελειωθώσιν. In the same chapter, verse 33, έπέτυχον έπαγγελιών is apparently said of living men, and must mean either obtained the utterance to them by God, or obtained the fulfilment to them by God, of specific personal promises with reference to this life. It is plain that what Abraham is here said to have obtained was not the utterance but the fulfilment of promise, for the μακροθυμήσας was subsequent to the utterance, and the procuring cause of the  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \tau v \chi \epsilon v$ . He is said then to have won by his patience either (1) the fulfilment to his seed after him of the earthly promise, or (2) the fulfilment to himself of the promise of the heavenly rest typified by the former, yet without exhausting the higher promise, which has, even for him, its still future resurrection-glory, and, for us, a fuller and nobler revelation now (κρείττόν τι, xi. 39), and an equal share in the glory that waits for the second Advent. The latter of these two interpretations is decidedly to be preferred.

16.  $\delta \nu \theta \rho \omega \pi o i \gamma \delta \rho$ ] Reason for the  $\delta \mu o \sigma \epsilon \nu \kappa a \theta$   $\delta a \nu \tau o \hat{\nu}$  of verse 13; 15 being treated as parenthetical. The  $\mu \epsilon \nu$  of the received text is right in sense, but is probably the insertion of a classicist.

 $\tau \circ \hat{\nu} \mu \epsilon i \langle \sigma v \circ s \rangle$  Him who is greater than themselves, that is, God.

καὶ πάσης] And that oath (the article referring to the ομνύουσιν above) is to them a limit (end) of all ἀντιλογία.

aντιλογίας] Gainsaying, may be either (1) contradiction, as of one against one, whether in the form of denial or of reproach, or (2) controversy, dispute, a mutual gainsaying. For (1) see vii. 7, χωρίς δε πάσης αντιλογίας. Jude 11, τη αντιλογία του Κορέ. (For its use in xii. 3 see the note there.) And so in the Septuagint, Num. xx. 13, τοῦτο [τό] ύδωρ αντιλογίας, ύτι ελοιδομήθησαν οι υίοι Ίσραήλ έναντι Κυρίου. &с. Psalm lxxx. 6, Edov nuas είς αντιλογίαν τοῖς γείτοσιν ήμῶν. For (2) see Exod. xviii. åc. 16, όταν γαρ γένηται αυτοίς αντιλογία, καὶ ἔλθωσι πρός με κ.τ.λ. Prov. xvii. 11, αντιλογίας έγείρει πα̂ς κακός. xviii. 18, ἀντιλογίας παύει κλήρος (A, σιγηρος B), ἐν δὲ δυνάσταις (A, δυναστείαις B) ὁρίζει. Here (considering the context) the former seems the more suitable sense. An oath removes all doubt as to the positiveness of an assertion. Precludes, for example, in the case of a promise, all doubt as to the serious intention of the giver.

πέρας] Elsewhere in the New Testament only in the plural, τὰ πέρατα τῆς γῆς (Matt. xii. 42. Luke xi. 31) or τῆς οἰκουμένης (Rom. x. 18 from Psalm xix. 4). But in the Septuagint, see Psalm cxlv. 3, τῆς μεγαλωσύνης αὐτοῦ οὖκ ἔστι πέpas. Dan. vii. 28, ἔως ὥδε τὸ πέρας τοῦ λόγου. &c.

James i. 18. To Christ, in Matt. xi. 27. Luke x. 22. To the Holy Spirit, in 1 Cor. xii. 11.

έπιδεζεαι] Only here in the Epistles. Matt. xvi. I (σημεῖον). xxii. 19 (νόμισμα). xxiv. I (οἰκοδομάς). Luke xvii. 14 (ἐαυτοὺς τοῖς ἰερ.). xx. 24 (δηνάριον). Acts ix. 39 (mid.). xviii. 28 (εἶναι τὸν Χρ. Ἰησοῦν).

κληρονόμοις] See notes on i. 2, 4.

τη̂ς ἐπαγγελίας] Primarily the promise to Abraham (verse 14); but including as the antitype of that, the promise of the eternal inheritance. See note on verse 15, ἐπέτυχεν.

άμετάθετον] Only here and in verse 18. But μετατιθέναι (μετάθεσις), to change the place of, to transpose or transfer, (1) in a literal sense, in Acts vii. 16 (μετετέθησαν εἰς Συχέμ). Heb. xi. 5 (Ένωχ μετετέθη...μετέθηκεν αὐτὸν ὁ Θεός...πρὸ τῆς μεταθέσεως); and (2) in senses more or less figurative, in Gal. i. 6 (εἰς ἔτερον εὐαγγέλιον). Heb. vii. 12 (μετατιθεμένης τῆς ἰερωσύνης...νόμου μετάθεσις). xii. 27. Jude 4 (χάριτα μετατιθέντες εἰς ἀσέλγειαν).

βουλής] The word βουλή (occurring twelve times in the New Testament, of which nine are in St Luke's Gospel and the Acts) is applied (1) to men, as in Luke xxiii. 51, τ $\hat{\eta}$  βουλ $\hat{\eta}$  καὶ τη πράξει αυτών. Acts v. 38, εαν ή έξ ανθρώπων ή βουλή αυτη ή το έργον τοῦτο. xxvii. 12, 42. I Cor. iv. 5, τας βουλας των καρδιών. (2) To God, as in Luke vii. 30. Acts ii. 23, τη ώρισμένη βουλη καί προγνώσει τοῦ Θεοῦ. xiii. 36. XX. 27, αναγγείλαι πάσαν την βουλήν τοῦ Θεοῦ. Ерһ. і. 11, τοῦ τὰ πάντα ἐνεργοῦντος κατὰ την βουλην του θελήματος αύτου. This last passage seems to help the difficult distinction between  $\beta$ ουλή and θέλημα. The θέλημα  $(\tau \circ \theta)$  is the will as a unit whole. The  $\beta ov \lambda \eta (\eta \beta.)$  is the counsel or purpose of the  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a$ , the sum of its intended activity. When  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a$  has no article (as in Matt. xviii. 14. Rom. xv. 32. 1 Cor. i. 1. 2 Cor. i. 1. &c.) it becomes one particular of the whole will; when it is plural (Acts xiii. 22), the several particulars of it. (This view is well illustrated in I Pet. iii, 17, εί θέλοι το θέλημα τοῦ Θεοῦ, where τὸ θέλημα is represented as having  $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a \tau a$ , as willing separate things.) So when  $\beta o \nu \lambda \eta$  has no article, it becomes a single item of the When it is collective βουλή. plural, several items, &c. ἐμεσίτευσεν] Mediated, interposed, intervened, acted as μεσίτης or intermediate. But between whom? (See Gal. iii. 20, ὁ δὲ μεσίτης ἐνὸς οὐκ ἔστιν.)

δύο πραγμάτων ἀμεταθέτων, ἐν οἶς ἀδύνατον ψεύσασθαι Θεόν, ἰσχυρὰν παράκλησιν ἔχωμεν

vi. 18. Or tor 0.

Apparently, by a bold figure, between Himself and the receiver of the promise. This seems simpler than to say, between the promise and the fulfilment, or between the word and the man. A passage is quoted from Josephus, in which God is spoken of as being made a mediator by the mere fact of His being appealed to by the taking of an oath (ravra ouv'vτες έλεγον καί τον Θεόν μεσίτην ών υπισχνούντο ποιούμενοι). The verb does not occur elsewhere in the New Testament, nor is either verb or noun found in the Septuagint.

 $\delta\rho\kappa\varphi$ ] By an oath. The oath is made the instrument of the interposition.

18. lva] The gracious purpose of the interposition.

 $\delta vo$ ] The promise, and the oath.

πραγμάτων] From the obvious sense of πρâγμα, (1) a deed or act, through that of (2) a fact or event, a matter or thing, it passes in this Epistle into the higher idea of (3) a spiritual reality, as x. I, σκιάν τῶν μελλόντων ἀγαθῶν, οὐκ αὐτὴν τὴν εἰκόνα τῶν πραγμάτων. Xi. I, ἐλπιζομένων ὑπόστασις, πραγμάτων ἐλεγχος οὐ βλεπομένων. Here it is applied to God's word and God's oath of promise, regarded as invested with all the reality of facts by being His utterance.
èv o's] Wherein. In the matter (on the subject) of which.
adôúvarov] Also in verse 4.
x. 4. xi. 6. Characteristic of this Epistle. The nearest approach to it is in Mark x. 27, παρὰ aνθρώποις adôúvarov (without roῦro, which Matt. xix. 26 has). ψεύσασθαι] The aorist applies the axiom to the case. Impossible for Him to have lied. Compare Psalm lxxxix. 35, απαξ ὥμοσα ἐν τῷ ἀγίφ μου, εἰ τῷ Δαυίδ ψεύσομαι.

παράκλησιν] Encouragement. The two ideas of comforting and exhorting meet in encouragement, which avoids alike the unpractical feebleness of consolation and the unsympathetic externality of exhortation. The Scripture παράκλησιs is at once tender and animating. It is that calling along, inviting to effort, as of a leader going before his men sword in hand, which may well be expressed by the English word encouragement, οί καταφυγόντες κρατησαι της προκειμένης έλ-19 πίδος, ην ώς άγκυραν έχομεν της ψυχης, άσφαλη which means putting the heart into a man. It occurs again in xii. 5. xiii. 22. And  $\pi a \rho a$ - $\kappa a \lambda \hat{e \nu}$  in iii. 13. x. 25. xiii. 19, 22.

 $\tilde{\epsilon}\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\nu$ ] Interposed, by the oath confirming the promise, that we may have. An act of old time, having for its object the continual and ever present encouragement of Christians now ( $\epsilon\mu\epsilon\sigma(\tau\epsilon\nu\sigma\epsilon\nu...iva\ \epsilon\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\nu)$ ).

καταφυγόντες] The tense carries back the thoughts to the one decisive act and moment of becoming a Christian. The special thought in καταφεύγειν, to flee down, home, &c., is that of taking refuge. It occurs once besides in the New Testament, Acts xiv. 6. But its force is more clearly seen in such passages of the Septuagint as Num. xxxv. 25, εἰς τὴν πόλιν τοῦ φυγαδευτηρίου αυτου...ου κατέφυγεν έκει κ.τ.λ. Psalm cxliii. 9, έξελοῦ με ἐκ τῶν ἐχθρῶν μου, Κύριε, ότι πρός σε κατέφυγον.

κρατήσαι] To lay hold of. Again the acrist of the single act. For κρατείν, see note on iv. 14, κρατώμεν.

προκειμένης] For προκείσθαι, to lie forth, to lie in view, to be set forth in open view, see Lev. xxiv. 7, καὶ ἔσονται εἰς ἄρτους εἰς ἀνάμνησιν προκείμενα τῷ Κυρίφ. Num. iv. 7, καὶ ἐπὶ την τράπεζαν την προκειμένην κ.τ.λ. In the New Testament it occurs in 2 Cor. viii. 12, εἰ γὰρ ή προθυμία πρόκειται (is forthcoming). Jude 7, πρόκεινται δείγμα. And Heb. xii. 1, 2, τον προκείμενον ήμῶν ἀγῶνα...τῆς προκειμένης αὐτῷ χαρᾶς.

 $\lambda \pi i \delta os$ ] Is it here the grace of hope, or the object of hope? Of the latter the clearest instances are Gal. v. 5. Col. i. 5, την έλπίδα την αποκειμένην υμίν έν τοις ουρανοίς. I Thess. ii. 19. I Tim. i. I, Χριστού 'Ιησού τής έλπίδος ήμων. Τιτ. ii. 13, προσδεχόμενοι την μακαρίαν έλπίδα. The  $\pi \rho o \kappa \epsilon \iota \mu \epsilon v \eta s$  here is indecisive, for while in xii. 2 it accompanies something future  $(\chi a \rho \hat{a} s)$ , in xii. I it stands with a thing present (ayŵva). And we may be said with equal propriety to lay hold of a present grace, supporting and comforting, or of a future attainment of glory. On the whole, we may decide in favour of the former and commoner sense of  $\epsilon \lambda \pi i_s$ . Indeed the following verse says έχομεν and είσερχομένην.

19. άγκυραν] Acts xxvii. 29, 30, 40.

 $a\sigma\phi a\lambda\hat{\eta}$  τε καὶ β.] Not to be taken with  $a\gamma\kappa\nu\rho a\nu$ , but with  $\hat{\eta}\nu$  (έλπίδα). The other connexion leads to great confusion of figure when we reach καὶ τε καὶ βεβαίαν καὶ εἰσερχομένην εἰς τὸ ἐσώτερον τοῦ καταπετάσματος, ὅπου πρόδρομος ὑπὲρ 20 ἡμῶν εἰσῆλθεν Ἰησοῦς, κατὰ τὴν τάξιν Μελχισεδὲκ ἀρχιερεὺς γενόμενος εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα.

εἰσερχομένην. For ἀσφαλής, 800 Phil. iii. 1, ὑμῦν δὲ ἀσφαλές. Prov. iii. 18, καὶ τοῖς ἐπερειδομένοις ἐπ' αὐτὴν...ἀσφαλής. For βέβαιος, 800 note on ii. 2.

καὶ εἰσερχομένην] Strange attempts have been made to justify the application of this clause to ἀγκυραν. Taking it with ην (ἐλπίδα), all difficulty disappears. Hope enters into the holy of holies.

eis  $\tau \delta$  έσώτερον τ. κ.] Into that which is inner than (within) the veil. The simple έσω might have stood here with the genitive, as in Mark xv. 16 (έσω  $\tau \eta s$  aù $\lambda \eta s$ ), and perhaps in the revised text of 2 Cor. iv. 16 ( $\delta$  έσω  $\eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ ). But the phrase comes from the Septuagint, Exod. xxvi. 33. Lev. xvi. 2. &c.

τοῦ καταπετάσματος] Matt. xxvii. 51. Mark xv. 38. Luke xxiii. 45. It is called in ix. 3 τὸ δεύτερον καταπέτασμα, in contrast with the curtain over the entrance into the tabernacle. See Exod. xxvi. 31—36, καὶ ποιήσεις καταπέτασμα...καὶ εἰσοίσεις ἐκεί ἐσώτερον τοῦ καταπετάσματος τὴν κιβωτὸν τοῦ μαρτυρίου• καὶ διοριεῖ τὸ καταπέτασμα ὑμῦν ἀναμέσον τοῦ ἀγίου καὶ ἀναμέσον τοῦ ἀγίου τῶν ἀχίων κ.τ.λ. The outer curtain is often called  $\epsilon \pi i \sigma \pi a \sigma \tau \rho ov$  (Exod. xxvi. 36. xxxv. 15. xxxix. 38. xl. 28), but sometimes also  $\kappa a \tau a$ - $\pi \epsilon \tau a \sigma \mu a$  (Exod. xxvi. 37. &c.) as indeed the  $\delta \epsilon v \tau \epsilon \rho ov$  of Heb. ix. 3 implies. For the significance of the figure here see ix. 8, &c.

20.  $\ddot{\sigma}\pi\sigma\nu$ ] The forms  $\pi\sigma\hat{\iota}$ and  $\ddot{\sigma}\pi\sigma\iota$  are not used in the Septuagint or the New Testament:  $\pi\sigma\hat{\upsilon}$  and  $\ddot{\sigma}\pi\sigma\nu$  serve the purpose alike of where and whither.

πρόδρομος] As forerunner. Only here in the New Testament. But the verb (προτρέχειν) occurs in Luke xix. 4, καὶ προδραμῶν ἔμπροσθεν ἀνέβη κ.τ.λ. John xx. 4, προέδραμεν τάχιον τοῦ Πέτρου καὶ ἦλθεν πρῶτος εἰς τὸ μνημεῖον. In the Septuagint, Num. xiii. 20, ἡμέραι ἔαρος, πρόδρομοι σταφυλῆς. Isai. xxviii. 4, ἔσται τὸ ἄνθος...ὡς πρόδρομος σύκου. Wisd. xii. 8, ἀπέστειλάς τε προδρόμους τοῦ στρατοπέδου σου σφῆκας κ.τ.λ.

 $i \pi i \rho \eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ ] We might have expected the simple genitive  $(\eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu)$  after πρόδρομος (as in the above passages). But the insertion of  $i \pi i \rho$  is reverential, and marks the disparity of the πρόδρομος and the followers.

εἰσήλθεν] By ascension. See ix. 12, 24, εἰσήλθεν ἐφάπαξ εἰs τὰ ἀγια...εἰς αὐτὸν τὸν οὐρανόν.

vii. 1. Or os ouvart.

The solemn ceremony of the day of Atonement is already tinging the phraseology. See Lev. xvi. 3, 23, kal  $\epsilon i \sigma \epsilon \lambda \epsilon v \sigma \epsilon r a$ 'Aapair  $\epsilon is \tau \eta r \sigma \kappa \eta r \eta r \tau v \sigma u \mu ap \tau v plov <math>\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ .

κατὰ τὴν τάξιν] Thus we return once more to the text of the subsection, proposed in v. 10, and suspended by the following digression. Now we enter upon the subject.

VII. 1. Ούτος γάρ] I say, as the Melchizedek priest; and it is a significant title—for, &c.

obros] This who is the person named in the prophecy under consideration.

ό Μελχισεδέκ] Gen. xiv. 18. The phrases and clauses quoted in the text are, καὶ Μελχισεδὲκ βασιλεὺς Σαλημ...ἱερεὺς τοῦ Θεοῦ τοῦ ὑψίστου...ηὐλόγησε τὸν *Αβραμ...καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτῷ [*Αβραμ Β] δεκάτην ἀπὸ πάντων.

 $\sum \lambda \lambda \dot{\eta} \mu$ ] The locality is immaterial, the name alone is significant.

ispets  $\tau o \hat{v} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{v}$ ] One of those outlying worshippers of the true God, whom Scripture presents to us as preserving a primitive tradition of truth, though not included in any special covenant of revelation. Job is another. Jethro may have been another. To such cases St Paul's words in Rom. ii. 14 are directly applicable.

ό συναν.] The alternative (and morestrongly supported) reading ôs involves a provoking breach of construction in which one would acquiesce unwillingly, especially in such an Epistle as this. Strictly taken, it implies that the intended construction was, who, having met Abraham... blessed him. It belongs to the same class of vexatious breaches of grammar as the $$$ of Rom. xvi. 27.

συναντήσας] Suggested by Gen. xiv. 17, έξηλθε δὲ βασιλεὺς Σοδόμων εἰς συνάντησιν αὐτῷ, μετὰ τὸ ὑποστρέψαι αὐτὸν ἀπὸ τῆς κοπῆς τοῦ Χ. καὶ τῶν βασιλέων τῶν μετ' αὐτοῦ. The word συναντῶν occurs in the New Testament in Luke ix. 37. xxii. 10. Acts x. 25. xx. 22.

κοπης] See the above quotation. Smiting. Clades rather than cædes. Gen. xiv. 15, ἐπάταξεν. For the word, see Deut. xxviii. 25, δώη σε Κύριος ἐπὶ κοπην ἐναντίον τῶν ἐχθρῶν σου. Josh. x. 20, κόπτοντες αὐτοὺς κοπην μεγάλην σφόδρα ἕως εἰς τέλος. Jud. xv. 7, ἀναστρέψαντες ἀπὸ τῆς κοπης.

τών βασιλέων] The four kings against five of Gen. xiv. Hearing of the capture of Lot, Abram arms his trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, pursues the four kings to Dan, and (after a successful engagement) to Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus, rescues Lot, and returns by way of Sodom towards his tent-home at Mamre.

ειλογήσας] The words are given in Gen. xiv. 19, 20, ειλογημένος *Αβραμ τῷ Θεῷ τῷ ὑψίστω, ὅς ἔκτισε τὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ τὴν γῆν καὶ εὐλογητὸς ὅ Θεὸς ὁ ὕψιστος, ὅς παρέδωκε τοὺς ἐχθρούς σου ὑποχειρίους σοι.

2.  $\delta \epsilon \kappa \dot{\alpha} \tau \eta v$ ] Only here (and in verses 4, 8, 9) in the New Testament. In the Septuagint, see Lev. xxvii. 30. Deut. xiv. 22. &c.

 $\dot{a}\pi\dot{o}\pi\dot{a}\tau\tau\omega\nu$ ] This is the expression in Gen. xiv. 20. It is varied in verse 4 into  $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa$   $\tau\omega\nu$  $\dot{a}\kappa\rho\sigma\theta\nu\omega\omega\nu$ .

ἐμέρισεν] In the Septuagint it is ἔδωκεν. For μερίζειν, to deal, to give as a share, to one person, see Rom. xii. 3, ἐκάστψ ůs ὅ Θεὸς ἐμέρισεν μέτρον πίστεως.
I Cor. vii. 17. 2 Cor. x. 13.

 $\pi\rho\omega\tau\sigma\nu \ \mu\epsilon\nu$ ] After stating the few facts of the story of Melchizedek, he proceeds to argue, (1) from the statements and (2) from the silences of the narrative, the mysterious dignity of the typical person, and so the predicted majesty of the antitype. And first the significance of the names of the person and of the place.

έρμηνευόμενος] Interpreted as. Being when interpreted.
 For the word, see note on v.
 11, δυσερμήνευτος.

βασιλεύς δικαιοσύνης] The meaning of the name Melchizedek.

 $\sum \lambda \lambda \dot{\eta} \mu$ ] There is no apparent reason for doubting that this denotes the place or capital of Melchizedek's sovereignty. But its site is unsettled, some identifying Salem with Jerusalem on the strength of Psalm lxxvi. 2 (where however in the Septuagint  $\dot{\epsilon} v \epsilon \dot{\epsilon} \rho \dot{\eta} v \eta$  is the rendering of in Salem).

3. ἀπúτωρ, ἀμήτωρ] For all that the narrative in Genesis tells of him, Melchizedek might have been all these. The argument is from the mystery in which he is enveloped, leaving room for the supernatural at each turn, and so enhancing the applicability of the type to One who is really that which only the silence of Scripture leaves imaginable of Melchizedek. The three words occur only here in the New Testament or the Septuagint. But  $\dot{a}\pi \dot{a}\tau \omega \rho$  and  $\dot{a}\mu \dot{\eta}$ - $\tau \omega \rho$  are classical; the former in the various senses of fatherless, discord, posthumous, of uncertain parentage; the latter in that of motherless, of mean birth, unmotherly.

άγενεαλόγητος] Without ancestry, one whose pedigree cannot be made out. See verse 6, γενεαλογούμενος. Also (as marking the exaggerated anxiety and fanciful ideas of Jews on the subject of pedigrees) I Tim. i. 4, μύθοις και γενεαλογίαις ἀπεράντοις. Tit. iii. 9.

 $\mu\dot{\eta}\tau\epsilon...\mu\dot{\eta}\tau\epsilon$ ] Such as has neither...nor, &c. Almost equivalent to one that has neither &c. For this Hellenistic use (among several others) of  $\mu\dot{\eta}$ with a participle, and passages illustrating it, see note on iv. 2,  $\mu\dot{\eta}$  συνκεκερασμένους.

 $\eta'\mu\epsilon\rho\omega\nu... \langle\omega\eta s]$  No distinction seems to be intended : it is only a graceful variety of expression. Compare Psalm xxi. 4,  $\zeta\omega\eta\nu$  ຖ້າήσατό σε, καὶ ἔδωκαs αὐτῷ μακρότητα ήμερῶν εἰς aἰῶνα κ.τ.λ. The stress lies upon aρχην and τέλος.

in these points to the Son of God. The passive recognizes the word of God in Scripture and the hand of God in history. The silence of Scripture as to the parentage and ancestry of Melchizedek, as to his birth and death; the way in which he suddenly steps forth for one mysterious interview with the father of the faithful, and then retires again into profound mystery without one hint given as to the termination of either his life or his ministry; all this serves to make him, and seems to have been designed to make him, a type of One to whom such supernatural characteristics actually belong.

τφ υίφ τοῦ Θεοῦ] The august title of the antitype marks the dignity of the typical person. See notes on iv. 14. vi. 6.

 $\mu \epsilon \nu \epsilon i \epsilon \rho \epsilon \nu \epsilon s$  So far, that is, as Scripture speaks of him. He is left on the stage of the sacred history without a hint of cessation of office.

είς τὸ διηνεκές] In perpetuity. The phrase occurs only in this Epistle. See x. 1, 12, 14. The word διηνεκής is classical, apparently from φέρω, ήνεγκα, in the sense of continuVII. 4, 5.

Θεωρεῖτε δὲ πηλίκος οὖτος, ῷ δεκάτην 4 'Αβραὰμ ἔδωκεν ἐκ τῶν ἀκροθινίων ὁ πατριάρχης. καὶ οἱ μὲν ἐκ τῶν υἱῶν Λευεὶ τὴν ἱερατείαν 5 ous (bearing right through). It has a curious but superficial resemblance to the Latin perpetuus.

4. Θεωρείτε δε] After marking the typical appropriateness of the names of the man and his abode, and of the mystery lying upon his ancestry and parentage, his birth and death, the sacred writer proceeds to comment upon the two main features of the one recorded event of his life. And first the receiving of the  $\delta\epsilon\kappa\dot{\alpha}\tau\eta$  of the spoils, with which however the other incident, the blessing pronounced by him upon Abraham, becomes intertwined in verse 6, &c.

πηλiκos] Only here and in Gal. vi. 11, πηλiκous γράμμασιν. Not in the Septuagint.

 $\tilde{\varphi}$ ] The alternative reading adds  $\kappa a \lambda$  before  $\delta \epsilon \kappa a \tau \eta \nu$ , belonging however not to  $\delta \epsilon \kappa a \tau \eta \nu$  but to the whole phrase: to whom it is even the case that Abraham gave, &c.

 $\epsilon$ κ τών ἀκροθινίων] Substituted here for ἀπὸ πάντων (verse 2). The change from  $a\pi \dot{a}$  to  $\epsilon\kappa$ prepares us for a difference between the two expressions. Here, out of (taking it from) the best of the spoil. Not, a tenth part of the appobina, but, a tenth part (of the whole spoil) chosen out of the choicest por-This is not mention of it. tioned in the record in Gen. xiv., but is a probable gloss upon it. The word aspobling, the uppermost parts of the heap ( $\theta$ is or  $\theta$ iv), is not used elsewhere in the Septuagint or the New Testament.

ο πατριάρχης] The separation of the title from the name for the sake of emphasis is in the style of the Epistle which deals much in rhetorical trajection. Compare, for example, in xii. 11, the position of δικαιοσήνης. The word πατριάρχης, chief of a πατριά, is applied to David in Acts ii. 29, and to the twelve sons of Jacob in Acts vii. 8, 9. In the latter case the πατρια are equivalent to the tribes, here the πατρια is the nation of Abraham's descendants.

5. καὶ οἱ μέν] And whereas it is the duty of the Levitical priests to tithe their brethren, though sprung (like themselves) λαμβάνοντες έντολην έχουσιν ἀποδεκατοῖν τὸν λαὸν κατὰ τὸν νόμον, τοῦτ' ἔστιν τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς from Abraham, here we see Abraham himself tithed, and that by an alien.

oi] Belongs to  $\lambda \alpha \mu \beta \dot{\alpha} \nu \sigma rres.$ Those of the sons of Levi who take the priesthood. Strictly speaking, indeed, it was the Levites who took tithes of the people, and then the priests took a tenth of the tithe. Compare Num. xviii. 21-24, with verses 26-28 of the same chapter. But this distinction does not affect the sense of the text. The priests may be said with sufficient accuracy to take tithe of the people if they tithe the tithe.

iepareiar] Also in Luke i. 9. In verses 11, 12, 24 the form is iepworivn, which is the priestly office, as iepareia is the priestly service. In the Septuagint, iepworivn is found in I Chron. xxix. 22. Ecclus. xlv. 24. I Macc. ii. 54. iii. 49. vii. 9. But iepareia occurs about three times as often. Exod. xxix. 9, kai éorau airois iepareia èµoì eis ròv alŵva. &c.

λαμβάνοντες] See v. 4, καὶ οὐχ ἑαυτῷ τις λαμβάνει τὴν τιμήν.

 $i v \tau \circ \lambda \eta v$ ] It might have been called an  $i \xi \circ v \sigma (a, a right or pri$ vilege. But it was a precept too, $one of the <math>i v \tau \circ \lambda a$  of the  $v \circ \mu \circ s$ . They lie under a command to carry out the law in this point. For  $i v \tau \circ \lambda \eta$ , see verses 16, 18, in both which it is the precept of appointment, the rule which confined the priesthood to the tribe of Levi and the family of Aaron. In ix. 19 the  $\epsilon vro\lambda \eta$ is any and every precept of the law.

 $a\pi o\delta \epsilon \kappa a \tau o i \nu$  (1) The termination indicates a contraction of - $\delta \epsilon v$ , instead of the usual - $\delta v$ which is properly the contraction of the Æolic termination - $\acute{o}\epsilon\nu$ . (2) The compound verb  $(a\pi o\delta\epsilon\kappa a\tau o\omega)$  is found also in Matt. xxiii. 23. Luke xi. 42. xviii. 12 (Β-εύω). Also in the Septuagint, in Gen. xxviii. 22. δεκάτην αποδεκατώσω αὐτά (I will tithe them a tithe). Deut. xiv. 22. XXVI. 12. I Sam. viii. 15-(3) In all those places the 17. accusative is that of the thing, produce, possession, &c. (rous δούλους of 1 Sam. viii. 16 forms no exception, slaves being regarded as chattels), whereas here it is an accusative of the person from whom the tithe is taken. (4) The  $d\pi d$  merely strengthens the simple δεκατόω. which in verses 6 and 9 has the same construction (an accusative of the person). (5) The classical form is dekateve (with twa or τι).

κατὰ τὸν νόμον] See note on ἐντολήν above. They are under a precept to carry out the law in this matter of the tithing of the people.

 $\tau \circ \hat{v} \tau' \, \check{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \imath \nu$ ] Added to emphasize the dignity of the privilege. It is the high prerogative of the Levites to take tithe of those sprung like themselves from the father of the nation.

6. γενεαλογούμενος] Pedigreed, traced in pedigree. See note on verse 3, αγενεαλόγητος.

 $i\xi$   $a v \tau \hat{\omega} v$ ] By derivation from them, the Levites, as the root and source of his birth.

δεδεκάτωκεν] Has tithed. The perfect is that Scripture perfect of which this Epistle has so many instances. The γέγραπται (so to say) quickens the dead, and gives to the præterite of the history the permanence of a perfect. Compare εὐλόγηκεν below, δεδεκάτωται in verse 9, and κεχρημάτισται in viii. 5. Also xi. 5, 17, 28. &c.

kai  $\tau \delta r$ ] The other particular is thus brought in, but the subject of the tithing is resumed in verse 8.

τὸν ἔχοντα] The possessor of. Him who owned the promises. Compare xi. 17, ὁ τàs ἐπαγγελίας ἀναδεξάμενος.

Another Scripture perfect. See above.

 $\chi \omega \rho i s \delta \epsilon$  And apart 7. from all possibility of contradiction this is true, that the inferior is blessed by the superior (not vice versa). The neuter is used to make the statement as general as possible. Only one comment is made upon the blessing, that it involves a claim of superiority. The father blesses the child, not the child the father. The act of blessing is not a mere prayer; it is a declaration of the divine favour resting upon a person, and therefore can only be pronounced by one who has commission, natural or official, to speak for God to the other. For aντιλογίa, see note on vi. 16. For eulloyeir, on vi. 14. For κρείττων, on i. 4.

τὸ ἐλαττον] John ii. 10, πρῶτον τὸν καλὸν οἶνον τίθησιν, καὶ ὅταν μεθυσθῶσιν τὸν ἐλάσσω.

8. καὶ ὡδὲ μέν] Returning to the former topic, that of the δεκάτη, the remark is made that, whereas under the Levitical system, the title is taken by dying men (see verse 23, διὰ τὸ θανάτψ κωλύεσθαι παραμένειν), in the case of Melchizedek on the conώδε μέν δεκάτας αποθνήσκοντες ανθρωποι λαμ-9 βάνουσιν, έκει δε μαρτυρούμενος ότι ζη. και ώς έπος είπειν, δι' Άβρααμ και Λευεις δ δεκάτας trary it is taken by one of whom testimony is borne, by the mysterious silence of Scripture, this testimony and no other, that he lives. It is an application of the μήτε άρχην ήμερων μήτε  $\zeta ω \hat{\eta} s \tau \epsilon \lambda o s \epsilon \chi ω v of verse 3. The$ object of the comment is to enhance still further the dignity of the Melchizedek priesthood in comparison with the Levitical, by contrasting the earthly lifetimes and constant successions of the latter with the mysterious perpetual present of the former.

ώδε] Here. In the scene constantly before us in the Levitical arrangements. (1) This is one of the many passages in the Epistle which speak of the Law and its ordinances as still in full operation. See ix. 6, 9, civiaouv  $\dots \pi \rho \circ \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \circ \tau a \dots x. 1, 11. xiii.$ 11. &c. (2) For ωδε, see xiii. 14. It is frequent in the four Gospels and Revelation. It occurs twice in the Acts (ix. 14, 21), twice in St Paul (1 Cor. iv. 2, revised text. Col. iv. 9), once in St James (ii. 3, contrasted there, as here, with  $\epsilon \kappa \epsilon \hat{\iota}$ ).

 $a\pi\sigma\theta\nu\eta\sigma\kappa\sigma\tau\epsilons$   $a\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ ] Successively dying human beings. The  $a\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$  applied to the Levitical priests does not of course mean to say that the historical Melchizedek was not  $a\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ . But we see here (as in verse 3) a sort of blending of type and antitype which makes the emphasis on the  $a\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma$ intelligible.

μαρτυρούμενος] One attested or borne witness to. The construction with  $\delta \tau \iota$  is varied into an infinitive in xi. 4, 5.

 $\delta \tau t \langle \hat{\eta} ]$  Without one word about his birth or his death. See verse 3, and note. 'The actual historical Melchizedek no doubt died, but the Melchizedek of the sacred narrative does nothing but live.'

9. kal] I may even go so far as to say, that Levi himself paid tithe to Melchizedek in the person of his ancestor Abraham.

is  $\epsilon \pi \sigma s \epsilon i \pi \epsilon i v$ ] So to say. If I may venture the saying. The phrase (and even the word  $\epsilon \pi \sigma s$ ) occurs only here in Scripture. It is a classical expression in the sense (as here) of a somewhat questionable or hyperbolical statement. Thus it apologizes while it speaks.

δι 'Aβραάμ] Through or by means of Abraham.

δεδεκάτωται] Has been tithed. A Scripture perfect, as δεδεκάτωκεν (verse 6). There may λαμβάνων δεδεκάτωται έτι γὰρ ἐν τη ὀσφύϊ 10 τοῦ πατρὸς ἦν ὅτε συνήντησεν αὐτῷ Μελχισεδέκ.

Εἰ μὲν οὖν τελείωσις διὰ τῆς Λευειτικῆς ἱερω- 13 σύνης ἦν, ὁ λαὸς γὰρ ἐπ' αὐτῆς νενομοθέτηται, also be in the tense the idea of with abiding consequences in the confession thus made of the essential inferiority of the Levitical priesthood to one other.

10. ετι γάρ] 'The justification of the author's position rests not only (1) on the organic connexion between all the individual members of the same family, but also (2) on the divinely ordered connexion of all the developments of the sacred history itself...and (3) on the typical significance of every event in the personal history of Abraham' (Delitzsch). I should rather be inclined to accept the  $\omega_s \in \pi os \in \pi \in \mathcal{V}$  of the sacred writer himself, and read in the statement rather a poetical idea than a philosophical argument.

συνήντησεν] See verse I, and note.

11. El µèv oùv] If then there was perfecting through the Levitical priesthood—or, in other words, through the Levitical law, for the whole legislation turned upon the priesthood—what need was there still for a different priest to arise after the order of Melchizedek, &c.  $\mu \epsilon \nu$ ] The implied antithetical clause with  $\delta \epsilon$  does not actually follow, but is easily supplied. But there was no such  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon \epsilon \omega \sigma \sigma s$ .

τελείωσις] A comparison of ix. 9, κατά συνείδησιν τελειώσαι τον λατρεύοντα, might lead us to regard the perfecting spoken of as the absolution of the sinner by the application to the conscience of an availing propitiation. See also x. 1, 14. But it may be safer to interpret the τελείωσις in the wider sense of consummating, bringing to completeness or maturity, whether of things or persons; comparing the general expression of verse 19, ούδεν γαρ ετελείωσεν ο νόμος, where the neuter ovder seems to contain something more than ovôéva would have done. See note on ii. 10, τελειώσαι.

ό λαὸς γάρ] This parenthetical clause seems to imply such a suppression as that indicated in note on  $\epsilon i$  μèν οὐν above. I say 'priesthood,' but I might say 'law'—for it is on the priesthood that the whole legislation of Israel hangs and turns.

en' aurηs] On it as its turning-point. The reading  $a\dot{v}r\hat{\eta}s$ for  $a\dot{v}r\hat{\eta}$  is decisively attested. For this use of  $i\pi\hat{v}$  with a genitive, compare Matt. xviii. 16,  $i\nu a i\pi\hat{v} \sigma \tau a \mu a \tau \sigma s \delta \nu a \mu a \tau \tau \rho w \eta$  $\tau \rho \iota \omega \nu \sigma \tau a \theta \eta \pi a \nu \rho \eta \mu a. 2 \text{ Cor.}$ xiii. 1. 1 Tim. v. 19.

νενομοθέτηται] Has been legislated, constituted by legislation. (Plato has the expression,  $\eta$  νομοθετουμένη πόλις, the state which is being furnished with laws.) The statement is that the priesthood was the hinge and pivot of the whole Mosaic law. For the word and construction, compare viii. 6, διαθήκης... ητις...νενομοθέτηται.

τίς ἔτι χρεία] What need still. What remaining necessity.

 $[ε_{τερον}]$  The usual difference between  $a\lambda\lambdaos$  (one besides) and  $ε_{τερos}$  (a different one). Gal. i. 6, 7, εἰs  $ε_{τερoν}$  εὐαγγέλιον, δ οὐκ ἐστιν  $a\lambda\lambdao$ . Even where the two are intermixed, as in I Cor. xii. 8—10, and 2 Cor. xi. 4, the distinction is not necessarily obliterated.

àνίστασθαι] To arise, in the general sense of appearing on the scene, not in the more special sense of rising from the dead. So in verse 15. Acts xx. 30, àναστήσονται āνδρες κ.τ.λ. Rom. xv. 12 (from Isai. xi. 10), καὶ ὁ ἀνιστάμενος ἄρχειν ἐθνῶν. Aud 80 ἀνιστάναι, to raise up, to place on the stage of history, Acts iii. 22 (from Deut. xviii. 15), προφήτην ὑμῦν ἀναστήσει Κύριος κ.τ.λ. vii. 37.

καὶ οῦ] Not μή, because the negative belongs not to the verb, but to the phrase κατὰ τὴν τάξικ 'Aapών. And to be spoken of; described or designated, as not after the order of Aaron.

12. μετατιθεμένης γάρ An important change-for, if the priesthood is being displaced, there is necessarily taking place also the displacement of a vóµos. This verse gives the reason for the above suppressed thought. If by the priesthood, then by the law. Thus verse 12 may almost be called a repetition of the parenthesis ( $\delta \lambda a \delta s \gamma a \rho \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$ ) in verse 11. For  $\mu\epsilon\tau a\tau_i\theta\epsilon' vai$ , to change the place of, and so to remove, see xi. 5, μετετέθη... μετέθηκεν...μεταθέσεως. xii. 27. Acts vii. 16, μετετέθησαν είς Συχέμ και ετέθησαν κ.τ.λ. Hence in a less literal sense, Gal. i. 6, ούτως ταχέως μετατίθεσθε κ.τ.λ. Jude 4. Here to change the place of is (practically) to displace.

VII. 12—14.

A law, any law, the law whatever it be, which ordains the priesthood. The difference is not great here between νόμος and ο νόμος, but the form of expression generalizes the definite Levitical law into any law to which a priesthood is attached.

 iφ' δν γάρ] But there

έφ'  $\delta v$ ] With respect to whom. The idea is that of the direction of thought towards. Mark ix. 12, γέγραπται έπὶ τὸν υἱὸν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου κ.τ.λ.

 $\lambda \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \epsilon \tau \alpha i$ ] A more lively form of  $\gamma \dot{\epsilon} \gamma \rho \alpha \pi \tau \alpha i$ . As though the prophecy were in utterance now.

φυλής έτέρας] A different tribe. Judah, not Levi.

μετέσχηκεν] Has partaken of. Is partaker (a member) of. A striking suggestion of the identity of Christ in heaven with Christ upon earth. Eph. iv. 10, ο καταβάς αὐτός ἐστιν καὶ ο ἀναβάς.

a¢' ήs] Starting (proceeding, issuing) from which tribe.

 $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon \sigma \chi \eta \kappa \epsilon v$  Has (up to this time) given heed to, attended to, given attendance at, the altar.

The nearest approach to this use of προσέχειν is in 1 Tim. iv. 13, πρόσεχε τŷ ἀναγνώσει κ.τ.λ. and Acts xx. 28, προσέχετε... παντὶ τῷ ποιμνίῳ...ποιμαίνειν τὴν ἐκκλησίαν κ.τ.λ. For an equivalent phrase, compare 1 Cor. ix. 13, οἱ τῷ θυσιαστηρίῳ παρεδρεύοντες.

θυσιαστηρίω] Exod. xxvii. 1, &c. xxxviii. 1, &c. xl. 6, 29. The altar of burnt-offering is the one  $\checkmark$ intended when no special indication is given of the altar of incense. The latter (Exod. xxx. 1, &c.) is the θυσιαστήριον το χρυσοῦν, or τοῦ θυμιάματος, in contrast with το χαλκοῦν, or τοῦ όλοκαυτώματος. The service of the priests at the altar was (1) <the keeping up of the perpetual fire upon it (Lev. vi. 12, 13); (2) the offering of the morning and evening sacrifice (Exod. xxix. 38, 39); (3) the being ever at hand to offer the sacrifices of rich and poor, of the leper, the Nazarite, &c.

14.  $\pi\rho\delta\eta\lambda\sigma\nu$   $\gamma\delta\rho$ ] The Hebrew Christian can be appealed to as a believer alike in the prophecies about the Messiah and in their fulfilment in Jesus Christ. The compound  $\pi\rho\delta\eta\lambda$ os, manifest forth, plain to view, occurs (in the New avatétalker] Has sprung. See note on verse 13, µετέσχηκεν. The verb avatéλλειν in the New Testament is always (except Luke xii. 54, νεφέλην ανατέλλουσαν από δυσμών) used of light. Matt. v. 45, ror yhior avroù avarédder. xiii. 6. Mark iv. 6. xvi. 2. James i. 11. 2 Pet. i. 19. In the Septuagint it is frequent in the same sense (as, for example, Num. xxiv. 17, άνατελεί αστρον έξ Ίακώβ. Ιsai. lx. 1, ή δόξα Κυρίου ἐπὶ σὲ ἀνατέταλκεν. Mal. iv. 2, ανατελεί υμιν...ηλιος δικαιοσύνης), but is equally often used in the sense of vegetation. Gen. xix. 25, 7à ανατέλλοντα έκ της γης. Isai. xliv. 4, ανατελούσιν ωσεί χόρτος avaμέσον ύδατος. Ezek. xvii. 6, ανέτειλε και εγένετο είς αμπελον κ.τ.λ. Zech. vi. 12, ίδου  $dv \eta \rho$ , άνατολή δνομα αύτφ, και ύποκάτωθεν αυτού ανατελεί κ.τ.λ. There can be no doubt that the latter is the figure here, where there is no hint of a startling metaphor.

ο Κύριος ήμων] Without addition, as in 2 Tim. i. 8, το μαρτύριον τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν. 2 Pet. iii. 15, τὴν τοῦ Κυρίου ἡμῶν μακροθυμίαν.

εἰς ήν] As to, with regard to, which. Acts ii. 25, Δαυείδ γὰρ λέγει εἰς αὐτόν. Eph. v. 32, ἐγὼ δὲ λέγω εἰς Χριστὸν καὶ εἰς τὴν ἐκκλησίαν. I Pet. i. II, εἰς τίνα ἡ ποῖον καιρὸν ἐδήλου τὸ ἐν αὐτοῦς πνεῦμα Χριστοῦ.

περì iερέων] About priests. More graphic than the received reading περì iερωσύνης.

15. και περισσότερον έτι] And this insufficiency and consequent supersession of the Levitical priesthood is still more conclusively proved by the particular designation of the predicted priest (in Psalm cx. 4) as a priest after the likeness of Melchizedek.

περισσότερον] vi. 17. And see note on ii. 1, περισσοτέρως.

κατάδηλον] Another compound of δήλος, like πρόδηλος above. Literally, downright evident. Both compounds are classical. But κατάδηλος is not found elsewhere in the Septuagint or the New Testament.

åνίσταται] See note on verse 11.

16.  $\delta s$ ] Who, as such—as being a priest after Melchizedek's likeness—must possess what we have seen to be a characteristic of Melchizedek, a  $\zeta w \eta$  without  $\delta p \chi \eta$  or  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \delta s$  (in the sense explained above). See verses 3 and 8,  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho o \prime \mu \epsilon v o s$   $\delta \tau \iota \zeta \eta$ , and notes.

οὐ κατὰ νόμον] Not in accordance with a νόμος of (characterized by, having for its characteristic) an ἐντολὴ σαρκίνη, but in accordance with a δύναμις of (belonging to, inseparable from) a ζωὴ ἀκατάλυτος.

νόμον] Without the article. See note on verse 12, νόμου.

έντολ $\hat{\eta}$ s] Such as that which prescribed the tribe and family of the Mosaic priest. See note on verse 5, έντολ $\hat{\eta}$ ν.

 $\sigma a \rho \kappa i \gamma s$ ] The received reading here is  $\sigma a \rho \kappa i \kappa \hat{\gamma} s$ , but there can be no doubt as to the authority and advantage of the change. The distinction between  $\sigma a \rho \kappa i \kappa \delta s$  is that between material (carneus, of flesh) and resemblance (carnalis, flesh like). The  $i \tau ro\lambda \eta$  was  $\sigma a \rho \kappa i \eta$ , because it dealt with  $\sigma a \rho \xi$ , not with  $\pi \nu \epsilon \hat{\nu} \mu a$ . It was not  $\sigma a \rho \kappa \iota \kappa \eta$ , because it was a divine  $i \tau ro\lambda \eta$  while it lasted, and gave no encouragement to the working of the  $\sigma a \rho \xi$  for evil.

 $\gamma \epsilon \gamma ov \epsilon v$ ] Has become such (ispecies). The perfect tense, because the priesthood is permanent.

άλλα κατα δύναμιν] Christ's priesthood is not one of νόμος but of δύναμις. It is His in virtus of a potency inseparable from an indestructible life. The typical Melchizedek had this indestructible life only from the studied mysteriousness of the Scripture record of him. Christ the antitype of Melchizedek has it in right of His resurrection to die no more. Rom. vi. 9,  $X\rho_{I}$ στος έγερθείς έκ νεκρῶν οὐκέτι άποθνήσκε....δ δὲ ζῆ, ζῆ τῷ Θεῷ.

άκαταλύτου] Only here. For καταλύειν, the opposite of οἰκοδομεῖν, see Matt. xxvi. 61, δύναμαι καταλῦσαι τὸν ναὸν τοῦ Θεοῦ καὶ διὰ τριῶν ἡμερῶν οἰκοδομῆσαι. 2 Cor. v. 1, ἐὰν ἡ ἐπίγειος ἡμῶν οἰκία τοῦ σκήνους καταλυθῆ, οἰκοδομὴν ἐκ Θεοῦ ἔχομεν, οἰκίαν ἀχειροποίητον κ.τ.λ. Gal. ii. 18, εἰ γὰρ ἅ κατέλυσα, ταῦτα πάλιν οἰκοδομῶ κ.τ.λ.

M. which has been shown (verses 8 and 16) to involve the same idea of perpetuity.

μαρτυρείται] He (the ἰερεὺς ἐτερος) is attested, borne witness to as follows. For the construction, see verse 8. Also xi. 2, 4, 5, 39. Rom. iii. 21. I Tim. v. 10. 18.  $\dot{a}\theta$ . μèν γάρ] Reason for the substitution of a new priesthood, as asserted above. The μèν is answered by ἐπεισαγωγή δè below.

άθέτησις] See also ix. 26, εἰs ἀθέτησιν τῆς ἀμαρτίας. For ἀθετεῖν (from ἄθετος, placeless), to set aside, see x. 28. Also Mark vi. 26, οὐκ ἡθέλησεν ἀθετῆσαι αὐτήν. Vii. 9, ἀθετεῖτε τὴν ἐντολήν.  $\gamma$ iveral Comes to pass, as implied in the prophecy of Psalm cx. 4. The tense implies that the change is in progress. It was not completed till the destruction of Jerusalem and the compulsory cessation of the temple ritual.

προαγούσης] Preceding. The verb  $\pi poáyew$  sometimes has a case, as in Matt. ii. 9,  $\delta$  a  $\sigma \tau \eta \rho \dots$ .  $\pi po \eta \gamma w$  a  $\tau \sigma \sigma v s$ . xiv. 22. xxi. 9, 31. xxvi. 32. xxviii. 7. Mark x. 32. xiv. 28. xvi. 7. (In Acts xii. 6. xvi. 30. xxv. 26, it has the more obvious meaning to lead or bring forth or forward.) Sometimes, as here, it is used absolutely, to lead the way. Mark xi. 9. Luke xviii. 39. 1 Tim. i. 18. v. 24. 2 John 9,  $\pi a s \delta$   $\pi po a \gamma w (who goes forward).$

άσθενές] Compare Gal. iv. 9, τὰ ἀσθενῆ καὶ πτωχὰ στοιχεῖα. The weakness of the Levitical ἐντολὴ of the priesthood was shown in its inability κατὰ συνείδησιν τελειώσαι τὸν λατρεύοντα (ix. 9) by applying to the conscience of sins (x. 2) a really availing propitiation. Rom. viii. 3, τὸ ἀδύνατον τοῦ νόμου.

 $\dot{a}v\omega\phi\epsilon\lambda\epsilon_{s}$  Tit. iii. 9,  $\dot{a}v\omega-\phi\epsilon\lambda\epsilon_{s}$  καὶ μάταιοι. The uselessness (unhelpfulness) of the priesthood was proved by its inability to aid men in that  $\dot{\epsilon}\gamma\gamma(\zeta\epsilon_{uv} \tau \hat{\psi})$  $\Theta\epsilon\hat{\psi}$  which is their one want.

19. οὐδὲν γάρ] For the law perfected nothing. The ἐντολη ἐτελείωσεν ὁ νόμος, ἐπεισαγωγὴ δὲ κρείττονος ἐλπίδος, δι΄ ἦς ἐγγίζομεν τῷ Θεῷ. καὶ καθ 20 ὅσον οι χωρὶς ὁρκωμοσίας—οἱ μὲν γὰρ χωρὶς which established the Levitical priesthood was weak and unprofitable, because the  $\nu \phi \mu os$  (of which the priesthood was the hinge and pivot) was itself incapable of perfecting anything.

έτελείωσεν] The law brought nothing to maturity (see note on v. 14, τελείων). It was a system of στοιχεία suitable to the νήπιος, dealing with types and shadows, not with substance and reality.

έπεισαγωγγ) δε] Answering to αθέτησις μèν above. The word is quite classical, but it occurs only here in the New Testament and the Septuagint. From έπεισάγειν, to bring in above or besides. An introduction (into the world) in the way of addition, completion, or supersession, by the Author of the foregoing dispensation.

κρείττονος  $i\lambda\pi(\delta o_{S})$  A hope superior (in clearness, compass, and satisfaction) to that which the Law had to offer in its types and ceremonies.

δι  $\eta s$ ] By means of which hope, of forgiveness and absolution revealed in Christ, we draw nigh to God. James iv. 8,  $\epsilon \gamma \gamma i$ σατε τ $\hat{\psi}$  Θε $\hat{\psi}$ , καὶ  $\epsilon \gamma \gamma i \epsilon \hat{\psi} \mu \hat{\nu}$ . The idea is that of Rom. v. 2, δι' οῦ καὶ τὴν προσαγωγὴν ἐσχήκαμεν. Eph. ii. 18, δι' αὐτοῦ έχομεν την προσαγωγην...έν ένι πνεύματι πρός τόν Πατέρα. iii. 12. In the Old Testament we have the limitation and prohibition of this drawing nigh, as in Exod. xix. 21, διαμάρτυραι τῷ λαῷ μήποτε εγγίσωσι πρὸς τὸν Θεόν κατανοήσαι καὶ πέση (Α, πέσωσιν Β) έξ αὐτῶν πληθος. xxiv. 2, έγγιει Μωυσής μόνος προς τον Θεόν, αυτοί δε ούκ εγγιούσιν. Something of the universal Christian priesthood is seen in the text, as in x. 19-22. Compare the characteristic of priesthood in Exod. xix. 22, of ίερεις οι εγγίζοντες Κυρίω τώ Θεώ. Novo all are priests: 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9.

20. καὶ καθ ὄσον] A further point of superiority of the Melchizedek priest over the Levitical. The solemn ὅρκωμοσία of Psalm cx. 4 gives a unique dignity not only to the person of the Melchizedek Priest, but to the διαθήκη of which he is έγγυος. The sentence is broken by the parenthesis, ol μèν γὰρ κ.τ.λ. Either γίνεται (from verse 18) or γέγονεν lepeùs may be mentally supplied.

όρκωμοσίας] In the New Testament the word is found only in this passage. In the

 22 εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα—κατὰ τοσοῦτο καὶ κρείττονος

Septuagint it occurs in Ezek. xvii. 18, 19, καὶ ἠτίμασεν (A, ἠτίμωσεν B) ὀρκωμοσίαν τοῦ παραβῆναι διαθήκην κ.τ.λ. I Esdr. viii. 90 (93 B), γινέσθω ἡμῖν ὀρκωμοσία προς τον Κύριον.

oi µév] The Levitical priests.

elσìv lep. γεγονότες] Are having become priests—are priests having become so—without any swearing of an oath.

21. ο δί] The Melchizedek Priest. Understand from above, έστιν ίερεὺς γεγονώς.

διά] Through. Not to be tied to the word δρκωμοσίας, but rather dependent upon the whole clause ἐστὶν ἰερεὺς γεγονώς μ. ὅ. Having become so (withthis peculiar feature of dignity)by means of Him who so addresses Him.

τοῦ λέγοντος] The present tense here carries something of the same thought (of the permanence and perpetuity of Scripture) which has been noticed above in the perfects δεδεκάτωκεν, εὐλόγηκεν, &c. Not εἰπόντος (said) but λέγοντος (says, is saying).

μεταμεληθήσεται] The future and aorist of μεταμέλεσθαι are passive in form only. See Matt. xxi. 29, 32, υστερον δὲ μεταμεληθείς απήλθεν κ.τ.λ. xxvii. And so in the Septuagint, 3. I Sam. xv. 35, kai Kúpios µereμελήθη ότι κ.τ.λ. I Chron. xxi. 15. Psalm cvi. 45. Jer. xx. 16. Ezek. xiv. 22, καὶ μεταμεληθήσεσθε κ.τ.λ. In 2 Cor. vii. 8 we have metamélopai and *mete*μελόμην. Zech. xi. 5, καὶ οὐ The impersonal μετεμέλοντο. μεταμέλει is found in Exod. xiii. 17, μήποτε μεταμελήση τῷ λαῷ ίδόντι πόλεμον. The distinction between metavoeiv (to have an after-mind, to repent) and µeraμέλεσθαι (to have an after-care, to regret) is never lost in the Scripture use of the two words. The Revised Version has sought to mark (if not to express) the difference by using to repent for  $\mu \epsilon \tau a vo \epsilon v$ , and to repent oneself for μεταμέλεσθαι.

eis rov aiŵva] Here the quotation ends according to the Vatican and Sinaitic manuscripts and the Vulgate.

22. κατὰ τοσοῦτο] Belongs to κρείττονος. In the same degree is the διαθήκη of which Jesus has become ἔγγυος superior to the διαθήκη which preceded it. The κατὰ τοσοῦτο points back to the καθ ὄσον, and says, In the same degree in which it is

διαθήκης] From διατιθέναι (disponere, to set or place in distribution, to arrange) διαθήκη has the comprehensive sense of an arrangement, whether of relations (covenant) or of possessions (testament). In classical Greek the latter use predominates, though the former also is found. In the Septuagint and the New Testament the former is invariable, except in Heb. ix. 16, &c., where the preceding barátov and klyporopias prepare us for the argument from διαθήκη as testament, a sense naturally occurring to a Greek writer. Examples of covenant in all connexions are frequent in the Septuagint. Between individuals (as 1 Sam. xxiii. 18. Mal. ii. 14), between nations (as Josh. ix. 6), between God and man, whether as an engagement of special blessing on God's part (as Gen. xv. 18. Isai. lix. 21) or of special devotion on man's part (as 2 Chron. xv. Jer. l. 5). The mutual 12. idea is never wholly lost, but is thrown into the shade by the disparity of the parties, so that the real meaning of διαθήκη (in its divine application) is a gracious engagement of God on man's behalf. Thus a divine covenant approaches very nearly to the sense of testament, which is a disposal of property by the free will of the disposer.

έγγυος] The word (used in this sense of έγγυητής, a surety, one who gives security for, by Xenophon and Aristotle) occurs only here in the Septuagint or the New Testament. Elsewhere we have μεσίτης in the same connexion with διαθήκη (viii. 6. ix. 15. xii. 24). But έγγυος adds the further thought of one who makes himself responsible for the validity and effectuation of the διαθήκη.

23. val of  $\mu \epsilon \nu$ ] A further and last point of superiority. And whereas they (the Levitical priests) are plural in number, because death prevents their permanence in office, the Melchizedek Priest, on the contrary, holds his office in sole and inviolable perpetuity.

πλείονες] Plural, more than one. Or somewhat many. This use of πλείων, without a genitive or ϑ following, seems to be peculiar (in the New Testament) to St Luke. Luke xi. 53. Acts xiii. 31, ἐπὶ ἡμέρας πλείους. xxi. 10. xxiv. 17, δι' ἐτῶν πλειόνων. xxv. 14. xxvii. 20. xxviii. 23, ἡλθον πρὸς αὐτὸν πλείονες. In this use it seems nearly equivalent to πολλοί, just as oi πλείονες (1 Cor. ix. 19. 2 Cor. ii. 6. iv. 15. ix. 2. Phil. i. 14) to oi πολλοί.

 $\pi\lambda$ . elsur yey. ispeis] Are having become priests plural in number. Are priests in the plural number, having become so by reason of their being prevented by death from remaining (in office).

θανάτω] Dative of the instrument. See vi. 17, ὄρκω. Eph. i. 13, τῷ πνεύματι. Phil. iii. 3, πνεύματι Θεοῦ. 1 Pet. i. 18, οὐ φθαρτοῖς κ.τ.λ.

κωλύεσθαι] The passive of κωλύειν is found only (besides) in Acts xvi. 6, κωλυθέντες...λαλησαι. Rom. i. 13.

παραμάνειν] In I Cor. xvi. 6 (where, however, some read καταμενώ) with προς ύμας. In Phil. i. 25 with πασιν ύμιν. Here, and in James i. 25, with no preposition or case following. To remain along, where one is, in life or position.

24. δδε] The Priest of the prophecy. The Melchizedek Priest.

eis ròv aiŵva] Quoted from the prophecy of Psalm cx. 4.

απαράβατον έχει τ. ί.] Has the (or His) priesthood as one not to be invaded. Like αβατος, έπιβατός, ύπερβατός, &c., παραβατός is passive, not active, in sense, and ἀπαράβατος is not one that cannot pass away, and so unchangeable, but one that cannot be transgressed, cannot have its boundary stepped over, and so inviolable in its sole possession, its unique tenure.

25.  $\delta\theta \epsilon v$ ] See note on ii. 17. As the result of all which, specially of the last thought.

σώζειν] See notes on i. 14, σωτηρίαν, and v. 7, σώζειν.

eis tò  $\pi a \nu \tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon s$ ] Compare Luke xiii. 11,  $\mu \eta$  δυναμένη ἀνακύψαι εἰs τὸ  $\pi a \nu \tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon s$  (where it may belong either to ἀνακύψα, unable completely to straighten herself; or to  $\mu \eta$  δυναμένη, completely unable, &c.). From  $\pi a \nu$  $\tau \epsilon \lambda \eta s$ , complete, entire, εἰs τὸ  $\pi$ . is unto (so as to result in) that which is complete, and is nearly equivalent to  $\pi a \nu \tau \epsilon \lambda \phi s$ , for which see 2 Macc. iii. 12. &c.

δι αὐτοῦ] Through Him as their Priest. See ii. 17. iv. 14-16.

άτυγχάνειν] From the primary sense of the word, to light upon, to fall in with, comes that of applying to, making entreaty to; whether as man to man (Acts XXV. 24,  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ) où ảπαν τὸ  $\pi\lambda\eta\theta$ os τῶν Ἰουδαίων ἐνέτυχόν μοι), or as man to God (Rom. xi. 2, ὡs ἐντυγχάνει τῷ Θεῷ κατὰ τοῦ Ἰοραήλ), or as the Holy Spirit (Rom. viii. 27) or Christ to God, here, and in Rom. viii. 34, Χριστὸs ὁ ἀποθανών, μᾶλλον δὲ ἐγερθεὶs...ὑs καὶ ἐντυγχάνει ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν. The idea of intercession lies not in the word, but in the ὑπὲρ following or sometimes compounded with it (Rom. viii. 26, ὑπερεντυγχάνει).

26. Towers  $\gamma \alpha \rho$ ] A closing reason for the incomparable greatness of the new priesthood. We are bidden to reflect upon its exact adaptation to our case and need.

καὶ ἔπρεπεν] The καὶ is doubtful as a reading. If inserted, it will be also. Besides being our Priest, He also suited our need. For πρέπειν, here (alone in the New Testament) with a personal nominative, see note on ii. 10. Compare Psalm lxv. 1, σοὶ πρέπει ὕμνος, ὁ Θεός, ἐν Σιών. xxxiii. 1, τοῖς εὐθέσι πρέπει ἡ aἶνεσις. xciii. 5.

όσιος] Rarely used in the New Testament. Only eight times, of which three are quotations from the Septuagint. Acts ii. 27 and xiii. 5 (from Psalm xvi. 10), ού δώσεις τον οσιόν σου ίδειν διαφθοράν. xiii. 34 (from Isai. Iv. 3), τὰ όσια Δαυείδ τὰ πιστά. 1 Tim. ii. 8, επαίροντας όσίους χείρας. Tit. i. 8, σώφρονα, δίκαιον, όσιον, έγκρατή. Rev. xv. 4, ori póvos orios. xvi. 5, díkaios el...oous. In the Septuagint it is frequent, occurring (with its cognate forms δσιόω and δσιό- $\tau\eta s$ ) more than 50 times, of which half are in the Psalms. Its predominant sense is holy or saintly in character, whereas ayios is rather holy or sacred by consecration. The third word of the group, iepós, is found but in two places of the New Testament (1 Cor. ix. 13. 2 Tim. iii. 15), and in the Septuagint (as an adjective) only in Josh. vi. 8 (έπτα σάλπιγγας ίεράς) and four times in 2 Macc. It may be suggested that or ios alone speaks of personal holiness, and that, while both ayios and ispòs deal with consecration, icpos is applied by preference to things, ayuos either to things or persons.

άμαρτωλῶν, καὶ ὑψηλότερος τῶν οὐρανῶν γενό-27 μενος· ὃς οὐκ ἔχει καθ ἡμέραν ἀνάγκην, ὥσπερ καρδίας τών ακάκων. It is more frequent in the Septuagint, especially in Proverbs, where in ii. 21 (A) arakou is placed in parallelism with xpyoroi, in xiii. 6 (A) it is made the opposite of aσeβeîs, while in Psalm xxv. 21 it is associated with  $\epsilon \vartheta \epsilon \epsilon s$ . By usage it is not so much innocent in the sense of freedom from evil as in that of freedom from guile, simple; sometimes even to a fault, as in Prov. xiv. 15, arakos πιστεύει παντί λόγφ. Here guileless; akin to the thought of I Pet. ii. 22, οὐδὲ εὖρέθη δόλος ἐν τῷ στόματι αὐτοῦ. Compare Jer. xi. 19, езий бе из арчион акакон αγόμενον τοῦ θύεσθαι κ.τ.λ.

άμίαντος] xiii. 4. James i. 27, θρησκεία καθαρά καὶ ἀμίαντος. 1 Pet. i. 4, εἰς κληρονομίαν ἀφθαρτον καὶ ἀμίαντον καὶ ἀμάραντον. In the Septuagint, Wisd. iii. 13. iv. 2. viii. 20. 2 Macc. xiv. 36.

κεχωρ. ἀπὸ τῶν ἀμ.] This must be interpreted consistently with ii. 17 and iv. 15. The separateness spoken of might be understood as either from contaminating influences (the χωρὶs ἀμαρτίαs of iv. 15) or from the reach of blasphemy or violence (the ἀντιλογία of xii. 3). Yet the former idea would almost repeat the three epithets preceding, and the latter seems scarcely to suit the tenderness and elevation of the passage. May it perhaps be a feature of dignity, preparatory to the clause following? The local separateness implies no spiritual barrier: rather it is essential to the exercise of the mediatorial intercession, and even to the universal and impartial accessibility (compare Eph. iv. 10, iva  $\pi \lambda \eta \rho \omega \sigma \eta$ τα πάντα). The word χωρίζειν is not rare in the New Testament and the Septuagint. But there is no special appropriateness in any of its occurrences in either to this passage.

 $\dot{v}\psi\eta\lambda\dot{\sigma}\epsilon\rho\sigmas$  τῶν σὖρ.] See note on iv. 14. The comparative  $\dot{v}\psi\eta\lambda\dot{\sigma}\epsilon\rho\sigmas$  seems to be found only here and in Dan. viii. 3. For the sense, compare Eph. iv. 10, ὁ ἀναβὰς ὑπεράνω πάντων τῶν οὐρανῶν.

γενόμενος] See Eph. i. 20, καὶ καθίσας ἐν δεξιῷ αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῖς ἐπουρανίοις. Phil. ii. 9, διὸ καὶ ὁ Θεὸς αὐτὸν ὑπερύψωσεν κ.τ.λ.

27.  $\kappa a\theta' \dot{\eta}\mu \epsilon \rho a\nu$ ] The phrase  $\kappa a\tau' \dot{\epsilon} \nu \iota a v \tau \dot{\circ} \nu$  would have more exactly suited the some  $\rho \circ i d\rho \chi \iota \epsilon - \rho \epsilon \hat{\epsilon} s$  following. For the Levitical atonement for priests and people was made only once a year. See ix. 7, 25,  $\ddot{a}\pi a\xi$  roù  $\dot{\epsilon} \nu \iota a v \tau o \dot{\nu} \kappa \tau . \lambda$  x. 1, 2. But the principle is the same. A repeated sacrifice of propitiation, if needed at all, is needed perpetually. For the phrase  $\dot{a}\nu \dot{a}\gamma$ .

oi ἀρχιερεῖς] The successive high-priests of the order of Aaron. For the reference is to the ceremonies of the day of Atonement in which μόνος ὁ ἀρχιερεὺς (ix. 7) officiated.

 $\pi\rho \delta \tau \epsilon \rho \sigma v \dots \epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \tau a$ ] Study Lev. xvi., distinguishing the sinoffering of the bullock (verses 11-14), from the sin-offering of the goat (verses 15, 16).

aνaφ ερειν For the uses of προσφερειν and aνaφ ερειν, see note on v. I, προσφερη.

τοῦτο γὰρ ἐποίησεν] What is rouro here? Does it include υπέρ των ίδίων as well as των τοῦ  $\lambda a o \hat{v}$ ? The question answers itself. To say so would be to contradict the whole language of the Epistle (as well as of Scripture throughout) as to the sinlessness of Christ. In many places a text may be found which, taken by itself and isolated from all others, might seem to be capable of an Arian or Socinian meaning. But confront it with the tenor of Scripture, and all is consistency. It is so here.

èφάπαξ] An emphasized åπαξ. Sometimes (1) at once, as I Cor. XV. 6, πεντακοσίοις ἀδελφοῖς ἐφάπαξ. More often (2) once for all, as in ix. 12, εἰσῆλθεν ἐφάπαξ εἰς τὰ ἀγια. X. 10. Rom. Vi. 10, τỹ ἀμαρτία ἀπέθανεν ἐφάπαξ. Notused in the Septuagint.

ἐαυτόν] ix. 14, 25, ἐαυτόν προσήνεγκεν...προσφέρῃ ἐαυτόν. Gal. i. 4, τοῦ δόντος ἑαυτόν περὶ τῶν ἀμαρτιῶν ἡμῶν. ii. 20, τοῦ παραδόντος ἑαυτὸν ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ. Eph. v. 2, 25. 1 Tim. ii. 6, ὅ δοὺς ἑαυτὸν ἀντίλυτρον ὑπὲρ πάντων. Tit. ii. 14. Elsewhere τὴν ψυχήν, Matt. xx. 28. Mark x. 45. Or τὴν σάρκα, John vi. 51. Or τὸ σῶμα, Heb. x. 10.

averéykas] The reading of the great manuscripts varies between averéykas and  $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon r \epsilon \gamma \kappa \kappa \kappa s$ . See again note on v. 1,  $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta$ .

28.  $\dot{a}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma\sigma$ ] See verse 8,  $\dot{a}\pi\sigma\theta\nu\eta\sigma\kappa\sigma\sigma\sigma$ , Here  $\dot{a}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\sigma\sigma\sigma$ , alone bears the stress. Human beings. See Gal. i. 10. There is no denial here of the true humanity of Christ, which is so prominent in this Epistle (compare 1 Tim. ii. 5, els kai  $\mu\epsilon\sigma(i\gamma s \otimes \epsilon\sigma)$  kai  $\dot{a}\nu\theta\rho\omega\pi\omega\sigma$ ,  $\ddot{a}\nu$ - θρωπος Χριστός Ίησοῦς), but only the assertion of the true divinity. The implied thought is, mere human beings.

καθίστησιν] See note on v. 1, καθίσταται.

ἐχοντας] Having (as all mere men have). See v. 2. Christ Himself was, but is not, compassed with infirmity. See 2 Cor. xiii. 4, καὶ γὰρ ἐσταυρώθη ἐξ ἀσθενείας, ἀλλὰ ζῆ ἐκ δυνάμεως Θεοῦ.

ό λόγος δέ] But the word of (belonging, attached, or appended, to) the όρκωμοσία of which we are speaking. The λόγος is the divine declaration of Psalm cx. 4, Σù iερεὺς εἰς τὸν alŵva κ.τ.λ. And the όρκωμοσία is the ὤμοσεν κύριος κ.τ.λ. which prefaces and sanctions that declaration.

τη̂ς μετὰ τ. ν.] Which is later in time than, and comes to supersede, the νόμος of which the rule of the Aaronic priesthood was one ἐντολή. The argument based upon this μετὰ is thus the converse of that drawn from another μετὰ in Gal. iii. 17. There the νόμος which was later in time cannot cancel the διαθήκη of the earlier ἐπαγγελία. It was not meant to do so. It was a parenthetical institution, leaving the original promise untouched. But the  $\delta\rho\kappa\omega\mu\sigma\sigma ia$  of the Melchizedek priesthood was meant, by the Author of both, to cancel the  $i\nu\tau\sigma\lambda\eta$  of the Aaronic priesthood, and with it the  $\nu\delta\mu\sigma$ s which hung upon it.

vióv] Understand καθίστησιν. The prophecy of Psalm cx. 4 is itself the introducer and establisher of the new priesthood. For the absence of the article with vióv, laying the stress upon the quality, One who is Son (not  $åv θ\rho \omega \pi os$  as His definition), see notes on i. 2 and v. 8.

τετελειωμένον] The general idea of consummated is here defined by the context into the more special one of consecrated. See note on ii. 10, τελειώσαι.

VIII. Ι. Κεφάλαιον δέ] We are passing from the first to the second sub-section of the third main comparison (Christ and Aaron); from the priesthood to the sanctuary. But, as usual, the transition is made quietly and silently, only revealing itself in retrospect. The construction of the first clause is that of an accusative in apposition with the sentence, containing, in fact, that which is the equivalent of the statement. And as a main point crowning  $(\epsilon \pi i)$  our statement [we say this -- namely, that] we have, &c. Such an accusa# έχομεν ἀρχιερέα ὃς ἐκάθισεν ἐν δεξιậ τοῦ θρόνου τῆς μεγαλωσύνης ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς, τῶν ἁγίων 2

tive is generally placed at the end, not the beginning, of the sentence. See Rom. xii. I, Thy λογικήν λατρείαν ύμων. I Tim. ii. 6, το μαρτύριον καιροίς ίδίοις. The seeming exceptions, in Rom. viii. 3 (το γάρ αδύνατον του νόμου) and 2 Cor. vi. 13 (την δε αύτην αντιμισθίαν), admit of a different explanation (see note on Rom. viii. 3). The passage before us may, however, give support to the like interpretation in those places also.

κεφάλαιον] This substantive (properly the neuter of an adjective) has two principal uses: (1) a capital, chief, or crowning particular, a main point; (2) a sum (of money, as Acts xxii. 28; principal, distinguished from interest, as Lev. vi. 5. Num. v. 7; or of a column of figures or items, as Num. iv. 2. xxxi. 26, 49) or summary (of proofs or arguments). Here the ini following (instead of  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \lambda \epsilon \gamma \rho \mu \epsilon \nu \omega \nu$ ) decides in favour of the former, and makes the sense this: As a capital upon the things which are being said—as a thought (or fact) forming the headstone of the argument—we add this; namely, that our High Priest is one who (after all else done) took His seat on the right hand of the throne of God. Thus the new topic, that of the sanctuary or place of ministration, is introduced as the completion or crown of the former, that of the nature of the priesthood.

τοῖς λεγομένοις] The things which are being said. The discussion is still going on. See Luke xviii. 34, οὐκ ἐγίνωσκον τὰ λεγόμενα. Acts viii. 6, προσεῖχον δὲ οἱ ὅχλοι τοῖς λεγομένοις ὑπὸ τοῦ Φιλίππου.

τοιοῦτον] Not such as we have said, adding ὅς ἐκάθισεν κ.τ.λ. as a merely subordinate particular. But τοιοῦτον ὅς ἐκάθισεν, such as took His seat. The description of Him is this —that He ἐκάθισεν κ.τ.λ. For τοιοῦτος answered by ὅς (as often in classical Greek) instead of oἶoς (I Cor. xv. 48) or ὅποῦς (Acts xxvi. 29), see I Cor. v. I, καὶ τοιαύτη π. ἦτις κ.τ.λ. Compare Philem. 9, τοιοῦτος ὡν ὡς Παῦλος πρεσβύτης κ.τ.λ.

έν δεξιậ] On the right hand of the throne of majesty, in the heavens. See notes on i. 3, ἐκάθισεν ἐν δεξιậ τῆς μεγαλωσύνης, and ἐν ὑψηλοῖς. The only difference between the two passages lies in the insertion here of τοῦ θρόνου before τῆς μεγαλωσύνης, which shows all the more clearly that the ἐν clause is separate, and goes back to ἐκάθυσεν.

2.  $\tau \hat{\omega} r \hat{\alpha} \gamma (\omega r)$  Called once

(in ix. 3) by its full title, äyia ayíwv, but elsewhere (ix. 8, 12, 25. x. 19. xiii. 11) simply ra äyia. It is the holy of holies, the inner chamber of the tabernacle. Here the antitype of the material holy of holies; the aùròs o oùpavòs of ix. 24.

τών αγίων...και τής σκηνής] Are we to distinguish here between the antitypal ayua and the antitypal  $\sigma \kappa \eta \nu \eta$ , regarding the latter as the outer sanctuary, the scene of divine manifestation to saints and Angels, and the former as that of the divine presence itself? Or is it that the ann includes both-as if it were, the holy of holies, and indeed the ornyry as a whole? The limitation of  $\sigma \kappa \eta \nu \eta$  to the outer chamber seems to find support in Lev. xvi. 16, rai εξιλάσεται το αγιον...και ούτω ποιήσει τη σκηνή κ.τ.λ.

λειτουργός] See note on i. 7, λειτουργούς.

 $\sigma\kappa\eta\eta\eta$ s] Here first we reach the word which naturally becomes so prominent in this subsection, which is that of the sanctuary. In other books of the New Testament  $\sigma\kappa\eta\eta\eta$  occurs but 10 times (only as often as in this one Epistle), and only once (Acts vii. 44) in the special sense of the Levitical tabernacle. Akin perhaps to  $\sigma\kappa\iota\alpha$  and  $\sigma\kappa\epsilon\pi\eta$ , it passes from the general idea of (1) a booth of leafy boughs (Lev. xxiii. 42, and the  $\sigma\kappa\eta\nu\sigma$ -

Heb. xi. 9), or of (3) a hut of planks and boards, into that of (4) a movable shrine or sanctuary, sometimes of a false deity (Amos v. 26. Acts vii. 43), or, in particular, that of (5) the Levitical tabernacle (Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, &c.) or (6) its heavenly antitype (as here, and Rev. xiii. 6. xv. 5. xxi. 3).

aληθινής] Real, as distinguished from apparent. Here antitypical as opposed to typical. Compare Luke xvi. 11. Rev. iii. 7, 14. vi. 10, δ δεσπότης δ άγιος και άληθινός. xv. 3, δίκαιαι και άληθιναι αι όδοί σου. χνι. 7. xix. 2, 9, 11. xxi. 5 obros of έπηξεν ό Κύριος, οὐκ ἄνθρωπος. πῶς γὰρ ἀρχιε- 3 ρεὺς εἰς τὸ προσφέρειν δῶρά τε καὶ θυσίας καθίσταται· ὅθεν ἀναγκαῖον ἔχειν τι καὶ τοῦτον ὃ προσενέγκη. εἰ μὲν οὖν ἦν ἐπὶ γῆς, οὐδ' ἂν 4

ην έπηξεν] The contrast is that of ix. 24, ου γαρ εἰς χειροποίητα εἰσηλθεν ẵγια Χριστός... ἀλλ' εἰς αὐτὸν τὸν οὐρανόν. Compare Mark xiv. 58, τὸν ναὸν τοῦτον τὸν χειροποίητον...ἆλλον ἀχειροποίητον κ.τ.λ.

[επηξεν] The word (πηγνύναι)is specially suitable to the putting together of a thing of parts and pieces like the tabernacle. It is however applied frequently to the pitching of a tent of less solid or elaborate workmanship. Gen. xxvi. 25, καὶ ἕπηξεν ἐκεῖ τὴν σκηνὴν αὐτοῦ. xxxv. 21. &c. The clause here seems to come from Num. xxiv. 6, ὡσεὶ σκηναὶ åş ἕπηξε Κύριος.

ό Κύριος] The passage in Num. xxiv. 6 seems to decide that ὁ Κύριος here is God. And so in verse 11 (from Jer. xxxi. 34), γνῶθι τὸν Κύριον. xii. 14, οῦ χωρὶς οὐδεἰς ὄψεται τὸν Κύριον (comparing Matt. v. 8). Rom. xv. 11 (from Psalm cxvii. 1), aἰνεῦτε πάντα τὰ ἔθνη τὸν Κύριον. 1 Cor. x. 26 (from Psalm xxiv. 1), τοῦ Κυρίου ἡ γῆ κ.τ.λ.

οὐκ ἄνθρωπος] And no human being. See note on ii. 6, ἄνθρωπος...υίδς ἀνθρώπου. 3. πα̂ς γάρ] Ι say, λειτουργός—for, dc.

προσφέρειν] See note on v. 1, προσφέρη.

δώρά τε κ.  $\theta$ .] See note on the same words in v. I.

καθίσταται] See notes on v. 1 and vii. 28.

άναγκαίον] Acts xiii. 46, ύμιν ήν άναγκαίον πρώτον κ.τ.λ.

καὶ τοῦτον] That this Person also, the Melchizedek Priest. Compare iii. 3, πλείονος γὰρ οῦτος δόξης κ.τ.λ. X. 12, οῦτος δὲ μίαν κ.τ.λ.

προσενέγκη] Νοτ προσφέρη. The offering spoken of is to be made once for all. And what offering? Considering that the place of it is the heavenly sanctuary, it must be, not the sacrifice on the brazen altar, but the presentation of the blood in the most holy place afterwards (Lev. xvi. 14, 15), which is the type here interpreted. In other words, the reference is not to the death on Calvary, but to the entrance into heaven, as the crucified and risen, to be the Intercessor and Mediator. Even this presentation of Himself to God is described as made once for all. The tense of  $\pi po\sigma\epsilon\nu\epsilon\gamma\kappa\eta$  (I or 2 aor. subj.) decides this, and prepares us for the argument of ix. 25, 26, which is, that, if the  $\pi po\sigma\phi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\nu$  (in this sense) is to be  $\pi o\lambda\lambda\epsilon\kappa$ , so must the  $\pi\epsilon\sigma\chi\epsilon\nu$  be upon which it is based.

4. et µèr ovr] The µèr is answered by the & of verse 6. The ovr is (as usual) in accordance with the above statement; here, namely, that He must have something to offer. Something then what? Can it be something of the Levitical kind, to be presented in an earthly sanctuary? No, for upon earth He has no room for priesthood.

el...  $\eta v$ ] If He were (which He is not).

oùo av ñv i.] He would not even be (have been being) a priest. The first condition of ministering would have been wanting to him—the office of a priest.

ispecies] A priest of any kind; not to say  $i \rho \chi_i \varepsilon \rho \varepsilon \dot{s}$ , to whom alone belonged the  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \rho \rho \dot{a}$  of the blood in the holy of holies.

öντων τῶν πρ.] There being (already, without Him) those who offer, dcc. The office of iερεὺς is full. There is no room or place for Him in it, while earth is its scene. For ὄντων, compare John i. 9, ην τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινόν (John was not the Light—that place was full). The words τῶν ἰερέων (after ὄντων) are omitted in the revised text.

κατὰ νόμον] The revised text omits the article before νόμον, and so makes the meaning to be, in accordance with a νόμος, a divine code prescribing ritual as well as duty.

τὰ δώρα] The proper gifts, those which are needed and ordered. Here δώρα may include θυσίαι, according to note on v. 1.

5. otrues] The effect of orrus is to generalize the relative. Any who. Persons who. See note on ii. 3, yrus.

υποδείγματι κ.τ.λ.] The construction is that of xiii. 10, of τ $\hat{y}$  σκην $\hat{y}$  λατρεύοντες. To serve the tabernacle is to perform its rites and ceremonies. The tabernacle is here described as a υπόδειγμα καὶ σκιὰ τῶν ἐπουρανίων. See the following notes.

υποδείγματι] The tabernacle itself was a manifestation (or representation) of rà ἐπουράνια, given for the instruction of mankind. See note on iv. 11.

σκιậ] The idea is that of the shadow cast by a solid body. Thus (1) literally, Acts v. 15, ἶνα ἐρχομένου Πέτρου κἂν ή σκιὰ ἐπισκιάση (or -ει) τινὶ αὐτῶν. Hence

(2) in metaphor, Matt. iv. 16

(from Isai. ix. 2). Luke i. 79, ev σκότει καί σκιậ θανάτου. And so (3) still more figuratively, as the adumbration of a reality which it does not embody. Col. ii. 17, ά έστιν σκιά τών μελλόντων, τὸ δέ σώμα Χριστοῦ. Heb. x. 1, σκιάν γαρ έχων ο νόμος τών μελλόντων άγαθών, ούκ αύτην την είκόνα των  $\pi \rho a \gamma \mu \dot{a} \tau \omega \nu$ . The tabernacle was a sort of shadow cast by the solid body of rà enoupávia. They were the  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a$ , they were the eikwr (see note on x. 1), of the existence of which the earthly tabernacle was a proof, of the nature of which it was a type. The other sense of oria, that of a shade protecting from heat and storm, is by far the commoner in the Septuagint, and is found in the New Testament in Mark iv. 32.

 $\lambda a \tau \rho \epsilon v o v \sigma v v$  The words  $\lambda a$ τρεύειν and λατρεία originally denote the service of a workman  $(\lambda \acute{a} \tau \rho \iota s)$  for hire  $(\lambda \acute{a} \tau \rho \sigma v)$ . Compare Exod. xii. 16, πâν έργον λατρευτόν. In the Septuagint and New Testament the same words are frequently employed in reference to the service of God: whether (1) generally by the worshippers; as first Exod. iii. 12, καὶ λατρεύσετε τῷ Θεῷ ἐν τῷ δρει τούτω. xii. 25, φυλάξασθε την λατρείαν ταύτην. Matt. iv. 10. Luke i. 74. ii. 37. John xvi. 2. Acts xxiv. 14. xxvi. 7.

xxvii. 23, οῦ εἰμί, ῷ καὶ λατρεύω. Rom. i. 9, ψ λατρεύω έν τῷ πνεύματί μου έν τῷ εὐαγγελίφ τοῦ vioù avroù (which may however, like Rom. xii. 1. Phil. iii. 3. Heb. ix. 14. xii. 28, be referred to the second head). Heb. ix. 9, 14. x. 2. xii. 28; or (2) specially by the priest; as here, and ix. 1, 6, δικαιώματα λατρείας…οί ίερεις τας λατρείας επιτελουντες. xiii. 10, οι τη σκηνή λατρεύοντες.

 $\tau \hat{\omega} \mathbf{v} \in \pi oupar(\omega \mathbf{v})$  See notes on iii. 1 and vi. 4. Here it might mean the heavenly things, the realities which have their home in heaven where God is. But the local or semilocal idea is clearly predominant elsewhere in the phrase. See ix. 23. Eph. i. 20, καὶ καθίσας ἐν δεξιậ αὐτοῦ έν τοις έπουρανίοις. ii. 6. iii. 10. If so taken here, the thought will be that the arrangements of the tabernacle, and specially the separation from each other of its two chambers, were typical of the two heavens (so to say), the heaven of the divine manifestation, and the heaven of the divine presence itself. The only question is whether the division of the two chambers (here as elsewhere) should not mark the obstacle between man and God rather than typify the two heavens. If so, heavenly things might be a safer rendering than heavenly places.

tion of the tabernacle, as a  $\sqrt[5]{\pi}$  $\delta \epsilon_i \gamma \mu a$  and  $\sigma \kappa_i a$  of the  $\frac{1}{\pi} \sigma v \rho \dot{a} ria$ , accords with the expression used to Moses in the directions for the construction of the tabernacle.

κεχρημάτισται] A Scripture perfect. See note on vii. 6,  $\delta\epsilon$ δεκάτωκεν. The verb  $\chi \rho \eta \mu a \tau i$ -Lew, to transact business, is sometimes (1) absolute, as in 1 Kings xviii. 27 (μήποτε χρηματίζει αύτός, η μήποτε καθεύδει αύτός  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ), and in a peculiar and post-classical idiom comes to mean to transact business as (under the name of), and so to pass for, to be called, as in Acts xi. 26. Rom. vii. 3, μοιχαλίς χρηματίσει έαν κ.τ.λ. Sometimes (2) it is followed by  $\tau u v i$  or  $\pi p o s$ riva (the person dealt with), with or without an accusative of the business transacted. Sometimes (3) it has an accusative of the person dealt with, or (in the passive) has the person dealt with for its nominative. In Scripture it is specially used (in all constructions) in a sacred sense, of the communications of God with men in the form of revelation, admonition, or direction. Thus (1) Jer. xxv. (xxxii. B) 30, Κύριος αφ' ύψηλοῦ χρηματιεί. Heb. xii. 25, ἐπὶ γῆς παραιτησάμενοι τον χρηματίζοντα. (2) Job xl. 8. Jer. xxvi. (xxxiii. B) 2, χρηματιείς πάσι τοις Ιουδαίοις κ.τ.λ. XXX. (XXXVII. B)

2, πάντας τοὺς λόγους οὖς ἐχρημάτισα πρὸς σέ. Luke ii. 26. (3) Matt. ii. 12, 22, χρηματισθέντες κατ' ὅναρ μὴ ἀνακάμψαι κ.τ.λ. Acts x. 22. Heb. xi. 7, πίστει χρηματισθεὶς Νῶε περὶ τῶν μηδέπω βλεπομένων. (Hence χρηματισμύς, a divine communication, Rom. xi. 4. 2 Mucc. ii. 4.) And so here. Moses has been (divinely) dealt with; has been (divinely) dealt with by God Himself.

enireλeiv] Often, to finish. in contrast with beginning. Thus I Sam. iii. 12, αρξομαι καί έπιτελέσω. Zech. iv. 9, at xeipes Z. έθεμελίωσαν τον οίκον τούτον, καί αί χείρες αὐτοῦ ἐπιτελέσουσιν αὐτύν. Rom. xv. 28. 2 Cor. viii. 6, ίνα καθώς προενήρξατο ούτως και επιτελέση κ.τ.λ. Gul. iii. 3. Phil. i. 6. But sometimes without any such contrast; as here, and ix. 6, τώς λατρείας επιτελούντες. Lev. vi. 22, απαν επιτελέσθήσεται. Num. xxiii. 23, tí έπιτελέσει ο Θεός. I Pet. v. g. Render therefore here simply to make.

"Opa] Exod. xxv. 40. The only variations in the quotation here are (1)  $\pi \acute{a}\nu\tau a$  (inserted from verse above), and (2)  $\delta\epsilon_i \chi \theta \acute{e}\nu\tau a$ for  $\delta\epsilon \delta\epsilon_i \gamma \mu \acute{e}\nu \sigma \nu$ .

 $\gamma \alpha \rho$  This  $\gamma \alpha \rho$  is no part of the quotation, but gives the reason for its introduction; namely, to justify the description of the tabernacle as a  $i\pi o$ - $\delta \epsilon_{i}\gamma \mu a$  of the  $\epsilon \pi o v \rho a \nu i a$ .

φησιν] Understand ο Θεός.

ποιήσειs] There is an ellipsis of δπωs in the phrase δρα ποιήσειs. The ellipsis of δρα would be the more classical.

 $\kappa a \tau a \tau \partial v \tau$ .] The question has been raised whether we are to suppose that a model of the tabernacle was shown to Moses in vision, or that he was to make the  $\epsilon \pi ov \rho a \nu i a$  themselves (as revealed to him in vision) his  $\tau \upsilon \pi \sigma s$  in constructing it. It is a question quite beyond us. Delitzsch says, 'Not a mere plan of the earthly tabernacle, but a real manifestation of the heavenly world of which that tabernacle was to be a type...A manifestation made in such a form as to fit it to serve as a model for the earthly building.'

τίπον] By derivation a stroke or blow, τύπος means (1) a mark or impression, John xx. 25 (τῶν ἦλων); (2) a form or figure, Acts vii. 43 (from Amos v. 26). xxiii. 25; (3) a model or pattern, here, and Rom. v. 14. vi. 17. I Cor. x. 6. Phil. iii. 17. I Thess. i. 7. 2 Thess. iii. 9. I Tim. iv. 12. Tit. ii. 7. I Pet. v. 3.  $\delta\epsilon\iota\chi\theta\epsilon\nu\tau a$ ] The change from  $\delta\epsilon\delta\epsilon\iota\gamma\mu\epsilon\nu\sigma\nu$  makes the exhibition a thing ended, without marking its abiding effect.

τ $\hat{\psi}$   $\check{o}\rho\epsilon\iota$ ] This from Exod. iii. 1 and xix. 2 onwards is the special title of Mount Sinai. In Heb. xii. 22 Sinai is replaced by Sion.

6.  $v \tilde{v} v \delta \epsilon$ ] Or  $v v v \tilde{v} \delta \epsilon$ . The  $\delta \tilde{\epsilon}$  answers the  $\mu \tilde{\epsilon} v$  of verse 4, and contrasts fact with hypothesis. But as it is (as the case really stands). See xi. 15, 16,  $\kappa a \tilde{\epsilon} \ell \mu \tilde{\epsilon} v \dots v \tilde{\nu} v \delta \tilde{\epsilon} \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . 1 Cor. xv. 20 (after  $\epsilon \tilde{\ell}$  many times repeated),  $v v v \tilde{\delta} \delta X \rho_{\ell} \sigma \tau \delta \tilde{\epsilon} \gamma \eta \gamma \epsilon \rho \tau a \ell$  $\kappa. \tau. \lambda$ .

τέτευχεν] As in the compound ἐντυγχάνειν (see note on vii. 25), the casual sense of τυγχάνειν (to light upon) is almost lost in usage, and the idea becomes simply that of obtaining. See xi. 35, ίνα κρείττονος ἀναστάσεως τύχωσιν. Job vii. 2, ὥσπερ θεράπων...τετυχηκώς σκιάς. Luke xx. 35, οἱ δὲ καταξιωθέντες τοῦ ἀιῶνος ἐκείνοῦ τυχεῖν. Acts xxiv. 3. xxvi. 22, ἐπικουρίας οὖν τυχών τῆς ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ. xxvii. 3. 2 Tim. ii. 10, ἶνα καὶ αὐτοῦ σωτηρίας τύχωσιν τῆς ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ.

τονός έστιν διαθήκης μεσίτης, ήτις έπι κρείτ-7 τοσιν έπαγγελίαις νενομοθέτηται. ει γαρ ή λειτουργίας] See note on i. 7, λειτουργούς.

οσφ καί] The superiority of the λειτουργία is measured by the superiority of the διαθήκη of which He is μεσίτης. In vii. 22, the converse was the argument, and the superiority of the διαθήκη was inferred from the superiority of the priesthood.

διαθήκης] See note on vii. 22, διαθήκης.

μεσίτης] Also ix. 15, διαθήκης καινής μεσίτης έστίν. xii. 24, καί διαθήκης νέας μεσίτη Ίη-I Tim. ii. 5, εἶς καὶ μεσίσοῦ. της Θεού και ανθρώπων, ανθρωπος Χριστός Ίησοῦς. The word μεσίτης means an intermediate, one who stands between two persons or parties. In the quotation from 1 Tim. it has a genitive of thetwo persons or parties. Here, and in the two other places of its occurrence in this Epistle, it has a genitive of the subject of the intervention. One who stands between (others) in respect of something. One who mediates a διαθήκη. In Gal. iii. 19 it is made a disparagement of the law that it required a  $\mu\epsilon\sigma i$ - $\tau\eta s$  (Moses) to negotiate it, whereas the  $\epsilon \pi \alpha \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda i \alpha$  was a simple utterance of God to man admitting no such intermediary. Yet St Paul himself applies the term to Christ in the passage quoted from I Tim., and, in doing so, suggests the necessary distinction. Moses came between God and Israel, as a third person, himself (in this respect) separate from both. Christ is both  $\Theta \epsilon \delta s$ and  $\delta v \theta \rho \omega \pi \sigma s$ , not mediating between two parties neither of which He Himself is, but uniting two parties the nature of both of which He shares.

 $v\epsilon vo\mu o\theta \epsilon \tau \eta \tau a i]$  Has been (perfect of permanence) legislated (constituted by divine legislation). As in vii. 11 the  $\lambda a \circ s$  was said to have had its legal constitution given to it on the priesthood as its hinge ( $i\pi i$ with a genitive), so here the new  $\delta ia\theta \eta \kappa \eta$  is said to have had its legal constitution given to it on promises as its basis ( $i\pi i$ with a dative). See note on vii. 11. VIII. 7, 8.

viii. 8. Or autois.

 εἰ γάρ] I say κρείττονος -for, &c. There was room in the former διαθήκη for improvement. Its own prophets said so.

ή πρ.  $\epsilon \kappa \epsilon (\nu \eta)$  Understand διαθήκη. It might have been προτέρα. But πρότερος is scarcely used in the New Testament (only Eph. iv. 22, Katà the προτέραν αναστροφήν), except in the adverbial form  $\pi \rho \delta \tau \epsilon \rho o v$ . And to a Hebrew Christian the Mosaic was the primary (as well as the former) dispensation. For  $\pi\rho\hat{\omega}\tau$  as the former of two, see Acts i. 1, tor μέν πρώτον λόγον ἐποιησάμην I Cor. xv. 47, ο πρώτος κ.τ.λ. ανθρωπος...ο δεύτερος ανθρωπος κ.τ.λ. And Heb. ix. 1, 2, 6, 8, 15, 18. Χ. 9, αναιρεί το πρώτον, ίνα το δεύτερον στήση.

äμεμπτος] Fauliless; not to be complained of as defective in any respect. Luke i. 6. Phil. ii. 15. iii. 6. I Thess. iii. 13. And άμέμπτως I Thess. ii. 10. v. 23.

oùs av] There would not have been (in the mind of God as expressed in His word of prophecy) a seeking of room for a second. The figure is that of a person dissatisfied with an existing arrangement, and looking about for an opportunity of substituting for it a different one.

8.  $\mu\epsilon\mu\phi\phi\mu\epsilon\nu\sigmas \gamma d\rho$ ] But there was such a  $\zeta\eta\tau\eta\sigma\iotas$ -for, &c. The special thought in  $\mu\epsilon\mu\phi\epsilon\sigma\theta a\iota$  is to find fault with as defective.

avrovs] The Vatican manuscript has aurois. The question of reading is here important. For if airois were the reading, I should take it as neuter, and explain it by Gal. iii. 12 (o ποιήσας αύτα ζήσεται έν αύτοις, though only o vous has there preceded) as meaning the particulars of the law. For, disparaging the provisions of the law, He saith, &c. This has the advantage of making μεμφόμεvos apply to the same thing as  $a\mu\epsilon\mu\pi\tau\sigma$  above. If the reading is avrovs, there is no alternative; the auroù; must be the Israelites.

 $\lambda$ έγει] That is, ο Θεώς. As φησιν in verse 5.

'Ιδού] The quotation is from Jer. xxxi. (xxxviii. B) 31-34. It is one of the fullest of the Old Testament predictions of the Gospel. It begins with an emphatic statement of its unlikeness to the law (verse 9). Passing from the negative to the positive, it divides itself into two promises: (1) that of a new spirit, conforming the will of the man to the will of God by a direct personal communication of instruction and influence to the individual soul (verses 10 and 11); (2) that of a free forgive; ness of all sins (verse 12). The variations from the Alexandrine Septuagint are (1) ourreλέσω for διαθήσομαι, (2) iπi τον olkov (twice) for  $\tau \hat{\psi}$  olkov, (3) εποίησα for διεθέμην, (4) λέγει for  $\phi \eta \sigma i$  (twice), (5) ras omitted (with B) before  $\kappa a \rho \delta i a s$ , (6)  $\pi o$ - $\lambda i \tau \eta v$  (with B) for  $\pi \lambda \eta \sigma i o v$ , (7) avrŵv omitted after μικρού.

ήμέραι ἕρχονται] A phrase frequent in Jeremiah. See Jer.
vii. 32. ix. 25. xvi. 14. xix.
6. xxiii. 7. xxx. 3. xxxi. 27,
38. Amos iv. 2. ix. 13.
Luke xxiii. 29.

 $\kappa \alpha i$ ] The ubiquitous Hebrew and, serving here the purpose of the  $\delta \tau \epsilon$  which might have been expected.

συντελέσω] Substituted (perhaps as a more significant word) for διαθήσομαι, which adds nothing to the cognate διαθήκην. The verb συντελεῦν is largely used in the Septuagint, and stands with  $\delta\iotaa\theta \eta'\kappa\eta\nu$  (as here) in Jer. xxxiv. (xli. B) 8, 15. The word is much less common in the New Testament (less common even than  $\epsilon\pi\iota r\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\hat{\iota}\nu$ ). See Rom. ix. 28, and note there.

 $\epsilon \pi i$  Towards; in relation to. Well expressing the nature of a divine  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$  (see note on vii. 22), as not a compact with, but an engagement towards, the human being with whom it deals.

οἶκον] First perhaps (in the wide sense) in Exod. xix. 3, τάδε έρεῖς τῷ οἶκῷ Ἰακώβ, καὶ ἀναγγελεῖς τοῖς υἰοῖς Ἱσραήλ.

'Ισραηλ...'Ισύδα] The ten tribes and the two, from 1 Kings xii. 19 onwards. Jer. iii. 6, 7. Hos. iv. 15. &c.

 $\kappa aur \eta v$ ] The distinction between  $\kappa aur v \delta s$  (new in quality) and  $v \delta s$  (new in date) is never obliterated, though either adjective may be applied with equal correctness in many cases. Thus  $\kappa aur v \delta s$  is the epithet of the Gospel  $\delta a\theta h \kappa \eta$  (in contrast with that of the law) here and in ix. 15,  $v \delta a$  in xii. 44. It was in those days new in time as well as in nature. And so the spiritual renewal of the Christian is described by both words. See VIII. 9, 10.

avtoi They on their part.

In contrast with  $\kappa \dot{a}\gamma \omega$  following. Emphatic, as always in the nominative. See notes on i. 11 and iii, 10.

ένέμειναν] To abide in (έμμένειν) is the opposite of straying from (James v. 19, πλανασθαι άπο) or walking beside (παραβαίνειν). Acts xiv. 22, παρακαλοῦντες ἐμμένειν τŷ πίστει. Gal. iii. 10 (from Deut. xxvii. 26), πα̂ς ὕς οὐκ ἐμμένει πῶσιν τοῦς γεγραμμένοις κ.τ.λ. The commoner compound in the New Testament is ἐπιμένειν, which is not used in the Septungint.

 $\dot{\eta}\mu \epsilon \lambda \eta \sigma a$ ] The tense expresses a single act of abandonment. I gave up caring for them. The converse is found in Jer. iv. 17, ότι έμοῦ ἠμέλησας, λέγει Κύριος. See note on ii. 3,  $\dot{u}\mu \epsilon \lambda \dot{\eta} \sigma a v \tau \epsilon s$ .

10.  $\delta\tau_{I}$  I say kairýr, and I say où karà  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ , because, &c. The terms of the new  $\delta\iota a\theta \eta \kappa \eta$ are adduced in proof of its novelty.

viii. 10. Or kapdiar.

διαθήσομαι] Acts iii. 25, τῆς διαθήκης ῆς διέθετο ὁ Θεος προς τοὺς πατέρας ὑμῶν. Frequent in the Septuagint, beginning with Gen. ix. 17, τοῦτο τὸ σημεῖον τῆς διαθήκης ῆς διεθέμην ἀναμέσον ἐμοῦ καὶ ἀναμέσον πάσης σαρκός.

τῷ οἴκῷ] The dative as in Gen. xv. 18, διέθετο Κύριος τῷ *Αβραμ διαθήκην. Deut. xxix. 1, 14, 25, &c. Often with πρός, as Exod. xxiv. 8, τῆς διαθήκης ἡς διέθετο Κύριος πρὸς ὑμᾶς. Or μετά, as 2 Sam. iii. 12, διάθου διαθήκην σου μετ' ἐμοῦ.

μετὰ τὰς ἡμέρας ἐκείνας] After (the arrival of ) those days (ἡμέραι ἔρχονται).

διδούs] The construction is difficult. Is it, (1) giving (putting) my laws into their mind, I will also write them upon their hearts-in which case the parallelism of the clauses is broken; or (2) [I will make it] by giving (putting) my laws into their mind, and upon their hearts I will write them-a somewhat unwarranted insertion; or (3) which I will make for the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord, by giving (putting) my laws into their mind—letting the sentence run on without any supplying of words to complete it? The Greek of the Septuagint scarcely bears such minute dissection. The 3rd explanation is perhaps the simplest.

διάνοιαν] Matt. xxii. 37 (from Deut. vi. 5), καρδία...ψυχη̂...διανοία. Mark xii. 30. Luke x. 27. Eph. iv. 18. Col. i. 21. 1 Pet. i. 13, αναζωσάμενοι τὰς οσφύας της διανοίας ὑμῶν. 2 Pet. iii. 1, διεγείρω ὑμῶν ἐν ὑπομνήσει τὴν εἰλικρινῆ διάνοιαν.

καρδίας] Is this a genitive singular, or an accusative plural? For the latter, we have the  $\tau \dot{a}s$ of the Alexandrine Septuagint, and the companion accusative (also with  $\epsilon \pi i$ ) in x. 16 (revised text). For the former, the companion singular διάνοιαν here and in x. 16 (revised text). I incline to the accusative plural in both places, accounting for the different number (in the two clauses) by the difficulty of making a plural (in the required sense) of  $\delta ia$ vola.

 $\epsilon \pi i \gamma \rho a \psi \omega$ ] The promise is, that the will of God for man's conduct, instead of being inVIII. 11.

каì ё́оторас] And thus shall be fulfilled that repeated promise of the Old Testament which can only have complete realization in a spiritual intercommunication between God and the individual man, such as has just been foretold. For the promise in one part, see Gen. xvii. 7, eis διαθήκην αιώνιον, είναι σου Θεός  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . And for the twofold promise, Exod. vi. 7, καὶ λήψομαι ύμας έμαυτῷ εἰς λαὸν ἐμοί, καὶ έσομαι ύμῶν Θεός. Repeated again and again afterwards in the Pentateuch and prophets. For the phrase cival cis, see 2 Sam. vii. 14. Jer. xxxi. (xxxviii. B) 1, 9. 2 Cor. vi. 18. &c.

11. καὶ οὐ μή] And this influence upon the individual man shall be an influence of direct personal instruction, making him independent of any secondary or intermediate teaching, except in so far as it may help the other. John vi. 45, toru yeypaµµévov èv roîs  $\pi po\phi\eta'$ raus, Kai čovrat πάντες διδακτοὶ  $\Theta \varepsilon o \hat{v}$  (Isai. liv. 13).

πολίτην] Å remarkable variation (with B) from the Alexandrine πλησίον. See Zech. xiii. 7, ρομφαία, έξεγέρθητ... ἐπ' ἄνδρα πολίτην μου. Prov. xxiv. 28, μὴ ἴσθι ψευδὴς μάρτυς ἐπὶ σὸν πολίτην. Luke xv. 15. xix. 14. Acts xxi. 39.

ἀδελφόν] Perhaps in the less literal sense, as first in Exod. ii. 11, ἐξήλθε πρὸς τοὺς ἀδελφοὺς αὐτοῦ τοὺς υἰοὺς Ἰσραήλ ... Ἐβραῖον τῶν ἀδελφῶν αὐτοῦ (A, ἑαυτοῦ ἀδ. B) τῶν υἰῶν Ἰσραήλ.

άπο μικροῦ] A common Hebrew idiom, to express all of every age and rank. Jer. vi. 13, ἀπὸ μικροῦ αὐτῶν καὶ ἔως μεγάλου. viii. 10. xlii. (xlix.  δτι] This new διαθήκη of divine individual communication is based upon a gospel of divine forgiveness of sins.

λεως] See note on ii. 17, εἰς τὸ ἰλάσκεσθαι. For ἰλεως (only found once besides in the New Testament, Matt. xvi. 22, in the phrase ἰλεώς σοι, that is, ἔστω or εἰη ὁ Θεός, Mercy upon Thee) see Num. xiv. 20, ἰλεως aὐτοῖς εἰμὶ κατὰ τὸ ῥῆμά σου. 1 Kings viii. 30, 34, 36, 39, 50, καὶ σὺ εἰσακούσῃ ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ...καὶ ἰλεως ἔσῃ ταῖς ἀδικίαις αὐτῶν aἶς ἡμάρτοσάν σοι κ.r.λ. &c. aδικίαις] The plural is found only here in the New Testament, and that in a quotation from the Septuagint. It is frequent in the Septuagint, especially in the prophets. Micah vii. 19, aυros ἐπιστρέψει καὶ οἰκτειρήσει ήμâς, [καὶ] καταδύσει τὰς ἀδικίας ήμῶν, καὶ ἀπορρίψει (Α, ἀπορριφήσονται Β?) εἰς τὰ βάθη τῆς θαλάσσης πάσας τὰς ἀμαρτίας ήμῶν.

où  $\mu\eta$ ] The received text had kai tŵr ảroµıŵr aờtŵr after kai tŵr ảµaptıŵr aờtŵr, before où  $\mu\eta$ . In x. 17 it reappears. It is not in the Septuagint of Jer. xxxi.

μνησθώ] Psalm xxv. 7, άμαρτίας νεότητός μου...μη μνησθής. lxxix. 8, μη μνησθής ήμῶν ἀνομιῶν ἀρχαίων. Isai. xliii. 25, ἐγώ εἰμι ὁ ἐξαλείφων τὰς ἀνομίας σου ...καὶ οὐ μη μνησθήσομαι κ.τ.λ. lxiv. 9.

13.  $\epsilon v \tau \hat{\psi}$  Mark the word  $\kappa a v \eta v$  in this quotation. It implies, nay creates, a  $\pi a \lambda a i \Delta v$ . And to make a thing  $\pi a \lambda a i \Delta v$  is to predict its  $a \phi a v i \sigma \mu \delta s$ .

έν τῷ λέγειν] In the very saying καινήν, He (the Inspirer of Scripture) has antiquated the first διαθήκη.

πεπαλαίωκεν] (1) A Scripture perfect. (2) The effect is permanent. For παλαιοῦν, see note on i. 11, παλαιωθήσονται.

τὸ δέ] And the thing which is in course of being antiquated and of waxing old is nigh unto effacement.

λαιούμενον καὶ γηράσκον ἐγγὒς ἀφανισμοῦ. Εἶχεν μιν οὖν καὶ ἡ πρώτη δικαιώματα ΙΧ. 1

παλαιούμενον In course of being made old. Though the thing is done, so far as the decision and the certainty is concerned, yet the working of it out takes time. And so the actual wearing out of the Mosaic institution is gradual, though the sentence of antiquation was pronounced when the  $\kappa a \nu \eta \nu$  of this prophecy of Jeremiah was written. How true to fact! The heart was gradually eaten out of the Levitical system by the formalism and literalism of the Rabbinical treatment of it. Thus the sentence of a davio µos, which was already upon it, justified itself before its execution. For  $\pi a \lambda a \omega s$  in its disparaging sense, see Matt. ix. 16, 17,  $\epsilon \pi i$ ίματίω παλαιώ...είς άσκοὺς πα- $\lambda a \iota o \dot{v} s$ . Rom. vi. 6,  $\ddot{o} \pi a \lambda a \iota \dot{o} s$ ήμων ανθρωπος. Ι Cor. v. 7, την παλαιάν ζύμην. Eph. iv. 22. Col. iii. 9. But no such disparagement is found in Matt. xiii. 52, καινά καὶ παλαιά. Luke v. 39, ο παλαιός χρηστός έστιν. I John ii. 7, έντολην παλαιάν ην είχετε  $a\pi$   $a\rho_{\chi\eta\varsigma}$  κ.τ.λ. The last quotation shows that  $\pi a \lambda a i \delta s$ apxaîos (ancient) (old) and are sometimes interchangeable. Even apxaios may be made by the context a word of reproach. 2 Cor. v. 17, τὰ ἀρχαία παρήλθεν. Rev. xii. 9, ο ὄφις ο ἀρχαίος.

γηράσκον] John xxi. 18, όταν δὲ γηράσχις. Frequent in the Septuagint in its literal sense. Ecclus. viii. 6, μὴ ἀτιμάσχις ἄνδρα ἐν γήρα, καὶ γὰρ ἐξ ήμῶν γηράσκουσι.

ἐγγύς] See vi. 8, κατάρας ἐγγύς. Job xiii. 18, ἐγγύς εἰμι τοῦ κρίματός μου.

άφανισμοῦ] Only used here in the New Testament. But frequent in the Septuagint. Deut. vii. 2, ἀφανισμῷ ἀφανιεῖs αὐτούs. Jer. li. (xxviii. B) 37, ἔσται Baβυλὼν εἰs ἀφανισμόν. &c. For the verb ἀφανίζειν, see Matt. vi. 19, 20, ὅπου σὴs καὶ βρῶσιs ἀφανίζει κ.τ.λ. James iv. 14. It occurs more than 75 times in the Septuagint. And ἀφανισμὸs about 55 times.

IX. I. Elleve  $\mu i \nu o \delta \nu$ ] (I) The overstands by itself (in the construction of the sentence) as the connecting particle. It is little more than continuative to pursue the argument of the subsection of the Sanctuary. But it has something also of consequential; in accordance with the position and use of the first  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta' \kappa \eta$ . (2) The  $\mu i \nu$  belongs to  $\epsilon l \chi \epsilon \nu$ , and prepares us for the inference: had, but with no intrinsic or abiding value. 2 λατρείας τό τε άγιον κοσμικόν. σκηνή γαρ

An emphasis on had will best express its force. (3) Is the  $\mu i \nu$ answered formally or only by implication? The  $\delta i$  of verse 11 is too far off to be made the direct antithesis of the  $\mu i \nu$  in verse 1, though it suggests the correct idea of the suppressed antithesis as given above. Had, but not so as to satisfy the real want.

καὶ ἡ πρώτη] Understand διαθήκη. The καὶ is omitted by the Vatican manuscript. If retained, it must be even rather than also; for the following particulars are not common to the old and the new.

δικαιώματα] Ordinances. The verb Sikaioiv, in its application to a thing, means to make or declare just, to claim as a right, to require. Hence Siraíwha is (1) a thing made or declared just. (a) A decision or sentence; whether of acquittal (Rom. v. 16) or of condemnation (Rom. i. 32). (b) A requirement (Rom. ii. 26. viii. 4). (c) An ordinance; as here, and verse 10. δικαιώματα σαρκός. Also Luke i. 6, έν πάσαις ταις έντολαις και δικαιώμασιν τοῦ Κυρίου. (2) A righteous act (Rom. v. 18. Rev. xv. 4. xix. 8).

λατρείας] See note on viii. 5. Also on Rom. i. 9, λατρεύω. τό τε άγιον] And its sanctuary a mundane (material) one. As koopukov cannot be made a substantive, this is the only rendering consistent with the position of the article.

aylor] There seems to be no parallel in the New Testament for the singular here. But in the Septuagint it is frequently used, both for the whole tabernacle (as here), and for the holy place as distinguished from the most holy. For the latter, see Exod. xxvi. 33, αναμέσον τοῦ άγίου καὶ ἀναμέσον τοῦ ἀγίου τῶν ἀγίων. For the former, Exod. xxxvi. 3, eis návra τα έργα τοῦ άγίου. Num. iii. 38, φυλάσσοντες τας φυλακάς τοῦ ἀγίου. Ezek. xlv. 4, 18, τοῖs ίερεῦσι τοῖς λειτουργοῦσιν ἐν τῷ άγίψ...τοῦ ἐξιλάσασθαι τὸ ἄγιον.

κοσμικόν] Not in the debased sense which KOGµIKO'S bears in the only other place of its occurrence in Scripture (Tit. ii. 12, τάς κοσμικάς έπι- $\theta v \mu i a_s$ ), but still in the disparaging sense in which it is material as the opposite of spiritual, and earthly as the opposite of heavenly. The explanation is given in the phrase ta otoχεία τοῦ κόσμου, Gal. iv. 3. Col. ii. 8, 20. The law is there so described, as being (1) a rudimentary system, in contrast with the full revelation of grace and truth in the Gospel; (2) a material system, in reference to its tabernacle and sacrifices. So here the Levitical sanctuary is called  $\kappa \sigma \sigma \mu \kappa \delta \nu$  in contrast with the heavenly temple in which Christ ministers. See verse 24. See also note on Rom. i. 20, where the senses of  $\kappa \delta \sigma \mu o \varsigma$  are arranged in order.

2. σκηνή γάρ] For there was a tabernacle constructed. First, a tabernacle: that was the general idea of the ayiov. Then the general is particular-It was double in conized. struction; it consisted of a first and a second (an outer and an inner) σκηνή. No mention is made of the temple, which was only a reproduction, on a grander scale, and of more solid material, and with certain variations, of the only ayıor which had divine directions for its construction. See note on viii. 2,  $\sigma \kappa \eta v \eta s$ .

κατεσκενάσθη] See note on iii. 3, κατασκενάσας.

 $\dot{\eta}$ πρώτη] The σκηνη is now divided into its two parts, the outer and inner chamber. And  $\dot{\eta}$ πρώτη (as in verse 6, where it is contrasted with  $\dot{\eta}$  δευτέρα in verse 7) means, the first reached on entering; the outer.

 $i \nu \hat{\eta}$  The contents of the outer chamber of the tabernacle are here made three nominally, but practically two only, for the shewbread occupied the table.

And so in Exod. xxv. 23, &c. (where the first instructions are given for the furniture of the tabernacle) only the table of shewbread and the candlestick are mentioned: the altar of incense is not named till xxx. 1. The omission here is remarkable: see note on verse 4.

λυχνία] Exod. xxv. 31—39, έκ χρυσίου καθαρου...τους λύχνους αυτής έπτά κ.τ.λ. xxxvii. 17— 24. xl. 4, 24, 25, απέναντι τής τραπέζης (B omits) είς το κλίτος τής σκηνής το προς νότον κ.τ.λ. Lev. xxiv. 2—4, ἕξωθεν του καταπετάσματος...και καύσουσιν αυτό 'Aapών και οι νίοι αυτου ἀφ' έσπέρας ἕως πρωΐ κ.τ.λ.

τράπεζα] Exod. xxv. 23— 30, χρυσίου καθαροῦ...καὶ ἐπιθήσεις ἐπὶ τὴν τράπεζαν ἄρτους ἐνωπίους ἐναντίον μου διαπαντός. xxxvii. 10—16. xl. 4, 22, 23, πρὸς βορρῶν, ἔζωθεν τοῦ καταπετάσματος τῆς σκηνῆς κ.τ.λ.

ή πρόθεσις] Üpon the τράπεζα. The setting forth of the loaves; that is, the loaves set forth. Exod. xxv. 30. · xl. 23, καὶ προέθηκεν (Α, προσέθηκεν Β?) ἐπ' αὐτῆς ἄρτους τῆς προθέσεως ἐναντίον Κυρίου. ήτις] One which. Α σκηνή which. See notes on ii. 3. viii. 5, 6.

äγια] A neuter plural. Made a proper name, and so dispensing with the article. (I do not find it so in the Septuagint.) The Vatican manuscript has τα ăγια.

3. µera] After reaching; and so, behind.

 $\tau \delta \ \delta \epsilon \dot{\tau} \epsilon \rho o r$ ] In contrast with the curtain over the door of the tabernacle. See note on vi. 19.

 $\sigma\kappa\eta\nu\eta$   $\dot{\eta}$   $\lambda$ .] A tabernacle, namely, that which is called, &c. The two chambers are spoken of as two tabernacles. Partly perhaps to emphasize the separateness, and so the unapproached sanctity, of the inner.

äγια ἀγίων] The Vatican manuscript has τὰ ἀγια τῶν ἀγίων. And with more support than for τὰ ἁγια in verse 2. The Alexandrine and (first hand of) the Sinaitic omit the articles in both cases. I do not find ἁγια ἀγίων (without τὰ and τῶν) in the Septuagint in this special application.

4.  $\theta \nu \mu i a \tau \eta \rho i o \nu$ ] Is this to be rendered censer, or altar of incense? For censer, we have the biblical use of the word in

2 Chron. xxvi. 19 and Ezek. viii. 11, the only two places of its occurrence in the Septuagint, which always has θυσιαστήριον ouplianatos (Exod. xxx. 1) or θυσιαστήριον χρυσοῦν (Exod. xl. 5) for the altar of incense. On the other hand, (1)  $\pi v \rho \epsilon \hat{i} o v$  (not θυμιατήριον) is the Levitical word for firepan or censer (Lev. x. 1. xvi. 12. Num. xvi. 6, &c.), and nothing is said of its being kept in the holy of holies. (2) The omission of the incensealtar in the enumeration of the contents of the tabernacle is almost impossible. (3) It is said that  $\theta \nu \mu \iota a \tau \eta \rho \iota o \nu$  is used for the incense-altar in Philo, Josephus, &c. These considerations would be decisive, were it not for the place here assigned to the θυμιατήριον. It was no. torious that the incense-altar stood in the outer chamber (see Exod. xl. 26, έν τη σκηνή τοῦ μαρτυρίου απέναντι τοῦ καταπετάσματος). Otherwise it would have been inaccessible to the ministering priests except on the day of Atonement, whereas incense was to be offered upon it twice daily (Exod. xxx. 7, 8. Compare Luke i. 9). Yet here it is in some way assigned to the holy of holies. We mark the word exoura as suggesting a reconciliation which would have been precluded if the iv  $\eta$  of verse 2 had been employed. The altar of incense, though standing in the holy place, had a close connexion with the holy See its first mention of holies. in Exod. xxx. 1---10, καὶ θήσεις αύτο απέναντι του καταπετάσματος τοῦ οντος ἐπὶ τής κιβωτοῦ τών μαρτυρίων κ.τ.λ. xl. 5, καί θήσεις το θυσιαστήριον το χρυσούν είς το θυμιάν ενώπιον (ενartíor B) this  $\kappa \beta \omega \tau \delta v$ . So that, though the veil was ordinarily between it and the mercy-seat, it closely adjoined it, and on the day of Atonement, when the veil was drawn aside, the incense-altar was expressly included in the highest ceremonial of the anniversary (Exod. xxx. 10). On the whole, with whatever sense of the difficulties, we must regard the  $\theta \nu \mu i a \tau \eta \rho i o \nu$  as standing here for the altar of incense. The Vatican manuscript adds και το χρυσοῦν θυμιατήριον after άρτων in verse 2, and omits χρυσοῦν θυμιατήριον kal in verse 4, leaving only έχουσα before την κιβωτύν. (Probably a mere correction of a supposed mistake of fact.)

κιβωτόν] Exod. xxv. 10, &c.

The central feature of the new worship. No form or figure of deity—only a chest or box (the word is found in Aristophanes, &c.) containing the 'ten words' of precept and prohibition written on the two stone tablets. Elsewhere  $\kappa_i\beta\omega r\delta s$  stands for the ark of the deluge (xi. 7. Matt. xxiv. 38. Luke xvii. 27. I Pet. iii. 20). The ark of Exod. ii. 3 is a different word  $(\theta_i\beta_{i5})$ .

της διαθήκης] Because it contained the code of the διαθήκη or covenant. Exod. xxv. 16, καὶ ἐμβαλεῖς εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν τὰ μαρτύρια ἂ ἂν δῶ σοι. xl. 3, 20. See note on vii. 22, διαθήκης.

ai  $\pi\lambda \dot{\alpha}\kappa\epsilon_{s}$ ] In the first mention of them they are called  $\pi$ υξία. The first occurrence of  $\pi\lambda \dot{\alpha}\kappa \epsilon_{s}$  is in Exod. xxxi. 18, τὰς δύο πλάκας τοῦ μαρτυρίου. πλάκας λιθίνας, γεγραμμένας τῷ δακτύλφ του Θεού. These being broken (Exod. xxxii. 19) are replaced by others: Exod. xxxiv. κc. λάξευσον σεαυτώ δύο πλάκας λιθίνας καθώς καὶ αἱ πρῶται ...καὶ γράψω ἐπὶ τῶν πλακῶν τὰ ρήματα α ην επί (εν B) ταις πλαξί ταις πρώταις. xxxiv. 27, 28, 29, γράψον σεαυτῷ τὰ ῥήματα ταῦτα κ.τ.λ. The emphatic  $\sigma \epsilon a \nu \tau \hat{\omega}$  might seem to mark a difference between the first and the second writing. But Deut. X. 4, 5 (καὶ ἔγραψεν ἐπὶ τὰς πλάκας...καὶ ἔδωκεν αὐτὰς Κύριος έμοί...καὶ ἐνέβαλον τὰς πλάκας είς την κιβωτόν ήν εποίησα) must correct any hasty inference. In I Kings viii. 9 it is stated that there was nothing in the ark (at the dedication of the temple of Solomon)  $\pi \lambda \dot{\eta} v$ δύο πλάκες λίθιναι... ΰς έθηκε Movon's ekei, so that the writer to the Hebrews goes back to earlier times in his enumeration

Not far above, but simply turning are (which is always an adverb in the New Testament and the Septuagint) into a preposition with a genitive. See note on ii. 8, ὑποκάτω. So far from the Cherubim being far above the ark, they were a part of its cover. See Exod. xxv. 18, 22. XXXVII. 8, έκ τοῦ ίλαστηρίου έποίησε τους Χερουβείμ έξ άμφοτέρων τών μερών αυτού.

divisions. Perhaps also typical of various qualities of character. When we add together the courage of the lion, the industry of the ox, the aspiration of the eagle, and the sympathy of the man, we seem to have in one whole the character most complete, and fittest for God's pre-The plural is here (and sence. in Gen. iii, 24 and Ezek. iii. 8, &c.) neuter; in Exod. xxv. and xxxvii. alternately neuter and masculine (in xxxvii, o we have the strong masculine,  $dv\eta\rho$   $\pi\rho\delta s$ τον αδελφόν αυτού). The singular is always masculine.

δόξης] Of, belonging or attached to, as its setting and framework, the Shechinah which was the symbol of God's presence. Exod. xxv. 22, λαλήσω σοι ανωθεν τοῦ ἰλαστηρίου ἀναμέσον τῶν δύο Χερουβεὶμ τῶν ὄντων ἐπὶ τῆς κιβωτοῦ τοῦ μαρτυρίου. Num. vii. 89. Ezek. x. 19, καὶ δόξα [Κυρίου] Θεοῦ Ἱσpaὴλ ἦν ἐπ' αὐτῶν ὑπεράνω. For δόξα, see note on i. 3, and on Rom. i. 23 and ix. 4.

κατασκ.] Exod. xxv. 20, συσκιάζοντες (ἐν Β) ταῖς πτέρυξιν αὐτῶν ἐπὶ τοῦ ἰλαστηρίου. xxxvii. 9 (ἐπὶ τὸ ἰλαστήριον). Elsewhere ἐπισκιάζειν. Matt. xvii. 5 (αὐτούς). Mark ix. 7 (αὐτοῦς). Luke i. 35 (σοι). ix. 34 (αὐτούς). Acts v. 15 (τινί).

ίλαστήριον] Properly the neuter of iλaστήριos, propitiatory or explatory. Always in the Septuagint the mercy-seat, the lid or cover of the ark in the holy of holies. Perhaps from the connexion of covering with forgiving (Psalm xxxii. 1, µaκάριοι ων αφέθησαν αι ανομίαι, καὶ ὧν ἐπεκαλύφθησαν αἱ ἁμαρ-Ezek. xlv. 17, 20, where τίαι. the literal Hebrew of ϵξιλάσκεσθαι is to cover). Perhaps from the prominence given to the cover of the ark in the ceremonies of the day of expiation (Lev. xvi. 14, 15), which made it the symbolic centre of the personal hope of mercy as well as of the divine presence in Israel. Exod. xxv. 17, 21, 22, καί ποιήσεις ίλαστήριον επίθεμα χρυσίου καθαροῦ...καὶ ἐπιθήσεις το ίλαστήριον έπι την κιβωτον äνωθεν κ.τ.λ. In Rom. iii. 25 (the only other place of  $i\lambda a\sigma \tau \eta$ plov in the New Testament) Christ is called ilaothpiov, as though He were Himself the mercy-seat of the antitypical tabernacle. See note on ii. 17, είς το ιλάσκεσθαι. Also on Rom. iii. 25, ilaornípiov.

cessibility of the holy of holies, except once a year, and then to one person, and with the most solemn ceremony.

έστιν] In the sense of έξεστιν. This common classical idiom seems to be found in the New Testament only here and in I Cor. xi. 20, οὐκ ἔστιν κυριακὸν δείπνον φαγεῖν.

κατὰ μέρος] Part by part. - In detail. (Only here.)

6.  $\tau o \dot{\tau} \tau \omega v$ ] The reference is still to the distinctness of the two chambers rather than to the contents of either.

 $\epsilon lo(a\sigma v)$  Enter. The Levitical ritual is represented as still kept up, though it is superseded as to its virtue by the new  $\delta ia\theta \eta' \kappa \eta$ .

 $\tau \dot{a}s \lambda a \tau \rho \epsilon i a s]$  These were (1) the lighting and dressing of the lamps of the golden candlestick (Exod. xxvii. 21. Lev. xxiv. 3) at evening and morning; (2) the offering of incense on the golden altar (Exod. xxx. 7, 8) at the same times. The changing of the shewbread was a weekly duty (Lev. xxiv. 8) on the sabbath. These were offices of the sanctuary: for the attendance at the brazen altar see note on vii. 13.

ἐπιτελοῦντες] See note on viii. 5, ἐπιτελεῖν.

7. την δευτέραν] See note on verse 2, ή πρώτη.

άπαξ τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ] On the great day of Atonement. Lev. xvi. 29, ἐν τῷ μηνὶ τῷ ἐβδόμῳ, δεκάτη τοῦ μηνὸς κ.τ.λ.

μόνος ό ἀρχιερεύς] Lev. xvi. 17, καὶ πῶς ἀνθρωπος οὐκ ἔσται ἐν τῆ σκηνῆ τοῦ μαρτυρίου...ἔως ἀν ἐξέλθη.

άγνοημάτων] See note on v. 2, άγνοοῦσιν.

8.  $\tau o \tilde{v} \tau o \delta \eta \lambda o \tilde{v} \tau \sigma s$ ] The Levitical ceremonial is here said (1) to have been due to divine inspiration, (2) to have had a typical significance in some at least of its particulars. For  $\delta \eta \lambda o \tilde{v} v$  in application to the Holy Spirit, see I Pet. i. II,  $\epsilon is \tau i va \tilde{\eta} \pi o \tilde{v} v \kappa a \iota \rho \delta v \epsilon \delta \eta \lambda o v \tau \delta \tilde{\epsilon} v$ a  $v \tau \sigma \tilde{v} s \tau v \epsilon \tilde{v} \mu a X \rho \iota \sigma \tau \sigma \delta$ . As there Old Testament prophecy, so here Old Testament ritual, is ascribed to the Holy Spirit.

μήπω πεφανερῶσθαι] That the way of (into) the true holy of holies, the aὐròs ὁ οὐρανὸs of verse 24, had not yet been made manifest, &c. The doctrine of Atonement, by the one sacrifice of Christ once offered, was not yet so distinctly revealed that a man could enter God's spiritual presence with a conscience disburdened of guilt by the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ (x. 22. xii. 24. I Pet. i. 2).

την τών άγίων όδόν] (1) For τα άγια, see note on viii. 2. (2) Is obos here way in the sense of road, or way in the sense of journey? For the former, see Matt. vii. 13, 14, εὐρύχωρος ... τεθλιμμένη κ.τ.λ. xiii. 4, παρά την όδόν. xx. 30. xxi. 8, 19. xxii. 10. &c. For the latter, Luke ii. 44, ήμέρας όδόν. Acts i. 12, σαββάτου έχον όδόν. ix. 17, 27. I Thess. iii. 11, κατευθύναι την όδον ήμων might suit this place. But x. 19, 20 (where the  $\epsilon i \sigma o \delta o s$  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$   $\dot{\alpha} \gamma i \omega \nu$  interprets the following όδος) decides in favour of the latter. The journey of the ayıa. That is, the mode of entering the antitypical holy of holies.

έτι της πρώτης] While the outer σκηνη still had a standing. The outer separate from the inner. While there was still place for a separate outer chamber in the typical tabernacle. In the other eight places of its occurrence στάσις has its other sense, of faction or sedition. Here it is simply a standing or standing-place. It is frequent in this sense in the Septuagint. Deut. xxviii. 65, οὐδὲ μὴ γένηται στάσις τῷ ἴχνει τοῦ ποδός σου. I Chron. xxviii. 2, οἰκοδομῆσαι οἶκον ἀναπαύσεως...καὶ στάσιν ποδῶν Κυρίου ἡμῶν. &c.

9 στάσιν ήτις παραβολή είς τον καιρον τον ένε-

9. ήτις παραβολή Which thing (the fact of there being a  $\pi \rho \omega \tau \eta \sigma \kappa \eta v \eta$  separate from the holy of holies) was a parable. At first sight nris might look like the direct relative of  $\sigma \kappa \eta v \eta$ alone: which πρώτη σκηνή was a parable. But to call the  $\sigma \kappa \eta \nu \eta$ itself a  $\pi a \rho a \beta o \lambda \dot{\eta}$  seems harsh and without example. And the attraction (in gender or number) of the relative to the predicate is quite common. See, for example, Mark xv. 16, ἔσω της αὐλης, δ ἐστιν πραιτώριον. Eph. iii. 13, έν ταις θλίψεσίν μου υπέρ ύμων, ήτις έστιν δόξα ύμων. vi. 17, την μάχαιραν του πνεύματος, ό έστιν βήμα Θεού. 1 Tim. iii. 15, έν οίκω Θεού άναστρέφεσθαι, ήτις έστιν έκκλησία Θεού ζώντος. So here  $\eta \tau \iota \varsigma$  refers neither åc. to orning nor to ortaois, but stands for  $\delta \tau \iota$ , which thing, or rather a thing which. See notes on ii. 3, hris. viii. 5, olrives. &c.

eis  $\tau \delta v$  raupór] Unto (pointing to, with a view to) the present season (period). The existence of an outer tabernacle, distinct and divided from the inner, was a parable which was to have its explanation in the Gospel age. The only question is whether the everykora is (now) present, or (then) instant. In favour of the former we have Rom. viii. 38, ούτε ενεστώτα ούτε μέλλοντα. I Cor. iii. 22. είτε ένεστώτα είτε μέλλοντα. Gal. 1. 4, έκ τοῦ αἰώνος τοῦ ἐνεστώτος  $\pi o \nu \eta \rho o \hat{v}$ . For the latter, I Cor. vii. 26, διὰ τὴν ἐνεστῶσαν ἀνάγκην, 2 Thess. ii. 2, ws or i everτηκεν ή ήμέρα τοῦ Κυρίου. 2 Tim. iii. I, ένστήσονται καιροί χαλε- $\pi o i$ . The former is however the simpler. For kalpós, a portion cut out of time, a season or opportunity, with the two points of difference from xpovos, that it is (1) limited in duration, and (2) definite in purpose, see, for example, Gen. i. 14, eorwoar eis кагройз. Eccles. iii. 1—8, кагро̀з τοῦ τεκείν καὶ καιρὸς τοῦ ἀποθανείν κ.τ.λ. Song ii. 12, τὰ ανθη ὤφθη έν τη γη, καιρός της τομης έφθακεν κ.τ.λ. Acts i. 7. xiv. 17. xvii. 26. &c. &c. μη δυνάμεναι] Such as cannot. See note on iv. 2, μή.

κατά συνείδησιν As regards conscience. By removing the consciousness of unforgiven sin by an effectual absolution. The word συνείδησις (from σύνοιδα, συνειδέναι) means properly (1) fellow-knowledge, knowledge with (some one, that some one being) oneself; self-privity, consciousness. So here, and in x. 2, δια το μηδεμίαν έχειν έτι συνείδησιν άμαρτιών. Hence (2) the faculty of this self-privity or consciousness, conscience. Acts xxiii. 1. xxiv. 16. Rom. ix. xiii. 5. 1 Cor. viii. 7, 10, 12. 2 Cor. i. 12. iv. 2. v. 11. &c. &c. See fuller note on Rom. ii. 15.

tional clause (carnal ordinances imposed until a time of reformation). This seems to want confirmation in two respects; (a) the independence of the  $\mu \dot{o} v o v \dot{\epsilon} \pi \dot{\iota}$  clause, and (b) the stress laid upon inikeiµeva, as meaning imposed as a burden, without saying upon whom. There are objections to either (3) Still more, I explanation. think, to that of the Revised Version, 'being only (with meats and drinks and divers washings) carnal ordinances,' &c.

 $\beta \rho \omega \mu a \sigma v r$ ] Such distinctions of clean and unclean in matters of food as those of Lev. xi. and Deut. xiv. Compare Acts x. and Rom. xiv. and Col. ii.

 $\pi \acute{o}\mu a\sigma w$ ] The reference must be to restrictions or prohibitions of wine for priests (Lev. x.), for Nazarites (Num. vi.), &c. The word  $\pi \acute{o}\mu a$  occurs only here and in 1 Cor. x. 4. In the Septuagint, only in Psalm cii. q and Dan. i. 16.

διαφύροις] Rom. xii. 6. See note on i. 4, δσψ διαφορώτερον.

 $\beta a \pi \tau \iota \sigma \mu o \hat{s} \hat{s}$  Exod. xxix. 40. Lev. viii, 14. &c. See note on vi. 2.

δικαιώματα] See note on verse 1.

σαρκός] As κόσμου in the phrase τὰ στοιχεία τοῦ κόσμου (Gal. iv. 3. Col. ii. 8, 20), so sapkos here is a term of disparagement for the Levitical system of ordinance and sacrifice as essentially material and unspiritual in its form.

μέχρικ. δ.] Until a season (or period) of rectification. A striking description of the Gospel age. It comes to make the crooked straight (tà σκολιà eis eveleiar, Isai. xl. 4) by turning shadow into substance and substituting the spiritual for the carnal. For raigos, see note on verse above. The form Suop- $\theta \omega \sigma \iota s$  occurs only here. The revised text has διορθωμάτων (for κατορθωμάτων) in Acts xxiv. 2, in the sense of reforms. In the Septuagint, the verb  $\delta i o \rho \theta o \hat{v} v$ occurs in Jer. vii. 3, 5, tav diopθούντες διορθώσητε τας όδούς υμών. &c. Also  $\delta(o\rho\theta\omega\tau)$ 's in Wisd. vii. 15.

iπικείμενa] See the first note on the verse. (1) Lying upon (in the sense of imposed as a burden upon) seems to want a dative. (See I Cor. ix. 16.) Otherwise that sense would find illustration in Acts xv. 10, 28, iπιθείναι ζυγὸν iπi τὸν τράχηλον τῶν μαθητῶν...μηδὲν πλέον iπιτίθεσθαι ὑμῖν βάρος κ.τ.λ. (2) Lying upon (in the other suggested sense, of resting upon as a basis), taken with  $\epsilon \pi \lambda \beta \rho \omega \mu a$ -  $\sigma \iota \nu \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$ , is unobjectionable except in collocation. See John xi. 38 (quoted in a former note). xxi. 9,  $\dot{\alpha} \nu \theta \rho a \kappa i \dot{\alpha} \nu \kappa \epsilon \iota \mu \epsilon \nu \eta \nu \kappa a \dot{\alpha}$  $\dot{\alpha} \psi \dot{\alpha} \rho \iota o \nu \epsilon \pi \iota \kappa \epsilon \iota \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma \nu$ .

11. Xpioro's  $\delta \epsilon$ ] We reach now the great contrast. The antitype of the Levitical sanctuary is the heaven into which the Melchizedek High Priest entered once for all as the crucified and risen Saviour.

παραγενόμενος] Having arrived. Having appeared on the scene of fact and history. Sce Matt. iii. I, er de rais nuépais έκείναις παραγίνεται Ίωαννής. Luko xii. 51, δοκείτε ότι εἰρήνην παρεγενόμην δούναι έν τη γη. Compare Isai. 1xii. 11, einare τη θυγατρί Σιών, Ιδού σοι ό σωτήρ παραγίνεται κ.τ.λ. The aorist does not point to any particular moment, such as the nativity or the beginning of the ministry, but sums up into a single act the whole of the manifestation, from incarnation to ascension.

άρχ. τῶν μελλόντων] The genitive gives the subject of the highpriestly action. High Priest concerned about, ministering in, securing and applying by His ministry, τὰ μέλλοντα ἀγαθά. The genitive in iii. 1 (τῆς ὅμολογίας ήμῶν) is rather different: see note there. The genitive here is nearly equivalent to the accusative τὰ προς τὸν Θεόν in ii. 17.

τών μελλόντων αγαθών ] So in x. 1, σκιάν...τών μελλόντων  $\dot{a}\gamma a \theta \hat{\omega} v$ . The reading of the Vatican manuscript is yevoµé-The good things already νων. come to pass, already brought to light by the Gospel. Compare 2 Tim. i. 10. If μελλόντων (with the Alexandrine and Sinaitic manuscripts) be retained, still the sense may be the The good things future same. under the law, future till Christ But it is not certain came. whether the sense may not be. future still even under the Gospel. See vi. 5, δυνάμεις τε  $\mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda ov \tau os$  ai $\omega v os$ , and the note there.

άγαθῶν] See John x. 10, έγῶ ηλθον ἴνα ζωην ἔχωσιν καὶ περισσὸν ἔχωσιν. Compare the Communion Service. That by the merits and death of thy Son Jesus Christ, and through faith in His blood, we and all thy whole Church may obtain remission of our sins, and all other benefits of His Passion.

διὰ της] Depends upon εἰσηλθεν. Through, locally. He passed through the antitype of

σκηνής ου χειροποιήτου, τοῦτ' ἔστιν οὐ ταύ-12 της τής κτίσεως, οὐδὲ δι' αίματος τράγων καὶ the agua into the antitype of the äγιa äγίων. What then is the antitype of the ayia? (1) The phrases of iv. 14 (διεληλυθότα Toùs oupavous) and vii. 26 (up- $\lambda \delta \tau \epsilon \rho \sigma s \tau \hat{\omega} r \sigma \delta \rho a r \hat{\omega} r)$  would point to the general idea of the lower heavens through which He passed into the autos o ouparós (ix. 24) of the divine Presence itself, which last is unquestionably the antitype of the ayıa aγίων here. (2) But the emphasis laid upon the particular orny here intended may seem to suggest a more definite interpretation. May this be the ideal heaven of the divine selfmanifestation to saints and angels, as distinguished from the ideal heaven of the very Presence? (3) Something might be said for a totally different sense, making the  $\sigma \kappa \eta v \dot{\eta}$  the  $\sigma a \rho \xi$  of Christ, the human nature which He took upon Him and in which He ministered and suffered below. See x. 20, δια τοῦ καταπετάσματος, τουτ' έστιν τής σαρκός αύτου. The ou χειροποιήτου would thus have a striking illustration in the version of John ii. 19 ( $\lambda i \sigma a r \epsilon$ τον ναόν τοῦτον κ.τ.λ.) given by the false witnesses (Mark xiv. 58, τον ναόν τουτον τον χειροποίητον, καί... άλλον αχειροποίητον). The figures and even the types of Scripture are plastic, not rigid, and the same inspired writer may vary them with the context. The first of the three explanations is perhaps the simplest.

τελειοτέρας] More mature, as being the completion and fulfilment of the typical. See I Cor. xiii. 10, όταν δὲ ἔλθῃ τὸ τέλειον, τὸ ἐκ μέρους καταργηθήσεται.

χειροποιήτου] So verse 24, ού γὰρ εἰς χειροποίητα εἰσῆλθεν ἀγια Χριστός. Acts vii. 48, ἀλλ ούχ ὁ ὕψιστος ἐν χειροποιήτοις κατοικεῖ. xvii. 24, οὐκ ἐν χειροποιήτοις ναοῖς κατοικεῖ. (In the Septuagint, χειροποίητα often stands for idols. Lev. xxvi. 1. Isai. ii. 18. &c.)

οὐ ταύτης τῆς κτίσεως] Not belonging to this (visible) creation. Col. i. 15, 23, πάσης κτίσεως...ἐν πάση κτίσει τῆ ὑπὸ τὸν οὐρανόν. See note on iv. 13, and Rom. i. 20. For ταύτης, compare τούrου in Rom. vii. 24.

12.  $\delta i a l \mu a \tau os]$  The former  $\delta u a$  was local, through. This is instrumental, by means of. The reference is to the annual day of Atonement (Lev. xvi.) on which the high priest's entrance into the holy of holies was τράγων καὶ μόσχων] An inversion of the order. The latter was the offering for the priests, and it came first. Lev. xvi. 6, 9, 11, 15.

 $\delta \iota a$   $\delta \epsilon$   $\tau \circ v$   $i \delta \iota \sigma v$ ] So only could He enter for us. As the Eternal Son, He has a right there: as the High Priest of man, He enters in virtue of the sacrifice of Himself.

τὰ ἀγια] See note on viii. 2, τῶν ἀγίων. The antitype of the holy of holies, the divine Presence itself.

alwvíav] In contrast with the temporary reconciliation effected by the annual ceremony of expiation. For the contrast between alwivos and  $\pi p \acute{o} \sigma \kappa a \iota \rho o \sigma$ , see 2 Cor. iv. 18. The feminine form (alwvía) is found (in the New Testament) only here and in 2 Thess. ii. 16. In the Septuagint, Num. xxv. 15. Isai. lxi. 4. Jer. xx. 17. Ezek. xxxvii. 26.

λύτρωσιν] Luke i. 68. ii. 38. Elsewhere (in the New Testament) always aπολύτρωσις. This is one of the links of a possible connexion between this Epistle and St Luke. The simple form occurs also in Lev. xxv. 48. Jud. i. 15. Num. xviii. 16. Psalm cxi. 9, λύτρωσιν απέστειλε τῷ λαῷ αὐτοῦ. CXXX. 7, καὶ πολλὴ  $\pi$ αρ' αὐτῷ λύτρωσις. The other forms of the uncompounded word are λύτρον, Matt. xx. 28. Mark x. 45: λυτροῦν (middle and passive), Luke xxiv. 21. Tit. ii. 14. I Pet. i. 18: and λυτρωτής. Acts vii. 35. See fuller note on Rom. iii. 24, απολυτρώσεως.

 $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \rho \dot{\mu} \epsilon \nu o_{S}$ ] (A debased form, simulating a first aorist, for  $\epsilon \dot{\nu}$ - $\rho \dot{\mu} \epsilon \nu o_{S}$ ). This is apparently the only instance, in the New Testament or the Septuagint, of the (classical) middle use of  $\epsilon \dot{\nu} \rho (\sigma \kappa \omega,$ to find for oneself, to win, or gain. The  $\lambda \dot{\nu} \tau \rho \omega \sigma \sigma s$  win, or the the voice expresses 'the latent sibi' which marks the Saviour's interest in it (He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied).

 λύτρωσιν—for, &c. It is an argument à fortiori. If animal blood could have any value at all in relation to religious matters—and it could only be, at the best, an external and a ceremonial value—how much more, &c.

13 εἰ γὰρ τὸ αἶμα τράγων καὶ ταύρων καὶ σποδὸς δαμάλεως ῥαντίζουσα τοὺς κεκοινωμένους ἀγιάζει

 $\tau \circ at\mu a$ ] That blood. See verse 12. The reference in the first clause is still to the day of Atonement.

ταύρων] Always μόσχων in Lev. xvi. For ταύρων, see x. 4. Psalm l. 13, μη φάγομαι κρέα ταύρων, ή αίμα τράγων πίομαι; Isai. i. 11, αίμα ταύρων καὶ τράγων οὐ βούλομαι.

καὶ σποδὸς δαμάλεως] An abrupt transition to another Levitical ceremony, for which see Num. xix. 1, &c. λαβέτωσαν πρός σε δάμαλιν πυρρὰν ἄμωμον κ.τ.λ.

σποδός] See Num. xix. 9, 10.

ρarriζουσa] The water of separation was called υδωρ ρarτισμοῦ (Num. xix. 9, 13, 20, 21). The expression here is condensed and abbreviated. The full phrase would at least have been ρarriζομένη ἐπί, and even then would have required the mention of the water which made the ashes capable of the sprinkling. For ρarriζευν, see verses 19, 21, and x. 22. It occurs nowhere else in the New Testament. And in the Septuagint only in Lev. vi. 27. 2 Kings ix. 33. Psalm li. 7, jarrieîs pe voowny kal kabapi- $\sigma b'_{1} \sigma \sigma \mu a.$  Also jarrio µ $\delta s$  is found (in the New Testament) only in xii. 24 and 1 Pet. i. 2, and (in the Septuagint) only in Num. xix. The forms jaiveuv and  $\pi \epsilon \rho_{1} \rho \rho a' veuv$  are somewhat oftener used in Leviticus and Numbers.

τούς κεκοινωμένους Those that have been defiled by contact with death in any shape. Num. xix. 13-16, πα̂s ο άπτόμενος τοῦ τεθνηκότος...ανθρωπος έαν αποθύνη έν οικία, πας ό είσπορευόμενος είς την οικίαν...και παν σκεύος ανεφγμένον...και πας ΰς αν αψηται επί πρόσωπον (Α, προσώπου Β) τοῦ πεδίου τραυματίου ρομφαίας (B omits  $\beta$ .),  $\eta$ νεκρού, ή οστέου ανθρώπου (Α, άνθρωπίνου Β), ή μνήματος κ.τ.λ. The water of separation was the ayvioua in all such cases. For KOLVOUV (not in the Septuagint), see Matt. xv. 11, &c. Mark vii. 15, &c. Acts x. 15. xi. 9. xxi. 28. And for Kouvo's (the opposite of aylos), see note on Rom. xiv. 14.

aγιάζει] Sanctifies, in the sense of restoring to outward communion with God and His chosen nation. This was the effect of the application of the water of separation to one who had incurred the special defilement of contact with physical death. It was the effect of the ceremony of the day of Atonement upon the priests and people generally, in the form of a typical and prophetical absolution from offences against God. The two rites are combined in the one statement: both are said to avail only for a  $\kappa a \theta a \rho \delta r \eta_s$  of the  $\sigma \alpha \rho \xi$ . For  $\dot{a} \gamma \alpha \dot{a} \xi \epsilon \nu$ , see note on ii. II.

προς την της σαρκός καθαρότητα, πόσφ μαλλον 14 το αίμα τοῦ Χριστοῦ, δς διὰ πνεύματος αἰωνίου

πρός] With a view to, in the aspect of, as regards, that sort of purity (or cleanness) which belongs to the σάρξ as opposed to the συνείδησις. That καθαρότης which is external and ceremonial, instead of spiritual or of the conscience. The form καθαρότης is found here only in the New Testament or the Septuagint.

14.  $\pi \acute{o} \sigma \psi \mu \widetilde{a} \lambda \lambda \sigma r$ ] An exclamation. In x. 29,  $\delta \sigma \kappa \epsilon \widetilde{\iota} \tau \epsilon$  is interposed between  $\pi \acute{o} \sigma \psi$  and the comparative ( $\chi \epsilon \acute{\rho} \rho \sigma \sigma s$ ). I leave you to judge. See note on verse 13. For the phrase (always in the same à fortiori sense) see Matt. vii. 11,  $\epsilon i$  oùv  $\dot{\nu} \mu \epsilon \widetilde{c} s \pi \sigma \tau \eta \rho \circ i \delta \tau \tau \epsilon s \dots \pi \acute{o} \sigma \psi \mu \widetilde{a} \lambda \lambda \sigma \circ i \Pi a \tau \eta \rho \dot{\nu} \mu \widetilde{\omega} \nu \kappa \tau . \lambda$ . x. 25. Luke xi. 13. xii. 28. Rom. xi. 12, 24. Philem. 16.

τὸ alμa τοῦ X.] The full and exact phrase occurs elsewhere only in 1 Cor. x. 16 and Eph. ii. 13. But equivalent forms are frequent. See x. 19 ('Ιησού). xiii. 12, 20 (τού ίδίου ...διαθήκης alwríov). Matt. xxvi. 28. Rev. i. 5 (aυτού). v. 9 (σου). vii. 14. xii. 11 (τοῦ ἀρνίου). The blood is the life (Lev. xvii. 11, ή γαρ ψυχή πάσης σαρκός αίμα αύτοῦ ἐστί, καὶ ἐγὼ δέδωκα αὐτὸ ύμιν επί του θυσιαστηρίου εξιλάσκεσθαι περί των ψυχών υμών. τὸ γὰρ αἶμα αὐτοῦ ἀντὶ τῆς ψυχῆς εξιλάσεται). The blood of Christ is the surrendered life, that obedience unto (up to) death (Phil. ii. 8) by which He made atonement for sin.

διὰ πνεύματος alωνίου] A very difficult passage. (1) Much depends upon the sense given to προσήνεγκεν. Is it the προσφέρειν of v. I, or is it the second προσφέρειν of viii. 3? In other words, is it the sacrifice of the death, or is it the sacrifice of the self-presentation, as the risen and ascended Lord, in heaven itself? In verses 25, 26, the two are contrasted. If He has often to present Himself, He must often have suffered. (2) Upon the answer to this question will partly depend the meaning of dia nvevuatos aiw-That it is the Holy νίου. Spirit who is spoken of is certain either way. The omission of the article emphasizes the epithet Eternal. (a) But if the  $\pi \rho o \sigma \eta v \epsilon \gamma \kappa \epsilon v$  refers to the self-presentation in heaven (as  $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta$  in verse 25), then the agency of the Holy Spirit in resurrection may be prominent in the mention of the  $πν ε \hat{v} μ a a i ων i ον here.$  See Rom. viii. 11, where the indwelling Spirit is made the agent of the future resurrection of the Christian, and, by implication, of the resurrection of Christ Himself. If this view of the  $\pi \rho o \sigma \eta v \epsilon \gamma \kappa \epsilon v$ is taken, the statement is that, by the agency of the Holy Spirit in raising Him from the dead. Christ was enabled to present Himself to God in heaven as the crucified and risen Saviour, in fulfilment of the type of the high priest carrying the blood of the victims, already sacrificed on the brazen altar, into the holy of holies on the day of Atonement. (b)

έαυτον προσήνεγκεν άμωμον τῷ Θεῷ, καθαριεῖ

In the other view, the agency of the Eternal Spirit must be specially connected with the ἄμωμον which follows; and the thought will be, that the Saviour, whose humiliation consisted in receiving the Holy Spirit (John iii. 34, our er µétpov) as His inspirer and enabler throughout the days of His flesh, and living in all things as a Man full of the Holy Ghost, laying aside the present exercise of the powers and attributes of Deity, was thus preserved blameless  $\mu \epsilon \chi \rho \iota \theta a \nu a \tau o v$ , and, as the antitype of the perfect victim of the Levitical ritual, offered Himself on the altar of the Cross as the all-sufficient sacrifice for the sins of the world. I am in suspense between the two interpretations, but incline now to the former.

πνεύματος alωνίου] This particular combination is found only here. For aiwros with a divine Person, see Rom. xvi. 26, τοῦ αἰωνίου Θεοῦ. Also Job xxxiii. 12. Isai. xxvi. 4, 6 Θεός ό μέγας ό αἰώνιος. xl. 28, Θεός αἰώνιος κ.τ.λ. Compare I Tim. i. 17, τῷ δὲ βασιλεί τῶν alwvwv. For other epithets of the Holy Spirit (besides the commonest of all, ayior), see x. 29, της χάριτος. John xiv. 17, τής αληθείας. Eph. i. 13, τής ἐπαγγελίας.

čavróv] In contrast with the τράγων καὶ ταύρων above. So in verses 25, 26, ἐν αἶματι ἀλλοτρίω is contrasted with διὰ τῆς θυσίας αὐτοῦ.

προσήνεγκεν] For the alternative sense here, see note above on διὰ πν. aἰωνίου.

 $\ddot{a}\mu\omega\mu\sigma\nu$ ] 1 Pet. i. 19, ús  $\dot{a}\mu\nu\sigma\hat{v}$   $\dot{a}\mu\omega\mu\sigma\nu$  kai  $\dot{a}\sigma\pi\lambda\sigma\nu$ . A word frequent in the Septuagint (first in Exod. xxix. 1) in connexion with the choice of victims for sacrifice. Without blemish. Faultless. Eph. i. 4. v. 27. Col. i. 22. Rev. xiv. 5.

 $\kappa a \theta a \rho i \epsilon \hat{i}$  (With this word ends the Vatican manuscript, leaving the remaining chapters of the Epistle, together with the Pastoral Epistles, and that to Philemon, and the Revelation, without its help.) The verb  $\kappa a \theta a \rho (\zeta \epsilon v \text{ is specially applied in }$ the first three Gospels (1) to the cleansing of the leper (Matt. viii. 2, 3. x. 8. xi. 5. Mark i. 40-42. Luke iv. 27. v. 12, 13. vii. 22. xvii. 14, 17), and (2) to the ceremonial cleansing of vessels (Matt. xxiii. 25, 26. Luke xi. 39). In the Acts and Epistles it passes (1) to the admission of all mankind to equal spiritual privileges (Acts x. 15. xi. 9), then (2) to the idea of moral and spiritual cleansing (Acts xv. 9. 2 Cor. vii. 1. Eph. v. 26. Tit. ii. 14. James iv. 8. 1 John i. 7, 9). The course of the word in the Septuagint is analogous to this; beginning with its repeated use in ceremonial purifications, and specially in reference to the cleansing of the leper (Lev. xiii. and xiv.), and passing in the psalms and prophets to a spiritual purifying from guilt and sin (Psalm xix. 12, 13. li. 2, 9. Jer. xxxiii. (xl. B) 8. Ezek. Mal. iii. 3. &c.). xxxvi. 25.

 $\tau \eta v \sigma v v \epsilon i \delta \eta \sigma v$ ] See note on verse 9. The thought here is the efficacy of the sacrifice of Christ, and of His presentation of it in heaven, in taking away the sense of unforgiven sin from the conscience, and so setting the man free for a willing and devoted service.

 $\nu\epsilon\kappa\rho\hat{\omega}\nu$ ] The word is perhaps chosen in reference to the special office of the  $\delta\delta\omega\rho$  fartio- $\mu o\hat{v}$  above in cleansing from the ceremonial defilement of contact with death. Not from dead bodies, but from dead works. See notes on verse 13. Also note on vi. 1,  $\nu\epsilon\kappa\rho\hat{\omega}\nu$ .

Θεφ ζώντι] See note on iii. 12, Θεοῦ ζώντοs. A God who is all life. In contrast with the νεκρῶν above, and with the defiling contact with literal death from which the σποδὸs δαμάλεωs cleansed typically. Compare x. 31, εἰs χείρας Θεοῦ ζώντος. xii. 22, πόλει Θεοῦ ζώντος.

15. διà τοῦτο] Because His blood is thus efficacious.

διαθήκης] See notes on vii. 22. viii. 6, 8, διαθήκης, μεσίτης, καινήν.

 $[\delta \pi \omega s]$  That, a death having taken place unto redemption of the transgressions which referred to (bore upon, were committed against) the first diabyrn, the called might receive the (fulfilment of the) promise of the eternal inheritance. This clause describes the object of the Mediatorship of the new  $\delta ia\theta \eta \kappa \eta$ . Namely, that, a full and perfect atonement having been made for past sins, possession might be given, to all to whom the Gospel call comes, of that promised eternal inheritance which could not without that atonement be entered upon by any.

aπoλύτρωσιν] Three thoughts always lie in  $d\pi o\lambda \dot{v} \tau \rho \omega \sigma \iota s$ . (1) A previous state of bondage. (2) The interposition of a λύτρον. (3) A consequent deliverance. The word is not found in the Septuagint : it occurs ten times in the New Testament. The peculiarity here is the particular genitive following  $d\pi o\lambda \dot{\nu}$ τρωσις. Elsewhere  $\dot{a}$ πολύτρωσις is either absolute (Rom. iii. 24. 1 Cor. i. 30. Eph. i. 7. iv. 30. Col. i. 14), or else takes a genitive of the person or thing delivered (Luke xxi. 28, υμών. Rom. viii. 23, τοῦ σώματος. Eph. i. 14, της περιποιήσεως). Here it is a genitive of the thing from which the deliverance is. Removal, by a  $\lambda \dot{\upsilon} \tau \rho \sigma v$ (Matt. xx. 28. Mark x. 45) or aντίλυτρον (I Tim. ii. 6), of sins.

 $\epsilon \pi i$  With reference to. And so (by the context) against.

supersession? Has Isai. xlii. 21 (He will magnify the law, and make it houourable) anything of the same thought? At all events the atonement must not be confined to previous transgressions. See I John i. 7-9. ii. 1, 2.

παραβάσεων] See note on ii. 2, παράβασις κ. π.

λάβωσιν] Might take, in actual possession. For  $\epsilon \pi a \gamma$ γελίαν λαμβάνειν in this sense of receiving the fulfilment of a promise, see Acts ii. 33, τήν τε  $\epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda (a v \dots \lambda a \beta w)$  παρὰ τοῦ Πατρὸς εξέχεεν τοῦτο κ.τ.λ. oi κεκλημένοι] The expression used for the invited guests in the parables of Matt. xxii. 3, 4, 8, and Luke xiv. 17, 24. For the use here, compare note on Rom. viii. 30. It means those invited by the Gospel, and (tacitly understood) accepting the call.

alwrlov] In implied contrast with the earthly and therefore temporary possession of Canaan. See iv. 8, 9, κληρονομίας] Explained by the last reference (iv. 9), and by i. 14, κληρονομέιν σωτηρίαν. See note on i. 2, κληρονόμον πάντων. Also on vi. 12, 17.

16.  $\delta \pi o v \gamma a \rho$ ] See note on vii. 22, διαθήκης. The transition from covenant to testament is clear and not to be evaded. The latter was the commoner sense of  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$ . To one thinking in Greek there was nothing incongruous in the two senses. The fundamental idea of  $\delta_{ia}\theta_{\eta\kappa\eta}$ is arrangement. A covenant is an arrangement of relations, a testament is an arrangement of possessions. The transition is eased by the words  $\theta a v a \tau o v$  and κληρονομίαs in verse 15. It is as if the sacred writer had said, And thus the  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$  which is in one aspect a covenant is in another aspect a testament. It presupposes a death, and it confers an inheritance. View it in this light. Think what a testament is. See how appropriate is the idea to the Gospel Suaθήκη.

θάνατον ἀνάγκη] A testament presupposes a death—that of the testator. For ἀνάγκη, see verse 23, and Rom. xiii. 5.

Version recognize the difficulty of finding an English equivalent for  $\phi \epsilon \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  here, by rendering Such translations as be it be. adduced or alleged (in a forensic sense), by way of proving the will, are harsh and stiff, and it seems better to think of vaguer uses of the passive, such as to move, come, or go, and hence to be current, to be about, to be in the case, sufficiently indicated by the simple to be. The repeated occurrence of it in 2 Pet. i. 17, 18, 21 (φωνης ενεχθείσης ... ην έχθη προφητεία), illustrates this looser passive.

τοῦ διαθεμένου] For the phrase διατίθεσθαι διαθήκην, compare viii. 10. Acts iii. 25.

17.  $\epsilon \pi i \nu \epsilon \kappa \rho o \hat{s}$ ] Either (1) in reference to dead persons (see, for  $\epsilon \pi i$ , verse 15,  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \epsilon \pi i \tau \hat{\eta} \pi \rho \omega$ - $\tau \eta \delta i a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$ . xi. 4,  $\mu a \rho \tau \nu \rho o \hat{\nu} \tau \sigma s$  $\epsilon \pi i \tau \sigma \hat{s} \delta \omega \rho \sigma i s a \dot{\nu} \tau \sigma \hat{v}$ , or (2) on the footing, groundwork, or supposition, of dead persons (see viii. 6,  $\epsilon \pi i \kappa \rho \epsilon i \tau \tau \sigma \sigma \nu \epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon$ - $\lambda i \alpha s$ ).

 $\beta \epsilon \beta a i a$ ] Valid. See note on ii. 2,  $\beta \epsilon \beta a i o s$ .

 $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i \mu \eta$  Since it never avails, & An unusual, perhaps unexampled, instance of  $\mu \eta$ , but thoroughly consistent with its Hellenistic use (and indeed its proper definition) as the mental negative, the negative contemplated or reasoned upon. The justification of it lies in the  $\ell\pi\epsilon\ell$ , which is essentially subjective. Compare John iii. 18,  $\eta\delta\eta$   $\kappa\epsilon\kappa\rho\iota rat, \delta\tau\iota \ \mu\eta$   $\pi\epsilon\pi\ell\sigma\tau\epsilon\nu\kappa\epsilon\nu$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . To make the clause interrogative (for doth it ever avail...?) seems a harsh and needless expedient, with the above passage (John iii. 18) in view. (The alternative reading  $\tau\delta\tau\epsilon$  simply anticipates and prepares for the  $\delta\tau\epsilon$ .)

ότε  $\langle \hat{\eta} \rangle$ ] For ότε with a present indicative, see Mark xi. 1, ότε  $\hat{\epsilon}\gamma\gamma$ ίζουσιν (when they are in the act of drawing nigh). John ix. 4, ότε οὐδεὶς δύναται (when no one is in the state of being able). Here, when (while) the testator is living.

18.  $\delta\theta\epsilon\nu$ ] Whence. In consequence of which principle; namely, that a testament presupposes a death. For  $\delta\theta\epsilon\nu$ , see note on ii. 17.

οὐδὲ ή πρώτη] Not even the first (the Mosaic) διαθήκη. It might have seemed to be enough that the second (the Christiau) διαθήκη should fulfil the condition of having a death antecedent to it. But it was not so. Even the Mosaic, typical of the Christian, recognized the same necessity. The question arises, Was it that the Mosaic  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$  was itself testament as well as covenant? Or, that the Mosaic  $\delta \iota a \theta \eta \kappa \eta$  typified the testamentary character of the Christian? I think the latter.

ένκεκαίνισται. λαληθείσης γαρ πάσης έντολης 19

ένκεκαίνισται] Has been inaugurated. Either (1) the Scripture perfect. Thus it is written in the imperishable record. Or (2) the perfect of permanence. The inauguration is still in force while the Levitical system continues in operation. The word eyraivilleir, with its cognate and derived nouns, is post-classical ( raivizeiv and raivouv are classical), and has the senses of (1) making new (as for the first time), as Ecclus. xxxvi. 6, έγκαίνισον σημεία κ.τ.λ., (2) making anew (remaking), as 1 Sam. xi. 14, καὶ ἐγκαινίσωμεν έκει την βασιλείαν. 2 Chron. χν. 8, καί ένεκαίνισε το θυσιαστήριον Κυρίου. regarded as a sort of formula of sacrifices; or it may have been suggested by the predominant thought of the whole sub-section, which is that of the ceremonial of the day of atonement. The details of (2) seem to come from Lev. xiv. 6 (the cleansing of the leper) and from Num. xix. 6 (the three ingredients of the burning of the δάμαλις, followed by verse 9 which mentions the water, and verse 18 which mentions the hyssop), but may be introduced as natural and customary circumstances of the sprinkling of blood, the water to liquefy and multiply the blood, the wool to bind the hyssop to the cedar stick. (3) The addition of the  $\beta_{i}\beta\lambda_{i}$  to the  $\lambda a \partial s$  in the sprinkling is explained by the thought that, 'though containing divine words, it was written by human hands,' and thus needed purifying to qualify it for its abiding virtue.

πάντα τον λ. ἐράντισεν] Exod. xxiv. 8, λαβών δὲ Μωυσης το alμα κατεσκέδασε τοῦ λαοῦ. For parτίζειν, see note on verse 13.

20.  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \omega \nu$ ] The only variations in the quotation from Exod. xxiv. 8 are (1) τοῦτο for ἰδού, (2) ἐνετείλατο for διέθετο, (3) ὁ Θεὸς for Κύριος.

τό alμa τη̂s δ.] The blood of, belonging to, shed to ratify, the  $\delta\iota a\theta \eta \kappa \eta$ . The words are applied by our Lord to His own blood, and to the new  $\delta ia\theta \eta \kappa \eta$ , in the institution of the Supper. Matt. xxvi. 28, τοῦτο γάρ ἐστιν το αίμά μου της διαθήκης το περί πολλών ἐκχυννόμενον εἰς ἄφεσιν aμaptiw. Mark xiv. 24 (with υπέρ for περί, and omission of eis ap. aµ.). Luke xxii. 20, τούτο το ποτήριον ή καινή διαθήκη ἐν τῷ αἴματί μου (with ὑμῶν for  $\pi o \lambda \lambda \hat{\omega} v$ ). I Cor. xi. 25 (as in Luke, but with  $\epsilon\mu\omega$  for  $\mu\sigma\nu$ . ένετείλατο πρός ύμας ό Θεός. και την 21 σκηνήν δε και πάντα τα σκεύη της λειτουρ-and omission of words following it).

evereiλato] Substituted for διέθετο, as συντελέσω for δια- $\theta \eta \sigma o \mu a \iota$  in viii. 8, where see note. For  $\epsilon v \tau \epsilon \lambda \lambda \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ , see xi. 22, περί των οστέων αύτοῦ ένε- $\tau \epsilon \lambda a \tau o$ . The full construction is εντέλλεσθαί τι τινι. Matt. xxviii. 20, όσα ένετειλάμην υμίν. Mark x. 3. John xv. 14, 17. Sometimes the accusative is varied into  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \tau \nu \rho s$  (Matt. iv. 6), or ουτως (Acts xiii. 47), or lva (Mark xiii. 34), or is omitted (Acts i. 2). Sometimes the dative is changed into  $\pi \rho \delta s \tau \iota v a$ , as here. The word occurs only about 12 times in the revised text of the New Testament, but more than 340 times in the Septuagint.

21. Kal  $\tau \eta \nu \sigma \kappa$ .  $\delta \epsilon$ ]. And ( $\delta \epsilon$ ) the tabernacle also (kal), &c. This is a new and separate statement, for the tabernacle was not in existence at the time of the ceremony of Exod. xxiv. (1) It may be that the day of Atonement is again in the writer's mind, when the blood of the two victims was sprinkled first upon the mercy-seat (Lev. xvi. 14, 15), then upon the incensealtar (Exod. xxx. 10), then upon the brazen altar (Lev. xvi. 18), and when it is expressly said (Lev. xvi. 16) that atonement is made for  $\tau \partial$  aylov and for  $\eta$ σκηνή. But to this view there is the obvious objection that the atonement of Lev. xvi. is made, not by Moses, but by Aaron. (2) Some suppose that verse 21 refers to the anointing of the σκηνή και πάντα τα σκεύη avrys (Exod. xl. 9), and that, though only oil is there mentioned, as also in that account (Exod. xl. 13, 15) of the consecration of the priests, we must add in the case of the tabernacle that sprinkling of blood which is added in the case of the priests in Lev. viii. 24. (Josephus is quoted in confirmation of this last view.)

σκηνήν καὶ πάντα τὰ σκεύη] Exod. xxv. 9, τὸ παράδειγμα τῆς σκηνής καὶ τὸ παράδειγμα πάντων τῶν σκευῶν αὐτής. xxx. 26— 28. xl. 9. &c.

22 γίας τῷ αίματι ὁμοίως ἐράντισεν. καὶ σχεδὸν ἐν αίματι πάντα καθαρίζεται κατὰ τὸν νόμον, καὶ χωρὶς αἰματεκχυσίας οὐ γίνεται ἄφεσις.

20. This it cannot be. It must mean the (well known) blood. Appealing to the reader's knowledge of the Levitical ceremonial.

ἐράντισεν] See note on verse 13.

22. καὶ σχεδόν] And I may almost say that, &c. The σχεδὸν qualifies the sweeping statement which it prefaces, and specially the πάντα. It occurs twice besides; both times in the Acts, and both times with πâs. xiii. 44, σχεδὸν πῶσα ἡ πόλις συνήχθη. xix. 26, οὐ μόνον Ἐφέσου ἀλλὰ σχεδὸν πώσης τῆς ᾿Ασίας.

καθαρίζεται] See note on verse 14, καθαριεί.

kal  $\chi \omega \rho is$  This is not a separate statement, laying down as an axiom that atonement (in its availing sense) can only be made by blood, true as the fact is in its Christian application. It belongs to the clause above, with its qualifying κατά τὸν νόμον. The sin-offering always involved the sacrifice of animal life.

aiματεκχυσίαs] A word used nowhere else in the New Testament or the Septuagint. Towards its composition we have έκχυσις aiματος in I Kings xviii. 28. Ecclus. xxvii. 15.

afters] In the Septuagint afters; stands specially for the release (from debt, slavery, &c.) of the sabbatical year (Deut. xv. I, &c. xxxi. 10) and the year of jubilee (Lev. xxv. 28, &c. xxvii. 17, &c.). In the New Testament it is usually followed by  $a\mu a \rho \tau u \delta \nu$  ( $\pi a \rho a \pi \tau \omega \mu a \sigma \tau \omega$ , Col. i. 14), but here, and in Mark iii. 29, the genitive is understood.

23. 'Aváyan ov ] A good example of the effect of  $\mu i \nu$  in subordinating its clause to the one following with  $\delta i$ . For the necessity spoken of applies only to the latter part of the verse. While animal sacrifices might suffice for the purifying of a material and typical sanctuary, an expiation of more intrinsic value was needed to purify heaven for man's entrance. The necessity lies in the nature of things, like the addivator of x. 4. It is impossible in the nature of things that animal blood should atone for sin. It is necessary therefore in the nature of things that, if there is to be forgiveness, a more availing propitiation should be revealed.

τούτοις] By these things. Such sacrifices as those referred to in verses 13, 19, 21.

airà di rà irovpávia] Heaven needs no purifying in itself: the necessity spoken of is relative to fit it for man's entrance. The purifying spoken of is therefore the sacrifice of Christ for man's sin, and the self-presentation of Christ in heaven as man's High Priest.

κρείττοσιν] See note on i. 4. Compare the use of the word in vii. 19, 22. viii. 6.  $\theta v \sigma i a s$ ] Plural, to state the principle. Presently it will define itself into the  $\mu i a \nu \theta v \sigma i a \nu$  of x. 12.

 $\pi a \rho a$  For  $\pi a \rho a$  after a comparative (characteristic of this Epistle) see note on i. 4.

24. où yá $\rho$ ] I say avrà rà  $\epsilon \pi \sigma v \rho a v ra$ , for that is the sanctuary of our High Priest's  $\lambda \epsilon_i$ - $\tau \sigma v \rho \gamma i a$ . See viii. 1, 2.

χειροποίητα] See note on verse 11, διὰ τῆs. Here that is said of the antitypical ẵγια åγίων which is there said of the antitypical ẵγια.

aντίτυπα] Corresponding to. The same word aντίτυπος may be either (1) answering in type to, or (2) answering to the type of. Thus type and antitype may change places in its use. The χειροποίητα here (the Levitical holy of holies) are called aντίτυπα to the heavenly. Corresponding typically to the  $a\lambda\eta$ θινά. In I Pet. iii. 21 the water of baptism is said to correspond antitypically to the water of the deluge.

 $v\hat{v}u$ ] In the Gospel day. See Rom. xvi. 26. 2 Tim. i. 10. The accompanying sorist makes the whole Gospel period a single point of time.

έμφανισθήναι The infinitive of the direct object. To be made ¿µφavýs (apparent or manifest). Equivalent to the indary  $\gamma \epsilon \nu \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  of Acts x. 40. The aorist makes it the single act of self-presentation by ascension into heaven. For ippavilleuv, see Matt. xxvii. 53, evequeiσθησαν πολλοῖς. John xiv. 21, 22, έμφανίσω αὐτῶ έμαυτόν κ.τ.λ. The exact thought of this passage, the self-manifestation of the ascended Lord to the Father in heaven, is found nowhere else.

τῷ προσώπψ] To the face of God. Matt. xviii. 10, τὸ πρόσωπον τοῦ Πατρός μου τοῦ ἐν οὐρανοῖς. Rev. xxii. 4, καὶ ὄψονται τὸ πρόσωπον αὐτοῦ. Compare Psalm xvi. 15, ὀφθήσομαι τῷ προσώπψ σου. xlii. 2, πότε ήξω καὶ ὀφθήσομαι τῷ προσώπψ τοῦ Θεοῦ; &c.

i π λ ρ η μ ων] The simplest expression for the work of the Intercessor. To be in the presence of God for us, in our behalf, as that which He is, in work and heart.

25. ovo iva] Nor did He enter ( $\epsilon i \sigma \eta \lambda \theta \epsilon v$ ) that He may, dc.  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta$ ] The context decides that this  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \epsilon \iota v$  is not the offering on the cross, but the subsequent presentation of Himself in heaven. See note on verse 14,  $\delta \iota a \pi v \epsilon \iota \mu a \tau os$  alwvíou. The present tense implies the continuance or repetition of the  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \epsilon \iota v$ . That He may be often presenting Himself.

ev aimari] The ev here, preserving its usual idea of contained in, has the sense of encased in as His protecting armour. Compare Eph. vi. 14, περιζωσάμενοι... έν άληθεία. The blood which the high priest carried was his instrument of entrance, his key or his passport, in one aspect (verse 12, δι' αίματος τράγων και μόσχων); it was also his armour, his coat of mail, in another aspect (Lev. xvi. 2, καὶ οὐκ ἀποθανεῖται). Compare x. 19, έν τῷ αἴματι Ίησοῦ.

άλλοτρίψ] Alien. Not his own. See verse 12, where δι aίματος τράγων καὶ μόσχων is contrasted with τοῦ ἰδίου in the next clause. Compare Luke xvi. 12, ἐν τῷ ἀλλοτρίφ contrasted with τὸ ὑμέτερον. The clause is added as a secondary point of contrast, the primary being the κατ ἐνιαυτόν. (1) The high priest enters year by year: Christ once for all. (2) The high priest enters in virtue of blood not his own: Christ in virtue of His own.

26. enei Since (if so) He must often have suffered. (For this use of  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i$ , carrying with it the suppressed clause, if so, or if otherwise, according to the context, see x. 2, and note on Rom. iii. 6,  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i$ .) If Christ is to present Himself again and again, He must suffer again and again. The annual presentation of the blood in the holy of holies followed upon the annual sacrifice on the brazen altar. So must it be in the antitype. If the  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma$ - $\phi_{\epsilon\rho\epsilon\nu}$  in heaven is to be repeated, so must the  $\pi \dot{a}\sigma \chi \epsilon \nu$  on Calvary. This contrast is often overlooked, and the offer  $(\pi \rho \circ \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta)$  of verse 25 is read as the synonym of the suffer  $(\pi a \theta \epsilon i v)$  of verse 26.

 $\tilde{\epsilon}\delta\epsilon_i$ ] In order to the fulfilment of the type and to the consistency of things. Compare the ἔδα of Luke xxiv. 26, 46. Acts xvii. 3.

 $\dot{a}\pi\dot{o}\kappa$ .  $\kappa$ .] For the phrase see note on iv. 3. Here the thought is, that, if the  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma-\phi\dot{\epsilon}\rho\epsilon\iota\nu$  requires repetition, so must the  $\pi\dot{a}\sigma\chi\epsilon\iota\nu$ , and, if repetition, then perpetual repetition, from the time of creation itself. The interval between creation and the fall is passed over as immaterial. Indeed, the fall being foreseen, its antidote should be anticipated.

vvvì δέ] But as it is. As the case really stands. See note on viii, 6.

 $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{i}$  συντελεία τών al.] (I) The  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{i}$  is peculiar. From its primary sense of on, it seems to pass into that of on the occasion of, and so (in this connexion) is best rendered by at. Examples are not readily found. Perhaps 2 Cor. iii. 14,  $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{i}$  τ $\hat{\gamma}$   $\dot{a}$ αγνώσει  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$  is one in point. (2) For συντέλεια (consummation), see Matt. xiii. 39, 40, 49. xxiv. 3. xxviii. 20 (always with τοῦ alώνος). Compare 2 Chron. xxiv. 23, μετὰ τὴν συντέλειαν τοῦ ἐνιαυτοῦ. Dan. ix. 27, ἕως [τῆς] συν-

The coming of Christ, meaning His entire manifestation, including incarnation, ministry, passion, resurrection, ascension, is spoken of as taking place at the completion of the alwves of time, without entering into the division of the two advents, or the long lapse of time between them. Reckoning by years, we might equally well say that Christ appeared in the middle of the alwres. But in the divine view it was the closing of time, the Gospel being a final and self-developing dispensa-See note on i. 2, Tŵr tion. ήμερών τούτων.

eis à détryouv  $\tau \eta s$  à  $\mu$ .] Unto annulling of sin by an availing atonement. For à détryous, see vii. 18 (only). The verb (à dere iv) is used with either (1) persons, to reject, set at nought (as Mark vi. 26. Luke x. 16,  $\delta$  à der  $\delta v$   $\psi \mu a s$  è  $\mu \epsilon$  à der e  $\epsilon$   $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . John xii. 48. I Thess. iv. 8), or (2) things, to set at nought, to despise (as x. 28. Mark vii. 9. Luke vii. 30. I Tim. v. 12. Jude 8), or to bring to nought, annul (as 1 Cor. i. 19. Gal. ii. 21. iii. 15). The last is the sense of *aθέτησι*s here and in vii. 18.

τη̂s ἀμ.] Sin universal. All sin.

τη̂s θυσίας αὐτοῦ] The ἐν αἰματι ἀλλοτρίῳ above shows that αὐτοῦ is emphatic. Of Him Himself. The aὐτὸς in such (Hellenistic) uses is appositional (as if it had been Xριστοῦ αὐτοῦ) and thus becomes emphatic. See, for example, Eph. i. 5, εἰς αὐτόν (unto Him Himself). &c.

πεφανέρωτα!] Perfect of abiding consequences. Has been manifested. He was before, but now by His incarnation, ministry, passion, &c., He has been disclosed, revealed, to the world. See John i. 31. I Tim. iii. 16. I Pet. i. 20. I John iii. 5. The same term is applied to the second advent in Col. iii. 4. I John ii. 28. iii. 2.

27.  $\kappa a \delta \kappa a \theta \delta \sigma o r$ ] Illustration from human example. Man dies once, and the next thing before him is judgment. So Christ died once, and the next thing before Him is the advent. The  $\kappa a \theta \delta \sigma o r$  answered by orrws (verse 28) makes the one sequence the measure of the other in probability. The use of  $\kappa a \theta \delta \sigma o r$  is peculiar to IX. 27, 28.

We have  $\epsilon\phi$  όσον in Matt. xxv. 40, 45. Rom. xi. 13 (differing from καθ όσον only as forsomuch as, in so far as, from inasmuch as, in proportion as).

άπόκειται] It is reserved. Literally, it lies off from all else. The idea is that of security from meddling or tampering. Compare Luke xix. 20, ή μνα σου ήν είχον ἀποκειμένην ἐν σουδαρίω. Col. i. 5, τὴν ἐλπίδα τὴν ἀποκειμένην ὑμῖν ἐν τοῖς οὐρανοῖς. 2 Tim. iv. 8, λοιπὸν ἀπόκειταί μοι ὁ τῆς δικαιοσύνης ἀπόκειται μοι ὁ τῆς δικαιοσύνης ὅτέφανος. The ἀπόκειται here is said of the living, for whom death no less than judgment is still in prospect.

τοῖς ἀνθρώποις] Mankind. All men. The only occurrence of οἱ ἄνθρωποι in this Epistle.

 $a\pi a\xi$ ] Once and only once.  $\mu\epsilon\tau a \delta\epsilon \tau o \hat{\tau} r o ]$  As the next event, however long after.

κρίσις] See x. 27. Matt. x. 15, ἐν ἡμέρα κρίσεως. xi. 22, 24. xii. 41, 42, ἀναστήσονται ἐν τῆ κρίσει...ἐγερθήσεται ἐν τῆ κρίσει. Luke x. 14. xi. 31, 32. 2 Pet. ii. 9, εἰς ἡμέραν κρίσεως. 1 John iv. 17, ἐν τῆ ἡμέρα τῆς κρίσεως. Jude 6, εἰς κρίσιν μεγάλης ἡμέpas.

28. kai o X.] Christ also. Like mankind in this—that, as they have only two events (death and judgment) before them, so before Him also there were but two events (death and advent), one of which is now in the past, and the other therefore the one event in prospect.

 $\mathbf{a}_{\pi \mathbf{a}} \boldsymbol{\xi}$  Once and once only. προσενεχθείς ... ανενεγκείν The context, and the passive voice, both show this mpoorpopa to be that of the sacrifice on Calvary. See note on v. 1 for the uses of  $\pi \rho o \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \epsilon v$  and d v a-Here, having been φέρειν. brought to the altar of sacrifice that He might bring up to it in His own person the sins of many. πολλών] Might have been πάντων. Compare Matt. xx. 28 (Mark x. 45), λύτρον ἀντὶ πολλών, with 1 Tim. ii. 6, ἀντίλυτρον ὑπὲρ πάντων. But the point here is to emphasize the contrast between the once and the many, between the single offering and the multitude saved by it. In this respect it is like Rom. v. 18, 19, δι' ένδς δικαιώματος εἰς πάντας ἀνθρώπους εἰς δικαίωσιν ζωῆς κ.τ.λ. Compare I John ii. 2, οὐ περὶ τῶν ἡμετέρων δὲ μόνον ἀλλὰ καὶ περὶ ὅλου τοῦ κόσμου.

 $\chi \omega \rho is a \mu a \rho \tau i as]$  See note on the same words in iv. 15. Here the thought is, apart from all connexion with that work of sin - bearing and propitiation which was the special office of the first advent.

Lev. xvi. 2, έν γαρ νεφέλη οφθήσομαι έπι τοῦ ίλαστηρίου.

τοις αυτόν απεκδ.] There may be an allusion to the reappearance of the high priest, after the solemn ceremonial in the holy of holies on the day of Atonement, to the anxiously waiting people. Even of the common daily ministry in the temple we read (Luke i. 21), ήν ο λαός προσδοκών τον Ζαχαρίαν κ.τ.λ. In I Thess. i. 10 it is made one half of the characteristic Christian life avaμένειν τον υίον αύτου έκ των ουpavŵv. Compare 1 Cor. i. 7, απεκδεχομένους την αποκάλυψιν τοῦ κυρίου ήμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. Phil. iii. 20, σωτήρα απεκδε-χόμεθα κύριον Ιησούν Χριστόν. 2 Tim. iv. 8, πασιν τοις ήγαπηκόσιν την επιφάνειαν αυτού. For  $a\pi\epsilon\kappa\delta\epsilon\chi\epsilon\sigma\theta a\iota$ , see notes on Rom. viii. 19, 23, 25. Gal v. 5.

εἰς σωτηρίαν] Are these last words to be attached to ὀφθήσεται or to ἀπεκδεχομένοις ? For the latter, we have the σωτήρα ἀπεκδεχόμεθα of Phil. iii. 20, and perhaps the easier and more natural sequence of the Greek. The Authorized Version and Revised Version strongly support the former. The difference of sense is almost nothing. For the thought

Σκιὰν γὰρ ἔχων ὁ νόμος τῶν μελλόντων Χ. Ι ἀγαθῶν, οὐκ αὐτὴν τὴν εἰκόνα τῶν πραγμάτων, (either way), compare Isai. xxv. 9, ίδού, δ Θεὸς ἡμῶν, ἐφ' ῷ ἡλπίζομεν, καὶ σώσει ἡμᾶς οῦτος Κύριος, ὑπεμείναμεν αὐτῷ, καὶ ἡγαλλιώμεθα καὶ εὐφράνθημεν ἐπὶ τῆ σωτηρία ἡμῶν. For σωτηρίαν, see note on i. 14.

Χ. Ι. Σκιάν γάρ έχων] We enter here upon the third subsection of the third main section of the Epistle. The great topic of Christ and Aaron divides itself into (1) the priesthood, (2) the sanctuary, (3) the sacrifice. But, as before, the new point is glided into without any ostensible transition. The first sentence is thrown into utter confusion by the (better supported) reading δύνανται for δύvarai. It is almost inconceivable that such a writer should have deliberately framed an anacoluthon like o vóµos ĕχων... ούδέποτε δύνανται. And the plural Súvavtai is easily accounted for as a clerical error by the preceding plural  $\pi \rho \sigma \phi \epsilon$ povouv. In such a case manuscript authority may be too slavishly followed. (1) With δύνανται, we must treat the words from  $\sigma \kappa i a \nu$  to  $\pi \rho a \gamma \mu a \tau \omega \nu$ as a nominative absolute, and suppose 'they' (the priests) to be understood before δύνανται as before  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \sigma \sigma v$ . The sense will then be, Year by year they never can perfect, &c. That is, year by year they always fail to perfect, &c. It might be too bold to take  $\kappa a \tau$ éviautov taîs aŭtaîs as a combined phrase, and render it, By the sacrifices which they offer in perpetuity, year by year the same, they never can perfect the worshippers. It must suffice to say, Year by year they (the priests) never can (always fail to) perfect, by the same sacrifices which they offer in perpetuity (by the sacrifices which they offer, the same over and over again, in perpetuity), those who draw nigh (to God). (2) With Súvarai, the sentence is complete, though some of its minor difficulties remain. The law...year by year, never can perfect, &c.

τῶν μελλόντων ἀγ.] See note on ix. 11, where the question is raised whether the good things spoken of were then, or are still, future.

 $\epsilon i \kappa \delta \nu a$ ] We might have expected  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a$  as the opposite of  $\sigma \kappa \iota a$ . But the sense is different. The  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a$  of the  $\pi \rho a \gamma \mu a \tau a$  in question is in heaven itself. The disparagement of the law lies not in its not having the  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a$ , but in its not having the  $\epsilon i \kappa \omega \nu$  of them, but only a  $\sigma \kappa \iota a$ . κατ' ένιαυτὸν ταῖς αὐταῖς θυσίαις αἶς προσφέρουσιν εἰς τὸ διηνεκὲς οὐδέποτε δύνανται 2 τοὺς προσερχομένους τελειῶσαι. ἐπεὶ οὐκ ἂν ἐπαύσαντο προσφερόμεναι, διὰ τὸ μηδεμίαν

The selection of cikwy shows how strong a word it is, and serves to interpret 2 Cor. iv. 4 and Col. i. 15, where Christ is called the cikwr toù Ocoû. See Bp. Lightfoot's note on the latter text, where he assigns to elkur the two defining notions of representation (as opposed to more resemblance) and manifestation (comparing John i. 18. xiv. 9, 10). See also Abp. Trench's Synonyms, where the implied thought (in eikŵv) of an archetype or prototype is illustrated. See Matt. xxii. 20, tivos ή είκών αύτη; Mark xii. 16. Luke xx. 24. Rom. i. 23, elkóνος φθαρτοῦ ἀνθρώπου κ.τ.λ. Rev. xiii. 14, 15, ποιήσαι εἰκόνα τῷ θηρίω. xiv. 9, 11. &c. The other passages where eikwv occurs are less literal, but answer the above conditions. Rom. viii. 29, συμμόρφους της είκόνος τοῦ νίοῦ aὐτοῦ (probably said of the resurrection body of Christ). 1 Cor. xv. 49, την εἰκόνα τοῦ χοϊκού...τού επουρανίου. 2 Cor. iii. 18, την αύτην εἰκόνα μεταμορφούμεθα (the spiritual likeness of Christ). Col. iii. 10, Kar' εἰκόνα τοῦ κτίσαντος αὐτόν.

ties. See note on vi. 18.

 $\kappa \alpha \tau'$  iviautór] See first note on the chapter. The reference is clearly to the day of Atonement.

ταῖς αὐταῖς] See first note. προσφέρουσιν] That is οἰ ἰερεῖς. Always so in the Epistle. See v. 1, and throughout.

είς το διηνεκές] In perpetuity. Year after year.

τοὺς προσερχομένους] Those who approach. The worshippers. See note on iv. 16.

τελειώσαι] In ix. 9 κατά συνείδησιν is added. See note there. Also on ii. 10.

2.  $i\pi\epsilon i$ ] Else would they not have ceased to be affered. The inefficacy of the Levitical sacrifices is argued from the mere fact of their periodical repetition. Their impotence is self-confessed. For this use of  $i\pi\epsilon i$ , see note on ix. 26.

*ἀ*παύσαντο προσφερόμενα! A (classical) construction most frequent in St Luke. See Luke v. 4. Acts v. 42. vi. 13. xiii. 10. xx. 31. xxi. 32. Also Eph. i. 16. Col. i. 9.

συνείδησιν άμ.] Consciousness of sins still unforgiven and έχειν έτι συνείδησιν άμαρτιῶν τοὺς λατρεύοντας άπαξ κεκαθαρισμένους; ἀλλ' ἐν αὐταῖς ἀνά- 3 μνησις ἁμαρτιῶν κατ' ἐνιαυτόν. ἀδύνατον γὰρ 4 αἶμα ταύρων καὶ τράγων ἀΦαιρεῖν ἁμαρτίας. διὸ εἰσερχόμενος εἰς τὸν κόσμον λέγει, Θυσίαν 5 requiring atonement. For the construction, see I Pet. ii. 19,  $\delta u \hat{\alpha} \sigma v v \epsilon (\delta \eta \sigma v v \Theta \epsilon o \hat{v} \text{ (only)}$ . Elsewhere conscience. See note on ix. 9.

toùs  $\lambda \alpha \tau \rho$ .] Here the worshippers. So ix. 9. Luke ii. 37. Acts xxvi. 7. Phil. iii. 3. Elsewhere the priests. See note on viii. 5.

κεκαθ.] See note on ix. 14, καθαριεί.

3. ἀλλ' ἐν αὐταῖς] But (instead of this) there is in them (the Levitical sacrifices) an ἀνάμνησις ἀμαρτιῶν year by year (on the day of Atonement).

ev autaîs] Contained, involved, embodied in them.

άνάμνησις] A recalling to mind (by oneself or another), a reminding. Luke xxii. 19, εἰς τὴν ἐμὴν ἀνάμνησιν. 1 Cor. xi. 24, 25. Lev. xxiv. 7, εἰς ἀνάμνησιν προκείμενα τῷ Κυρίω. Num. x. 10. Wisd. xvi. 6. For the active verb, to remind, see 1 Cor. iv. 17, ὅς ὑμᾶς ἀναμνήσει τὰς όδούς μου. 2 Tim. i. 6, ἀναμινήσκω σε ἀναζωπυρεῖν κ.τ.λ. Gen. xli, 9, τὴν ἀμαρτίαν μου ἀναμιμνήσκω (I recall to mind) σήμερον. Num. ν. 15, θυσία μνημοσύνου ἀναμιμνήσκουσα ἁμαρτίαν. 1 Kings xvii.18, τοῦ ἀναμνήσαι τὰς ἀδικίας μου. Ezek. xxi. 23, 24. xxix. 16.

 άδύνατον γάρ] It is so and it must be so—for, &c. It is impossible in the nature of things. See note on ix. 23, άνάγκη.

alua  $\tau$ . kai  $\tau \rho$ .] Without articles, to lay stress on the quality. Such a thing as blood. Such things as bulls and goats.

άφαιρεῖν] Rom. xi. 27 (from Isai. xxvii. 9), ὅταν ἀφέλωμαι τὰς ἁμαρτίας αὐτῶν. In the Septuagint (where ἀφαιρεῖν is the rendering of nearly 40 Hebrew verbs) see Exod. xxxiv. 7, ἀφαιρῶν ἀνομίας καὶ ἀδικίας καὶ ἁμαρτίας. Lev. x. 17. Num. xiv. 18.

5. διό] Wherefore. Because of which inherent impossibility.

 $\epsilon l\sigma\epsilon\rho\chi$ .] See note on  $\tau\eta\nu$ olkov $\mu\epsilon\nu\eta\nu$  in i. 6, where parallels from St John are quoted.

λέγει] Psalm xl. 6, &c. The only variations from the Septuagint are (1) ευδόκησας for ήτησας, (2) ό Θεός instead of ό καὶ προσφορὰν οὐκ ἠθέλησας, σῶμα δὲ 6 κατηρτίσω μοι. ὁλοκαυτώματα καὶ περὶ

Θ. μου, and this (3) before instead of after  $\tau \delta$   $\theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \mu a \sigma \sigma v$ .

Ovoíav  $\kappa$ .  $\pi$ .] In its first meaning, and on the lips of David, the passage endorses I Sam. xv. 22 in its assertion of the superiority of obedience to sacrifice. But some of the expressions, such as  $\sigma \hat{\omega} \mu a \delta \hat{\epsilon} \kappa$ .  $\mu$ ., and  $\eta_{\kappa\omega}$ , and  $\pi\epsilon\rho i \epsilon\mu o \hat{\nu}$ , are almost incapable of application to any but the Messiah, and fall under the second rule laid down on i. 5, that, where that is written of a man, which no mere man can satisfy, there lies under it a reference to One who is not man only.

 $\theta$ .  $\kappa$ .  $\pi$ .] Sacrifice and offering. See on v. 1. Here  $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma$ - $\phi \rho \rho a$  seems nearly equivalent to  $\delta \hat{\omega} \rho a$  there ( $\pi \rho \sigma \sigma \phi \epsilon \rho \eta$  there being the verb to both), pointing to offerings not of animal life. But, like  $\delta \hat{\omega} \rho a$ , it is only when distinguished from  $\theta v \sigma i a$  by being coupled with it that it has any such limitation.

σώμα δέ A remarkable deviation from the Hebrew, which gives, mine ears hast Thou opened (digged). But the substitution is made by the Septuagint, not by the writer of the Epistle. Instead of the thought of an ear divinely opened for obedient hearing, the Septuagint version gives that of a whole body divinely framed for obedient action—obedience being the key-note of both phrases. But the Septuagint reading is more distinctly suggestive of the Messianic application.

σώμα] See Rom. vii. 4. Col. i. 22.

κατηρτίσω] So Matt. xxi. 16 (from Psalm viii. 2), ἐκ στόματος νηπίων κ. θ. κατηρτίσω alvor. Elsewhere in the New Testament the active and passive voices are those used. In the Septuagint, the middle voice isfound also in Psalm xi. 3. xvii. 5. xxix. 9. lxviii. 9. lxxiv. 16, σὺ κατηρτίσω φαῦσιν καὶ ηλιον (A, ηλιον καὶ σελήνην B). lxxx. 15.

6.  $\delta\lambda \delta\kappa$ .  $\kappa$ .  $\pi$ .  $\dot{a}\mu$ .] Burntofferings and sin-offerings. The former (in the New Testament) is found only in Mark xii. 33.

 $\pi\epsilon\rho$ i  $\dot{a}\mu$ .] The phrase is so complete in itself for the sinάμαρτίας οὐκ εὐδόκησας· τότε εἶπον, Ἰδοὺ 7 ήκω, ἐν κεφαλίδι βιβλίου γέγραπται περὶ ἐμοῦ, τοῦ ποιῆσαι, ὁ Θεὸς, τὸ θέλημά offering (occurring more than 50 times in Leviticus alone) that it is indifferent to case and number,  $\theta v \sigma i a$  (or, as here, the accusative plural  $\theta v \sigma i a$ s) being understood before it.

ευδίκησας] The post-classical verb evookeiv has the two main uses of (1) to think it well, to think fit, to be pleased, to desire, with an infinitive (as Luke xii. 32. Rom. xv. 26. 1 Cor. i. 21. 2 Cor. v. 8. Gal. i. 15. Col. i. 19. I Thess. ii. 8. iii. 1), and (2) to be well pleased with, to take delight in, with ev (as Matt. iii. 17. xvii. 5. Mark i. 11. Luke iii. 22. 1 Cor. x. 5. 2 Cor. xii. 10), eis (as 2 Pet. i. 17), or a simple dative (2 Thess. ii. 12), or accusative (here, and Matt. xii. 18). See a fuller note on Rom, xv. 26.

The resolution TOTE 7. following was formed at a particular point of time. The three preceding aorists, expressing in form divine acts of refusing and substituting, point to a moment of their realization by the speaker. I came to know that Thou wouldest not, &c.; then (on my perceiving this) I said, dc. In the application to the Messiah, the resolution of incarnation is the (ideal) moment of the utterance. The same single act of resolving is seen in the ἡγήσατο of Phil. ii. 6.

 $\eta$ κω] I am come. Here am I. Great vividness is thus given to the promptitude of the self-presentment for obedience. See John viii. 42, ἐκ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐξηλθον καὶ ηκω. The verb ηκειν is used only once by St Paul (and that in a quotation), Rom. xi. 26.

έν κεφαλίδι] The κεφαλὶς is said to be properly the projecting knob at the end of the stick round which the parchment was rolled, and hence the roll or scroll itself. Ezek. ii. 9, ἰδοὺ χεἰρ ἐκτεταμένη πρός με, καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ κεφαλὶς βιβλίου. iii. 1, κατάφαγε τὴν κεφαλίδα ταύτην.

βιβλίου] Like χρυσίον (a thing made of xpvois), BiBliov is a thing made of  $\beta i \beta \lambda os$  (papyrus). A writing or document. See ix. 19. Matt. xix. 7, BiBliov атоотасию. Luke iv. 17, 20, επεδόθη αυτώ βιβλίον του προφήτου Ησαίου, και ανοίξας το βιβλίον εύρεν τον τόπον ού ήν γεγραμμένον κ.τ.λ. John xx. 30. xxi. 25, τα γραφόμενα βιβλία. Gal. iii. 10, έν τῷ βιβλίω τοῦ νόμου. 2 Tim. iv. 13, τὰ βιβλία, μάλιστα Tas μεμβράνας. The word occurs 23 times in the Apocalypse in all manner of connexions.

περί εμού] Written concern-

8 σου. ἀνώτερον λέγων ὅτι θυσίας καὶ προσφορὰς καὶ ὀλοκαυτώματα καὶ περὶ ἁμαρτίας οὐκ ἠθέλησας οὐδὲ ηὐδόκησας, αἴτινες

ing me. The Revised Version of the Old Testament gives as an alternative in the margin, prescribed to me. But  $\pi\epsilon\rho\dot{\epsilon}\mu\sigma\dot{\nu}$ clearly makes the speaker the subject, not the recipient. A decisive mark of the Messianic reference.

τοῦ ποιῆσαι] Depending upon ῆκω. For the purpose of doing. See Luke xxiv. 29, καὶ εἰσῆλθεν τοῦ μεῖναι σὺν αὐτοῖs. &c. The aorist expresses to do by a single act, whether literally (which would well suit the application of the words to the one sacrifice which is the subject here), or, as often, in the aspect of a life as one whole.

ο Θεός] Vocative, as in i. 8. See the note there.

8. ἀνώτερον] Luke xiv. 10 (only).

λέγων...έρηκεν] That is, Xριστός. We might have expected εἰπῶν and λέγει. But the present and perfect forcibly emphasize the perpetual and the conclusive voice of Scripture. Or the λέγων may be, in the very act of saying. In the very moment of recognizing the nothingness in God's esteem of animal sacrifices, He announces His resolution to replace them by His own obedience unto death. See note on xi. 8, καλούμενος.

airwes] Any which. Such as. See note on ii. 3, yrus.

κατὰ νόμον] In accordance with νόμος, such a thing as a law, in a slightly disparaging tone. See note on vii. 12, νόμου. 9. τότε] At that moment.

See above. είρηκεν] The Scripture perfect. See viii. 5. &c.

 $dvaιφε\hat{i}$ ] Destroys, abolishes. Still Χριστός. The verb dvaι $ρε\hat{i}ν$  (always elsewhere with τινά, not τι), to slay, occurs 20 times in St Luke's Gospel and Acts, only four times elsewhere in the New Testament. In Acts vii. 21 (from Exod. ii. 10)  $dvaιφε\hat{i}\sigma\thetaai$ (middle) is to rescue (to take up for oneself).

τὸ πρῶτον...τὸ δεύτερον] The first thing...the second thing... named in the above quotation. The first is θυσία καὶ προσφορὰ κ.τ.λ. The second is τὸ ποιῆσαι τὸ θέλημα τοῦ Θεοῦ.

στήση May establish. See

10.  $iv \ \psi \ \theta$ .] In which  $\theta i \lambda \eta \mu a$  (as being contained and comprised in it) lies our consecration, &c.

ήγιασμένοι ἐσμέν] See note on ii. 11, ἀγιάζων...ἀγιαζόμενοι. We have been consecrated, made to belong to God, taken to be His. Acts xx. 32, καὶ δοῦναι τὴν κληρονομίαν ἐν τοῖς ἡγιασμένοις πᾶσιν. προσφοράς] Eph. v. 2, καὶ παρέδωκεν ἑαυτὸν ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν (or ἡμῶν) προσφορὰν καὶ θυσίαν τῷ Θεῶ.

σώματος] Rom. vii. 4, έθανατώθητε τῷ νόμφ διὰ τοῦ σώματος τοῦ Χριστοῦ. Col. i. 21, 22, νυνὶ δὲ ἀποκατήλλαξεν ἐν τῷ σώματι τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ διὰ τοῦ θανάτου.

'I. X.] This double name occurs here for the first time (in the revised text) in this Epistle. Also xiii. 8, 21. ἐφάπαξ] vii. 27. ix. 12. Does it belong here to ήγιασμένοι ἐσμέν, or to προσφορâς ? I slightly prefer the latter.

11. Kai  $\pi \hat{a} \hat{s} \mu \hat{\epsilon} \nu$ ] The sacrifice of Christ, unlike the Levitical sacrifices, was sufficient and effectual: it was also single and final, closing for ever the sacerdotal ministration in its form of explation of sin. Notice the usual effect of  $\mu \hat{\epsilon} \nu$  in subordinating its clause to the contrasted clause with  $\delta \hat{\epsilon}$ . And whereas every Levitical priest, &c., Christ on the contrary, &c.

iερεύς] Authorities are almost equally divided between iερεύς and ἀρχιερεύς. Probably the sense is the same. See, for iερεύς in the higher sense, vii. 11, 15, 20, 23.

 $\epsilon \sigma \tau \eta \kappa \epsilon \nu$ ] In contrast with the  $\epsilon \kappa \alpha \delta \iota \sigma \epsilon \nu$  of verse 12. The posture of awe contrasted with the posture of dignity.

καθ'  $\eta\mu\epsilon\rho\alpha\nu$ ] Belongs to λειτουργών, as πολλάκιs to προσφέρων. The former speaks of the daily offices of priestly ministration, in all of which the high priest was the contral figure even where he acted through subordinates; the latter, of the annual ceremony of atonement, περιελείν] Το take off as something which is around one. So Gen. xli. 42, καὶ περιελόμενος Φαραῶ τὸν δακτύλιον ἀπὸ τῆς χειρὸς αὐτοῦ. Εχοd. xxxiv. 34 (2 Cor. iii. 16), περιγρεῖτο τὸ κάλυμμα. προσενέγκας] ix. 14, 28, έαυτον προσήνεγκεν...άπαξ προσενεχθείς κ.τ.λ.

εἰς τὸ διηνεκές] In perpetuity. To be taken with ἐκάθισεν, not with προσενέγκας. To say of the Levitical priests that they  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma$ φέρουσιν είς το διηνεκές (verse 1) is appropriate: to say of Christ that He προσήνεγκεν είς το διηνε- $\kappa \epsilon s$  is almost a self-contradiction. The phrase could only be applied to a single act when that single act leads on to a continued state, like exábioev here. He sat down (took His seat) in perpetuity is quite intelligible. These considerations outweigh the argument that in the three other places eis to dinveries follows (not precedes) its verb. Nor is there the slightest contradiction of the future advent in saying that He took His seat at the right hand of God in perpetuity. 'One thing at a time' is a maxim of Scripture. Compare Luke i. 33 with 1 Cor. xv. 24, &c. For ἐκάθισεν ἐν δεξιậ  $\tau$ .  $\Theta$ ., see notes on i. 3.

 τὸ λοιπόν] Henceforth. The only certain places of the occurrence of the exact phrase are I Cor. vii. 29. Phil, iii. I. iv. 8. 2 Thess. iii. I. As for that which remains. Sometimes said of subject-matter, sometimes of time. In the one case, finally. In the other, henceforth. In

Eph. vi. 10 the revised text reads τοῦ λοιποῦ, which ought to be the genitive of the point of time (in the future, as distinguished from for the future). But it is difficult to see its fit-Sometimes the ness there. article is omitted, as perhaps in Matt. xxvi. 45 and Mark xiv. 41, and decidedly in Acts xxvii. 1 Cor. i. 16. 2 Cor. xiii. 20. I Thess. iv. I. 2 Tim. iv. II. 8. The difference between  $\lambda_{0i}$ - $\pi \acute{ov}$  (as for anything remaining, whether of time or topic) and το λοιπόν (as for that which remains, in either sense) is almost insignificant, and the two forms finally and henceforth have to serve for both phrases.

 $\epsilon \kappa \delta \epsilon \chi \delta \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma s ]$  Usually with an accusative: as xi. 10. Acts xvii. 16. 1 Cor. xi. 33. xvi. 11. James v. 7. Here absolute, waiting. And so (in the strengthened form  $a \pi \epsilon \kappa \delta \epsilon \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ ) 1 Pet. iii. 30.

έως τεθώσιν] In i. 13 the quotation is exact from the Septuagint, έως αν θω τοὺς ἐχθρούς συν κ.τ.λ. Here it is made passive. In Matt. xxii. 44 and Mark xii. 36 the ὑποπόδιον of the Septuagint is replaced by ὑποκάτω. In Luke xx. 43 and Acts ii. 35  $i\pi\sigma\sigma\delta\delta i\sigma stands$ . In 1 Cor. xv. 25 the form is  $a\chi\rho\iota \ ov \ \theta \hat{\eta} \ \pi a \sigma \tau a \tau \cdot \epsilon \cdot i\pi \delta \tau \sigma \delta s$  $\pi\delta\delta a \ a \sigma \sigma \delta \cdot \sigma \sigma \sigma s \tau \cdot \epsilon \cdot s \pi \delta \tau \sigma \delta s$  $\pi\delta\delta a \ a \sigma \sigma \delta \cdot \sigma \sigma \sigma \sigma s \tau \delta \cdot \sigma \delta \tau \sigma \delta s$ Paul speaks of some mysterious change which is to take place at that consummation, expressed in the handing over of the kingdom, then finally triumphant, to God the Father.

14.  $\mu u\hat{a} \gamma a \hat{\rho}$ ] This is all He has to wait for—for, &c. There is no further sacrifice needed: He has only to wait for the subjugation of hostile powers to His mediatorial reign.

τετελείωκεν] He has perfected (κατὰ συνείδησιν, see ix. 9) in perpetuity those who are in course of sanctification. For the perfecting spoken of, see note on ii. 10, τελειώσαι. And for the sanctification, that on ii. 11, ἀγιάζων...ἀγιαζόμενοι, where it is defined (in its use in the present tense) as the gradual bringing of the consecrated person into harmony of life and character with the consecration.

15.  $\mu a \rho \tau v \rho \hat{\epsilon} \delta \hat{\epsilon}$ ] And of this effectual perfecting the Holy Spirit bears us witness in the words quoted before from the prophet Jeremiah: for, after promising, as one special gift μνησθήσομαι] Instead of the μνησθῶ of the Septuagint and of viii. 12. The two constructions are equally correct: the où μη μνησθῶ giving the thought of the single act of forgetting, and the où μη μνησθήσομαι carrying the forgetfulness into an endless futurity. I will never in the furthest future remember their sins against them.

18.  $\delta \pi \circ v \delta \epsilon$  And, where there is such a final and absolute dismissal of sins as this, there is no further need or room for a sacrifice of propitiation. 19. \*Exorres oiv] The argument is ended, and the application begun. Christ is the antitype of Aaron, heaven itself of the tabernacle, the one sacrifice of all sacrifices. The true holy of holies is now open. Christ has inaugurated our entrance into it. Through the veil, which is His human nature, we, carrying in our hand the blood of the true sacrifice, may go in, day by day, into the heaven where Christ, our one High Priest, is in God's presence for us.

 $\pi a \rho \rho \eta \sigma(av)$  See note on iii. 6. Frankness of speech, towards God and man, springing out of freedom of heart—a heart enlarged or set at liberty (Psalm cxix. 32) by faith and grace.

 $\epsilon$  is  $\tau \eta \nu \epsilon i \sigma o \delta o \nu$ ] Unto the entering. To make the entering possible. It is clear that  $\epsilon i \sigma o \delta o s$ is not (even in figure) an entrance (a way in), but an entering (a going in). It is thus in each place where it occurs. Acts xiii. 24,  $\pi\rho\delta$   $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\omega'\pi\sigma\upsilon$   $\tau\etas$ eisodov abroù. I Thess. i. 9, o' $\pi\sigma$ o'av eisodov eoxouev  $\pi\rho\delta$ s i u as. ii. 1. 2 Pet. ii. 11,  $\pi\lambda$ ousous e' $\pi\chi\rho\eta\eta\eta\eta$ 'oferat i u i'v  $\eta$  eisodos eis  $\tau\eta\nu$  aiwwor  $\beta$ astheiav  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . The importance of the remark will be seen when we reach o'dod win verse 20.

 $\tau \hat{\omega} v \ \dot{\alpha} \gamma (\omega v)$  The true holy of holies. See notes on viii. 2. ix. 8, 12, 24, 25. xiii. 11.

 $\epsilon v \tau \hat{\omega} a \tilde{u} a \tau i$ ] See note on The figure is that of ix, 25. encasement in, as the protecting armour. And the figure seems to make all Christians priests, even high priests, in virtue of · one iερεὺς μέγας (verse 21). The mention of the  $al\mu a$ , and the employment of the same preposition  $(\epsilon v)$  which is expressly applied (in ix. 25) to the Levitical high priest's equipment with the  $a \tilde{l} \mu a$  in entering the most holy place, seem to imply this. Christians are to rely upon the atonement when they exercise their right of entering God's presence, as the high priest relied upon the sacrificial blood in passing into the dyia άγίων.

20.  $\eta \nu$ ] The relative to

ἐνεκαίνιστεν] See note on ix. 18, ἐνκεκαίνισται. The aorist points to the one sacrifice once offered.

πρόσφατον] Although φένω  $(\pi \epsilon \phi a \mu a \iota)$  is given as the root of  $\pi \rho \delta \sigma \phi a \tau o s$ , and is seen in the use of it by Homer (Il. XXIV. 757), no such idea belongs to this word in its common usage. Thus Acts xviii. 2, προσφάτως έληλυθότα κ.τ.λ. Num. vi. 3, σταφυλήν πρόσφατον. Deut. xxiv. 5 (7 B), ear dé ris dáby γυναίκα προσφάτως. XXXII. 17, (θεοί) καινοί και πρόσφατοι ήκασιν κ.τ.λ. Psalm lxxxi. 9, oùr έσται έν σοί θεός πρόσφατος. &c. Here simply new in contrast with the old inaccessibility of the sanctuary.

 $\tilde{\zeta}\omega\sigma a\nu$ ] A living obos (eloobos)—the entering of a living man, with all the life in him, $\delta\iota\dot{a}$   $\tau o\tilde{v} \kappa.$ ,  $\tau o\tilde{v}\tau' \, \bar{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\iota r \tau \eta s \sigma.$ ] A new application of the type of the curtain between the two chambers of the tabernacle. We have passed from Christ's to the Christian's entering. And it suits this topic to make the  $\sigma a\rho \xi$  (the human nature) of Christ the medium of the entering. The realization of the incarnation is the  $\delta\iota a$  (see ix. 12), as the realization of the atonement is the  $\bar{\epsilon}v$  (see ix. 25 and x. 19) of the entering.

σαρκός] ii. 14. v. 7. Rom. i. 3. viii. 3. ix. 5. Eph. ii. 15. Col. i. 22. I Tim. iii. 16. I Pet. iii. 18. iv. 1. I John iv. 2. 2 John 7. These passages (from St John's Epistles especially) go far to interpret the διà τη̂s σαρκός of this text.

21. καὶ ἰερ. μέγαν] Depending on ἔχοντες. For ἰερεὺς in the sense of ἀρχιερεὺς, see note on verse 11, and the texts there quoted. For μέγας, see note on iv. 14, ἔχοντες οὖν ἀρχιερέα μέγαν. Great, in contrast with the succession of dying human high priests of Aaron's order. Great, in contrast with the individual Christian priests (see note on verse 19,  $iv \tau \hat{\psi} a i \mu a \tau i$ ).

έπι τον οίκον του Θ.] At first sight this might appear equivalent to the ini tor olkor avrou of iii. 6. But the context points rather to the sense of tabernacle or temple than to that of either house or household (see note there, oikw). Compare Zech. vi. 12, 13, idoù άνήρ, Ανατολή όνομα αυτώ...καί οικοδομήσει τον οικον Κυρίου... καί καθιείται και κατάρξει επί του θρόνου αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἔσται ὁ (Bomits ο) ίερεύς έκ δεξιών αύτου κ.τ.λ. The individual Christian high priests have a great High Priest over the heavenly tabernacle or temple. See again iv. 14. For olkos in its application to the tabernacle, see Exod. xxiii. 19. xxxiv. 26. Judg. xviii. 31, πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας ὄσας ἦν ὁ οἶκος τοῦ Θεοῦ ἐν Σηλώ (Σηλώμι Β). I Sam. i. 7, 24. &c. And to the temple, I Kings vi. I. &c. Acts vii. 47. &c.

22.  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\epsilon\rho\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\theta a$ ] See note on iv. 16. The exhortation is to a constant use of the Christian high-priesthood in its office of access to the holy of holies. This is the sum and substance έν πληροφορία πίστεως, ρεραντισμένοι τὰς καρδίας ἀπὸ συνειδήσεως πονηρᾶς καὶ λελουof personal religion. Let us keep approaching.

 $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$ ] From the literal idea of in company with, the preposition passes into that of the mental accompaniments or circumstances of an act or life. See iv. 16,  $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$  mappyoias. x. 34,  $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$  xapâs. xii. 28,  $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$  $\epsilon\dot{v}\lambda a\beta\epsilonias$  kai déovs, &c.

ảληθινη̂s] Genuine, real. See note viii. 2.

 $\pi\lambda\eta\rho\sigma\phi\rho\dot{\alpha}$ ] See note on vi. 11,  $\pi\lambda\eta\rho\sigma\phi\rho\dot{\alpha}\nu$ . In these two places, as in Col. ii. 2, fulness might be the sufficient rendering. But how in 1 Thess. i. 5?

ρ εραντισμένοι κ. λελουσμένοι] Possessing as we do the two parts of the high-priestly consecration, the sprinkling with blood (Lev. viii. 23) and the washing with water (Lev. viii. 6). The addition of the clause, with its two perfect participles, seems designed not to exhort to the acquisition of the qualifications, but rather to the exercise of the priesthood for which the two qualifications are already ours.

βεραντισμένοι] Our hearts being already sprinkled (with the atoning blood) from (so as to remove) a bad conscience. For parτίζειν, see note on ix. 13. For the application, see xii. 24, καὶ αίματι parτισμοῦ. 1 Pet. i. 2, εἰs...ῥαντισμὸν αἰματος Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. The first qualification for the individual high-priesthood is faith in the atonement as removing the guilt of past sin.

ἀπό] Something of this emphatic from (ridding of or freeing from) is seen in Rom. vii. 2, 6 (ἀπὸ τοῦ νόμου). Gal. v. 4 (ἀπὸ Χριστοῦ).

συνειδήσεως πονηρῶς] A bad conscience. A conscience clogged and burdened by the sense of unforgiven sin. The opposite of συνείδησις ἀγαθή (Acts xxiii. 1. I Tim. i. 5, 19. I Pet. iii. 16, 21), καλή (Heb. xiii. 18), καθαρά (I Tim. iii. 9. 2 Tim. i. 3), ἀπρόσκοπος (Acts xxiv. 16).

και λελουσμένοι] And having the entire body already washed with pure water. For the difference between lover and νίπτειν, see John xiii. 10, ό λελουμένος ούκ έχει χρείαν εί μη τούς πόδας νίψασθαι, αλλ' έστιν καθαρος όλος. The reference to baptism is clear. The heart believes in the atonement, the body is washed in baptism. These are the two qualifications for the Christian individual highpriesthood. Both these you have. Doubtless the case of the Hebrew Christians was predominantly that of persons baptized

23. κατέχωμεν] (1) The sentence begins with no connecting particle. Partly as an animated appeal (see note on iii. 12,  $\beta\lambda \dot{\epsilon}$ - $\pi$ ετε, ἀδελφοί), partly as substantially identical with the foregoing. (2) Compare iii. 6, 14, έαν...το καύχημα της έλπίδος... κατάσχωμεν κ.τ.λ. Here the exhortation  $(\kappa \alpha \tau \epsilon \chi \omega \mu \epsilon \nu)$  is to a tenacious and constant grasping: there the grasping is spoken of in retrospect (κατάσχωμεν), if (in the review of life as one act) we be found to have grasped. &c.

την όμολογίαν] The great and all-comprehending acknowledgment of our Christian hope. See note on iii. 1.

 $i\lambda\pi i\delta os$ ] See note on vi. 18.  $i\kappa\lambda iv\eta$ ] So as to be unwavering. Unswervingly. The word achurry's is used by Plato, but here only in the New Testament.

πωτος γάρ] Encouragement to the κατέχειν. So xi. 11. 1 Cor. i. 9. x. 13. 1 Thess. v. 24. 2 Thess. iii. 3.

24. καὶ κατανοῶμεν] And let ours be no selfish religion. Let us fix our attention upon each other. For κατανοῦν, see note on iii. 1.

eis παροξ.] With a view to a παροξυσμός of (to) love and good works. For παροξυσμός, see Acts xv. 39, εγένετο δε παροξυσμός ώστε αποχωρισθήναι αυτούς απ αλλήλων. Deut. xxix. 28, εν θυμῷ καὶ [εν] ὀργή καὶ [εν] παροξυσμῷ μεγάλῷ σφόδρα. Jer. xxxii. 37. There is a kind of paradox here. Let this be your παροξυσμός of one another, a provocation altogether of love and for good.

καλών ξργων] The exact opposite of the νεκρών ξργων of vi. 1 and ix. 14.

25.  $\mu\eta$  éykar.] Such desertion of the Christian congregation would be a sure sign of the want of the attention (κατανοεῦν) insisted upon above. For ἐγκαταλείπειν (to leave behind amongst perils or foes), see 2 Cor. iv. 9,

enouvaywyήν] Used only once in the Septuagint: 2 Macc. ii. 7, έως αν συναγάγη ό Θεός επισυναγωγήν τοῦ λαοῦ καὶ ἶλεως γένηται. Once also (besides this place) in the New Testament: 2 Thess. ii. υπερ της παρουσίας τοῦ κυρίου ήμων 'Ι. Χ. και ήμων επισυναγω- $\gamma \hat{\eta} s \epsilon \pi' a \dot{v} \tau o v$ . There it is applied to the future gathering of Christians at the second advent. And so the verb ( $\epsilon \pi \iota \sigma \upsilon \nu a \gamma \epsilon \iota \nu$ ) in Matt. xxiv. 31 and Mark xiii. In Matt. xxiii. 37 and 27. Luke xiii. 34 it is used of the present gathering to Christ of the dispersed and scattered mankind. In the text,  $\epsilon \pi \omega \nu \nu$  $a\gamma \omega \gamma \eta$  may have been preferred to the more obvious συναγωγή, from the Jewish associations of the latter. The gathering of yourselves together (the  $\epsilon \pi i$  of direction).

καθώς έθος τισίν] Already, so early in the experience of the Church.

παρακαλοῦντες] The necessary αλλήλους or ξαυτούς, interchangeable in the New Testament (see note on iii. 13, παρακ. ξαυτούς), is easily supplied from *aλλήλου*s and έαυτών just above.

τοσοίτψ μ. ὄσψ] The nearness of the great day is made a motive for increased earnestness of effort for others. For τοσοίτψ ὄσψ, see i. 4.

 $\beta\lambda\epsilon\pi\epsilon\tau\epsilon$ ] By witnessing the development of the signs of the end as given in the great prophecies of Matt. xxiv. Mark xiii. Luke xvii. and xxi. It was not given to the Church to know beforehand that the συντέλεια τοῦ aiŵros and the destruction of Jerusalem would not be synchronous. Expectation was to be the attitude of the Church in all her generations. See I Thess. i. 10.

έγγίζουσαν] Of time. Luke xxi. 8, ό καιρός ήγγικεν. Acts vii. 17, καθώς δὲ ήγγιζεν ὁ χρόνος τῆς ἐπαγγελίας.

την ήμέραν] The briefest of all the terms for the great day. See I Cor. iii. 13, ή γὰρ ήμέρα δηλώσει, ὅτι ἐν πυρὶ ἀποκαλύπτεται.

26. Έκ. γάρ] Reason for the urgency of the above exhortations: προσερχωμεθα ... κατέχωμεν...κατανοώμεν.

ΠΡΟΣ ΕΒΡΑΙΟΥΣ.

λαβεῖν τὴν ἐπίγνωσιν τῆς ἀληθείας οὐκέτι περὶ 27 ἀμαρτιῶν ἀπολείπεται θυσία, φοβερὰ δέ τις ἐκδοχὴ κρίσεως καὶ πυρὸς ζῆλος ἐσθίειν μέλλονέκουσίως] The opposite of ἀναγκαστῶς. See I Pet. v. 2, μὴ ἀναγκαστῶς ἀλλὰ ἐκουσίως. Philem. 14, μὴ ὡς κατὰ ἀνάγκην... ἀλλὰ κατὰ ἐκούσιον. To sin ἐκουσίως is to sin not under the constraining force of sudden temptation acting upon the weakness of the mortal nature, but (as Psalm xxv. 3 expresses it) without cause (διακενῆς, LXX.), that is, by free choice and will.

άμαρτανόντων] The tense expresses habitual sinning, not the single act speedily repented of and turned from. This shows also that the word must not be limited to the one crowning sin of apostasy. All sin indeed points that way; but it is of the habit of sinning (in whatever form), not only of its culminating act, that the warning speaks.

 $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a} \tau\dot{o} \lambda a\beta\epsilon\hat{\nu}$  See this more fully drawn out in the four particulars of vi. 4, 5. That passage of itself shows that the peril spoken of here is that of falling away from real grace, mysterious as the thought is, and impossible as is its explanation.

την ἐπίγνωσιν της αλ.] The phrase, and its two terms, occur only here in this Epistle. For the combination, see I Tim. ii. 4. 2 Tim. ii. 25. iii. 7. Tit. i. I. For  $i\pi i\gamma roors$  (the further or full knowledge, that of the heart as well as the mind) see, besides, Rom. i. 28. iii. 20. x. 2. Eph. i. 17. iv. 13. Phil. i. 9. Col. i. 9, 10. ii. 2. iii. 10. 2 Pet. i. 2, 3, 8. ii. 20.

oùkíti] If the one sacrifice thus fails, there is no other in reserve to take its place. See verse 18, oùkíti προσφορà περì àµaptías. Only there the thought is, because the one προσφορà is all-sufficient: here, if the one  $\theta$ voía has failed.

άπολείπεται] Is in reserve. The ἀπὸ is, as in ἀπόκειται (see note on ix. 27), off from all else, whether (1) when all else is done, or (2) in security from being meddled with.

27.  $\phi o\beta \epsilon \rho \dot{a}$  Only here and in verse 31 and xii. 21. Frequent in the Septuagint, beginning with Gen. xxviii. 17,  $\dot{\omega}s$  $\phi o\beta \epsilon \rho \dot{o}s \dot{o} \tau o \pi o s o \dot{v} \tau o s$ .

 $\tau_{15}$ ] A classical use, to convey an impression of mystery and awe.

 $i\kappa\delta_{0\chi\eta}$  Evidently expectation, though perhaps not elsewhere so used. The  $i\kappa\delta\epsilon_{\chi}\delta\mu\epsilon\nu\sigma_{S}$ of verse 13 is near enough to leave no doubt of the meaning.

τος τούς ύπεναντίους. ἀθετήσας τις νόμον 28 Μωυσέως χωρίς οἰκτιρμῶν ἐπὶ δυσὶν ἢ τρισὶν μάρτυσιν ἀποθνήσκει· πόσῳ δοκεῖτε χείρονος 29

A sort of fearful looking for of judgment. The expectation is terrible, as well as the realization.

καὶ πυρὸς ζηλος] The reference is to Isai. xxvi. 11,  $\zeta \hat{\eta} \lambda o_{S}$ λήψεται λαόν απαίδευτον, και νυν  $π \hat{v} \rho$  τοὺς ὑπεναντίους έδεται. The combination  $\zeta \eta \lambda os \pi v \rho os may be$ either, a Lylos consisting of fire (a  $\zeta \eta \lambda os$  which is fire), or, a ζηλος characterized by fire (having fire for its index and instrument). The parallelism in the passage quoted favours the For Znlos (properly former. fervour, and used both for good and evil, zeal and jealousy), see (1) John ii. 17. 2 Cor. vii. 7, 11. ix. 2. xi. 2. (2) Acts v. 17, xiii. 45. Rom. x. 2. xiii. 13. 1 Cor. iii. 3. 2 Cor. xii. 20. Gal. v. 20. Phil. iii. 6. James iii. 14, 16. Here the fervour is that of wrath. Compare Psalm lxxix. 5, errauby ortau ws πυροζήλός σου; Zeph. i. 19, ev πυρί ζήλου αύτου καταναλωθήσεται πάσα ή γή. iii. 8. Elsewhere the divine Ln los is the fervour of love, as Isai. ix. 7. lxiii. 15. Zech. i. 14. &c.

unevarious] Col. ii. 14 (only). Frequent in the Septuagint, beginning with Gen. xxii. 17.

28. åθετήσas] See notes on vii. 18 and ix. 26.

 $v \phi \mu o v$  M.] The absence of the article, laying stress on the quality, gives here a slight tone of disparagement. Such a thing as. Much more then the Gospel.

χωρὶς οἰκτιρμῶν] Apart from (irrespectively of) any compassions. Compassion there might be, but it could not stop the execution. For οἰκτιρμός, see Phil. ii. 1, εἴ τις σπλάγχνα καὶ οἰκτιρμοί.

 $\epsilon \pi i$  Suriv  $\eta$  trutiv On the strength (basis or ground) of two or three witnesses. Deut. xvii. 6. The subject there is the punishment of apostasy to idols. This makes the reference here the more suitable. Other crimes were capital, but this is the one singled out for mention. In Matt. xviii. 16 and 2 Cor. xiii. 1 the quotation is from Deut. xix. 15, where the principle is laid down,  $\epsilon \pi i$ στόματος δύο μαρτύρων και έπι στόματος τριών μαρτύρων σταθήσεται παν βήμα.

άποθνήσκει] The present tense may refer to the explicit precept and past practice rather than assert the continuance of

άξιωθήσεται τιμωρίας ό τον νίον τοῦ Θεοῦ καταπατήσας καὶ τὸ αἶμα τῆς διαθήκης κοινον

it (in the exact form) up to the writing of the Epistle. From John xviii. 31 ( $\eta\mu\mu\nu$  oùr iteoriv anorreival oùdera) we infer that the Roman authority was necessary for an execution. The execution of St Stephen was probably of a tumultuary character.

29. πόσψ] See note on ix.
 14, πόσψ μάλλον.

 $\delta \sigma \kappa \epsilon i \epsilon$ ] A parenthetical question (interposed in the exclamation) appealing to the intelligence of the reader. Think ye i I leave you to judge. Like the  $\tau \iota s$  in verse 27, a rhetorical and classical idiom.

aξιωθήσεται] By God the Judge of all (xii. 23). For αξιούν, see note on iii. 3, ήξίωται. τιμωρίαs] Only here in the New Testament. In the Septuagint, Prov. xix. 29, Eroipáζονται ακολάστοις μάστιγες, καί τιμωρίαι ώμοις αφρόνων (Α, δμοίως αφροσιν Β). xxiv. 22. &c. For TIMWPERV, see Acts XXII. 5. xxvi. 11. The classical distinction (in Plato and Aristotle) between κόλασις (chastisement) as του πάσχοντος ένεκα, and τιμωρία (vengeance) as τοῦ ποιοῦνros (in vindication of his honour, or of the honour of the broken law), may be present in Scripture (Matt. xxv. 46. I John iv. 18), but the passages are scarcely numerous enough to prove this positively.

καταπατήσας] The three aorist participles mark either (1) the moment of each particular sinning (aµaptavortwv in verse 26 expressing the habit and repetition), or else (2) the moment of the consummation of the habi*tual* sinning in the single act of apostasy. Or both. For Karaπατείν, Matt. v. 13, το άλας... βληθέν έξω καταπατεισθαι ύπο τών ανθρώπων. xiii. 6, μηδε βάλητε τοὺς μαργαρίτας ὑμῶν έμπροσθεν τών χοίρων, μήποτε καταπατήσουσιν αύτούς έν τοις ποσίν αὐτῶν. Luke viii. 5, δ μέν έπεσεν παρά την όδον καί κατεπατήθη κ.τ.λ. xii. 1. The passages quoted place in a strong light the contumely and profanity of the treatment of Christ by the sinner.

ήγησάμενος, ἐν ῷ ήγιάσθη, καὶ τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς χάριτος ἐνυβρίσας. οἴδαμεν γὰρ τὸν εἰπόντα, 30

κοινόν] (1) Properly, common, in contrast with ἄγιον (ήγιάσθη). And this is sufficient here, where the thought is that of the consecrated man making light of his consecration. (2) Elsewhere the further idea of defilement attaches to κοινός. See ix. 13, τοὺς κεκοινωμένους. And so in Acts x. 14, &c. Rom. xiv. 14. Rev. xxi. 27, πῶν κοινὸν κal ὅ ποιῶν βδέλυγμα.

 $\eta\gamma\eta\sigma\dot{a}\mu$ eros] As by one decisive act. See note on  $\kappa a\tau a$ - $\pi a\tau \eta\sigma a$ s above. And compare the same use of the aorist of  $\eta\gamma\epsilon\hat{a}\sigma\theta a\iota$  in xi. 11, 26. Phil. ii. 6.

 $i v \phi i \gamma$ .] Wherein (as though by immersion or envelopement in it) he was consecrated. For the i v here (not precisely as in ix. 25 and x. 19) see note on ix. 22,  $i v a i μ a \tau i$ .

 $\dot{\eta}\gamma\iota\dot{\alpha}\sigma\theta\eta$ ] The time referred to is the moment of conversion and baptism. But the thought is not simply that of x. 10 and 1 Cor. vi. 11 ( $\dot{\alpha}\lambda\lambda\dot{\alpha}$   $\dot{\eta}\gamma\iota\dot{\alpha}\sigma\theta\eta\tau\epsilon$ ), but rather that of the priestly consecration then bestowed, as in verse 22 above, where see note.

τὸ πνεῦμα τῆς χ.] The genitive of the characteristic quality, added to heighten the *ingrati*tude and ungenerousness of the treatment. The Spirit who is all grace—to insult Him—how base, how heartless ! The effect is that of Eph. iv. 30, μη λυπεῖτε τὸ πνεῦμα.

ivv \beta pions Only here in the New Testament. Not in the Septuagint. The compound is classical. Properly to insult one in something (with or without a second iv). But later (with no stress on the  $d\nu$ ) just as υβρίζειν, for which see Matt. xxii. 6, υβρισαν και απέκτειναν. Luke xviii. 32, έμπαιχθήσεται και υβρισθήσεται και εμπτυσθήσεται. Acts xiv. 5, vBpioral Kal λιθοβολήσαι αυτούς. These passages show the associations of the word, and so emphasize the application of it here. The very definition of ibous is that combination of insult and injury, wanton outrage, which becomes frightful in its contact with the Spirit of grace ...

30. οἶδαμεν γάρ] I say τιμωρίας—for, &c. We know Him who said. We know who and what He is. We have had experience of His power and truth. Like (yet unlike) 2 Tim. i. 12, οίδα γάρ & πεπίστευκα (I know who and what He is in whom I have put my trust).

τον εἰπόντα] Deut. xxxii. 35, ἐν ἡμέρα ἐκδικήσεως ἀνταποδώσω. The same variation from the Septuagint is found in x. 30. Or άνταποδώσω, λέγει Κύριος.

Ἐμοὶ ἐκδίκησις, ἐγὼ ἀνταποδώσω· καὶ πά-31 λιν, Κρινεῖ Κύριος τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ. Φοβερὸν τὸ ἐμπεσεῖν εἰς χεῖρας Θεοῦ ζῶντος.

Rom. xii. 19, as though there were a traditional form of the quotation. Unless indeed that passage was the source of the quotation here. The application differs in the two places. In Rom. xii. 19 the stress lies on  $i\mu o i$ . The man who avenges himself assumes God's prerogative. Here rather on  $i\kappa \delta i \kappa \eta \sigma i s$ , in justification of the  $\tau i \mu \omega \rho i a s$ above.

ἐκδίκησις] From ἐκδικεῖν (ἔκδικος), to work out justice upon, whether in avenging (as Rom. xii. 19) or in punishing (as 2 Cor. x. 6). See note on Rom. xii. 19, ἐκδικοῦντες.

aντaπoδώσω] To give back in return or to pay in requital (ανταποδιδόναι) may (like εκδι- $\kappa \epsilon \hat{\iota} v$ ) be either good or evil. For the good sense, see Luke I Thess. iii. 9. For xiv. 14. both senses, 2 Thess. i. 6, avraποδούναι τοις θλίβουσιν ύμας θλίψιν και υμιν τοις θλιβομένοις aveour. See note on xii. 11, αποδίδωσιν. The words λέγει Kúplos which follow in the received text are not in Deut. xxxii. 35 (though καὶ εἶπε Κύριος follows in verse 37), and are omitted here in the revised text. In Rom. xii. 19 they stand without challenge. Here the preponderance of authority and probability seems to be against them.

καὶ πάλιν] Deut. xxxii. 36, ὅτι κρινεῖ Κύριος τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ. There κρινεῖ has plainly a merciful sense. The Lord shall avenge His people. It may be so here also. The Lord shall right His true people by punishing the false. The words τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ at first sight favour this view. But 1 Pet. iv. 17 (καιρὸς τοῦ ἄρξασθαι τὸ κρίμα ἀπὸ τοῦ οἴκου τοῦ Θεοῦ) points the other way.

31.  $\phi o\beta \epsilon \rho \delta v$ ] In 2 Sam. xxiv. 14 and 1 Chron. xxi. 13 David makes this a reason either for choosing pestilence rather than one of the two other punishments, or (as it may be understood) for referring the choice altogether to God,  $\epsilon \mu \pi \epsilon \sigma o \tilde{\nu} \mu a \epsilon$  $\delta \eta \epsilon is \chi \epsilon \tilde{\nu} \rho a s K v \rho (ov, \delta \tau i \pi \delta \lambda \delta i)$  $\delta i \delta \epsilon \tau i \rho a \delta v \delta \sigma \delta \sigma \delta \kappa \tau . \lambda$ . Ecclus. ii. 18. But in the text the penal aspect of judgment gives the other view of the  $\epsilon \mu$ - $\pi \epsilon \sigma \epsilon \tilde{\nu}$ . The true parallels here are Matt. x. 28 and Luke xii. 5.

 $\Theta \epsilon o \hat{v} \langle \hat{w} v \tau o s \rangle$  A God who is all life, and whose insight and power none can escape. See

iii. 12. ix. 14. xii. 22. For the thought, compare iv. 12, 13.

32. 'Avaµµµrήσκεσθε δέ] The same sort of transition from severity to tenderness as in the parallel passage in vi. 9. The thought is that of Gal. iii. 3, rogavia ἐπάθετε εἰκῆ; εἰ γε καὶ εἰκῆ. And also (only that there doing predominates over suffering) of 2 John 8, βλέπετε ἑαυτοἰς ĭva µὴ ἀπολέσητε ἀ ἡργασάµεθα κ.τ.λ. For ἀνaµµνήσκεσθαι (to recall to one's own recollection), see 2 Cor. vii. 15. Also see note on x. 3 (ἀνάµνησις) for the active voice of the verb.

πρότερον] Aforetime. See iv. 6, οἱ πρότερον εὐαγγελισθέντες. 1 Pet. i. 14, ταῖς πρότερον ἐν τῆ ἀγνοία ὑμῶν ἐπιθυμίαις.

 $\phi\omega\tau\iota\sigma\theta\dot{\epsilon}v\tau\epsilon_{s}$ ] See note on vi. 4,  $\phi\omega\tau\iota\sigma\theta\dot{\epsilon}v\tau as$ . The illumination spoken of would in those times synchronize with (or immediately precede) baptism received in mature age: but it is a distinct idea from it, though afterwards confused with it.

άθλησιν] Struggle or conflict. Only used here in the New Testament. Formed from  $dθ\lambda\epsilon i\nu$ . See 2 Tim. ii. 5,  $id\nu$  δè καὶ  $idθ\lambda \hat{y}$  τις. Nearly equivalent to St Paul's great word  $dy \omega \nu$  (Phil. ii. 30. Col. ii. 1. 1 Thess. ii. 2. 1 Tim. vi. 12. 2 Tim. iv. 7). See note on xii. 1.

 $\pi a \theta \eta \mu \dot{a} \tau w v$  Genitive of explanation or equivalence. Consisting of. See note on ii. 9,  $\pi \dot{a} \theta \eta \mu a$ .

33.  $\tau \circ \tilde{\upsilon} \tau \circ \mu \epsilon \nu \dots \tau$ .  $\delta \epsilon$ ] A classical idiom; a sort of emphasized  $\mu \epsilon \nu$  and  $\delta \epsilon$ . As to this on the one hand...as to this on the other. In the first place... and in the second place.

ονειδισμοῖς] Instrumental dative. For the word, see xi. 26. xiii. 13. Rom. xv. 3 (from Psalm lxix. 9).

θλίψεσιν] See note on xi. 37. θεατριζόμενοι] Being made a spectacle or gazingstock. Only here. See I Cor. iv. 9, θέατρον ενενήθημεν τῷ κόσμφ.

κοινωνοί] Partners. So (with genitive or dative of the person) Matt. xxiii. 30, οὐκ ἀν ήμεθα αὐτῶν κοινωνοί. Luke v. 10, κοινωνοὶ τῷ Σίμωνι. 1 Cor. x. 18, 20, κοινωνοὶ τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου...κοινωνοὺς τῶν δαιμονίων.

2 Cor. viii. 23, κοινωνὸς ἐμός. Philem. 17, εἰ οὖν με ἔχεις κοινωνόν. Elsewhere partakers. Thus (with genitive of the thing) 2 Cor. i. 7, τῶν παθημάτων. 1 Pet. v. 1, δόξης. 2 Pet. i. 4, θείας κοινωνοὶ φύσεως.

τών ούτως άναστρ.] Of those who thus lived; that is, who passed their life in the constant experience of being made a spectacle, &c. For άναστρέφεσθαι (the Latin versari), see xiii. 18, καλώς θέλοντες άναστρέφεσθαι. 2 Cor. i. 12, άνεστράφημεν έν τῷ κόσμῳ. Eph. ii. 3. 1 Tim. iii. 15. 1 Pet. i. 17, τὸν τῆς παροικίας ὑμῶν χρόνον ἀναστράφητε. 2 Pet. ii. 18, τοὺς ἐν πλάνη ἀναστρεφομένους.

yemplérres] Having become, as if by one decisive act, like that by which Moses (xi. 24) declared his nationality.

34.  $\kappa a \gamma a \rho$ ] I say that you suffered, and I say that you took part with sufferers—for, &c. And the latter point is taken first.

καὶ γὰρ τοῦς δ.] For ye both sympathized with those that were in bonds. The received text has τοῦς δεσμοῦς μου, which is the reading of the Sinaitic manuscript and some other authorities. The assumption of St Paul's authorship would encourage such a reading. It is not noticed even in the margin of the Revised Version.

τοîs δεσμίοις] xiii. 3, μιμνήσκεσθε τῶν δεσμίων ώς συνδεδεμένοι. The article is generic: prisoners as a class.

συνεπαθήσατε] For συμπαθεῖν, see note on iv. 15. You felt with them. Not συνεπάθετε, which could not have been true of all.

άρπαγήν] Matt. xxiii. 25. Luke xi. 39. For άρπάζειν in this sense, see John x. 12, ό λύκος άρπάζει αὐτὰ καὶ σκορπίζει.

τῶν ὑπαρχ. ὑμῶν] The genitive after (or even before) τὰ ὑπάρχοντα is common in the New Testament, as Matt. xix. 21. xxiv. 47. xxv. 14. Luke xi. 21. xii. 33, 44. xvi. 1. xix. 8, τὰ ἡμίστεά μου τῶν ὑπαρχόντων. 1 Cor. xiii. 3. It is even placed between the article and the participle (making the latter a complete substantive) in Luke xiv. 33, τοῖs ἑαυτοῦ προσεδέξασθε] The two the New Testament as elsewhere, are (1) to accept (receive to oneself), as here, and xi. 35, ου προσδεξάμενοι την απολύτρω-Luke xv. 2, αμαρτωλούς σιν. προσδέχεται καὶ συνεσθίει αὐτοῖς. Rom. xvi. 2. Phil. ii. 29, προσδέχεσθε ούν αυτόν έν Κυρίω κ.τ.λ.; (2) to expect, Mark xv. 43. Luke ii. 25, 38. xii. 36. xxiii. 51. Acts xxiii. 21. Tit. ii. 13. Jude 21. In Acts xxiv. 15 either sense might be given (the έχων favours the former. Tit. ii. 13 the latter).

γινώσκοντες έχ. έ.] The received text had έν έαυτοῖς. The έν must be given up at all events, but there is some authority for έαυτοῖς. Knowing that ye have for yourselves (for your own). With ἑαυτοῖς (the better supported reading) the meaning may be either (1) that ye yourselves have a better possession, or (2) that ye have yourselves as a better possession. Neither rendering is quite satisfactory. If ἑαυτοῖς had preceded ἕχειν, it would be, knowing as to (with regard to) yourselves that ye have a better possession. But the position of the two words precludes this. There is something flat in (1); éavroùs seems superfluous. The idea of (2), which is that the man himself is his own better possession (better than anything of earthly substance), is subtle and unexpected, but has some support in Luke xii. 15, ouk ev τώ περισσεύειν τινί ή ζωή αύτου έστιν έκ των υπαρχόντων αυτώ. Perhaps too in Luke xvi. 12, ei ev τῷ ἀλλοτρίῳ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε, τὸ ὑμέτερον τίς δώσει ὑμίν; (if in this life ye proved yourselves unfaithful in the use of that earthly substance which from its precariousness of possession is rather another's than your own even while you have it, who shall give you that inalienable possession which is, being interpreted. your own finally gained soul?) Compare also Luke xvii. 33. xxi. 19, έν τη ύπομονη ύμων κτήσεσθε τας ψυχας υμών. See note on verse 39, els περιποίησιν ψυχης.

μένουσαν] See xii. 27, ίνα μείνη τὰ μη σαλευόμενα. xiii. 1, 14, οὐ γὰρ ἔχομεν ὥδε μένουσαν πόλιν. The word μένειν occurs nearly 70 times in St John's writings, often in this emphatic sense. See, for example, John vi. 27, τὴν βρῶσιν τὴν μένουσαν εἰς ζωὴν aἰώνιον. xv. 16, ἔθηκα ὑμῶς ἶνα...ὁ καρπὸς ὑμῶν μένῃ. Rom. ix. 11. 1 Cor. xiii. 13. 2 Cor. iii. 11, τὸ καταργούμενον ...τὸ μένον.

35. μη ἀποβάλητε οὖν] Discard not then your παρρησία. The figure is illustrated by Mark x. 50, ἀποβαλών τὸ ἱμάτιον.

 $\pi a \rho \rho \eta \sigma i a v$ ] See note on iii. 6.

 $\eta_{\tau is}$ ] One which. A mappy of a which. See notes on ii. 3 and viii. 5.

μισθαποδοσίαν] See note on ii. 2.

36.  $i \pi \sigma \mu \sigma \nu \eta s$ ] From the literal sense of  $i \pi \sigma \mu \sigma \nu \eta$  (with a genitive), abiding under, patient endurance of (as in 2 Cor. i. 6,  $i \nu \tau \sigma \sigma \mu \sigma \eta$ ,  $\tau \omega \nu$  adv $\omega \nu$   $\pi a \theta \eta \mu a$  $\tau \omega \nu$ ), comes that of submissive waiting, patience, as a spiritual grace, having as its two ingredients the upward look and the onward look; the one the consciousness of a hand over us, the other the expectation of a future of explanation and blessing. First perhaps so found in Psalm ix. 18,  $\eta \tau \sigma \nu \sigma$  πενήτων ούκ απολείται είς τέλος (A, tòr alŵra B). Luke viii. 15. xxi. 19. 1 Tim. vi. 11. 2 Tim. Tit. ii. 2. Heb. xii. iii. 10. James i. 3. 2 Pet. i. 6. I. Sometimes vnoµov) is the object of patience; as in Psalm xxxix. 7, τίς ή ύπομονή μου; ούχὶ ὁ Kúpios; Sometimes it has a genitive of the thing persisted in (Rom. ii. 7, καθ υπομονήν έργου ayaθoῦ), the animating motive (1 Thess. i. 3, της υπομονής της  $\epsilon \lambda \pi i \delta \sigma \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$ ), or the inspiring Person (2 Thess. iii. 5. Rev. iii. 10).

το θ. τ.  $\mathfrak{G}$ . π.] Perhaps with a slight reminiscence of verse 7. See also xiii. 21, καταρτίσαι ύμας έν παντὶ ἀγαθῷ εἰς τὸ ποιῆσαι τὸ θέλημα αὐτοῦ. Matt. vii. 21. xii. 50. 1 John ii. 17. &c. The aorist sums up the life into a single act.

κομίσησθε] From the literal meaning of κομίζειν, to carry, convey, bring (as Luke vii. 37), comes that of the middle voice, (1) to carry off as one's own, to receive; and specially (2) to reέτι γὰρ μικρὸν ὅσον ὅσον, ὁ ἐρχόμενος ήξει 37 καὶ οὐ χρονίσει. ὁ δὲδίκαιός μου ἐκ πίστεως 38 ζήσεται· καὶ ἐὰν ὑποστείληται οὐκ εὐ-cover or get back (as xi. 19. Matt. xxv. 27, ἐκομισάμην ἇν τὸ ἐμόν. 2 Cor. v. 10. Eph. vi. 8. Col. iii. 25), (3) to receive as a thing due or promised (as here, and xi. 39. 1 Pet. i. 9. v. 4).

ο έρχόμενος The sense is as if there were a kai before ο έρχόμενος (see John xiv. 19 above). The quotation is from Hab. ii. 3. The full passage is, έτι δρασις είς καιρόν, και άνατελεί είς πέρας, καὶ οὐκ εἰς κενόν ἐαν ύστερήση, υπόμεινον αυτόν, ότι έρχύμενος ήξει, καὶ οὐ μὴ χρονίση. The vision ( $\delta \rho a \sigma \iota s$ ) is the fall of the Chaldaean empire. If it linger, wait for it. The Septuagint makes the object of expectation a person. Wait for Him, Coming He shall come (He will surely come). The Epistle adds the article ( $\delta \epsilon_{\rho}$ xóµevos), making it a title of x. 38. Or omit µov.

Christ (see Matt. xi. 3,  $\sigma \dot{v}$   $\epsilon \dot{t}$   $\delta \dot{\epsilon} \rho \chi \dot{\epsilon} \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma s \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . Luke vii. 19, 20. John vi. 14. xi. 27). The first advent has not exhausted the coming: it took a new start at the ascension. Christ is again and still  $\delta \dot{\epsilon} \rho \chi \dot{\epsilon} \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma s$ .

 $\eta \xi \epsilon_i$ ] Will have come. The coming One will have fulfilled His coming. See note on verse 7,  $\eta \kappa \omega$ .

οὐ χρονίσει] Will not delay beyond the time appointed. For χρονίζειν, see Matt. xxiv. 48, χρονίζει μου ὁ κύριος. xxv. 5. Luke i. 21. xii. 45.

38.  $\delta \delta \delta i \delta i \delta i \delta i \delta \mu ov]$  Continuation of the quotation (Hab. ii. 4), but with an inversion of the two clauses, which stand in the Septuagint, (1)  $\delta a \nu - a \delta \tau \tilde{\varphi}$ , (2)  $\delta \delta \delta - \tilde{\zeta} i \sigma \epsilon \tau a a \tau \delta \tilde{\varphi}$ , (2)  $\delta \delta \delta - \tilde{\zeta} i \sigma \epsilon \tau a \delta \tau \delta \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \sigma \epsilon \tau \delta \delta \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \sigma \epsilon \tau \delta \delta \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \sigma \delta \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \delta \delta + \tilde{\zeta} i \delta + \tilde{\zeta}$

Chorral Shall have life. In the full sense of life, in which it adds three things to mere existence; (1) conscious, in distinction from vegetable life, (2) satisfying, in distinction from a life of pain, shame, or misery, (3) everlasting, in distinction from the life which has death in prospect. See, for example, John v. 25, kai of akoúvarres Zúrovouv. vi. 57. Rom. viii. 13. &c.

kai čáv] The Epistle follows the Septuagint, which departs here widely from the Hebrew. There it is said of the Chaldean, His soul in him is puffed up, it is not upright.

υποστείληται] A nautical figure; that of taking in or shortening sail in prospect of storm. Hence to draw in, to exercise caution or reserve. Once in the active voice, followed by έaυτόν, Gal. ii. 12 (he drew himself in). More often, as here, in the middle. Acts xx. 20, 27, ώς οὐδέν ὑπεστειλάμην τῶν συμφερόντων του μή άναγγείλαι (I exercised reserve as to nothing ...so as not to declare it)  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . Wisd. vi. 7, ού γαρ ύποστελείται πρόσωπον ό πάντων δεσπότης, οὐδὲ έντραπήσεται μέγεθος κ.τ.λ. And 80 στέλλεσθαι, 2 Cor. viii. 20, στελλόμενοι τοῦτο, μή τις ήμας μωμήσηται κ.τ.λ. 2 Thess. iii. 6, στέλλεσθαι ύμας από παντός  $a\delta\epsilon\lambda\phi o\hat{\upsilon}\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . The idea is rather that of shrinking in than of shrinking back, and is the direct opposite of that  $\pi a \rho \rho \eta \sigma \iota a \zeta \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$ which is the outspokenness of Christian manliness.

εὐδοκεί] See note on verse 6.

39. οὐκ ἐσμὲν ὑποστολῆς] We are not of. Either, we do not belong to, as our province or category. Or, we are not characterized by, as our leading feature or proper description. For the former, compare 1 Thess. v. 5, οὐκ ἐσμὲν νυκτὸς οὐδὲ σκότους. For the latter, 2 Thess. ii. 3, ὁ ἄνθρωπος τῆς ἀνομίας.

ύποστολ $\hat{\eta}$ s] A noun formed from the ύποστείληται above, to balance the πίστεωs of both verses.

 $\pi \epsilon \rho (\pi o i \eta \sigma v)$  The verb  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$ - $\pi$ oleiv (to make to be over and above) carries the two ideas of survival and surplus. The former predominates in the active voice, to save (a life, &c.), the latter in the middle, to acquire. Thus Acts xx. 28, nv περιεποιήσατο διὰ τοῦ αξματος τοῦ ἰδίου. 1 Tim. iii. 13, βαθμον έαυτοιs καλόν περιποιούνται. Isai. xliii. 21, λαόν μου δν περιεποιησάμην. The noun in its New Testament use takes its colour from the middle. Acquisition. And like the English word it has the twofold sense of (1) the act of acquiring (as here, and I Thess. v. 9, είς περιποίησιν σωτηρίας. 2 Thess. ii. 14, είς περιποίησιν δόξης. I Pet. ii. 9, λαός είς περι- $\pi o(\eta \sigma v)$ , and (2) the thing acquired (Eph. i. 14, εis aπολύτρωσιν τής περιποιήσεως). Thus here the thought is that of the  $\psi v \chi \eta$  being in this life the stake of the contest, to be won or lost in the great day. So Luke xxi. ΙΟ, έν τη ύπομονη ύμων κτήσεσθε (ye shall gain) τὰς ψυχὰς ὑμῶν. This explains also Luke xvi. 12, the to uniterpor of the future in contrast with the  $\tau \dot{o}$  $\dot{a}\lambda\lambda\dot{o}\tau\rho\omega\nu$  of the present.

XI. 1. "E  $\sigma \tau \nu \delta \epsilon$ ] The emphatic  $\epsilon \sigma \tau \nu$  answers (as it were) the question, And what is faith? What faith is is this.

 $i\lambda\pi_i \zeta_{0\mu} i\nu\omega\nu$ ] Definition of  $\pi i\sigma\tau_{15}$ . The first form of the definition is incomplete. Assurance of things hoped for would limit faith to the future. Whereas the realm of faith is larger. All the past belongs to it, and the larger part of the present. Things hoped for, if the definition is to be complete, must be replaced by things not seen.

υπόστασις] See note on i. 3. Assurance of, as in four out of the five places where the word occurs in the New Testament.

πραγμάτων] For this peculiar sense of πρâγμa, not fact or act, but reality, see note on vi. 18, where it is applied to the word and oath of God.

čλeyχos] Only found here in the New Testament (for in 2 Tim. iii. 16 the revised text has  $i\lambda\epsilon\gamma\mu\delta\nu$ ). It is frequent in the Septuagint (chiefly in the Proverbs) in the sense of reproof, which is here clearly unsuitable. Conviction is tempting, but is not a recognized use of the word. The only possible renderings here are proof and test. Of these two the latter introduces a thought somewhat far-fetched. Proof, that which convinces us of something, is simple and adequate. Faith is that quality or faculty of the mind which convinces us of, which enables us to accept, to grasp, to realize, the invisible.

 εν ταύτη γάρ] The γάρ seems to imply a suppressed clause. A comprehensive and an age-long grace—for, &c.

èν τ. ἐμαρτυρήθησαν] In it (not outside it) they were attested. In it was contained, in it lay, their commendation: exactly as in 1 Tim. v. 10, ἐν ἐργοις καλοῖς μαρτυρουμένη. For oi  $\pi\rho\epsilon\sigma\beta\dot{\nu}\tau\epsilon\rho\sigma$ i] They of the old time. The servants and saints of God from the beginning. A peculiar use of the word, which elsewhere is applied either (1) in strict contrast with the young (as in 1 Pet. v. 5), or (2) to Jews of former generations (Matt. xv. 2), or (3) to the official elders of the Jewish people (Matt. xxvi. 3), or (4) to Christian presbyters (Acts xi. 30. &c.).

3. Histore  $voov\mu ev$ ] The first instance of faith lies not in the  $i\lambda\pi u \zeta o \mu eva$  of the future, but in the ov  $\beta\lambda e\pi o \mu eva a of the past.$ To know that creation was an act of God, pure and simple, is u realization of the invisible of the highest order.

νοοῦμεν] It is an act of the mind. Rom. i. 20, τὰ γὰρ ἀόρατα αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ κτίσεως κόσμου τοῖς ποιήμασιν νοούμενα καθορᾶται. For νοεῖν, see also Matt. xv. 17. xvi. 9, 11. xxiv. 15, ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοείτω (let him exercise mind upon his reading). Mark vii. 18, οὐ νοεῖτε ὅτι πῶν τὸ ἔξωθεν...οὐ δύναται αὐτὸν κοινῶσαι; viii. 17. xiii. 14. John xii. 40. Eph. iii. 4, 20, ἀναγινώσκωτες νοῆσαι κ.τ.λ. 1 Tim. i. 7, μὴ νοοῦντες μήτε ἁ λέγουσιν κ.τ.λ. 2 Tim. ii. 7, νόει ἅ λέγω.

κατηρτίσθαι The perfect tense expresses the permanence of the creation (2 Pet. iii. 4, πάντα ούτως διαμένει απ' αρχής rtivews). The verb ratastileir is properly to fit perfectly, and so either (1) to frame, adjust (as here, and x. 5, owna de katypтіть µы. Rom. ix. 22, катпрτισμένα είς απώλειαν), or (2) to complete, perfect (as xiii. 21. Luke vi. 40. 1 Cor. i. 10. 2 Cor. xiii. 11. 1 Pet. v. 10), or (3) to repair, restore (as Matt. iv. 21, καταρτίζοντας τα δίκτυα. Mark i. 19. Gal. vi. 1, Katapτίζετε τον τοιούτον. I Thess. iii. 10, και καταρτίσαι τα ύστερήματα τής πίστεως ύμων).

τοὺς alŵvaς] See note on i. 2. The ἐποίησεν there, as κατηρτίσθαι here, shows that the rendering should be, not the ages, but the worlds. Also the following clause here (είς τὸ μὴ κ.τ.λ.) would be inappropriate to the notion of mere time. Still the idea of time is not lost. The worlds are timeworlds, having their periods of duration and their limits of existence.

result—that the thing seen has not come into being out of things apparent. For  $\epsilon$ 's  $\tau$ 'o, compare Inke  $\nabla$ . 17,  $\delta$ úvaµıs Kυρίου  $\eta$ 'ν  $\epsilon$ 's  $\tau$ ò lâσθaι aὐτόν.

 $\epsilon \kappa \phi a \iota v o \mu \epsilon v \omega v$  Out of things apparent, visible to the eye. Creation was not a mere rearrangement of preexisting materials, but (in the strictest sense) a bringing into being of the previously non-existent.

tò  $\beta \lambda \epsilon \pi \delta \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma v$ ] The thing discerned by the eye. The singular gathers up the particulars of visible being into one whole.

 $\gamma \epsilon \gamma ov \epsilon vai$ ] Has not come into being. For the perfect, see note on κατηρτίσθαι. Also John i. 3, καὶ χωρὶς αὐτοῦ ἐγένετο οὐδὲ ἐν ὅ γένονεν.

4.  $\Pi(\sigma\tau\epsilon\iota...^*A\beta\epsilon\lambda)$  The second and third illustrations of faith have to do with its action upon the present. And first, Faith acting in worship.

πλείονα] From its literal sense, more in number or quantity, πλείων passes into that of more in value, superior in quality. See Matt. v. 20. vi. 25, οὐχὶ ἡ ψυχὴ πλεῖόν ἐστιν τῆς τροφῆς; xii. 41, 42, καὶ ἰδοὺ πλεῖον Ἰωνᾶ ὥδε...πλεῖον Σολομῶνος ὥδε. Mark xii. 43. Luke xi. 31, 32. xii. 23. xxi. 3. Rev. ii. 19. The superiority of Abel's sacrifice lay in his faith, not in its material. Each brought of what he had : God read the heart of each, and saw in the one that realization of the Invisible which the other lacked.

προσήνεγκεν] See note on v. 1.

 $\delta i' \eta s$ ] It is doubtful, and scarcely material, whether  $\eta s$ refers to  $\pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon i$  or to  $\theta v \sigma i a v$ . The latter is the nearer reference, and so far the simpler. But  $\delta i' a v \tau \eta s$  favours the former. A like ambiguity occurs in verse 7.

èμαρτυρήθη] He was attested to be righteous. Testimony was borne to him that he was righteous. By the acceptance of his offering. Gen. iv. 4, καὶ ἐπείδεν ὁ Θεὸς ἐπὶ *Αβελ καὶ ἐπὶ τοῖς δώροις αὐτοῦ.

είναι δίκαιος] The phrase does not occur in the narrative of Gen. iv. But δίκαιος is the epithet of Abel in Matt. xxiii. 35, από τοῦ αίματος  $^*Aβελ$  τοῦ δικαίου. Compare I John iii. δίκαιος, μαρτυροῦντος ἐπὶ τοῖς δώροις αὐτοῦ τοῦ 5 Θεοῦ, καὶ δι αὐτῆς ἀποθανών ἔτι λαλεῖ. Πίστει Ἐνώχ μετετέθη τοῦ μὴ ἰδεῖν θάνατον, καὶ οὐχ xi. 4. Or αὐτοῦ τῷ Θεῷ.

12, τὰ δὲ τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ αὐτοῦ δίκαια.

μαρτυροῦντος] Still testifying. For the voice of Scripture is always speaking.

επί τοῖς] Gen. iv. 4 (quoted above). With respect to his gifts. See ix. 15, τῶν ἐπὶ τῆ πρώτῃ διαθήκῃ.

 $\tau o \hat{v} \otimes c o \hat{v}$ ] The reading  $\tau \hat{\psi}$  $\otimes \epsilon \hat{\psi}$  (though strongly supported) can scarcely be accepted. It would have to be taken with  $\delta \omega \rho o i s$  (like  $\theta v \sigma (av \tau \hat{\psi} K v \rho (\omega, Gen. iv. 3, LXX.)$ ). He (God) testifying of his gifts unto God.

δι aυτης] By means of his faith seems preferable to by means of his sacrifice; and, if so, δι ης can scarcely be taken differently.

λαλεί] So xii. 24, αξματι ραντισμοῦ κρεῖττον λαλοῦντι παρὰ τὸν "Αβελ. There is an evident allusion to Gen. iv. 10, φωνη αξματος τοῦ ἀδελφοῦ σου βοậ πρός με ἐκ τῆς γῆς.

5.  $\Pi(\sigma\tau\epsilon, \mathbf{E}\nu\omega\chi]$  Faith (still in the province of the present) acting, not in an act of worship, but in the life. See notes on verse 1 ( $i\lambda\pi_i\zeta_0\mu\dot{\epsilon}\nu\omega\nu$ ) and verse 4 ( $\pi(\sigma\tau\epsilon\epsilon,...^*A\beta\epsilon\lambda)$ ). The dative ( $\pi(\sigma\tau\epsilon\epsilon)$ ) represents faith as the instrument of the translation.

μετετέθη] Was transferred or transposed. It was only a change of place. Acts vii. 16, μετετέθησαν εἰς Συχήμ. (See note on vii. 12, μετατιθεμένης γάρ.) In Gen. v. 24 the Hebrew says only, God took him. The Septuagint renders it, μετέθηκεν αὐτὸν ὁ Θεός.

τοῦ μη iδεîv] This might be rendered, so that he did not see. Acts vii. 19, ἐκάκωσεν τοὺς πατέρας του ποιείν τα βρέφη έκθετα αὐτῶν. Rom. vii. 3, τοῦ μη είναι αὐτὴν μοιχαλίδα. But the commoner sense, that he might not see, is equally suitable. See x. 7, ήκω...τοῦ ποιήσαι κ.τ.λ. Matt. ii. 13, ζητείν το παιδίον τοῦ ἀπολέσαι αὐτό. iii. 13, παραγίνεται...τοῦ βαπτισθηναι ὑπ' αὐτου. xiii. 3, εξήλθεν ο σπείοων τοῦ σπείρειν. Acts x. 47, τοῦ μή βαπτισθήναι τούτους. Rom. vi. 6, τοῦ μηκέτι δουλεύειν. &c. Acts iii. I 2 (πεποιηκόσιν τοῦ περιπατεῖν  $a v \tau \delta v$ ) might suit either sense.

ηύρίσκετο διότι μετέθηκεν αὐτὸν ὁ Θεός. πρὸ γὰρ τῆς μεταθέσεως μεμαρτύρηται εὐηρεστηκέναι τῷ Θεῷ· χωρὶς δὲ πίστεως ἀδύνατον 6 εὐαρεστῆσαι· πιστεῦσαι γὰρ δεῖ τὸν προσερχόμενον τῷ Θεῷ ὅτι ἔστιν καὶ τοῖς ἐκζητοῦσιν αὐτὸν μισθαποδότης γίνεται.

xi. 5. Or evapeor.

xi. 6. Or omit  $\tau \hat{\varphi}$ .

καὶ οὐχ ηὐρίσκετο] Gen. v. 24. The Hebrew has only, and not. The Septuagint adds ηὐρίσκετο, suggesting the thought of his being wanted, and sought in vain, by the survivors.

 $\pi \rho \dot{\rho} \gamma \dot{\alpha} \rho$ ] I say, by faith for, dc. The argument is, Enoch must have been a man of faith, because it is said of him that he pleased God, and without faith it is impossible to please Him.

μεταθέσεως] See vii. 12, και νόμου μετάθεσις γίνεται. xii. 27, τῶν σαλευομένων μετάθεσιν ώς πεποιημένων.

μεμαρτύρηται] The Scripture perfect. He has been attested. It is there, on the imperishable record. See note on vii. 6, δεδεκάτωκεν.

εἰηρεστηκέναι τῷ Θεῷ] The Septuagint paraphrase (Gen. v. 22, 24) of the Hebrew expression, walking with God. See also Gen. vi. 9. xvii. 1. xxiv. 40. xlviii. 15.

6.  $\chi \omega \rho$  is  $\delta \epsilon$  ] And without faith. It is part of the chain of proof. See note on verse 5,  $\pi \rho \delta \gamma \alpha \rho$ .

άδύνατον] Impossible in the nature of things. For this ἀδύνατον, see vi. 4, 18. x. 4.

τον προσερχόμενον] See note on vi. 16, προσερχώμεθα.

ότι έστιν καὶ...γίνεται] Two points. First, the existence of God. Secondly, the certainty of the recompense. Together they satisfy the definition of faith in verse 1. The one is an ου βλεπόμενον, the other is an ελπιζόμενον.

τοΐς ἐκζητοῦσιν αὐτόν] Acts xv. 17 (from Amos ix. 12), ὅπως ἀν ἐκζητήσωσιν οἱ κατάλοιποι τῶν ἀνθρώπων τὸν Κύριον. Rom. iii. 11, οὐκ ἔστιν ὁ ἐκζητῶν τὸν Θεόν.

μισθαποδότης] Only here. For μισθαποδοσία, see note on ii. 2.

Πίστει χρηματισθεις Νώε περι τών μηδέπω βλεπομένων εύλαβηθεις κατεσκεύασεν κιβωτον είς σωτηρίαν τοῦ οίκου αὐτοῦ, δι ἦς κατέκρινεν

 $\gamma$ iveral] Becomes, comes to be, shows and proves Himself, by a law of His being.

7.  $\Pi$ iore... Núe] After these examples of faith in the où  $\beta\lambda\epsilon\pi \dot{\rho}\mu\epsilon\nu a$  of the past (verse 3) and of the present (verses 4— 6) there follows a long series of examples of faith in the où  $\beta\lambda\epsilon\pi \dot{\rho}\mu\epsilon\nu a$  of the future. These are not all  $\epsilon\lambda\pi u \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\rho}\mu\epsilon\nu a$ , for the first example is of faith in a future of fear.

χρηματισθείς] Having been dealt with. Having received a divine communication. See note on viii. 5, κεχρημάτισται.

περὶ τῶν Gen. vi. 14, 17 (18 B), καὶ εἶπε Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς τῷ Νῶε, Καιρὸς παντὸς ἀνθρώπου ἦκει ἐναντίον μου...καὶ ἰδοὺ ἐγὼ διαφθείρω αὐτοὺς καὶ τὴν γῆν...ἐγὼ δὲ ἰδοὺ ἐπάγω τὸν κατακλυσμόν, ὕδωρ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, καταφθεῖραι πῶσαν σάρκα κ.τ.λ.

μηδέπω] Not even yet, when they were so imminent. They were still among the où βλεπόμενα, which are the only subjects of faith. The form μηδέπω occurs only here in the New Testament.

εὐλαβηθείς] Moved with godly fear. See note on v. 7, εὐλαβείας.

κατεσκεύασεν] See note on iii. 3, κατασκευάσας. κιβωτόν] Gen. vi. 14, 18 (15, 19 B), ποίησον οὖν σεαυτῷ κιβωτὸν ἐκ ξύλων τετραγώνων... εἰσελεύση δὲ εἰς τὴν κιβωτὸν σừ καὶ οἱ υἰοί σου καὶ ἡ γυνή σου κ.τ.λ.

σωτηρίαν] See note on i. 14. οίκου] Gen. vii. 1, είσελθε σὺ καὶ πᾶς ὁ οἶκός σου εἰς την κιβωτόν. For οἶκος, see note on iii. 2, οἴκφ.

δι' ής] Either κιβωτοῦ or πίστεως. The same ambiguity as in verse 4 (δι' ής and δι' aντής). Here, by which ark (built in faith), or by which faith (shown by building). The former would be preferable but for the parallel verse, in which the other view commends itself.

κατέκρινεν] Condemned by the contrast of his own obedience. Compare Matt. xii. 41, 42, ανδρες Νικευείται...κατακρινοῦσιν αὐτήν, ὅτι μετενόησαν κ.τ.λ. βασίλισσα νότου...κατακρινεῖ αὐτήν, ὅτι ήλθεν κ.τ.λ. Luke xi. 31, 32.

κόσμον] 2 Pet. ii. 5, κατακλυσμὸν κόσμος ἀσεβῶν ἐπάξας. The word κόσμος, starting from the sense of (1) order or arrangement, often with the genitive τοῦ οἰρανοῦ (Deut. iv. 19. Isai. xxiv. 21) or τοῦ οἰρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς (see Gen. ii. 1), passes into that of (2) universe (Wisd. vii.

17. xi. 17. &c. John i. 10. Acts xvii. 24), and so of (3) the world of men (John i. 10, 29. iii. 16, 17. &c.), and thence sinks into a disparaging term, denoting (4) the world of matter in contrast with spirit (1 Cor. vii. 33, 34. Gal. iv. 3. Col. ii. 8, 20), or (5) the world as infected by sin (1 Cor. xi. 32. Eph. ii. 2, 12. James i. 27. 2 Pet. i. 4. ii. 5, 20. 1 John ii. 15, 16, 17. iv. 4, 5. v. 4, 19). It is in the last sense that it is used here and in verse 38.

τής κατά πίστιν δικαιοσύνης The righteousness which is according to (by the rule of, on a principle of ) faith. Equivalent phrases are δικαιοσύνη πίστεως (Rom. iv. 13), δικαιοσύνη ή έκ πίστεως (Rom. ix. 30. x. 6. Compare Rom. v. 1. Gal. ii. 16. iii. 24), δικαιοσύνη ή δια πίστεως (Phil. iii. 9), y ek @600 δικαιοσύνη έπι τη πίστει (Phil. iii. 9). Here alone in this Epistle  $\delta_{i}$ kalogúvn occurs in the distinctive sense which St Paul has given to it, as the state or character of one who is discus in God's sight by the forgiveness of sins through faith in Christ. See Rom. i. 17. iii. 21, &c. iv. 3, &c. v. 17. x. 3, &c. 2 Cor. v. 21. Gal. v. 5. For dikaloriv $\eta$  in its more general sense, see note on v. 13,  $\lambda \dot{0} \gamma o v$  dikaloriv $\eta s$ .

κληρονόμος] See notes on i. 2, 4. vi. 17. Is the sense here heir or inheritor i (See note on vi. 12, κληρονομούντων.) The latter might seem to be intended here, inasmuch as δικαιοσύνη is a present possession of the believing man (Rom. v. 1. &c.). But see Gal. v. 5,  $i\mu\epsilon\hat{s}$  γαρ πνεύματι ἐκ πίστεως  $i\lambda\pi\hat{c}$ δα δικαιοσύνης ἀπεκδεχόμεθα. The same thing may be regarded as either present or future according as firstfruit or harvest is the point of remark.

8.  $\Pi(\sigma\tau\epsilon\ldots)^{A}\beta\rho a\dot{a}\mu$ ] From faith in its action upon a future of fear we pass to examples of faith acting upon a future of hope. Three such are selected from the history of Abraham. The first is his consenting to a life of exile.

Isai. li. 2, or  $\iota$  is  $\eta \nu$ , kai  $\epsilon \kappa a \lambda \epsilon \sigma a$ avro $\nu$ . This call (invitation and summons in one) is the original of the sacred uses of  $\kappa a \lambda \epsilon \hat{\nu}$ , such as those of Matt. iv. 21. xxii, 3. Rom. viii. 30. 1 Cor. vii. 17. Eph. iv. 1. 2 Thess. ii. 14. 1 Pet. ii. 9. &c. The present tense of  $\kappa a \lambda o \hat{\nu} \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma s$ presses the promptitude of the response. In the very act of being called ( $\epsilon \tau \iota \lambda a \lambda o \hat{\nu} \nu \tau \hat{\sigma} \sigma \sigma \nu$  $\epsilon \rho \epsilon \hat{\iota} \delta o \hat{\nu} \pi a \rho \epsilon \mu \mu$ , Isai. lviii. 9.

 $\dot{v}πήκουσεν έξελθεῖν] Obeyed$ to go out. For  $\dot{v}πακούειν$ , see note on v. 8,  $\dot{v}πακούειν$ , see note on v. 8,  $\dot{v}πακούν$ . The aorist expresses the single act of the will, the instant mental consent to the call.

καὶ ἐξῆλθεν] There might have been the will without the act. (Matt. xxi. 29, ἐγώ, κύριε· καὶ οὐκ ἀπῆλθεν.) The ὑπήκουσεν ἐξελθεῖν became the ἐξῆλθεν.

μή ἐπιστάμενος] Though he know not. See note on iv. 2, μή.

έπιστάμενος] Of the 14 occurrences of ἐπίστασθαι in the New Testament, 9 are in the Acts. St Paul uses it only in I Tim. vi. 4, μηδὲν ἐπιστάμενος. Of the three words, οἶδα, ἔγνωκα, ἐπίσταμαι, the first has the idea of insight or intuition, the second that of acquirement (I have come to know), the third that of attention (application of the mind to a subject).

 $\pi o \hat{v} \in p \times \pi a i$  Where (whither) he is (was) coming (going). (1) The forms  $\pi o \hat{i}$  and  $\tilde{o} \pi o i$  are not found in the Septuagint or New Testament. (See note on vi. 20, οπου.) John iii. 8, οὐκ οίδας που υπάγει. vii. 35, που ούτος μέλλει πορεύεσθαι...; viii. 14, οίδα πόθεν ηλθον και που ύπάγω κ.τ.λ. xii. 35. xiii. 36,  $\pi$ οῦ  $v\pi$ ayεις;...  $o\pi$ ου  $v\pi$ ayω οὐ δύνασαί μοι νῦν ἀκολουθησαι. xiv. 5. xvi. 5. 1 John ii. 11. (2) The idea of  $\epsilon \rho \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  is always that of coming, not of going: the writer or reader is supposed to be in the place arrived at, not in the place left. (3) The present tense (in such phrases) serves for the imperfect, as (necessarily) in the infinitive and participle.

9. Ilíotei παρψίκησεν] A further action of faith. First (1) the consent of the will  $(i\pi\eta'$ κουσεν έξελθεῖν). Then (2) the act of expatriation (ἐξῆλθεν). Then (3) the settlement as a sojourner (παρψίκησεν), with the knowledge that for him it is permanent (κατοικήσας). For παροικεῖν, to dwell beside (not as one of) a nation, see Luke xxiv. 18, σừ μόνος παροικεῖς Ίερουσαλήμ κ.τ.λ. Gen. xvii, γελίας ώς ἀλλοτρίαν, ἐν σκηναῖς κατοικήσας, μετὰ Ἰσαὰκ καὶ Ἰακώβ τῶν συνκληρονόμων τῆς ἐπαγγελίας τῆς αὐτῆς· ἐξεδέχετο γὰρ τὴν τοὺς 10

εἰς γῆν τῆς ἐπαγγελίας] (Ι) For παρώκησεν εἰς, compare Acts vii. 4, εἰς ῆν ὑμεῖς νῦν κατοικεῖτε. &c. (2) Into a land (whatever it might be) belonging to (marked out by) the promise. (The absence of the article with γῆν, and its presence with ἐπαγγελίας, are equally precise.)

ώς ἀλλοτρίαν] As (with the full knowledge of its being) a land not his own. Matt. xvii. 25, ἀπὸ τῶν υἱῶν αὐτῶν ἡ ἀπὸ τῶν ἀλλοτρίων. Acts vii. 6, ὅτι ἔσται τὸ σπέρμα αὐτοῦ πάροικον ἐν γŷ ἀλλοτρίą. Exod. ii. 22, πάροικός εἰμι ἐν γŷ ἀλλοτρίą.

έν σκηναίς κατοικήσας Having taken up his permanent habitation in tents. The  $\pi$ apoiкía was a катогкía too. Faith reconciled him not only to exile, not only to a temporary sojourning, but to a life-long tent-life. For katolkeiv, see, for example, Acts vii. 4, κατώκησεν έν Χαρράν κακείθεν... μετώκισεν αυτόν είς την γην ταύτην είς ην υμείς νυν κατοι- $\kappa \epsilon i \tau \epsilon$ . &c. For the combination of  $\pi a \rho o i \kappa \epsilon i \nu$  and  $\kappa a \tau o i \kappa \epsilon i \nu$ , see Gen. xxxvii. 1, κατώκει δε Ίακώβ έν τη γη ού παρώκησεν ό πατήρ αύτοῦ.

did also. (According to the common chronology, Jacob was born 16 years before Abraham's death: but there is no need to take the  $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$  of a literal dwelling together.)

συνκληρονόμων] Rom. viii. 17. Eph. iii. 6. 1 Pet. iii. 7. See vi. 17, τοις κληρονόμοις τής έπαγγελίας (and note).

10.  $\dot{\epsilon}\xi\epsilon\delta\dot{\epsilon}\chi\epsilon\tau\sigma\gamma\dot{a}\rho$ ] A distinct assertion that the old fathers did not look only for transitory promises (Art. vii.). There is an instinct of immortality in saintship. He who lives to God knows that he must live for ever (Matt. xxii. 32, oùk  $\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\dot{\nu}$  [ $\dot{o}$ ]  $\Theta\epsilon\dot{o}s$   $\nu\epsilon\kappa\rho\dot{\omega}\nu$  $a\lambda\lambda\dot{a}$   $\zeta\dot{\omega}\nu\tau\omega\nu$ ). Canaan could not be the goal of one who walked with God. For  $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa\delta\dot{\epsilon}$  $\chi\epsilon\sigma\sigma a$ , see note on x. 13,  $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa$ - $\delta\epsilon\chi\dot{o}\mu\epsilon\nuos$ .

την τούς] The city which has the foundations. Rev. xxi. 14, κal τὸ τεῖχος τῆς πόλεως ἔχον θεμελίους δώδεκα. The contrast here is that of πόλις with σκηvaîs, the permanent with the shifting and migratory. In this aspect the earthly Zion might have fulfilled the expectation (Psalm lxxxvii. 1, οἰ θεμέλοι αὐτοῦ ἐν τοῦς ὅρεσι τοῦς ἀγίος · ἀγαπậ Κύριος τὰς πύλας Σιών ὑπὲρ πώντα τὰ σκηνώματα 'laθεμελίους έχουσαν πόλιν, ἦς τεχνίτης καὶ δημι-11 ουργὸς ὁ Θεός.  $\kappa \omega \beta$ ). But verse 16 lifts the hope higher.

πόλιν] Besides the obvious contrast with σκηναὶ in the aspect of permanence, πόλις has also the threefold suggestion of (1) society, (2) constitution, (3) government. Phil. iii. 20, ἡμῶν γὰρ τὸ πολίτευμα ἐν οὐρανοῖς ὑπάρχει.

 $f_5 \tau \in \chi v(\tau \gamma s]$  Whose artificer and architect is God. He built, and He planned.

τεχνίτης] Wisd. xiii. 1, ἐκ τῶν ὁρωμένων ἀγαθῶν οὐκ ἴσχυσαν εἰδέναι τὸν ὅντα, οὖτε τοῖς ἔργοις προσσχόντες ἐπέγνωσαν τὸν τεχνίτην. For τεχνίτης in its common application, see Acts xix. 24, 38. Rev. xviii. 22. 1 Chron. xxii. 15. xxix. 5. Jer. x. 9. &c. Wisd. viii. 6, εἰ δὲ φρόνησις ἐργάζεται, τίς αὐτῆς τῶν ὅντων μᾶλλόν ἐστι τεχνίτης; xiv. 2, 18. Ecclus. ix. 17. &c.

δημιουργός] Like λειτουργός (see note on i. 7), δημιουργός is properly a people's (public) workman, but passes into a more general term. In the New Testament it is used only here. In the Septuagint, only in 2 Macc. iv. 1, τών κακών δημιουργός καθεστηκώς. The verb (δημιουργείν) occurs in 2 Macc. x. 1 and Wisd. xv. 13. For the higher application of δημιουργός here Plato had made preparation (Rep. vii. p. 530, ό τοῦ οὐρανοῦ δημιουρyóς).

Πίστει...Σάρρα] II. The second of the three examples of Abraham's faith is here ascribed to Sarah (unless indeed the alternative reading be adopted, which would understand a nominative and make Sáppa the dative: he received strength for her). This is the more noticeable because the record of Gen. xviii. 9-15 marks not her faith but her incredulity. (A caution is here against sweeping inferences from Scripture: the incredulity was a passing phase, not the abiding state.) Faith, acting upon a future of hope, is here shown counting all things possible. It is to this working of faith, entirelymental-not to the leaving of his country, and not to the sacrifice of his son-that Seripture annexes the justification of Abraham (Gen. xv. 6). God sees the realization of the invisible, shown in taking Him at His word, not in the result only, but at its source and spring.

With the dative, beside, as John xvii. 5, δόξασόν με σύ, Πάτερ, παρα σεαυτώ τη δόξη ή είχον πρό τοῦ τον κόσμον είναι παρά σοί. With the accusative, to the side of, as Matt. xv. 30, eppular aurous παρα τοὺς πόδας αὐτοῦ (but more often, by a well known Greek idiom, in places where the dative sense is intended, as in verse 12, ή αμμος ή παρά το χείλος της θαλάσσης). The idea of juxtaposition passes easily into that of comparison, and generally of favourable comparison (beyond, more than), which is the uniform sense of  $\pi a \rho a$  (with the single exception above, itself in a quotation) in this Epistle, where it occurs only with the accusative, and generally after a comparative.' νενεκρωμένου] As good as dead. A delicate and felicitous rendering in the Authorized Version. Rom. iv. 19, κατενόησεν τὸ ἑαυτοῦ σῶμα νενεκρωμένον. Elsewhere only Col. iii. 5, νεκρώσατε οὖν τὰ μέλη κ.τ.λ.

καθώς τα άστρα] Gen. xxii. 17, καὶ πληθύνων πληθυνῶ τὸ σπέρμα σου ώς τούς αστέρας του ούρανοῦ καὶ ὡς τὴν ἄμμον τὴν παρά τὸ χείλος τῆς θαλάσσης. For the former figure, compare Gen. xv. 5, αρίθμησον τούς αστέρας, εί δυνήση έξαριθμησαι αύτούς καί είπεν, Ούτως έσται το σπέρμα σου. Rom. iv. 18. To the latter the nearest approach is Gen. xiii. 16, kai ποιήσω το σπέρμα σου ώς την άμμον τής γής εί δύναταί τις έξαριθμήσαι την αμμον τής γής, καί το σπέρμα σου έξαριθμηθήσεται. χείλος] For the literal sense, see xiii. 15. For its use here, compare Josh. xi. 4, καὶ ἐξήλθον...ὦσπερ ή ἄμμος ή παρὰ τὸ χείλος τῆς θαλάσσης τῷ πλήθει. 13 to 16 interrupt the enumeration of instances, to emphasize a peculiar feature of faith, as the stay of the dying.

οῦτοι πάντες] Does this include Abel, Enoch, Noah, or only Abraham and his house? The express mention of the ἐπαγγελίαι, as well as the τοῦ μὴ ἰδεῖν θάνατον (verse 5) of Enoch, might favour the more restricted reference. But the principle was the same for all.

μη κομισάμενοι] As not having received. The not having received, so far from militating against, was a condition of, the dying in faith. The promise fulfilled is no longer (in this sense) an object of faith. For the μή, see again note on iv. 2. For κομίζεσθαι, see note on x. 36, κομίσησθε.

τὰς ἐπαγγελίας] The things promised (as in Luke xxiv. 49. Acts i. 4. ii. 33). See note on vi. 12.

πόρρωθεν] Luke xvii. 12 (only). But it is frequent in the Septuagint. Job ii. 12, ίδόντες δὲ αὐτὸν πόρρωθεν. xxxix. 29, πόρρωθεν οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ αὐτοῦ σκοπεύουσι. Isai. xxxiii. 17, βασιλέα μετὰ δόξης ὄψεσθε, οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ ὑμῶν ὄψονται γῆν πόρρωθεν. iδόντες καὶ ἀσπασάμενοι] Having seen in the far distance with the soul's eye, and greeted as living realities with the soul's voice. One of the many graphic pictures of this chapter in its portraiture of the action of faith.

ἀσπασάμενοι] The word occurs frequently in its literal sense. The nearest approach to its use here is in Mark ix. 15, ἰδόντες αὐτὸν ἐξεθαμβήθησαν, καὶ προστρέχοντες ήσπάζοντο αὐτόν.

όμολογήσαντες] See note on iii. I, όμολογίας.

ξένοι καὶ παρεπίδημοι] Gen. xxiii. 4, πάροικος και παρεπίδημος έγώ είμι μεθ'ύμῶν. xlvii. 9, at ήμέραι των έτων τής ζωής μου, ας παροικώ...ας ήμέρας παρψκησαν. Acts xvii. 21. 3 John 5); and so figuratively (Eph. ii. 19, οὐκέτι ἐστε ξένοι καὶ πάροικοι  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ; and with a genitive, strangers to (Eph. ii. 12, Eévol τών διαθηκών); and as an adjective, of things, foreign or strange (xiii. 9, διδαχαίς ποικίλαις καί Eévais. παρεπίδημοι] Like πάροικος, παρεπίδημος is one who resides in a country by the side (not as one) of its citizens. It is thus expressed in full by the phrase of Acts xvii. 21, ol ἐπιδημοῦντες ξένοι (compare Acts ii. 10). The word occurs in 1 Pet. i. 1, ἐκλεκτοῖς παρεπιδήμοις διασπορᾶς Πόντου κ.τ.λ. ii. 11, παρακαλῶ ὡς παροίκους καὶ παρεπιδήμους. Also Gen. xxiii. 4. Psalm xxxix. 12 (quoted above).

έμφανίζουσιν] Make manifest. Show clearly. See note on ix. 24, έμφανισθήναι. There of a person (and see references); here of a thing (for which see Acts xxiii. 15, 23, έμφανίσατε τ $\hat{\psi}$  χιλιάρχ $\psi$ ...ταῦτα ἐνεφάνισαs πρός με. xxiv. 1, ἐνεφάνισαν τ $\hat{\psi}$  ήγεμόνι κατά τοῦ Παύλου. XXV. 2, 15, περὶ οῦ...ἐνεφάνισαν κ.τ.λ.).

πατρίδα] A fatherland. For a more restricted application of πατρίς, see Matt. xiii. 54, 57. Mark vi. 1, 4, οὐκ ἔστιν προφήτης ἄτιμος εἰ μὴ ἐν τῷ πατρίδι αὐτοῦ καὶ ἐν τοῦς συγγενέσιν αὐτοῦ καὶ ἐν τῷ οἰκία αὐτοῦ. Luke iv. 23, 24. John iv. 44. In its large sense (as here), Esth. ii. 10, καὶ οὐχ ὑπέδειξεν Ἐσθὴρ τὸ γένος αὐτῆς οῦδὲ τὴν πατρίδα. viii. 6, ἐν τῷ ἀπωλεία τῆς πατρίδος μου. Jer. xxii. 10, οὐδὲ ὄψεται τὴν γῆν πατρίδος αὐτοῦ. Ezek. xxiii. 15.

ἐπιζητοῦσιν] They are seeking for. The ἐπὶ is that of direction, as the ἐκ in ἐκζητεῖν (verse 6) is that of exploration. For ἐπιζητεῖν, see xiii. 14, οὐ γὰρ ἔχομεν ὥδε μένουσαν πόλιν, ἀλλὰ τὴν μέλλουσαν ἐπιζητοῦμεν. Matt. vi. 32. xii. 39. xvi. 4. Luke iv. 42. xii. 30. Acts xii. 19. xiii. 7. xix. 39. Rom. xi. 7. bering. Sometimes μνημονεύειν has the sense of remembering, sometimes of mentioning. The latter in verse 22 (with  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$ ). Elsewhere always the former, either (1) with a genitive (as here, and xiii. 7, των ήγουμένων. Luke xvii. 32, της γυναικός Λώτ. John xv. 20, τοῦ λόγου. xvi. 4, 21, της θλίψεως. 16. vîv  $\delta \epsilon$ ] But as it is (as the case really stands). The  $\delta \epsilon$  answers the  $\mu \epsilon \nu$  of verse 15, and sets fact against hypothesis. See note on viii. 6, vîv  $\delta \epsilon$ . For this use of vîv or vuví (not of time but of thought), compare 1 Cor. vii. 14, vîv  $\delta \epsilon$  ayıá  $\epsilon \sigma \tau i v$ . xii. 18, 20, vîv  $\delta \epsilon$  ayıá  $\epsilon \sigma \tau i v$ . xii. 18, 20, vîv  $\delta \epsilon$   $\delta \Theta \epsilon \delta s$   $\epsilon \theta \epsilon \tau o$  $\tau a \mu \epsilon \lambda \eta \dots v v \delta \epsilon$   $\pi \sigma \lambda \lambda a \mu \epsilon \nu \mu \epsilon \lambda \eta$ ,  $\epsilon \nu \delta \epsilon \sigma \omega \mu a$ . xv. 20, vuvì  $\delta \epsilon$ Xριστ $\delta s \epsilon \gamma \eta \rho \epsilon \rho \tau a \epsilon \kappa \nu \epsilon \kappa \rho \omega v$ .

κρείττονος] See note on i. 4, κρείττων.

όρέγονται] From the figure of reaching after (compare the stronger expression ἐπεκτεινόμενοs in Phil. iii. 14) comes that of desiring. The verb is used (in Scripture) only here and in 1 Tim. iii. 1 (εἶ τις ἐπισκοπῆς ὀρέγεται) and vi. 10 (ἦς τινès ὀρεγόμενοι).

 $\epsilon \pi o v \rho a v (ov)$  For  $\epsilon \pi o v \rho a v v os,$ see note on iii. 1. The idea of o v p a v ds or  $\tau a \epsilon \pi o v \rho a v a$  s the mappis of the blessed is found in many passages (as 2 Cor. v. 1. Eph. ii. 6. Phil. iii. 20. 1 Pet. i. 4), but always in connexion with the presence there of Christ Himself. Beyond this there is nothing local in the conception. Indeed the holy city is seen in Rev. xxi. 2 as καταβαίνουσαν έκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ to become the σκηνή τοῦ Θεοῦ μετα τών ανθρώπων. Even in 1 Thess. iv. 15—17 (the nearest approach to a local representation) the same feature of the KataBhoteral  $a\pi$  ovpavoù is prominent, and the appaynooμeda is els anavraσιν τοῦ Κυρίου, with no intimation of His retracing His descent. The new heaven is always combined with a new earth (Isai. lxv. 17. 2 Pet. iii. 13. Rev. xxi. 1). The σύν Κυρίφ έσό- $\mu\epsilon\theta a$  of 1 Thess. iv. 17, and the ίνα όπου είμι έγω και ύμεις ήτε of John xiv. 3, seem to be the only revelations of the future home of the saints.

 $\delta_{i\delta}$  Wherefore. Because they were capable of such aspirations. Because they were able thus to die in faith.

ούκ ἐπαισχύνεται] God is not ashamed of them—not ashamed to be surnamed their God. The verb ἐπαισχύνεσθαι has three constructions, two of which are here combined. (1) With an accusative, as Mark viii. 38. ό Θεός Θεός έπικαλεῖσθαι αὐτῶν, ἡτοίμασεν γὰρ αὐτοῖς πόλιν.

Luke ix. 26, ôs yàp åv  $\epsilon \pi a \iota \sigma$   $\chi \upsilon v \theta j$   $\mu \epsilon$  kai toùs  $\epsilon \mu o \iota s$   $\lambda \delta \gamma o \upsilon s$ ,  $\tau o \iota \tau o v$   $\delta$   $\upsilon \iota \delta s$  toù  $\delta v \theta p \circ \sigma \sigma \upsilon \epsilon \pi a \iota \sigma$ .  $\chi \upsilon v \theta \eta \sigma \sigma \tau a$   $\kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . Rom. i. 16. 2 Tim. i. 8, 16. Job xxxiv. 19. (2) With an infinitive, as ii. 11 (where see note). (3) With  $\epsilon \pi i$ , as Rom. vi. 21,  $\epsilon \phi$  ols vîv  $\epsilon \pi a \iota \sigma$ .  $\chi \acute{v} v \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ . Isai. i. 29. It is also used (4) absolutely, as 2 Tim. i. 12.

Θεός επικαλείσθαι αὐτῶν Το be surnamed their God. To take to Himself this title, God of Abraham, God of Isaac, God of Jacob. Gen. xxvi. 24, έγώ είμι ό Θεός 'Αβραάμ τοῦ πατρός σου. xxviii. 13, έγώ είμι ο Θεος 'Αβραὰμ τοῦ πατρός σου, καὶ ὁ Θεός Ίσαάκ. Exod. iii. 6, εγώ είμι ο Θεός του πατρός σου, Θεός 'Αβραάμ, καὶ Θεὸς Ίσαάκ, καὶ Θεὸς <sup>i</sup>Ιακώβ. (The three quotations give the gradual growth of the divine surname through succeeding generations.) For  $i\pi$ . καλείν (to surname) and its passive, see Matt. x. 25, el tor olkoδεσπότην Βεελζεβουλ επεκάλεσαν. Acts i. 23, Ίωσήφ τον καλούμενον Βαρσαββάν, ΰς ἐπεκλήθη Iovoros. iv. 36. x. 5, 18, 32. &c. For the middle voice (to invoke, call in, appeal to), see (1) in its human application, Acts xxv. 11, 12, 21, 25. xxvi. 32. xxviii. 19, ήναγκάσθην έπικαλέσασθαι Καίσαρα κ.τ.λ.; (2) in its religious use, Acts vii. 59. ix. 14, 21. xxii. 16. Rom. x. 12, 13, 14. I Cor. i. 2. 2 Cor. i. 23. 2 Tim. ii. 22. I Pet. i. 17. Also Gen. iv. 26. xxxiii. 20. And so throughout the Psalms. In this last sense,  $\epsilon \pi \iota$ καλείσθαι is equivalent to the προσέρχεσθαι of this Epistle (see note on iv. 16).

ήτοίμασεν γάρ] I say, οὐκ επαισχύνεται—for, &c. He has proved that He is not ashamed of them by preparing for them a city.

 $\eta \tau o(\mu a \sigma \epsilon v]$  A single past act. In the eternal past, when the plans of God were formed. The aorist is that of Rom. viii. 29, προέγνω, προώρισεν, &c. 30, Eph. i. 4, 5, 6, έξελέξατο, προορίσας, εχαρίτωσεν, &c. 2 Thess. ii. 13, είλατο. &c. For ητοίμα- $\sigma \epsilon v$  (in this connexion), see John xiv. 2, πορεύομαι έτοιμάσαι τόπον υμίν κ.τ.λ. I Cor. ii. 9, & ήτοίμασεν ό Θεός τοις άγαπώσιν aυτόν. And with πόλις (as here), Rev. xxi. 2, καὶ τὴν πόλιν τὴν αγίαν...ήτοιμασμένην ως νύμφην κ.τ.λ.

πόλιν] Not a πατρὶς only, but a πόλις. See note on verse 10, πόλιν.

17. Ilíora...'A $\beta \rho a a \mu$ ] A third example of the faith of Abraham. He so realized the future of promise, as not only to consent to exile and homelessness, and not only to accept on the word of God an apparent impossibility, but also still to trust and still to obey when God seemed to be defeating, and calling him to defeat, the word of promise itself. Faith harmonizes contradictions.

προσενήνοχεν Has offered. The perfect expresses (1) the completeness of the act. All is done. Gen. xxii. 9, 10, ηλθον έπι τον τόπον...και ψκοδόμησεν το θυσιαστήριον...καί συμποδίσας Ίσαὰκ ἐπέθηκεν αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ θυσιαστήριον...καὶ ἐξέτεινεν ᾿Αβραάμ τήν χείρα αύτοῦ λαβείν την μάχαιραν σφάξαι τον υίον αύτου. The offering is perfect. (2) The permanence of the Scripture record. It is written. Thus the tense is that of vii. 6, 9, &δεκάτωκεν...ευλόγηκεν...δεδεκάτω- $\tau a \iota$  (where see notes). For  $\pi \rho o \sigma$ φέρειν, see note on v. I, προσφέρη.

 $\tau \partial v' I \sigma a \Delta x$ ] The article might seem to mean the Isaac of promise. But a comparison of other places (Matt. i. 1—16. Acts viii. 8. &c.), and even of verse 20, shows that it simply indicates the case of an indeclinable name.

resoulónevos] The present participle may express either (1) the promptitude of the offering (in the very moment of trial, like radoúperos in verse 8), or (2) the continuance and protraction of the trial, so strongly marked in the narrative of Gen. xxii. 4, 5 (τη ημέρα τη τρίτη...είδε τον τόπον μακρόθεν ...διελευσόμεθα έως ώδε κ.τ.λ.). For respaces, see note on ii. 18,  $\pi\epsilon\iota\rho\alpha\sigma\theta\epsilon\iota$  for the special connexion of the word with this narrative, see Gen. xxii. 1, o Θεώς επείρασε των Αβραάμ κ.τ.λ.

kai rov µovoyerij] Added as a separate particular. Not only did the father offer the son, but (quite a separate feature of the case) the recipient of the promise offered the one person who was the subject of it.

μονογενή] In Gen. xxii. 2, 16, the phrase is not τὸν μονογενή but τὸν ἀγαπητόν, τοῦ ἀγαπητοῦ. But ἀγαπητὸs itself (in usage) implied μονογενήs. For μονογενήs, see Luke vii. 12, μονογενήs νἰδς τῆ μητρὶ αὐτοῦ. viii. 42. ix. 38, ἐπιβλέψαι ἐπὶ τὸν νἰόν μου, ὅτι μονογενής μοί ἐστιν. In the remaining places of its occurrence (John i. 14, 18. iii. 16, 18. 1 John iv. 9) it has the higher application. In Psalm xxii. 29 and xxxv. 17, τὴν τὰς ἐπαγγελίας ἀναδεξάμενος, πρὸς ὃν ἐλαλήθη 18 ὅτι ἐν Ἰσαὰκ κληθήσεταί σοι σπέρμα λογισάμενος ὅτι καὶ ἐκ νεκρῶν ἐγείρειν δυνατὸς 19

μονογενή is placed in parallelism with την ψυχήν μου. In Psalm xxv. 16, it is a plea for mercy, ότι μονογενής καὶ πτωχός εἰμι ε̈γώ. In Wisdom vii. 22, μονογενές is one of the epithets of the πνεῦμα which is in σοφία.

προσέφερεν] The imperfect marks the gradualness of the process. Step by step he performed the act of offering. See note on πειραζόμενος above.

ό τάς] See vii. 6, τον έχοντα τας έπαγγελίας. For τας έπαγγελίας, see note on vi. 12.

άναδεξάμενος] Only here and in Acts xxviii. 7, δς άναδεξάμενος ήμᾶς τρεῖς ήμέρας φιλοφρόνως ἐξένισεν. The word has the idea of a cheerful and glad acceptance. He that had welcomed the promises. See 2 Macc. Vi. 19, ὁ δὲ τὸν μετ εὐκλείας θάνατον...ἀναδεξάμενος.

18.  $\pi \rho \circ s \circ v$ ] To whom. The relative points to Abraham, not to Isaac. The very person to whom the promise was spoken was thus required to defeat it. For  $\pi \rho \circ s$ , see note on i. 7.

έλαλήθη] See note on i. 1,  $\lambda a \lambda \eta \sigma a s$ .

ev Iσαάκ] In Isaac (not in Ishmael) shall there be called (spoken of) for thes a seed. In Isaac, and in none other, shalt thou have an offspring to be called thine. The same clause is quoted in Rom. ix. 7, with a different application. Here the point is the severity of the trial of faith in being called to sacrifice the one life which had been expressly made the subject of the promise.

κληθήσεται] For this use of καλεΐν, see note on iii. 13, καλείται.

19.  $\lambda o \gamma i \sigma \dot{a} \mu \epsilon v o s$ ] The aorist indicates a single and decisive mental act (see verses 25 and 26,  $\epsilon \lambda \dot{o} \mu \epsilon v o s \dots \dot{\eta} \gamma \eta \sigma \dot{a} - \mu \epsilon v o s$ ). Having reckoned this. The word  $\lambda o \gamma' \dot{l} \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  (occurring almost 35 times in St Paul's writings) occurs only here in this Epistle. It expresses the formation of an opinion by calculation or reasoning; as in Rom. viii. 18,  $\lambda o \gamma' \dot{l} o \mu a$   $\gamma \dot{a} p$  $\dot{\sigma} \tau_i o \dot{v} \kappa \ddot{a} \xi a \tau a \pi a \theta \dot{\eta} \mu a \tau_a \tau o \dot{v} \dot{v} \dot{v}$

καιροῦ πρὸς τὴν μέλλουσαν δόξαν ἀποκαλυφθῆναι εἰς ἡμῶς. Ι Cor. xili. 11, ὅτε ἡμην νήπιος...ἐλογιζόμην ὡς νήπιος. 2 Cor. x. 7, τοῦτο λογιζέσθω πάλιν ἀφ' ἐαυτοῦ κ.τ.λ. ἀς.

öτι καὶ ἐκ νεκρῶν] Quite general. That God is able even to raise from the dead. (Acts xxvi. 8, τί ἄπιστον κρίνεται παρ' ὑμῖν εἰ ὁ Θεὸς νεκροὺς ἐγείρει;) The point is not that, if Isaac dies, God can give another Isaac to replace him; but that, if Isaac dies, God can restore the same Isaac by a resurrection.

Suvarós] Here only in this Frequent elsewhere, Epistle. both in its sense of (1) possible (Matt. xix. 26, παρα δε Θεώ πάντα δυνατά. &c.), and in that of (2) powerful (Luke i. 49, ο δυνατός. xxiv. 19, δυνατός έν έργω και λόγω. Acts vii. 22. Rom, ix. 22, γνωρίσαι το δυνατόν avroû. xv. 1. 1 Cor. i. 26. 2 Cor. xii. 10, τότε δυνατός είμι. xiii. 9), or able (as here, and Luke xiv. 31, el duvatós éstiv ...υπαντήσαι κ.τ.λ. Acts xi. 17. Rom. iv. 21, or o enjyyerrae δυνατός έστιν καί ποιήσαι, xi. 2 Cor. ix. 8. 2 Tim. i. 12, 23. δυνατός έστιν την παραθήκην μου φυλάξαι. Tit. i. o. James iii. 2).

καί ] The words έν παραβολή are practically parenthetical, and kal belongs to the whole clause. From whence he did also (in figure) recover him. The sense will be but slightly varied if kal is even. And the English equivalent for kal in either case will be an emphasis on the auxiliary verb. From whence he did (in figure) recover him.

iv  $\pi a p a \beta o \lambda \hat{\eta}$ ] From the general idea of laying alongside, and so of comparison (usually in words, a parable or similitude), comes that of a resemblance in act or fact, a thing so done as to suggest another thing. Thus in ix. 9 the fact of there being a  $\pi p \omega \hat{\tau} \eta \sigma \kappa \eta \nu \hat{\eta}$ , an outer chamber of the tabernacle, was called a  $\pi a p a \beta o \lambda \hat{\eta}$  as teaching a spiritual truth. And here the recovery of Isaac from imminent death is made a  $\pi a p a \beta o \lambda \hat{\eta}$ of resurrection.

έκομίσατο] He received him back. See note on x. 36, κομίσησθε.

20. Πίστα... Iσαάκ] Three examples follow of the dying thoughts of faith (as the realization of a future of promise) in reference to earth and the living. The first is that of Gen. xxvii.

kaì  $\pi \epsilon \rho i$  Even concerning things future. The kai recognizes the difficulty of realizing the unseen. It is like the  $\mu\eta$ - $\delta\epsilon\pi\omega$  of verse 7.

μελλόντων] Gen. xxvii. 29, δουλευσάτωσάν σοι έθνη, καὶ προσκυνησάτωσάν σοι ἀρχοντες κ.τ.λ. It was a recognition of a future which at present gave no sign.

eὐλόγησεν] Unconsciously at first, and under deception. But the unconscious blessing was consciously adhered to, as the expression of a will above his own. Gen. xxvii. 33, καὶ εὐλόγησα αὐτόν, καὶ εὐλογημένος ἔσται. And the very idea of the εὐλογία, as a prediction and apportionment of things not yet seen, resting only upon promise, was an action of faith.

21.  $\Pi(\sigma\tau \alpha \ \operatorname{Iax}\omega\beta)$  Two separate occurrences are here combined, and in inverted order (Gen. xlviii. and xlvii.). By the inversion (1) the  $\epsilon \partial \lambda o \gamma (\alpha$ of Jacob is placed in juxtaposition with that of Isaac, and (2) the desire of Jacob to be buried not in Egypt but in Canaan is placed next before the same direction in the dying words of Joseph.

άποθνήσκων] Gen. xlviii. 21, ίδοὺ ἐγὼ ἀποθνήσκω.

čκαστον] In the sense of either of two, ἐκάτερος is the classical form; but it does not occur in the New Testament, and only three times in the Septuagint (Ezek. i. 11, 12. 2 Macc. iii. 26), and in two of these incorrectly (for Exactor).

 $ei\lambda \delta\gamma\eta\sigma ev$ ] The faith was shown (1) in distributing and apportioning (see note on verse 20) a future of promise giving as yet no sign of itself (Gen. xlviii. 19, 22), and (2) in that reliance upon God's providence in the future which has been the support of the past (verses 15, 16).

καὶ προσεκύνησεν] See Gen. xlvii. 31, καὶ προσεκύνησεν Ἰσραὴλ ἐπὶ τὸ ἄκρον τῆς ῥάβδου αὐτοῦ. This was an act of thankful adoration on receiving the promise, ratified by oath, that he should be buried in Canaan. Thus the act of worship defined itself into an act of faith realizing a future of promise.

προσεκύνησεν] The idea of προσεκυνείν is that of reverence shown in posture. In its Scripture use, even where directed towards human beings (as in Acts x. 25), it seems always to imply a recognition of the superhuman, of the divine commission, and so (in some sort) of the divine presence, if not of the divine personality. Its use in the temptation (Matt. iv. g) is no real exception to this : scarcely even that in the oriental imagery of the parable of Matt. xviii. 26. See Matt. ii. 2, &c. ix. 18. xiv. 33. &c. The construction of poorcively varies. (1) Most often it is with the dative (as John iv, 21, 23. 1 Cor. xiv. 25. &c.). (2) Sometimes with the accusative (as John iv. 23, 24. Rev. xiii. 12. dc.). (3) Sometimes it is put absolutely (as John iv. 20. xii. 20. Acts viii. 27. xxiv. 11.  $\dot{\rho}\dot{\alpha}\beta\delta\sigma\sigma$ ] Following the Septuagint. The vowel points differently placed give bed (Authorized and Revised Version) instead of staff. The difference is immaterial to the application here made. For  $\dot{\rho}\dot{\alpha}\beta\delta\sigma$ , see note on i. 8.

τών νίῶν Ἱσραήλ] Here perhaps the actual sons of Jacob may be meant. See Gen. l. 25, καὶ ὥρκισεν Ἱωσὴφ τοὺς νίοὺς Ἱσραήλ, λέγων...ὑμᾶς...μεθ ὑμῶν. They were the representatives of the race, whether they should ένετείλατο] See note on ix. 20. ένετείλατο.

23. Ilíorti Mωυσ $\hat{\eta}$ s] From Genesis to Exodus. From Abraham to Moses. From the tentlife into the world, whether of power, or of luxury, or of wisdom, or of sin. Four examples follow of the victory of faith in the history of Moses. In the first he is passive. The faith is that of his parents.

γεννηθείς] Acts vii. 20, ἐν ų καφῷ ἐγεννήθη Μωυσής. The word seems to reflect the detail and the emphasis of Exod. ii. 1, 2.

 $\epsilon \kappa \rho i \beta \eta$ ] Exod. ii. 2,  $\epsilon \sigma \kappa \epsilon \pi a$ σαν αὐτό. But afterwards (verse 3)  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon i$  δε οὐκ εδύναντο αὐτὸ ετι κρύπτειν. For the form  $\epsilon \kappa \rho i \beta \eta$ , see Luke xix. 42. John viii. 59. xii. 36.

τρίμηνον] Exod. ii. 2, μηνας τρείς. And so Acts vii. 20, δς ανετράφη μηνας τρεῖς ἐν τῷ οἴκῳ τοῦ πατρός. The form τρίμηνος has an unusual variety of gender; feminine in Herodotus, masculine (but as adjective, with χρόνος) in Sophocles, neuter (probably) here, and in Gen. xxxviii. 24, μετὰ τρίμηνον. 2 Kings xxiv. 8, καὶ τρίμηνον ¿βασίλευσεν ἐν Ἱερουσαλήμ. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 2, 9.

 $\pi a \tau \epsilon \rho \omega v$ ] Parents. Father and mother. As of yovers in Luke ii. 27, 41, 43. Observe the masculine idorres (Exod. ii. 2) evidently said both of the father and mother.

διότι  $d\delta or$ ] They seem to have drawn hope from the child's singular beauty that he might have a great future.

arteiov The word arteios is properly urbanus, in contrast with aypowos (rusticus), and hence polite, clever, witty. (It has some unexpected applications in the Septuagint, as in Jud. iii. 17, where the rendering from the Hebrew is fat.) From its first uses it passes into the sense of beautiful, whether morally (as Num. xxii. 32, ori ούκ αστεία ή όδός σου εναντίον μου. 2 Macc. vi. 23, λογισμον αστείον αναλαβών και άξιον της ηλικίας. ΧΙΙ. 43, πάνυ καλώς και aστείως πράττων), or physically (as here, and Judith xi. 23, kai νύν αστεία εί σύ έν τῷ είδει σου).

μέγας γενόμενος] Exod. ii. 11, μέγας γενόμενος Μωυσής έξήλθε προς τους άδελφους αυτού τους νίους 'Ισραήλ. In that recognition of his nationality was involved the renunciation of his adoption.

ήρτήσατο λέγεσθαι] Refused to be called. Refused to continue to be called. The word  $\dot{a}\rho reiσθai$  (or the strengthened form  $\dot{a}\pi a \rho reiσθai$ ) has three shades of meaning. (1) To deny, (a) with an accusative of the thing (expressed or implied), as in Matt. xxvi. 70. Mark xiv. 68, 70. Luke viii. 45. xxii. 57. John i. 20. xviii. Acts iv. 16. 25, 27. Gen. xviii, 15; or (b) with an infinitive, as Luke xxii. 34, Tpis µe απαρνήση ειδέναι κ.τ.λ.; or (c) with ore, as in 1 John ii. 22, a μή ο άρνούμενος ότι Ίησοῦς κ.τ.λ. (2) To disoun, with an accusative of the person (or thing personified). Thus Matt. x. 33. Luke ix. 23. xii. 9. John xiii. 38. Acts iii. 13, 14. vii. 35, δν ηρνήσαντο είποντες κ.τ.λ. Ι Tim. v. 8, την πίστιν ήρνηται. 2 Tim. ii. 12, 13. Tit. i. 16. ii. 12, αρνησάμενοι την ασέβειαν к.т. λ. 2 Pet. ii. 1. 1 John ii. 22, 23. Jude 4. Rev. ii. 13. ούκ ήρνήσω την πίστιν μου. iii. 8. And so Isai, xxxi. 7, Th ήμέρα εκείνη απαριήσονται οί άνθρωποι τα χειροποίητα αυτών κ.τ.λ. (3) To refuse, with an infinitive, as here, and in Wisd. xii. 27, ίδοντες όν πάλαι ήρνοῦντο eidévai. xvi. 16. xvii. 9.

υίος θυγατρός Φ.] Exod. ii. 10, και έγενήθη αυτή είς υίον.

25. έλόμενος] It was a single and decisive act. Deut. xxvi. 17, 18, τὸν Θεὸν είλου σήμερον, είναί σου Θεόν...καὶ συνκακουχείσθαι] The compound verb is found nowhere else in Scripture. But κακουχεῖν occurs in verse 37 and in xiii. 3. Also in 1 Kings ii. 26, ὅτι ἐκακουχήθης ἐν πῶσιν οἶς ἐκακουχήθη ὁ πατήρ μου. xi. 39.

Κύριος είλατό σε σήμερον, γενέσθαι σε αὐτῷ λαὸν περιούσιον κ.τ.λ.

 $\tau \hat{\psi} \lambda a \hat{\psi} \tau o \hat{\psi} \Theta \epsilon o \hat{\psi}$ ] The religious title of the chosen people, suggesting the deep reason for the  $\hat{\epsilon} \lambda \hat{\phi} \epsilon v o s$ . It was something more than patriotism. See notes on ii. 17 and iv. 9.

πρόσκαιρον] Matt. xiii. 21, άλλα πρόσκαιρός ἐστιν. Mark iv. 17, άλλα πρόσκαιροί εἰσιν. 2 Cor. iv. 18, τα γαρ βλεπόμενα πρόσκαιρα.

ἀπόλαυσιν] Ι Tim. vi. 17 (only). For the verb, see Prov. vii. 18, ἐλθὲ καὶ ἀπολαύσωμεν φιλίας ἔως ὅρθρου. Wisd. ii. 6, δεῦτε οἶν ἀπολαύσωμεν τῶν ὅντων ἀγαθῶν κ.τ.λ.

26.  $\eta \gamma \eta \sigma \alpha \mu \epsilon vos$ ] Again the aorist of the single act, the resolute and decisive estimate made once and for ever. For tense and sense, see note on verse 11, ήγήσατο.

θησαυρών] Ezek. xxviii. 4, 13, καὶ χρυσίου ἐνέπλησας τοὺς θησαυρούς σου καὶ τὰς ἀποθήκας σου κ.τ.λ. &c. &c.

τόν όνειδισμόν τοῦ Χριστοῦ] Christ's reproach. This is one, and perhaps the most striking, of the passages (such as I Cor. x. 4. 1 Pet. i. 11) in which the presence of Christ in the Old Testament is asserted or assumed in the New. His sufferings cast a shadow before as well as after: Moses bore His reproach fifteen centuries before Him, just as St Paul filled up the ύστερήματα of His afflictions after Him (Col. i. 24), and spoke of His  $\pi a \theta \eta \mu a \tau a$ as redounding upon His people (2 Cor. i. 5). This chapter is based upon the thought of the solidarity of the holy body through all time, in virtue of its union with Christ. For the special thought of the σνειδισμος of Christ, see xiii. 13, tor overδισμόν αὐτοῦ φέροντες. Also Psalm lxix. 7, 9, 10, 19, 20, ένεκά σου υπήνεγκα ονειδισμόν...οί όνειδισμοί των ονειδιζόντων σε επέπεσον έπ' έμέ... έγενήθη είς ονειδισμούς εμοί...σύ [γαρ] γινώσκεις τον όνειδισμόν μου... όνειδισμόν προσεδόκησεν ή ψυχή μου. lxxxix. 50, μσθαποδοσίαν] See note on ii. 2.

27. Iliotel Kateliner | Faith giving courage for a forty years' seclusion. The reference is not to the Exodus, but to the flight into Midian. For (1) the Exodus, when it came, was not against the will of Pharaoh (Exod. xii, 31, 33). (2) The singular number  $(\kappa a \tau \epsilon \lambda (\pi \epsilon \nu))$ would not be appropriate to the Exodus. (3) The order of events would be contradicted if the departure were placed before the passover. Against this view is the superficial contradiction involved in the  $\mu\eta$   $\phi o\beta\eta\theta\epsilon$  compared with the  $\epsilon \phi \sigma \beta \eta \theta \eta$  of Exod. ii. 14. But the two fears are different: the one is the fear arising from the discovery of his slaying the Egyptian, the other is the fear of Pharaoh's anger on discovering his flight. He feared, and therefore fled: he feared not, and therefore fled. Exod. ii. 15, avexwopnee  $\delta \epsilon$  Mwvo $\eta s$  and  $\pi \rho or \omega m ov$   $\Phi a \rho a \omega$ , kai kat $\psi k \eta \sigma \epsilon v$  (A,  $\psi k \eta \sigma \epsilon v$  B)  $\epsilon v$  $\gamma \eta$  Madiáµ. Acts vii. 29,  $\epsilon \phi v \gamma \epsilon v$  $\delta \epsilon$  Mwvo $\eta s$   $\epsilon v \tau \psi$   $\lambda \delta \gamma \psi \tau \sigma v \tau \tau \psi$ , kai  $\epsilon \gamma \epsilon v \tau \psi \gamma \eta$  Maduáµ.

 $μ\dot{\eta}$  φοβηθείς] As not fearing. Because he feared not. See note on iv. 2, μή.

θνμόν] Of the 18 times of the occurrence of θνμόs in the New Testament ten are in the Apocalypse. Of the 36 occurrences of όργη six only are in that Book, 20 are in St Paul's writings. For θνμόs as the outburst of όργη, see Rev. xvi. 19, τὸ ποτήριον τοῦ όινου τοῦ θυμοῦ τῆς ὀργῆς aὐτοῦ. xix. 15.

 $\tau \partial \nu \gamma \partial \rho \ a \delta \rho a \tau o \nu$ ] A noble definition of faith, less philosophical but more practical than that in verse 1.

 $\epsilon \kappa a \rho \tau \epsilon \rho \eta \sigma \epsilon v$ ] The only occurrence of  $\kappa a \rho \tau \epsilon \rho \epsilon \hat{v}$  (forti animo sum) in the New Testament. It is found in Job ii. 9,

 28. Πίστει πεποίηκεν] Faith inspiring submission to an unexplained and seemingly unmeaning precept. (Exod. xii. 27, καὶ κύψας ὁ λαὸς προσεκύνησε.)

 $\pi \epsilon \pi o (\eta \kappa \epsilon v]$  (1) The perfect suggests two thoughts; the permanence of the ordinance, and the perpetuity of the record. Probably the latter is predominant. A Scripture perfect. (2) There is no idea of instituting in  $\pi oleiv$ , but simply of keeping. Exod. xii. 48,  $\epsilon a v \delta \epsilon \tau s \pi \rho o \sigma$ έλθη...καί ποιή (Α, ποιήσαι Β) το πάσχα Κυρίω κ.τ.λ. Num. ix. 2, &c. Deut. xvi. 1. Josh, v. 10. 2 Kings xxiii. 21. Ezra vi. 19. Matt. xxvi. 18, προς σε ποιώ το πάσχα (the equivalent of  $\phi a \gamma \epsilon i \nu \tau \delta \pi a \sigma \gamma a$  above).

τὸ πάσχα] The word (written φασὲκ in 2 Chron. xxx. 1, &c. xxxv. 1, &c.) occurs first in Exod. xii. 11, οὖτω δὲ φάγεσθε αὐτό...ἔδεσθε αὐτὸ μετὰ σπουδῆς πάσχα ἐστὶ Κυρίω. (1) Its first application seems to be to the paschal lamb, and θύειν is in this sense its characteristic verb. Exod. xii. 21, καὶ θύσατε τὸ πάσχα. And so in Mark xiv. 12. Luke xxii. 7. 1 Cor.

v. 7. (2) Thence it passes to the paschal supper, with its unleavened bread and bitter herbs; and  $\phi_{ayeer}$  is as suitable to this sense as to the former. Exod. xii. 11. Matt. xxvi. 19, Kai ήτοίμασαν το πάσχα. Mark xiv. 16. Luke xxii. 8, 13. (3) Thence to the seven days' paschal feast. Luke ii. 41. xxii. ηγγιζεν δε ή έορτη των αζύμων ή λεγομένη πάσχα. John ii, 13, 23. vi. 4. xi. 55. xii. 1. xiii. 1. xviii. 39. Acts xii. 4. The second seems to be the meaning in the verse before us, the directions for the seven days' feast (Exod. xii. 15) being apparently prospective (see verse 25).

την πρόσχυσιν τοῦ αἴματος] The affusion of the blood. Exod. xii. 7, 22, καὶ λήψονται ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴματος καὶ θήσουσιν ἐπὶ τῶν δύο σταθμῶν καὶ ἐπὶ την φλιὰν ἐν τοῖς οἴκοις ἐν οἶς ẩν φάγωσιν αὐτὸ (A, αὐτὰ B) ἐν αὐτοῖς...λήψεσθε δὲ δέσμην ὑσσώπου καὶ βάψαντες ἀπὸ τοῦ αἴματος τοῦ παρὰ την θύραν καθίξετε ἐπὶ (without ἐπὶ B) της φλιῶς κ.τ.λ.

πρόσχυσιν] Formed like απόχυσις, έγχυσις, έκχυσις, πρόχυσις, άc., but only used here. The verb προσχέω, however, is not rare in the Septuagint. Exod. xxiv. 6.

the act with the effect was left without explanation. The faith was shown in acquiescing in the mystery.

ό όλοθρεύων] Exod. xii. 23, καὶ παρελεύσεται Κύριος πατάξαι τοὺς Αἰγυπτίους, καὶ ὄψεται τὸ αἰμα...καὶ παρελεύσεται Κύριος τὴν θύραν, καὶ οὐκ ἀφήσει τὸν όλοθρεύοντα εἰσελθεῖν εἰς τὰς οἰκίας ὑμῶν πατάξαι. God is present, but God is not the actor. Compare 2 Sam. xxiv. 16, 17 (1 Chron. xxi. 15, 16, 27). 2 Kings xix. 35. 1 Cor. x. 10, καὶ ἀπώλουτο ὑπὸ τοῦ ὀλοθρευτοῦ.

τὰ πρωτότοκα] Exod. xii. 12, 29, καὶ πατάξω πῶν πρωτότοκον ἐν γῆ Αἰγύπτω ἀπὸ ἀνθρώπου ἔως κτήνους κ.τ.λ.

aντῶν] Them. His (Moses's) people. For this pregnant use of αντῶν, compare, for example, Luke xxiii. 51, τῆ βουλῆ καὶ τῆ πράξει αντῶν.

29. Πίστει διέβησαν] Faith venturing an apparently impossible enterprise. Exod. xiv. 16, 22, εἰσελθάτωσαν οἱ υἰοὶ Ἰσραὴλ εἰς μέσον τῆς θαλάσσης κατὰ τὸ ξηρόν...καὶ εἰσῆλθον κ.τ.λ.

 $\delta_{i\ell}\beta\eta\sigma_{a\nu}$ ] In the first example of the faith of Moses he was passive: in the fourth he is one of many. In the Septuagint, the exact word  $\delta ia \beta a irer$ is far more often applied to the passage of the Jordan than to that of the Red Sea. But see Num. xxxiii. 8, kal  $\delta \iota \epsilon \beta \eta \sigma a \nu$  $\mu \epsilon \sigma o \nu \tau \eta s \theta a \lambda a \sigma \sigma \eta s \epsilon l s \tau \eta \nu \epsilon \rho \eta - \mu o \nu$ .

την ἐρυθρὰν θάλασσαν] First mentioned in Exod. x. 19, εἰς την θάλασσαν την ἐρυθράν (Α, εἰς την ἐρυθρὰν θάλασσαν Β). Afterwards about 20 times in the historical Books and the Psalms: not in the Prophets.

ώς διὰ ξηρᾶς γῆς] Exod. xiv. 29, οἱ δὲ υἰοὶ Ἱσραηλ ἐπορεύθησαν διὰ ξηρᾶς ἐν μέσῳ τῆς θαλάσσης. xv. 19.

 $\eta$ s] This may refer either to  $\theta a \lambda a \sigma \sigma a v$  or to  $\gamma \eta$ s. The latter is the nearer and perhaps the easier. Of which dry land (for such it was to the Israelites) the Egyptians making trial, &c.

πειραν λαβόντες] See verse 36, μαστίγων πειραν Έλαβον. There, to have experience of: here, to make experiment of. In Deut. xxviii. 56, πειραν λαμβάνειν is followed by an infinitive: ή τρυφερά, ής ούχι πειραν Έλαβεν ό ποὺς αὐτῆς βαίνειν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς διὰ τὴν τρυφερότητα κ.τ.λ.

It is the example of all cases in which attack or defence is foregone and the cause is committed to God (1 Pet. ii. 23). Josh. vi. 2, εἶπε Κύριος προς 'Ιησοῦν, Ἰδοὺ ἐγὼ παραδίδωμι ὑποχείριόν σοι την Ίεριχώ κ.τ.λ.

'Ραὰβ ή πόρνη] James ii. 25. Josh. ii. 1, εἰσῆλθον (εἰσήλθοσαν Β) εἰς τὴν (οm. Β) οἰκίαν γυναικὸς πόρνης ή ὄνομα "Ραάβ.

οὐ συναπώλετο] Josh. vi. 17, 22, 23, 25, πλήν 'Paàβ τήν πόρνην...περιποιήσασθε...καὶ ἐξήγαγον (ἐξηγάγοσαν Β) 'Paàβ τήν πόρνην...καὶ πάσαν τήν συγγένειαν αὐτῆς, καὶ κατέστησαν αὐτὴν ἔξω τῆς παρεμβολῆς 'Ισραήλ...καὶ 'Paàβ τὴν πόρνην...ἐζώγρησεν 'Ιησοῦς, καὶ κατώκησεν (κατώκισεν Β) ἐν τῷ 'Ισραήλ ἕως τῆς σήμερον ήμέρας κ.τ.λ.

τοῖς ἀπειθήσασιν] Those who disobeyed the divine mandate of the possession of Canaan by Israel. This precisely suits the language of Rahab (Josh. ii. 9) quoted in the first note on this verse. For ἀπειθέιν, see iii. 18, εἰ μὴ τοῖς ἀπειθήσασιν, and note on iii. 12, ἀπιστίας.

δεξαμένη] So James ii. 25, ὑποδεξαμένη τοὺς ἀγγέλους καὶ ἑτέρα ὑδῷ ἐκβαλοῦσα. Josh. vi. 17, ὅτι ἔκρυψε τοὺς ἀγγέλους οῦς ἀπεστείλαμεν.

τοὺς κατασκόπους] Josh. ii. 1, &c. καὶ ἀπέστειλεν Ἰησοῦς... δύο νεανίσκους κατασκοπεῦσαι κρυφῆ (om. The substantive is not used in this connexion in Joshua. It is found in Gen. xlii. 9, &c. κατάσκοποί έστε κατανοῆσαιτὰ ἔχνη τῆς χώρας ἡκατε κ.τ.λ. Also I Sam. xxvi. 4. 2 Sam. xv. 10. Ecclus, xi. 30, 1 Macc. xii. 26.

μετ' εἰρήνης] The commoner phrase is ἐν εἰρήνη. But see Gen. xxvi. 29, καὶ ἐξαπεστείλαμέν σε μετ' εἰρήνης. Exod. xviii. 23. Deut. xx. 10. Jud. viii. 9. xi. 13. 1 Macc. vii. 28.

32. Kai  $\tau i \ \epsilon \tau i$ ] Detail is ended. A grand peroration celebrates in general summary (1) the exploits of faith (verses 32 to 34), and (2) its endurances (verses 35 to 38). For  $\epsilon \tau i$ (further), see vii. 11,  $\tau i \le \epsilon \tau i$  $\chi \rho \epsilon (a \kappa. \tau. \lambda.$  Matt. xxvi. 65,  $\tau i \ \epsilon \tau i \chi \rho \epsilon (a \nu \ \epsilon \chi \alpha) \mu e \nu \mu a \rho \tau i \rho \omega \nu;$ Luke xiv. 26.  $\epsilon \pi i \lambda \epsilon i \psi \epsilon i \mu \epsilon \gamma \epsilon \gamma \epsilon p$ ] A classical phrase, only found here in biblical use. The word  $\epsilon \pi i \lambda \epsilon \epsilon \pi \epsilon i \nu$ does not occur elsewhere in the New Testament, nor (for certain) in the Septuagint.

διηγούμενον περί] Elsewhere the construction of διηγεισθαι is with an accusative, or with πώs. See Gen. xxix. 13, καὶ διηγήσατο τῷ Λάβαν πάντας τοὺς λόγους τούτους. xl. 9, τὸ ἐνύπνιον. 1 Sam. xi. 5, τὰ ἑήματα. Psalm xix. 1, δόξαν Θεοῦ. Acts ix. 27, διηγήσατο αὐτοῖς πῶς ἐν τῷ ὁδῷ κ.τ.λ. xii. 17.

 $\pi$ ερὶ Γεδεών] (1) The names are not in their strict chronological order. Barak lived before Gideon, Jephthah before Samson. (2) Nothing is said of the persons named, but that which cannot be denied, that they had faith in an invisible presence. Any discussion of their actions in a moral light, or of their final state, is beside the mark. (3) One point may be taken in each life. In Barak, the humility of faith, shown in the willingness to take a journey not for his own honour. Jud. iv. 9, ούκ έσται τὸ προτέρημά σου είς (επί Β) την όδον ην συ πορεύη. In Gideon, the disinterestedness of faith, shown in his refusal of the kingdom. Jud. viii. 23, οὐκ ẳρξω ἐγω...Κύριος ἄρξει ὑμῶν. In Jephthah, the conscientiousness of faith, shown in the performance of his rash vow. Jud. xi. 39, και έπετέλεσεν Ἰεφθάε (ἐποίησεν Β) ἐν αὐτή την ευχήν αυτού ήν ηύξατο. In Samson, the valour of faith, shown in forms grotesque and eccentric, yet in a firm realization of the invisible. Jud. xvi. 28, Κύριε, μνήσθητί μου (μν. δή μου Β) και ενίσχυσόν με κ.τ.λ.

 $\Delta av\epsilon(\delta \tau \epsilon]$  Is  $\tau \epsilon$  and or both? I think the former, coupling this new group to the (practically though not expressly connected) group of four preceding.

καὶ Σαμουήλ] Placed after David, to bring him into closer connexion with the next named καὶ τῶν προφητῶν, whose representative head he was. Acts iii. 24, καὶ πάντες δὲ οἱ προφῆται ἀπὸ Σαμουήλ καὶ τῶν καθεξῆς ὅσοι ἐλάλησαν κ.τ.λ. The term προφήτης is applied earlier, even to Abraham (Gen. xx. 7, ὅτι προφήτης ἐστί, καὶ προσεύξεται περὶ σοῦ κ.τ.λ.), as well as to Moses (Deut. xxxiv. 10, καὶ ούκ ανέστη έτι προφήτης έν Ισ- $\rho a \eta \lambda \omega s M \omega v \sigma \eta s$ ), and to the anonymous messenger of Jud. vi 8 (ανδρα προφήτην). But with Samuel began the order of prophets distinctively so named. See I Sam, iii. 20, Kai Eyrworar πας Ισραήλ από Δάν και έως Βηρσαβεε ότι πιστός Σαμουήλ eis προφήτην τῷ Κυρίω. Acts xiii. 20, και μετά ταῦτα έδωκεν κριτάς έως Σαμουήλ προφήτου. For the word  $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau a$ , see note on i. 1, tois mpophytaus, especially the words, 'representatives of God to their generation.' For the catalogue of exploits which here follows requires this amplitude of the word  $\pi \rho o \phi \eta \tau a to$ justify it.

33. κατηγωνίσαντο] The word is found nowhere else in the Septuagint or New Testament. Polybius is quoted for it. To wrestle down, to subdue by conflict or contest, is its obvious meaning.

βασιλείας] Whether in the original or later conquests of Israel.

ήργάσαντο δικαιοσύνην] The phrase seems vague and general in an enumeration of exploits. But perhaps it may be introduced as a memento of what is the exploit of faith, the subjugation of sin, a holy life. Acts x. 35, αλλ' ἐν παντὶ ἐθνει ὁ φοβούμενος αὐτὸν καὶ ἐργαζόμενος δικαιοσύνην δεκτὸς αὐτῷ ἐστίν.

ἐπέτυχον ἐπαγγελιῶν] Obtained promises. The reference is to those who by prayer or intercession won from God, for themselves or for their country, special particulars of blessing. Examples of both kinds may be found in the life of Hezekiah (2 Kings xix. 15, &c. xx. 2, &c.).

έφραξαν στ. λ.] Dan. vi. 22, ό Θεός μου ἀπέστειλε τὸν ἀγγελον αὐτοῦ, καὶ ἐνέφραξε τὰ στόματα τῶν λεόντων. For φράττειν, and the compound (commoner in the Septuagint) ἐμφράττειν, with στόμα, see also Job v. 16. Psalm lxiii. 11. cvii. 42, καὶ πῶσα ἀνομία ἐμφράξει στόμα αὐτῆs. Rom. iii. 19, ἶνα πῶν στόμα φραγῷ. 2 Macc. xiv. 36.

34. ἐσβεσαν δ. π.] Dan.
iii. The expression δύναμιν πυρος (instead of πῦρ) is well illustrated by the particulars of Dan. iii. 26 (94 B), οὐκ ἐκυρίευσε (ήψατο B) τὸ πῦρ τοῦ σώματος αὐτῶν, καὶ ἡ θρὶξ τῆς κεφαλῆς αὐτῶν οὐκ ἐφλογίσθη (καὶ aἰ τρίχες αὐτῶν οὐ κατε-κάησαν B)...καὶ ὀσμὴ πυρὸς οὐκ (οὐδὲ ὀσμὴ τοῦ πυρὸς B) ἦν ἐν αὐτοῖς.

έφυγον στ. μαχ.] (1) Illustrations of this clause might be found in many of the biographies of the Old Testament, such as those of David, of Elijah, of Elisha, of Jeremiah, &c. (2) The plural of  $\sigma \tau \delta \mu a$ is extremely rare. The passage above quoted from Dan. vi. 22, is perhaps the only instance of it in the Greek Bible, and there the accompanying plural λεόν- $\tau \omega \nu$  necessitates it. Here, with the singular  $\mu a \chi a i \rho \eta s$ , it is most unexpected. (3) The phrase στόμα μαχαίρας occurs in Gen. xxxiv. 26. Deut. xiii. 15. Josh. xix. 47. Job i. 15. Jer. xxi. 7. Equivalent phrases are  $\sigma \tau \dot{o}$ μα poupaías and στόμα ξίφους. See notes on  $\mu \dot{a} \chi a \mu \rho a \nu$  and  $\delta \dot{i}$ στομον, iv. 12.

έδυναμώθησαν The compound evouvapour, formed from a late adjective evolvanos (like εγκρατής), in possession of power, is commoner in the New Testament (Acts ix. 22. Rom. iv. Eph. vi. 10. Phil. iv. 20. 1 Tim. i. 12. 2 Tim. ii. 13. 1. iv. 17) than the simple Suraμοῦν. The latter (the reading here of the revised text) occurs besides only in Col. i. 11, ev πάση δυνάμει δυναμούμενοι κατα το κράτος της δόξης αυτού. In the Septuagint, it is found in Psalm lxviii. 28, δυνάμωσον, ό Θεός, τοῦτο ὅ κατηρτίσω ἐν ἡμῦν. Eccles. x. 10. Dan. ix. 27.

έδυν. ἀπό ἀσθενείας] There may be some special references here, as, for example, to the history of Samson (Jud. xvii. 28), or of Hezekiah (2 Kings xx. 5, ήκουσα τής προσευχής σου...ἰδοὺ ἰάσομαί σε). But the words, like the clause ήργάσαντο δικαιοσύνην above, may be quite general, exemplified in every instance of physical or spiritual enabling.

έγενήθησαν] Came to be. Showed themselves. For the form, see note on iv. 3, γενηθέντων.

ισχυροί From ισχύς (έχω,  $i\sigma_{X}\omega$ ), might, the adjective  $i\sigma_{-}$  $\chi \nu \rho \dot{o} \dot{s}$ , (1) beginning with the idea of personal strength, mighty, as here (and Matt. xii. 29. Mark iii. 27. Luke xi. 21, 22), (2) passes into all other applications of the idea of strength, whether (a) in a figurative or spiritual sense (as Matt. iii, 11. Mark i. 7. Luke iii. 16. 1 Cor. iv. 10. x. 22. I John ii. 14), or (b) to things (as in v. 7, μετά κραυγής iσχυράς. vi. 18, ισχυράν παράκλησιν. Luke xv. 14, λιμός ίσχυρά. 2 Cor. x. 10, έπιστολαί βαρείαι καὶ ἰσχυραί. Rev. xix. 6, βροντών ίσχυρών).

35 έλαβον γυναίκες έξ αναστάσεως τους νεκρούς

loχ. ἐν πολέμφ] The exact phrase seems to be found only here. But we have δυνατός ἐν πολέμφ, Psalm xxiv. 8. Jer. xli. (xlviii. B) 16. Ecclus. xlvii. 5.

παρεμβ. έκλ.] The absence of the article enhances the exploit. Whole armies of aliens. Compare Rom. iv. 13, κόσμου, a whole world. xi. 12, 15. 2 Cor. v. 19, κόσμου καταλλάσσων έαυτ $\hat{\omega}$ .

παρεμβολάς From παρεμ-Baller (literally to throw in alongside), to insert or interpose, to include in a class or rank, and hence to draw up in array, and (70 times in the Book of Numbers alone) to encamp, comes the substantive  $\pi a \rho \epsilon \mu$ - $\beta_{0\lambda\eta}$ , used (1) classically for an insertion by the way, whether in the form of parenthesis or digression; and (2) as a drawing up in battle array, and so (a) an army thus drawn up (as here), and (b) an encampment or camp (as xiii. 11, 13, έξω τής παρεμβολής. Rev. xx, 9, εκύκλωσαν την παρεμβολην τών aγίων, and throughout the Pentateuch, &c.), and (c) a fort or castle (Acts xxi. 34, 37. xxii. 24. xxiii. 10, 16, 32).

 $[\epsilon \lambda \lambda vav]$  Of this proper and classical use of  $\kappa \lambda i vav, to make$ to bend or give way, and so to turn or rout, there does not seem to be any other clear example in biblical Greek, except Jer. xlviii. (xxxi. B) 12, ἀποστελῶ αὐτῷ κλίνοντας, καὶ κλινοῦσιν αὐτόν (where the sense of the Hebrew, as given in the Authorized and Revised Versions, seems to be different). In Jud. xx. 42, ἔκλιναν is intransitive.

aλλoτpiwv Aliens, foreign-Isai. i. 7, την χώραν ύμων ers. ένώπιον ύμων άλλότριοι κατεσθίουσιν αυτήν, και ήρημωται κατεστραμμένη υπό λαών αλλοτρίων. Jer. v. 19. Lam. v. 2, KAnpovopia ήμών μετεστράφη άλλοτρίοις, οί olkou njuw Eévois. Ezek. vii. 21. xi. q. xxx. 12. Hos. vii. q. viii. 7. &c. Matt. xvii. 25, 26. In άλλοτρίων we have a comprehensive word for the enemies of Israel all along the sacred history, but it certainly includes the Maccabean struggle, and so prepares for the distinct references to that later period in the verses which follow.

35. έλαβον γυναικές  $(\mathbf{I})$ The impossible reading yuvaikas, which is yet that of the greatest manuscripts, seems to give a salutary warning against an idolatry of authority in questions affecting the text. (2) The reference is clearly to the histories of Elijah, and Elisha. For Zhaßov, see especially I Kings xvii. 23, Kai έδωκεν τη μητρί αυτού. 2 Kings iv. 36, λάβε τον υίον σου. (3) As examples of faith, we may hesitate whether to dwell upon the yuraîxes or upon the two prophets. Probably the latter. And thus the connexion with the main thought of the passage is preserved. By faith Elijah and Elisha gave back to the women of Zarephath and Shunem their dead sons by resurrection.

 $\dot{\epsilon}\xi$  àvaotáo $\epsilon\omega s$ ] Out of (as the issue and product of) a resurrection. Rom. i. 4, toù opurbévtos vioù  $\Theta\epsilon où...\dot{\epsilon}\xi$  àvaotáo $\epsilon\omega s$   $v\epsilon\kappa p\hat{\omega}v$ . In 1 Pet. i. 3, we have  $\delta i$  àvaotáo $\epsilon\omega s$ , another preposition, and another aspect of the transaction. For àváotaois in application to a miraculous restoration from a recent death, compare Acts ix. 41,  $\delta où s$   $\delta \epsilon$  aùt $\hat{\gamma}$   $\chi \epsilon \hat{\iota} \rho a$  avéotno $\epsilon v$ aùt $\eta v$ ,  $\phi \omega v \dot{\eta} \sigma a$   $\delta \epsilon$  toùs ay.  $\kappa$ .  $\tau$ .  $\chi$ . mapéotnos v aùt  $\eta v$   $\xi \tilde{\omega} \sigma av.$

 $i\lambda \lambda oi$   $\delta \epsilon$  We pass from the exploits to the endurances of faith. And the first examples are chosen from the history of the Maccabees, to form a contrast with the resurrections last mentioned.

 $\epsilon \tau \nu \mu \pi a \nu i \sigma \theta \eta \sigma a \nu$ ] The word  $\tau \dot{\nu} \mu \pi a \nu o \nu$  (or τύπανον, from  $\tau \dot{\nu} \pi \tau \omega$ ) has the two senses of (1) the thing struck, the drum, (2) the thing which strikes, the drum-stick. Hence  $\tau \nu \mu \pi a \nu i \zeta \epsilon \nu$ may be either to strike with cudgel or club, to beat to death (like the classical arorugaví- $\zeta_{\epsilon\nu}$ ), or to stretch upon a drum or wheel for torture, to torture to death. Either sense has been preferred here. The special reference is to the martyrdom of Eleazar in 2 Macc. vi. 18, &c., and to that of the seven brothers in the following chapter. There the expression in vi. 19 and 28 (αθαιρέτως επί το τύμπανον προσήγε κ.τ.λ.) favours the latter of the two ideas. while that of vi. 30  $(\mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \omega \nu \delta \epsilon)$ ταῖς πληγαῖς τελευτῶν) and of vii. Ι (μάστιξι καὶ νευραῖς αἰκιζομένους) might rather suggest the former. On the whole, the rendering of the Authorized and Revised Versions, were tortured, will be retained, especially as the following verse introduces μαστίγων as a new particular.

προσδεξάμενοι] See note on x. 34, προσεδέξασθε. In 2 Macc. vi. 19, the word is avadeξάμενος.

ζην απολύεις, ο δε τοῦ κόσμου βασιλεὺς αποθανόντας ήμας...εἰς αἰώνιον ἀναβίωσιν ζωής ήμας ἀναστήσει κ.τ.λ.

κρείττονος] Better than that ἀνάστασις which brought back the two mothers' sons at Zarephath and Shunem. The contrast is with the ἀναστάσεως of the first clause of the verse.

τύχωσιν] Luke xx. 35, τοῦ αἰῶνος ἐκείνου τυχεῖν καὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως τῆς ἐκ νεκρῶν.

36.  $\tilde{\epsilon}\tau\epsilon\rho\sigma\iota \delta\dot{\epsilon}$ ] This intermixture of  $\tilde{a}\lambda\lambda\sigma_{s}$  and  $\tilde{\epsilon}\tau\epsilon\rho\sigma_{s}$  in a series of clauses recalls Matt. xvi. 14. 1 Cor. xii. 8, 9, 10. Elsewhere the distinction of the two is clear. See note on iv. 8,  $\tilde{a}\lambda\lambda\eta_{s}$ .

ἐμπαιγμῶν] 2 Macc. vii. 7, 10, τὸν δεύτερον ἦγον ἐπὶ τὸν ἐμπαιγμόν...μετὰ δὲ τοῦτον ὅ τρίτος ἐνεπαίζετο. The form ἐμπαιγμὸς occurs in Ezek. xxii. 4, δέδωκά σε εἰς ὄνειδος τοῦς ἔθνεσι, καὶ εἰς ἐμπαιγμὸν πάσαις ταῦς χώραις κ.τ.λ.

μαστίγων] Isai. 1. 6, τον νῶτόν μου δέδωκα εἰς μάστιγας, τὰς δὲ σιαγόνας μου εἰς ῥαπίσματα. 2 Μαcc. vii. 1, 37, μετὰ ἐτασμῶν καὶ μαστίγων κ.τ.λ. Acts xxii. 24, εἶπας μάστιξιν ἀνετάζεσθαι αὐτόν. πειραν έλαβον] Had experience of. See note on verse 29, πειραν λαβόντες.

ëτι δέ] And moreover. A more prolonged and protracted form of suffering. For ετι δε (or τε), see Luke xiv. 26, ετι τε καὶ τὴν ψυχὴν ξαυτοῦ. Acts ii. 26 (from Psalm xvi. 9), ετι δὲ καὶ ἡ σάρξ μου κ.τ.λ. xxi. 28, ετι τε καὶ Ἐλληνας κ.τ.λ.

δεσμών κ. φ.] As Hanani the seer under king Asa (2 Chron. xvi. 10), Micaiah under Ahab (1 Kings xxi. 26, 27), Jeremiah under Zedekiah (Jer. xxxii. 3), &c.

37. ilibáobyoav (1) Of the two forms litaileiv and lito. Boleiv, the former occurs but once (2 Sam. xvi. 6, 13) in the Septuagint, the latter repeatedly (from Exod. viii. 26 onwards). In the New Testament, the two are found equally often; and apparently with no shade of difference of meaning. St Matthew and St Luke use litoboleiv, St John and St Paul (2 Cor. xi. 25) Lubagen, the Acts and this Epistle both. (2) The historical reference is to 2 Chron. xxiv. 21, the stoning of Zechariah the son of Jehoiada between the temple and the altar by the people at the command of king Joash. See Matt. xxiii. 35, where our Lord connects this last recorded event of the kind with the first, the murder of Abel.

ϵπρίσθησαν] An apparent reference to the traditional death of Isaiah under king Manasseh. For the word πρίϵιν (or πρίζειν) and διαπρίϵιν in a like application, see I Chron. XX. 3, καὶ τὸν λαὸν τὸν ἐν αὐτῆ ἐξήνεγκε, καὶ διέπρισε πρίσσι κ.τ.λ. Amos i. 3, ἀνθ ῶν ἔπρίζον πρίσσι σιδηροῖs τὰs ἐν γ. ἐχ. κ.τ.λ. Sus. 59, τὴν ῥομφαίαν ἔχων πρίσαι σε μέσον κ.τ.λ.

 $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \rho a \sigma \theta \eta \sigma a v$  Conjectural readings (such as  $\epsilon \pi \rho \eta \sigma \theta \eta \sigma a \nu$ ) have arisen from a failure to appreciate the incomparable severity of temptation (as such) in the martyrdoms of saints. See, for example, the successive offers made to the sufferers in the two chapters (2 Macc. vi. vii.) referred to in former notes. 'Far beyond any outward indignity or horror of suffering inflicted by man, they were exposed ever and anon to those indeed fiery trials, those frightful alternatives of the first death and the second, into which Satan brings a soul when at some critical moment he presents to it the offer of safety and honour at the price of one word or sign of compliance or compromise. Adore an Emperor's image, call Jesus Anathema, and thou shalt be spared this torture, this cross, this flame.'

έν φόνω μαχαίρης] (1) Like the prophets in Jezebel's persecution. I Kings xviii. 13, ev τῷ ἀποκτείνειν Ἰεζάβελ τους προφήτας Κυρίου. xix. 10, 14, καί τούς προφήτας σου απέκτειναν έν ρομφαία κ.τ.λ. Or like Urijah under Jehoiakim. Jer. xxvi. 23, καί εἰσήγαγον αὐτὸν πρὸς τὸν βασιλέα Ίωακείμ, και επάταξεν αὐτὸν ἐν μαχαίρα κ.τ.λ. (2) For the phrase  $\phi \circ v \psi$  (or  $\epsilon v \phi$ .)  $\mu a$ χαίρας, see Exod. xvii. 13. Num. xxi. 24. Deut. xiii. 15. xx. 13. (3) For aπoθνήσκειν εν (of the particular death died), see, for example, Isai. 1. 2, και aπoθανοῦνται ἐν δίψει. Jer. xi. 22, έν μαχαίρα αποθανοῦνται. xxi. 9, άποθανεῖται ἐν μαχαίρα καὶ ἐν λιμώ καί έν θανάτω. xxxviii. (xlv. B) 2.

 $\pi\epsilon\rho_i\hat{\eta}\lambda\theta\sigma_i$  (I) Of  $\pi\epsilon\rho_i\hat{\epsilon}\rho_{\chi\epsilon\sigma\thetaai}$  without an accusative, and in this (quite classical) sense of going about as a stranger or mendicant, there is perhaps no other instance in the Septuagint or New Testament. The nearest approach to it is Wisd. vi. 17. (2) The aorist sums the life into an act, and so assimilates this to the μηλωταϊς, ἐν αἰγείοις δέρμασιν, ὑστερούμενοι, 38 θλιβόμενοι, κακουχούμενοι· ῶν οὐκ ἦν ἄξιος ὅ κόσμος· ἐπὶ ἐρημίαις πλανώμενοι καὶ ὅρεσιν καὶ σπηλαίοις καὶ ταῖς ὀπαῖς τῆς γῆς.

other clauses, all of which speak of single events.

 $e^{i\nu}$  uηλωταîs] The term μηλωτή is appropriated in the Septuagint to the 'mantle' of Elijah. See 1 Kings xix. 13, 19. 2 Kings ii. 8, 13, 14, καὶ  $\partial \alpha \beta \epsilon$  τήν μηλωτήν 'Ηλιού, ή ἕπεσεν ἐπάνωθεν αὐτοῦ κ.τ.λ.

έν αἰγείοις] The darker and rougher material, the garb perhaps of mourning and seclusion.

ύστερούμενοι] Destitute. See note on iv. 1, ὑστερηκέναι, and the question there raised as to the voice here. For the sense, see Luke xv. 14, ἦρξατο ὑστερεῖσθαι. 2 Cor. xi. 8, παρών πρὸς ὑμᾶς καὶ ὑστερηθείς. Phil. iv. 12, καὶ περισσεύειν καὶ ὑστερεῖσθαι.

θλιβόμενοι] Afflicted. Only here in this Epistle, and θλίψιs only once (x. 33) likewise. Frequent (both) in St Paul, who however (unexpectedly) makes θλίψιs less severe than στενοχωρία. Rom. ii. 9. viii. 35. The idea of painful pressure (θλίψιs) rises (in στενοχωρία) into that of agonizing compression. See 2 Cor. iv. 8, θλιβόμενοι (pressed) åλλ' où στενοχωρούμενοι (crushed).

Kakovxovµevoi] Maltreated.

See note on verse 25, ourkakovxeiobai.

38.  $\vec{\omega} \nu$  oùk  $\vec{\eta} \nu$ ] A magnificent parenthesis. The world says,  $alp\epsilon \ an \delta \ r \eta s \ \gamma \eta s \ r \delta \nu \ r \sigma \iota \delta \tilde{\nu} \tau \sigma \nu$ , où  $\gamma a \rho \ \kappa a \theta \eta \kappa \epsilon \nu \ a \upsilon \tau \delta \nu \ \zeta \eta \nu$ (Acts xxii, 22). Heaven reverses this estimate, and says,  $\vec{\omega} \nu \ o \upsilon \kappa \ \delta \xi \iota o s \ \delta \ \kappa \delta \sigma \mu o s$ .

eni ipnuíais πλav.] Wandering over deserts. Like David, like Elijah, like the hundred prophets saved by Obadiah from Jezebel, like the Baptist, &c. (1) The reading  $i\pi i$  (with a verb of motion roving over, from one to another) is not easy to confirm by exactly parallel passages. Perhaps Rev. xxii, 16, μαρτυρήσαι ύμιν ταυτα έπι rais errangiaus (itself a revised reading), may be an approach to it. (2) The first meaning of ipypuía is probably solitude, in the sense of solitariness. Its plural (though not without classical authority) seems to be found here only in the New Testament or Septuagint. Even that of ionuos (as a substantive) is peculiar in the New Testament to St Luke (i. 80. v. 16. viii. 29), but is found in the Septuagint in Isai. v. 17. lviii. 12. Ezek. xiii. 4. &c. (3) The literal sense of  $\pi\lambda a v \hat{a}\sigma \theta a \iota$  is far rarer in Scripture than the figurative. But see Matt. xviii. 12, 13. Also Exod. xiv. 3. Deut. xxii. 1. Isai. xiii. 14. &c. See note on iii. 10,  $\pi\lambda a v \hat{\omega} \tau a \iota$ .

καὶ σπηλαίοις] Jud. vi. 2, ἐν τοῦς ὅρεσι καὶ τοῦς σπηλαίοις. 1 Sam. xiii. 6, καὶ ἐκρύβη ὁ λαὸς ἐν τοῦς σπηλαίοις κ.τ.λ. 1 Kings xviii. 4, 13, ἐν τῷ τύπτειν Ἰεζάβελ τοὺς προφήτας Κυρίου...ἔκρυψεν αὐτοὺς κατὰ πεντήκοντα ἐν σπηλαίω κ.τ.λ. xix. 9. &c.

кай таїз отаїз] The clefts, chinks, fissures, of the land or earth. Obad. 3, κατασκηνοῦντα έν ταις όπαις των πετρών. Also Exod. xxxiii. 22,  $\theta \eta \sigma \omega \sigma \epsilon \epsilon is$ όπην της πέτρας. Elsewhere όπή (from  $\delta \psi$ ,  $\delta \pi \omega \pi a$ ) is used for (1) the place from which a spring issues (James iii. 11); (2) a hole in a door (Song v. 5) or wall (Ezek. viii. 7); (3) the socket of the eye (Zech. xiv. 12). The definite article here may be either generic (all the) or characteristic (the well-known features of Palestine).

39. Kal οῦτοι πάντες] And all these. Saints of former dispensations. A retrospect of the whole chapter, and of the sacred history of all former times.

μαρτυρηθέντες] Having had the testimony of God borne to them in Scripture. See note on verse 2.

διὰ τῆς πίστεως] It might have been διὰ τὴν πίστεν. But the form of expression makes faith, not the cause, but the *in*strument, of the attestations. By means of their faith. In verse 2, we have a third form of expression (iv). In their faith lay (or was contained) their attestation.

ouk ekopúsavto] In vi. 12, it is said of them that they already inherit the promises. And in vi. 15 (of one of them), that ho ἐπέτυχεν τῆς ἐπαγγελίας. Here that they our εκομίσαντο την  $\epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda i a \nu$ . The individual rest is won, but the full glory waits for the advent and the resurrection. It is in this last sense that  $\tau \eta \nu \epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda i a \nu$  is here used. The promise of promises. The fulfilment of all promise in what is elsewhere called the glory that shall be revealed. See Rom. viii. 18. 1 Pet. v. 1. Compare Rom. viii. 11. For έκομίσαντο, see note on x. 36, κομίσησθε.

40.  $\tau o\hat{v} \otimes eo\hat{v} \pi \epsilon \rho i \dot{\eta} \mu \hat{v} v$ ] Reason for the postponement of the complete blessedness of earlier saints. God defers their consummation, that He may not shut us out. That is the main thought. But a secondary thought lies in the  $\kappa \rho \epsilon \tau \tau \tau \tau$ . He gives us a present possession, in the Gospel of Christ, superior to that which was theirs in life. They hoped we both hope and have.

περὶ ἡμῶν] Concerning us. It might have been ὑπέρ. But the περὶ implies what ὑπὲρ says. See, for example, xiii. 18, προσεύχεσθε περὶ ἡμῶν. Or the thrice repeated περὶ of v. 3.

κρείττόν τι] See the first note on this verse. It is as if it were, God having provided something for us also—yes, and that a better thing. Matt. xiii. 17. Luke x. 24. The superiority of the Gospel as a dispensation to live under forces itself upon mention, though the argument was complete without it.

προβλεψαμένου] (1) The middle voice of προβλέπειν is found only here. Even the active occurs only in Psalm xxxvii. 13, προβλέπει ὅτι ηξει ή ήμέρα αὐτοῦ. In βλέπειν and its compounds (except perhaps περιβλέπειν) the middle voice is classical only in the future. (2) Is προβλέπειν here to provide or simply to foresee? The rarity of its use makes it difficult to decide this. And the one sense almost slips into the other. iva  $\mu \eta$ ] That without us they should not be consummated. As would have been the case if the great  $\sigma v \tau \epsilon \lambda \epsilon u$  had come when they were ready for it. For another aspect of the postponement, see 2 Pet. iii. 9, où  $\beta pa\delta \epsilon \nu \epsilon u$  Kúpios  $\tau \eta s \epsilon \pi a \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda t a spo \theta v \mu \epsilon t is v \mu a s.$

χωρίς ήμῶν] Apart from, in severance from, and so to the exclusion of, us. In this Epistle χωρίς occurs 13 times, beginning with iv. 15, χωρίς άμαρτίας. St Paul uses it 16 times, the other Scripture writers 12 times in all. Its proper idea is seen in its contrast with οὐ μετά in John xx. 7.

τελειωθώσιν] See note on ii. 10, τελειώσαι. In xii. 23, the same term is applied to the blessedness of the intermediate state between death and resurrection. Here it is the description of the resurrection glory.

XII. I. Toryapow Kal yµɛîs] An animated application of the great chapter of faith. These witnesses and martyrs of the past have not gone into nothingness. They still are, and are for us. We now fill the great arena, with a definite race to run: but they still surround us, in the living memory of the faith in which they found victory, XII. I.

κείμενον ήμιν νέφος μαρτύρων, όγκον αποθέμενοι and we must look, as they looked, to its author and its finisher.

 $\tau oi \gamma a \rho o \hat{v}$ ] A curious (but quite classical) confluence of apparently conflicting particles: for surely then; as if the precept which follows were both cause and consequence; at once a reason for, and an inference from, dwelling upon those great examples which the Church before Christ has left to the Church after Christ of the faith in which the two are one. The only other occurrence of  $\tau oi \gamma a \rho \hat{v} \hat{v}$  in Scripture is in I Thess. iv. I.

καὶ ἡμεῖς] Literally, we also. But it is not exactly we as well as they, which would involve a confusion. It is, We on our part, in mental contrast with they on theirs. Compare, for example, Eph. i. 15, διὰ τοῦτο κάγώ. Col. i. 9, διὰ τοῦτο καὶ ἡμεῖς. I Thess. ii. 13.

τοσοῦτον] So numerous. We might have expected the rarer τηλικοῦτον (see note on ii. 3, τηλικαύτης), but τοσοῦτον is in fact quite equally suitable.

περικείμενον ήμῖν] Lying closely around us. The dative as with περιβάλλειν (Luke xix. 43, περιβαλοῦσιν [where, however, some read παρεμβαλοῦσιν] οἱ ἐχθροί σου χάρακά σοι), περιτιθέναι (Matt. xxi. 33. xxvii. 28, 48,  $\chi \lambda a \mu i \delta a \kappa$ .  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \epsilon \theta \eta \kappa a \nu$ ait  $\phi \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ . &c.), &c. See note on  $\nabla$ . 2,  $\pi \epsilon \rho i \kappa \epsilon i \tau a i$ .

 $v\epsilon\phi\sigma$ ] (1) Only here in the New Testament. Used more than 20 times in the Septuagint, of which 14 are in the Book of Job. (2) The figure is the classical one ( $v\epsilon\phi\sigma\sigma$  avθρώπων,  $\pi\epsilon\zeta\omega\nu$ , &c.). It seems to have here the two ideas, of density and of elevation.

μαρτύρων] Witnesses. Not in the loose sense of witnesses (spectators) of our dywv, but in the strict meaning of those who have borne testimony to the faith (often even to martyrdom) in their own generation. It is a great word in the Acts. For example, xxii. 15, 20, ἔση μάρτυς αὐτῷ πρὸς πάντας ἀνθρώπους...τὸ αἶμα Στεφάνου τοῦ μάρτυρός σου. xxvi. 16, υπηρέτην και μάρτυρα ων τε eides K.T.A. Add Rev. ii. 13, 'Αντίπας ο μάρτυς μου ο πιστός. xi. 3. xvii. 6, καὶ ἐκ τοῦ αἴματος τών μαρτύρων Ίησοῦ.

ογκον ἀποθέμενοι π.] Laying aside all cumbrance. (1) This clause belongs to the apodosis of the sentence, τρέχωμεν κ.τ.λ. Let us lay aside...and run, &c. (2) The word ὄγκος occurs only here in the New Testament or Septuagint. In derivation (ἐνεγκεῖν) and in some of its uses it is curiously like φόρτος (φέρειν). As φόρτος (φορτικός) degenerates into vulgarity, so ὅγκος

into pretension and bombast. But its first meaning is bulk (size and weight), and so here the superfluous flesh which must be got rid of beforehand by the runner. (3) The exhortation in  $a\pi \theta \epsilon \mu \epsilon \nu \sigma \iota$  is to training and discipline as for an athletic contest. See I Cor. ix. 25. I Tim. iv. 7. (4) But the tense (aorist) adds urgency and promptitude to the charge. Do it, and have done with it. (5) The verb  $a\pi \sigma \tau i\theta \epsilon \sigma \theta a \mu$ , properly applied to laying aside garments (Acts vii. 58), and thence to getting rid of evil habit in all shapes and forms (Rom. xiii. 12. Eph. iv. 22, 25. Col. iii. 8. James i. 21. I Pet. ii. I), is here carried one step further, to the getting rid of one's own size and weight by severe self-discipline. We may interpret from Luke xxi. 34, προσέχετε δε εαυτοίς μή ποτε βαρηθώσιν αι καρδίαι ύμων κ.τ.λ.

καὶ τὴν εἰπερίστατον άμ.] (1) The reference is not to one particular sin as specially dangerous, but to sin itself. The article is generic. All sin. (2) The word εἰπερίστατος (found only here) has something of a passive form. Thus στατός is properly set or placed, and yet passes into standing. Thus too περίστατος is sometimes a strict passive, surrounded, but is also used as amiddle, standing round. So it is with the double compound before us. Easily set or placed round becomes easily standing round or surrounding. And the rendering of the Authorized Version, the sin which doth so easily beset us, catches the point of the expression admirably until it is perverted into the besetting sin as something different from the whole body of sin. (3) Whether the figure is that of a surrounding crowd, breaking in upon the open course of the runner, or that of an enveloping garment, entangling and impeding the free use of his limbs, may be left doubtful. The latter seems the simpler and more natural.

δι υπομονής The proper meaning of Sia is through. First with a genitive. And (1) in reference to space: Rom. xv. 28, απελεύσομαι δι' ύμων είς Σπανίαν. I Cor. x. I, δια της θαλάσσης διήλθον. &c. (2) In reference to instrumentality : Rom. iii. 20, δια γαρ νόμου επίyrworis apaprias. I Cor. xi. 12, ούτως και ο ανήρ δια της γυναικός. &c. (3) In reference to time: (a) during, as in ii. 15, Sua παντός τοῦ ζην. &c.; (b) in the course of, Acts v. 19, Sia vuktos ηνοιξεν τας θύρας της φυλακής. &c.; (c) at an interval of (passing through and out of), Gal. ii. I, έπειτα δια δεκατεσσαρων έτων πάλιν ανέβην είς Ίεροσό- $\lambda v \mu a$ . &c. (4) In reference to circumstance (passing through, and so amidst or in a state of. with): as here, and Rom. viii. 25, δι υπομονής απεκδεχόμεθα. 2 Cor. ii. 4, έγραψα υμίν δια πολλών δακρύων. The use with an accusative is less complicated. It is twofold: (1) because of, Rom. xiv. 15, el yap δια βρώμα ο άδελφός σου λυπείται. Χν. 15, δια την χάριν την δοθεισάν μοι υπό του Θεού. &c.; (2) for the sake of, Rom. iv. 23, 24, 25, οὐκ ἐγράφη δὲ δι αυτόν μόνον...άλλά και δι ήμας κ.τ.λ. See also note on ii. 10, δι öν...δι ού.

μονής τρέχωμεν τον προκείμενον ήμιν άγωνα,

 $\tau \rho \epsilon \chi \omega \mu \epsilon v$  Thus the general word aywv, which elsewhere is left in its vagueness, with only aγωνίζεσθαι (as in 1 Tim. vi. 12, αγωνίζου τον καλον αγώνα. 2 Tim. iv. 7, τον καλον αγώνα ηγώνισμαι) or έχειν (Col. ii. I, ήλίκον ἀγώνα ἔχω) before it, is here defined into the foot-race, St Paul's favourite illustration. See I Cor. ix. 24, 26, oi iv σταδίφ τρέχοντες πάντες μέν τρέχουσιν κ.τ.λ. Gal. ii. 2, μή πως είς κενόν τρέχω ή έδραμον. v. 7. Phil. ii. 16, or our els revor έδραμον κ.τ.λ. 2 Tim. iv. 7, τον δρόμον τετέλεκα.

τον προκείμενον] Which lies forth (full in view) for us (as our prospect and portion). The dative is expressed here, as in νerse 2, ἀντὶ τῆς προκειμένης αὐτῷ χαρᾶς. Exod. x. 10. Lev. xxiv. 7, εἰς ἀνάμνησιν προκείμενα τῷ Κυρίῳ. Elsewhere it is without a case, as in vi. 18, κρατῆσαι τῆς προκειμένης ἐλπίδος. Num. iv. 7. Esth. i. 8.

The first sense of aγŵva]  $a_{\gamma} \omega_{\gamma}$  is apparently (1) assembly (connected perhaps with ayew to hold or celebrate a festival), especially an assembly for athletic contests. Hence (2) the arena, or the contest itself. And so (3) finally, a conflict of any kind, whether an action at law, or any bodily, mental, or spiritual struggle. In the New Testament it is used only here and by St Paul. See Phil. i. I Thess. ii. 2. I Tim. vi. 30. 12. 2 Tim. iv. 7. In Col. ii. 1, he applies it to wrestling in prayer (possibly with allusion to Gen. xxxii. 24, interpreted by Hos. xii. 4), ήλίκον αγώνα έχω, followed by  $i\nu a$  παρακληθώσιν αί καρδίαι αὐτῶν. Here the application is to the Christian life generally, as a constant struggle (notice the tense of  $\tau \rho \epsilon_{\chi \omega \mu \epsilon \nu}$ , whatever its particular circumstances. In the Septuagint, dyw occurs twice in Isai. vii. 13, in the phrase  $dy \hat{\omega} v a$  (for the classical  $\pi \rho a \gamma$ ματα) παρέχειν τινί. Also in Wisd. iv. 2. X. 12, dyŵra lozvρον έβράβευσεν αύτφ. And in several passages of 2 Macc.;

2 άφορῶντες εἰς τὸν τῆς πίστεως ἀρχηγὸν καὶ τελειωτὴν Ἱησοῦν, ὅς ἀντὶ τῆς προκειμένης αὐτῷ

for example, xiv. 43, δια την του αγώνος σπουδήν.

αφορῶντες] Looking earnestly (away from all else). The verb ἀφορῶν occurs only here in Scripture. But see note on xi.

eis  $\tau \circ r$  The primary thought may be the example ( $\delta s \ a v \tau i \ \tau \eta s$  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ ), but the living sympathy and grace are also in full view. See ii. 18. iv. 14-16.

 $\tau \eta s \pi i \sigma \tau \epsilon \omega s$  Is  $\pi i \sigma \tau i s$  here (as everywhere else in this Epistle) the principle (grace) of faith? Or is it (as so often in St Paul, in such passages as Gal. iii. 23, 24, προ του δέ έλθείν την πίστιν...έλθούσης δέ της  $\pi i\sigma \tau \epsilon \omega s.$  de.) the system (revelation) of faith, that is, the Gospel? Something will depend upon the interpretation of the apyryo's rai releworn's. See note on ii. 10, where the preference is given to author (originator) as the meaning of apyryo's both there and here. But even thus the alternative is possible. The originator and perfecter of our faith may mean either of our individual faith (as its inspirer from first to last), or of the faith (as the author from first to last of the Gospel system). On the whole, I incline to the former view, as best harmonizing with the uniform use of  $\pi i \sigma \tau v_s$  in the Epistle before us. The originator and perfecter of our faith, as its first inspirer and eventual completer in the individual Christian.

τελειωτήν] Consummator. The word is found only here. It seems to round the circle of cognate words (τέλειος, τελειότης, τελειοῦν, τελείωσις) characteristic of this Epistle.

'I $\eta\sigma\sigma\sigma\nu$ ] The tenderer and more personal name. Its position in the sentence is like that in ii. 9 and iii. 1, in both of which places (as here) it stands late and alone.

avrí] From the first sense of avti, over against, opposite to (in place), comes that of set against as an equivalent, (1) in exchange, return, or compensation for, (2) as the price or purchase of, (3) instead of, to serve as, (4) on account of, because of. For example, (1) Matt. v. 38, οφθαλμόν αντί οφθαλμού κ.τ.λ. Rom. xii, 17, како̀ν αντί κακοῦ. 1 Thess. v. 15. 1 Pet. iii. 9. (2) Matt. xx. 28, λύτρον αντί Mark x, 45. Heb. πολλών, xii. 16. προκειμένης] See note on verse 1, τον προκείμενον.

xapas] Primarily that of Isai. III. 11, He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied, &c. For xapà in connexion with Christ, see Matt. XXV. 21, 23, eis the xapar τοῦ κυρίου σου. John xv. 11, ΐνα ή χαρὰ ή ἐμή ἐν ὑμῖν ή. χνίι. 13, ίνα έχωσιν την χαράν την έμην πεπληρωμένην έν έαυroîs. We see the reflexion of this unselfish joy in Acts xi. 23. 1 Thess. ii. 19, 20. iii. 9. 2 John 4. 3 John 3, 4, εχάρην  $\gamma a \rho \lambda i a \nu \kappa.\tau.\lambda$ , &c.

ύπέμεινεν] See note on x. 32, ύπεμείνατε.

σταυρόν] Without the article, to emphasize the quality (such a thing as), and so to enhance the greatness of the self-abnegation. Compare Phil. ii. 18, μέχρι θανάτου, θανάτου δὲ σταυροῦ.

alozúvns karappovnoas] A. grand paradox. Despising disgrace, that most formidable of terrors to fallen man. For al- $\sigma_{\chi}$   $\dot{\nu}\nu\eta$ , (1) in its active sense (alox viver), that of putting to shame, see, for example, Psalm lxxxix. 45, κατέχεας αὐτοῦ aỉσχύνην. Dan. xii. 2, εγερθήσονται (Α, έξεγερθήσονται Β)...είς ονειδισμον και είς αισχύνην αιώνιον. &c. (2) In the middle sense (ai- $\sigma_{\chi}$   $\dot{\nu}\epsilon\sigma\theta a \iota$ ), that of feeling shame, Jer. viii. 12 (omit B), Kaiye alσχύνη οὐκ ἠσχύνθησαν, καίγε ἐντραπήναι ούκ έγνωσαν. Luke xiv. 9. &c. καταφρονήσας] (1) The tense expresses a single and decisive act of despising. Like the aorists of xi. 25, 26, έλόμενος ... ήγησάμενος. (2) For καταφρονείν, to think down upon, to think slightingly of, see Prov. xix. 16, ο δε καταφρονών τών έαυτοῦ όδῶν ἀπολεῖται. Matt. vi. 24, ένος άνθέξεται και τοῦ έτέρου καταφρονήσει. xviii. 10, δράτε μή καταφρονήσητε ένος των μικρών τούτων. Luke xvi. 13. Rom. ii. 4. 1 Cor. xi. 22. τ Tim. iv. 12. vi. 2. 2 Pet. ii. 10.  $\epsilon \nu \delta \epsilon \epsilon i \hat{a} \tau \epsilon$ ] See notes on i. 3. viii. 1.

κεκάθικεν] Elsewhere  $\epsilon$ κάθισεν. The perfect adds the thought of permanent consequences.

for the exhortation, &' vnoμονής τρέχωμεν κ.τ.λ. The word avaloyi toobal (only found here in the New Testament or Septuagint) is (1) to count (reckon or sum) up, as a number of particulars, (2) to consider a subject analytically, (3) to re-(though this sense consider seems to be an inference from the noun avaloyiopos). The peculiarity here is the accusative of the person. Review Him, think Him over, as by an enumeration of His acts or an analysis of His attributes.

τοιαύτην] (1) Such as we all know of. Or (2) such as that above described (σταυρόν, αἰσχύνης). But the application of ἀντιλογία to such an act as crucifixion seems scarcely natural. See note on ἀντιλογίαν below.

ύπο] At the hands of. Depending upon υπομεμενηκότα. Like πάσχειν υπ' αυτών, Matt. xvii. 12. Mark v. 26. 1 Thess. ii. 14. Add 2 Cor. xi. 24, υπό Ίουδαίων...ἕλαβον.

 $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu \ \dot{a} \mu$ .] The article suggests that all sinners (of whatever race or time) conspired, as it were, by representation, in the ἀντιλογία. For ol ἀμαρτωλοί, see vii. 26, κεχωρισμένος ἀπὸ τῶν ἀμαρτωλῶν. Luke vi. 32, 33. And for the idea of a joint agency in rejecting and crucifying Christ, compare Matt. xxvi. 45. Mark xiv. 41, παραδίδοται ὁ vlòs τοῦ ἀνθρώπου εἰς τὰς χείρας τῶν ἀμαρτωλῶν. Luke xxiv. 7. Acts ii. 23, διὰ χειρὸς ἀνόμων (Gentiles) προσπήξαντες ἀνείλατε.

eis éautous Or eis éautor. Sinners against themselves. Or, avtilogía against Himself. The authorities are divided between the plural and the singular. The plural (which is the reading of the Sinaitic manuscript and the Latin version) is the more difficult. The key to it is found in Num, xvi. 37, Ta πυρεία των αμαρτωλών τούτων έν rais yvyais avrav, the censers of these sinners in the matter of (these men who have sinned at the cost of) their own lives or souls. (The same history of Korah is apparently referred to, and loosely quoted from, in 2 Tim. ii. 19: see Num. xvi. 5, 26.)

ἀντιλογίαν] Gainsaying. But the word is stronger in use than its literal rendering would imply. This is seen also in the verb (ἀντιλέγειν). John xix, 22, πας ό βασιλέα έαυτον ποιών αντιλέγει τῷ Καίσαρι. Contradiction passes on into rebellion. See Jude 11, καὶ τῷ ἀντιλογία τοῦ Κορὲ ἀπώλοντο (a special application of ἀντιλογία which gives some confirmation to the reading ἑαυτοὺς in this passage, involving a reference to the history of Korah). See note on vi. 16, ἀντιλογίας.

κάμητε] Job x. 1, κάμνω (A, κάμνων B) τ $\hat{\eta}$  ψυχ $\hat{\eta}$  μου. Elsewhere (in the Septuagint and New Testament) only of bodily sickness. James v. 15. Wisd. xv. 9.

ταîs ψυχαîs] The above quotation (Job x. I) might suggest taking this with κάμητε. But the rhythm of the sentence points rather to connecting it with ἐκλυόμενοι. The dative is that of the part suffering.

čκλυόμενοι] From the active senses of čκλύειν, (1) to unloose (Gen. XXVii. 40, čσται δὲ ἡνίκα ἐἀν καθέλης καὶ ἐκλύσης τὸν ζυγὸν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τοῦ τραχήλου σου), and so (2) to relax or slacken (Josh. X. 6, μὴ ἐκλύσης τὰς χεῦράς σου ἀπὸ τῶν παίδων σου), comes, by a transition marked in Gen. Xlix. 24, ἐξελύθη τὰ νεῦρα βραχιόνων χειρῶν (Α, χειρὸς B) αὐτῶν, the constant use of the passive in the Septuagint and New Testament, to be faint or spiritless; as, for example, in 1 Sam. xiv. 28, καὶ ἐξελύθη ὁ λαός. 2 Sam. xvi. 2, καὶ ὁ οἶνος πιεῖν τοῖς ἐκλελυμένοις ἐν τῇ ἐρήμφ. 1 Kings xx. (xxi. B) 43, καὶ ἀπῆλθεν ὁ βασιλεὺς Ἰσραὴλ πρὸς οἶκον αὐτοῦ συγκεχυμένος καὶ ἐκλελυμένος. &c. Matt. xv. 32. Mark viii. 3. Gal. vi. 9, θερίσομεν μὴ ἐκλυόμενοι.

4.  $o\bar{v}\pi\omega$ ] In contrast with Him who endured the cross. Your imitation of Christ has at all events not yet reached the point of martyrdom. Think nothing of it till then. For  $o\bar{v}\pi\omega$ , see note on ii. 8.

μέχρις αίματος] See 2 Macc. xiii. 14, γενναίως ἀγωνίσασθαι μέχρι θανάτου περὶ νόμων, (περὶ B) ἱεροῦ, πόλεως, πατρίδος, πολιτείας. For μέχρι, see iii. 6, 14. ix. 10. Also note on ἅχρι, iv. 12.

αίματος] Matt. xxiii. 35, από τοῦ αίματος *Αβελ τοῦ δικαίου ἔως τοῦ αίματος Ζαχαρίου κ.τ.λ.

άντικατέστητε] (1) As in verse 3 ταῖs ψυχαῖs ὑμῶν, so here πρòs τὴν ἁμαρτίαν seems to hang doubtfully between two verbs, wanted by each. But again the rhythm decides in favour of the second. The antagonist is not named with the former verb. (In this respect compare the ἀντιδιατιθεμένουs of 2 Tim. ii. 25.) Not yet has your resistance gone to the length of martyrdom in your contest with sin. (2) The aorist sums the past life into a single act. See note on  $\pi\epsilon\rho_i\eta\lambda\theta\sigma$ , xi. 37. No part of the verb  $d\nu\tau\kappa\alpha\theta\sigma\tau\alpha'\alpha\alpha$ occurs elsewhere in the New Testament. But see Deut. xxxi. 21, καὶ  $d\nu\tau\iota\kappa\alpha\tau\alpha\sigma\tau\eta'\sigma\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota$   $\eta'$   $d\delta\eta'$  $a\upsilon\tau\eta$  κατὰ πρόσωπον  $a\upsilon\tau\omega\nu$  (omit B) μαρτυροῦσα.

άνταγωνιζόμενοι] A classical word, found only here in the Septuagint or New Testament.

διαλέγεται] The παράκλησις is personified. It discourses (converses) with you as with sons. The persuasive tone of Scripture is the point. For Sua- $\lambda \epsilon_{\gamma \epsilon \sigma} \theta_{a \iota}$  (absolutely, or with  $\tau_{\iota}$ οr περί τινος, τινί or πρός τινα), specially common in the Acts (where it occurs 10 times out of 13 in the New Testament), see Exod. vi. 27, obroi clow of διαλεγόμενοι πρός Φαραώ βασιλέα Αιγύπτου...αύτος Ααρών και Μωvons. Isai, lxiii, I, iyu diaλέγομαι δικαιοσύνην κ.τ.λ. Mark ix. 34, τί έν τη όδω διελογίζεσθε;

...πρὸς ἀλλήλους γὰρ διελ έχθησαν ἐν τῆ ὅδῷ τίς μείζων. Acts xvii. 2, 17. xviii. 4, 19. xix. 8, 9. xx. 7, 9. xxiv. 12, 25, διαλεγομένου δὲ αὐτοῦ περὶ δικαιοσύνης κ.τ.λ. Jude 9.

 $\mu ov$  The author of the Book is of course the direct speaker (Prov. i. 1. iv. 1. &c.). But the Epistle bids us recognize in his voice that of God Himself.

ολιγώρει] Again a classical word (ολίγωρος, ολιγωρία, ολιγωρεῖν, from öρα, care) found only here in the Septuagint or New Testament. Be not careless of. Think not slightingly of. It is a warning against losing sight of the religious aspect of affliction, its divine origin, action, and purpose.

 $\pi a \iota \delta \epsilon las$ ] The word is coextensive with education. But of the two parts of education, instruction and discipline,  $\pi a \iota \delta \epsilon \iota a$ (in the biblical language) most often, though not exclusively (see Acts vii. 22. xxii. 3).

ύπ' αὐτοῦ ἐλεγχόμενος· ὃν γὰρ ἀγαπῷ Κύ- 6 ριος παιδεύει, μαστιγοῖ δὲ πάντα υἱὸν ὃν means the latter. See I Kings xii. 11, ό πατήρ μου επαίδευσεν ύμας έν μάστιξιν, έγω δε παιδεύσω ύμας έν σκορπίοις (A, varied Psalm cxviii. 18, maiin B). δεύων επαίδευσε με ο Κύριος, καί τῷ θανάτω ου παρέδωκέ με. Jer. ii. 30, μάτην ἐπάταξα τὰ τέκνα ύμων, παιδείαν ούκ έδέξασθε μάχαιρα κατέφαγε τούς προφήτας υμών...καί ουκ έφοβήθητε. Luke xxiii. 16, 22, παιδεύσας οὐν αὐτὸν απολύσω κ.τ.λ. (where St John in the parallel passage, xix. 1, has έμαστίγωσεν). I Cor. xi. 32, κρινόμενοι δε ύπο του Κυρίου παιδενόμεθα. 2 Cor. vi. 9, ώς παιδευόμενοι καί μη θανατούμενοι. 1 Tim. i. 20. Rev. iii. 19.

μηδὲ ἐκλύου] Nor faint (lose heart) when thou art reproved by Him. The second danger is that of despondency. Conscious of the divine agency, the sufferer is tempted to infer the divine displeasure. For ἐκλύεσθαι, see note on verse 3, ἐκλυόμενοι.

έλεγχόμενος] From the primary sense of testing, putting to the proof, έλέγχειν branches into its use with (I) things and (2) persons. Thus (I) to expose: as in John iii. 20, ούκ ξρχεται προς τὸ φῶς, ἴνα μὴ ἐλεγχθŷ τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ. Eph. v. 11, 13, μὴ συγκοινωνείτε τοῦς ἔργοις τοῦς ἀκάρποις τοῦ σκότους, μᾶλλον δὲ καὶ ἐλέγχετε...τὰ δὲ πάντα ἐλεγχόμενα ύπο του φωτός φανερούται. Wisd. ii. 11, το γαρ ασθενές αχρηστον ελέγχεται. (2) To convict (John viii. 46, τίς έξ υμών ελέγχει με  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ i aµaptías; xvi. 8. James ii. 9) or reprove (Lev. xix. 17, έλεγμῷ έλέγξεις τον πλησίον σου. Prov. ix. 8, έλεγχε σοφόν, καί άγαπήσει σε. Χ. 10, ο δε ελέγχων μετά παρρησίας είρηνοποιεί. Εςclus. xix. 13, &c., έλεγξον φίλον ... έλεγξον τον πλησίον κ.τ.λ. Luke iii. 19. 1 Tim. v. 20. 2 Tim. iv. 2. Tit. i. 13. &c.). Under this last head fall the passages in which, as here, a Divine Person is the reprover. and the reproof is not in word but in act. 2 Chron. xxvi. 20. καὶ γὰρ αὐτὸς ἔσπευσεν ἐξελθεῖν, ότι ήλεγξεν αυτόν Κύριος. Rev. iii. 19, έγω όσους έαν φιλώ ελέγχω και παιδεύω.

6.  $\pi a \iota \delta \epsilon \upsilon \epsilon \iota$ ] See note on verse 5,  $\pi a \iota \delta \epsilon \iota a s$ .

μαστιγοί] Matt. x. 17. xx. 19. xxiii. 34. Mark x. 34. Luke xviii. 33. John xix. 1. For the application of this strong word figuratively to God, see Job xxx. 21, χειρὶ κραταιậ με ἐμαστίγωσας. Psalm lxxxix. 32. Jer. v. 3, ἐμαστίγωσας αὐτούς, καὶ οὐκ ἐπόνεσαν. Another form of μαστιγοῦν is μαστίζειν (Num. xxii. 25. Wisd. v. 11. Acts xxii. 25).

7 παραδέχεται. εἰς παιδείαν ὑπομένετε· ὡς υἰοῖς ὑμῖν προσφέρεται ὁ Θεός· τίς γὰρ υἰὸς ὃν οὐ

mapadéxerai From the sense of receiving along (by way of transmission), as, for example, an office or an inheritance, or, again, a statement as true, or a writing as genuine, or an instruction as authoritative (compare Exod, xxiii. 1. Mark iv. 20. Acts xvi. 21. xxii. 18. I Tim. v. 19), comes that of accepting or recognizing a person, as duly accredited (Acts χν. 4, παρεδέχθησαν από τής eκκλησías), or as being that which he calls himself. This last is the meaning here. Every son whom He recognizes as such.

7.  $\epsilon is$ ] The change of reading, from  $\epsilon i$  to  $\epsilon is$ , appears to be certain. And indeed, with  $\epsilon i$ ,  $i \pi o \mu \epsilon v \epsilon \tau \epsilon$  should have been  $\pi a \sigma \chi \epsilon \tau \epsilon$ . For the point (with that reading) would be not the temper of the sufferer but the fact of the chastisement.

els  $\pi ai\delta elav$   $i\pi o\mu$ .] Endure (exercise patience) unto (with a view to) discipline. Or else, It is with a view to discipline that ye exercise patience. There is some difficulty in deciding between the imperative and the indicative. But I incline to the former. The exercise of patience seems better to suit precept than assertion. The indicative would rather suggest  $\pi i \sigma \chi \epsilon \tau \epsilon$  than  $i \pi o \mu i \nu \epsilon \epsilon$ . Read in the imperative, the clause is a call to patience under suffering on the ground of the object of suffering. Suffering is for discipline: accept it in that view.

υπομένετε] Everywhere else in this Epistle unouver has an accusative. See note on x. 32. Here (with the altered reading) it is absolute. To endure. To be patient. And so in Matt. x. 22, ο δε υπομείνας είς τέλος ούτος σωθήσεται. xxiv. 13. Mark xiii. 13. Rom. xii, 12. 2 Tim. ii. 12, εί υπομένομεν, καί συν-James v. 11. Barilevouer. 1 Pet. ii. 20, εί αγαθοποιούντες και πασχοντες υπομενείτε κ.τ.λ. There remain two examples of υπομένειν (absolute) in the simple sense of staying behind (Luke ii. 43. Acts xvii. 14).

 $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\phi\dot{\epsilon}\rho\epsilon\tau al]$  Of this classical use of  $\pi\rho\sigma\sigma\phi\dot{\epsilon}\rho\epsilon\sigma\theta a (\tau\nu\dot{\epsilon})$ , to approach, and so to bear oneself towards, to deal with or behave towards, this is the only instance in the Greek Bible.

 $\tau$ is yàp viós] If chastisement does not actually prove sonship, certainly the negative is true, that not to suffer is not to be a son.

XII. 7—9.

παιδεύει πατήρ; εἰ δὲ χωρίς ἐστε παιδείας, ἦς 8 μέτοχοι γεγόνασιν πάντες, ἄρα νόθοι καὶ οὐχ υἱοί ἐστε. εἶτα τοὺς μὲν τῆς σαρκὸς ἡμῶν 9 πατέρας εἴχομεν παιδευτὰς καὶ ἐνετρεπόμεθα·

8.  $\chi \omega \rho is \epsilon \sigma \tau \epsilon \pi a \iota \delta$ .] For  $\chi \omega \rho is \epsilon t v a i \tau v v os, to be (or exist)$ apart from, see 1 Cor. xi. 11. Eph. ii. 12.

μέτοχοι] See note on i. 9, τούς μετόχους σου.

 $\gamma \epsilon \gamma \delta \nu a \sigma \iota \nu$ ] Have become, in all past history and experience up to this day.

apa] Then. The position of apa as the first word in the clause gives it a strong conclusive emphasis. See note on iv. 9, apa (and passages there quoted).

 $v\delta\theta oi$  The word  $v\delta\theta os$  is found only here in the New Testament. In the Septuagint, it occurs only (and in the form of an adjective) in Wisd. iv. 3.

9.  $\epsilon tra \tau o trois \mu \epsilon v$ ] Submission to divine discipline is reasonable. We have all shown it towards human parents. The sense of  $\epsilon tra$  is not quite clear. It might be regarded as what in classical works is known as the  $\epsilon tra indignantis$ . Then is it so, that, whereas we reverenced the human discipline, we shall not submit to the divine? But there is no instance of this use of  $\epsilon tra$  in the Greek Bible, and the latter clause (ov  $\pi \sigma \lambda \dot{v} \mu \hat{a} \lambda \lambda o \nu \kappa. \tau. \lambda.)$  does not quite suit it. We are driven therefore to the sense of next, further, again: see Mark iv. 28,  $\pi \rho \hat{\omega} \tau \sigma \nu$  $\chi \dot{\sigma} \rho \tau o \nu$ ,  $\epsilon \tilde{t} \pi a \sigma \tau \dot{a} \chi \nu \nu$ ,  $\epsilon \tilde{t} \pi a \pi \lambda \dot{\eta} \rho \eta s$  $\sigma \hat{v} \tau o s$ . In  $\tau$  Cor. xii. 5, 7, the manuscripts vary between  $\epsilon \tilde{t} \tau a$  and  $\epsilon \pi \epsilon \iota \tau a$ . We have no exactly parallel use in Scripture of  $\epsilon \tilde{t} \tau a$  in argument, or succession of thought, which is what we want here.

τοὺς μέν] The μὲν stands as if the following clause were to be, τῷ δὲ πατρὶ τῶν πνευμάτων οὐ πολὺ μᾶλλον ὑποταγησόμεθα;

της σαρκός...τών πνευμάτων] The contrast suggests (but does not decide) the Creationist and Traducianist controversy. So far as it goes, it favours the Creationist.

πατέρας] In xi. 23, πατέρες meant parents. See note there. Here the plural is explained by the plural  $\eta\mu\omega\nu$ .

 $\overline{\epsilon_i}\chi_{O\mu\epsilon\nu}$ ] Had them as (for) chastisers. The construction is as in Matt. iii. 9,  $\pi a \tau \epsilon \rho a \epsilon \chi_{O\mu\epsilon\nu}$  $\tau \delta \nu \,^2 A \beta \rho a \delta \mu$ . Luke iii. 8. Phil. iii. 17,  $\overline{\epsilon_i}\chi_{\epsilon\tau\epsilon} \tau \nu \pi \sigma \nu \eta \mu \delta s$ .

ού πολύ μάλλον υποταγησόμεθα τώ πατρί τών

ένετρεπόμεθα] From the literal sense of errpeneur (rura), literally to invert, to turn one in upon oneself, and so to change in mind and feeling, specially to make ashamed (1 Cor. iv. 14, ούκ έντρέπων ύμας γράφω ταύτα), the middle (or passive) has the two senses, (1) to be ashamed, as in 2 Thess. iii, 14. Tit. ii. 8 (iva o it ivarrias irrpang), and (2) the weaker and gentler one, to regard or reverence (always with an accusative in biblical Greek, while the genitive is more classical), as in Matt. xxi. 37. Mark xii. 6. Luke xviii. 2, 4. xx. 13. Frequent in the Septuagint : Exod. x. 3, έως τίνος ου βούλει έντραπηναί με; Wisd. ii. 10, μηδε πρεσβυτέρου (Α, πρεσβύτου Β) έντραπώμεν πολιάς πολυχρονίους. vi. 8. Often combined with aioxviveobal, as Job xxxii. 21, avθρωπον γάρ ου μή αἰσχυνθώ, άλλά μήν ούδε βροτόν ου μή έντραπώ. So metimes with vno riva (Jud. iii. 30), επί τινι (Ecclus, xli. 16), or ano twos (2 Kings xxii. 19. 2 Chron. xxvi. 12).

πολὺ μâλλον] Here and in verse 25 the revised text gives πολὺ for πολλῷ. St Paul (Rom. v. 9, 10, 15, 17. 1 Cor. xii. 22. 2 Cor. iii. 9, 11. Phil. i. 23. ii. 12) invariably uses πολλῷ.

τῷ πατρί τῶν πνευμάτων The Father of spirits. In contrast with gapros above. The article probably expresses universality (all spirits), rather than appropriation (our spirits). See Num. χνι. 22, Θεός, Θεός των πνευμάτων και πάσης σαρκός. Job xii. 10, έν χειρί αύτοῦ ψυχή πάντων τῶν (Α, omit B) ζώντων, και πνεύμα πάσης σαρκός (Α, παντός Β) ανθρώπου. Eccles. xii. 7, και το πνεύμα έπιστρέψει (Α, -ψη Β) προς τον Θεόν ός εδωκεν αυτό. Isai, xlii. 5, καὶ διδούς πνοήν τῷ λαῷ τῷ ἐπ αύτης, και πνεύμα τοις πατούσιν avryv. lvii. 16. Zech. xii. 1, και πλάσσων πνεύμα άνθρώπου έν a $\dot{v}\tau \dot{\omega}$ . The plural of  $\pi v \epsilon \hat{v} \mu a$  is comparatively rare. Sometimes it is required (1) by its connexion with a plural following, as in verse 23, και πνεύμασιν δικαίων τετελειωμένων. I Cor. xiv. 32, πνεύματα προφητών προφήταις ύποτάσσεται In Psalm lxxvi. 12, the reading varies between πνεύματα (B) and πνεύμα (A)  $a \rho \chi \circ \nu \tau \omega \nu$ . Sometimes (2) by the necessity of expressing plurality καὶ ζήσομεν] And have life. See note on x. 38, ζήσεται.

10. οί μέν γάρ] Reason for the à fortiori of verse q. The discipline of human parents is brief, and it is guided by a fallible judgment. The divine discipline has a gracious and glorious object, and it steadily makes for it. The first point  $(\pi \rho \delta s)$ ολίγας ήμέρας) is not expressly taken up in the contrasted clause. Even the other point (κατά το δοκούν αύτοις) is not directly met by the  $\epsilon \pi i$  and eis of the second clause. In both cases something is left to be supplied by the reader.

προς ολίγας ήμέρας] For the brief period of childhood. For the πρός, compare προς καιρόν (Luke viii. 13. 1 Cor. vii. 5), προς ώραν (John v. 35. 2 Cor. vii. 8. Gal. ii. 5. Philem. 15), προς καιρόν ώρας (1 Thess. ii. 17), προς ολίγον (James iv. 14).

κατὰ τὸ δοκοῦν αὐτοῖs] According to that which seemed good to them. Following their own judgment. (Matt. xvii. 25, τί σοι δοκεί; xviii. 12, τί νμιν δοκεί; &c.) There is no direct imputation of caprice or passion, only of fallibility, whether in the object or the method.

iπi το συμφέρον] In the direction of that which is expedient. For our good. For iπi, see vi. 1, iπi την τελειότητα φερώμεθα. For το συμφέρον, 1 Cor. xii. 7, προς το συμφέρον. And for this highest idea of expediency, compare Matt. v. 29, 30. John xvi. 7. 2 Cor. viii. 10.

είς το μεταλαβείν Unto our having partaken of. The ini expresses the aim, the  $\epsilon is$  the result. The aim of the divine discipline is our good, the result of it is our actual participation in the holiness of God Himself. For the thought, compare 2 Pet. i. 4, ίνα δια τούτων γένησθε θείας κοινωνοί φύσεως. The tense of  $\mu \epsilon \tau a \lambda a \beta \epsilon i \nu$  points to the moment of the consummation of grace in glory. For μεταλαμβάνειν, see vi. 7, μεταλαμβάνει εὐλογίας. Acts ii. 46. xxvii. 33, 34. 2 Tim. ii. 6, τών καρπών μεταλαμβάνειν.

άγιότητος] Of the three forms, ἀγιότης, ἀγιωσύνη, ἀγιασμός, the third is the commonest (see note on verse 14). The second occurs three times in the New Testament (Rom. i. 4. 2 Cor. vii. 1. 1 Thess. iii. 13) and in four places of the Septuagint (Psalm xovi. 6, xovii. 12. cxlv. 5. 2 Macc. iii. 12). The first only here, and in the revised text of 2 Cor. i. 12 (where it takes the place of  $a\pi\lambda \dot{\sigma}\eta\eta\eta$ ), and once in the Septuagint (2 Macc. xv. 2).

II. πασα δέ And although discipline is always painful at the time, yet the knowledge of its eventual blessing should reconcile us to it. The reading varies between Sè and µév. If probability may be taken into account, it certainly points rather to  $\delta \epsilon$ . We have a  $\mu \epsilon \nu$ and be following in clear contrast; and a foregoing µev, implying a suppressed Se to balance it, would anticipate the very antithesis which they both suggest and satisfy. Also it is not easy here to dispense with a connecting particle, the absence of which usually means either (1) the repetition (in explanation or expansion) of a former sentence, or (2) an intentional abruptness for the sake of emphasis; neither of which reasons

οὐ δοκεῖ χαρᾶς εἶναι] Either (1) does not seem to belong to, as its province or category. Or (2) does not seem to be a matter of, as its characteristic feature. See note on x. 39, οὐκ ἐσμὲν ὑποστολῆς.

λύπης... χαράς] John xvi. 20, 21, 22.

καρπον ... δικαιοσύνης] The genitive is explanatory. Fruit (consisting) of righteousness. (1) The figurative use of  $\kappa a \rho$ - $\pi os, produce or product, is$ common in the Septuagint and New Testament. Thus Psalm lviii. 11, εί άρα έστι καρπός τώ δικαίω. Prov. xi. 30, έκ καρπού δικαιοσύνης φύεται δένδρον ζωής. xiii. 2, άπο καρπού (A, καρπών B) δικαιοσύνης φάγεται άγαθός. Amos vi. 12 (13 B), έξεστρέψατε ...καρπον δικαιοσύνης είς πικρίαν. Luke iii. 8, καρπούς άξίους της μετανοίας. Rom. vi. 22, exere τον καρπον υμών είς άγιασμόν. Phil. i. II, πεπληρωμένοι καρπόν δικαιοσύνης τον δια Ίησου Χριστοῦ, James iii. 18, καρπὸς δὲ δικαιοσύνης έν εἰρήνη σπείρεται. &c. (2) The position of δικαιοσύνης is characteristic of the style of the Epistle, See notes on i. I.

Διό τὰς παρειμένας χεῖρας καὶ τὰ παρα- 12

vii. 4. &c. (3) For  $\delta i\kappa a i o \sigma' i \eta$ in this most general sense, of the Christian fulfilment of relations towards God and man, see note on v. 13,  $\lambda \delta' \gamma \sigma v \delta i \kappa a i \sigma \sigma' v \eta s$ , and passages there quoted.

eipyvikóv] Peaceful, rather than peaceable. The latter, however, is its sense in the only other place of its occurrence in the New Testament. James iii. 17, n de avaler oodía ... εἰρηνική, ἐπιεικής, εὐπειθής κ.τ.λ. There the  $\epsilon i \rho \eta \nu \eta$  suggested by it is that  $\mu\epsilon\tau\dot{a}$   $\pi\dot{a}\nu$ - $\tau \omega v$  (see below, verse 14), here it is that of the often repeated  $\chi \alpha \rho \kappa \alpha \lambda \epsilon \rho \eta \nu \eta$  of the opening prayer of the Epistles. In the Septuagint, cipyviko's occurs more than 40 times, (1) in the sense of peaceable (as, for example, Gen. xlii. 11, εἰρηνικοί ἐσμεν), or (2) in connexion with  $\theta v \sigma i a$ (expressed or understood), in that of the peace-offering (2 Sam. xxiv. 25, kai avyveykev όλοκαυτώσεις και είρηνικάς. 1 Kings viii. 64, τὰ στέατα τῶν εἰρηνικών...τάς θυσίας των εἰρη-Prov. vii. 14, Ovoía νικών. εἰρηνική μοί έστι).

 $i \pi \sigma \delta i \delta \omega \sigma \iota \nu$ ] The literal sense of  $i \pi \sigma \delta \iota \delta \delta v a \iota$ , to give back, as a sum owed (Matt. xviii. 25) or a thing or person put into one's hands (Luke iv. 20. ix. 42), is often extended into that of giving as a thing due (Rom. xiii. 7, απόδοτε πασιν τας όφει- $\lambda \dot{as}$ ), whether earned (Matt. xx. 8, απόδος αυτοίς τον μισθόν), promised (2 Tim. iv. 8, o th δικαιοσύνης στέφανος, δν αποδώσει μοι ο Κύριος), threatened (Rev. xviii. 6, απόδοτε αυτή  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ ), or guaranteed in the order of nature or otherwise (Lev. xxvi. 4, καὶ τὰ ξύλα τῶν πεδίων αποδώσει τον καρπον αυ- $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ ). This last is the sense here. Discipline yields righteousness as naturally as a tree yields its fruit.

τὰς παρειμένας κ.τ.λ.] Evidently a reminiscence of Isai. XXXV. 3, ἰσχύσατε, χεῖρες ἀνειμέναι καὶ γόνατα παραλελυμένα· παρακαλέσατε κ.τ.λ. In Ecclus. XXV. 23 we have the παρειμέναι of the text: χεῖρες παρειμέναι καὶ γόνατα παραλελυμένα.

παρειμένας ... παραλελυμένα] The two words, παριέναι (to let go along) and παραλύειν (to loose along), are found together, as here, in the same general sense of relaxing or enfeebling, in Deut. xxxii. 36, είδε γαρ παραλελυμένους αὐτοὺς... καὶ παρειμένους. (1) For παριέναι, see also 2 Sam. iv. 1, καὶ πάντες οἱ ανδρες Ἰσραήλ παρείθησαν. Jer. iv. 31, ἐκλυθήσεται καὶ παρήσει τὰς χεῦρας αὐτῆς. xx. 9, καὶ γόνατα] Job iv. 4, γόνασι δε (A, τε B) άδυνατοῦσι περιέθηκας θάρσος (A, θ. π. B).

aνορθώσατε] Not in the passage quoted, and at first sight more appropriate to  $\chi$ είpas than to γόνατα. But it follows the latter, and must have the general sense of setting right rather than of lifting up or making straight (Luke xiii. 13). See Psalm xviii. 35, ή παιδεία σου ἀνώρθωσέ με. XX. 8, ήμεις δὲ ἀνέστημεν καὶ ἀνωρθώθημεν. cxlv. 14, ἀνορθοῦ πάντας τοὺς κατερραγμένους.

13. καὶ τροχιάς] The reading of the revised text (ποιεῖτε instead of ποιήσατε) gets rid of an unpleasing and improbable hexameter line. The quotation is from Prov. iv. 26, opta's tpoχιάς ποίει σοις ποσί, και τάς όδούς σου κατεύθυνε. Compare verse 11, οδούς γαρ σοφίας διδάσκω σε, εμβιβάζω δέ σε τρογιαίς oppais. The admonition is to straightforwardness and uprightness of conduct, in contrast with perverseness or crookedness (see verses 25 and 27, οι οφθαλμοί σου ορθά βλεπέτωσαν...μή εκκλίνης είς τα δεξιά, μηδε είς τὰ ἀριστερά κ.τ.λ.). The word Tpoyla is found (in the Greek Bible) only in the Book of Proverbs, where it occurs five times.

iva  $\mu\eta$ ] The connexion would be quite obvious if instead of  $\delta\rho\theta\delta_s$  we had  $\lambda\epsilonias$ , level, which is the rendering of the Hebrew in the Revised Version of the passage quoted. Lameness would be under no temptation to diverge from a level path. If straight is the idea, we can still see that lameness would prefer a short road to a circuitous one.

κετε μετα πάντων, και τον άγιασμόν, ού χωρις ούδεις όψεται τον Κύριον επισκοποῦντες μή τις 15 everything. For a like use of the figure, see I Kings xviii. 21, έως πότε ὑμεῖς χωλανεῖτε ἐπ' ἀμφοτέραις ταῖς ἰγνύαις; ἐκτραπŷ] Ι Tim. i. 6, ἐξετράπησαν εἰς ματαιολογίαν. v. 15, ἐξετράπησαν ὀπίσω τοῦ Σατανᾶ vi. 20. 2 Tim. iv. 4.

 $ia\theta_{\hat{p}} \delta i \mu \hat{a} \lambda \lambda or$ ] Is this connected with the  $\tau po\chi_i a_{\hat{s}} \delta p \theta a_{\hat{s}}$  $\pi ouir_{\epsilon}$ , as if the levelness (or else the directness) of the path would actually contribute to the healing? Or is it merely appended to it by way of completing the thought of the case in view—as if it were, instead of being healed, as is most to be wished? The answer is doubtful.

διώκετε] The idea is that of pursuing a fugitive. The grace in question is one difficult of attainment. Compare Rom. xii. 13, τὴν ψιλοξενίαν διώκοντες. xiv. 19, τὰ τῆς εἰρήνης διώκωμεν. 1 Cor. xiv. 1, διώκετε τὴν ἀγάπην. 1 Thess. v. 15, τὸ ἀγαθὸν διώκετε. 1 Tim. vi. 11, ταῦτα φεῦγε, δίωκε δὲ δικαιοσύνην κ.τ.λ. 1 Pet. ii. 11 (from Psalm xxxiv. 14), ζητησάτω εἰρήνην καὶ διωξάτω αὐτήν.

ings and relations with all men. Rom. xii. 18, μετα πάντων άνθρώπων εἰρηνεύοντες.

The article τον άγιασμόν means all (rather than that). The form ayiao µòs (like µakapiσμός, πειρασμός, βαντισμός, όδυρ- $\mu os, \&c.$ ) indicates an act rather than a quality. In this it differs from the other two forms, ayıότης (verse 12) and ayuwσύνη. Sanctification rather than holiness. 'The bringing of the consecrated person into harmony of life and character with the consecration' (see note on ii. 11, άγιάζων ... άγιαζόμενοι). Rom. vi. 19, 22, παραστήσατε τα μέλη ύμων δούλα τη δικαιοσύνη eis άγιασμόν... ἔχετε τὸν καρπὸν ὑμῶν είς άγιασμόν. Ι Cor. i. 30. I Tim. ii. 15, έν πίστει καί άγάπη καὶ ἁγιασμῷ μετὰ σωφροσύνης. 1 Pet. i. 2.

Otherwise we should add to the above quotations 1 John iii. 2, ὅτι ὀψόμεθα αὐτὸν καθῶς ἔστιν. Rev. i. 7, καὶ ὄψεται αὐτὸν πῶς ὀφθαλμώς.

15.  $i\pi i\sigma\kappa\sigma\sigma \hat{v}v\tau\epsilons$ ] The oversight here enjoined is evidently mutual and brotherly, not official and ministerial. Compare iii. 12, 13,  $\beta\lambda\epsilon\pi\epsilon\tau\epsilon$ ,  $a\delta\epsilon\lambda\phioi$ ,  $\mu\eta$   $\pi\sigma\tau\epsilon$   $\epsilon\sigma\tauai$   $\epsilon\nu$   $\tau ivi$  $<math>v\mu\omega\nu$   $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ . In 1 Pet. v. 2, if  $\epsilon\pi i\sigma\kappa\sigma\sigma\sigma\hat{v}\tau\epsilons$  is to be retained in the text (which is more than doubtful), the latter is its reference.

μή τις] Understand j, as in verse 16. Lest there be any one ύστερών.

υστερῶν ἀπό] For ὑστερεῖν, see note on iv. I, ὑστερηκέναι. With ἀπό, the sense may be not falling short of, missing, failing to attain, but falling short from (as from a thing once attained). And thus the warning will be that of 2 Cor. vi. I, παρακαλοῦμεν μὴ εἰς κενὸν τὴν χάριν τοῦ Θεοῦ δέξασθαι ὑμᾶς. And the case contemplated will be that of Gal. v. 4, τῆς χάριτος έξεπέσατε.

μή τις pila] The words are from Deut. xxix. 18, µŋ τίς ἐστιν έν υμίν ρίζα [πικρίας] άνω φύουσα iv yoly kai πικρία. So the text stands in Field's edition. The Vatican omits πικρίας. Delitzsch quotes the Alexandrine Septuagint as reading  $\pi \kappa \rho i \alpha s$ , and as having woxly in place of ev χολŷ. He thinks that the reading there may have been suggested by the form of the quotation here. It is a difficult question. One thing we cannot suppose-that the writer to the Hebrews chose evoxin from its resemblance to  $\epsilon_{\nu} \chi_0 \lambda_{\eta}$ .

iνοχλŷ] Like δχλεῖν (Tob. vi. 7, iάν τινα δχλŷ δαιμόνιον ℜπνεῦμα πονηρόν κ.τ.λ. Acts v.16), properly to throng or croudlone, and so to annoy or trouble,the compound <math>iνοχλεῖν, properly perhaps iν δχλψ (like δi' δχλου) elvaí τινι, means to be troublesome to, with a dative or accusative, and sometimes absolutely (as here), to be troublesome, to give trouble. In the New Testament it occurs (besides) only in Luke vi. 18, where (as usually in the Septuagint) it is in the passive voice.

δι' αὐτῆς] Or διὰ ταύτης. The choice of reading is difficult, and not important. Compare v. 3, where, however, δι' αὐτῆν is decidedly preferable to διὰ ταύτην.

μιανθώσιν] The word interprets the βίζα πικρίας above and prepares us for the μή τις πόρvos below. For μιαίνειν, see John xviii. 28 (illustrated by many applications of the word to ceremonial defilement in Levit. xiii. &c.). Tit. i. 15, πάντα καθαρὰ τοῖς καθαροῖς: τοῖς δὲ μεμιαμμένοις καὶ ἀπίστοις οὐδὲν καθαρόν, ἀλλὰ μεμίανται αἰτῶν καὶ ὁ νοῦς καὶ ἡ συνείδησις. Jude 8, σάρκα μὲν μιαίνουσιν κ.τ.λ.

οἱ πολλοί] The many. The community or Christian society. Rom. xii. 5, οἱ πολλοὶ ἐν σῶμά ἐσμεν ἐν Χριστῷ. Ι Cor. x. 17. And for the thought, compare I Cor. v. 6, οὐκ οἶδατε ὅτι μικρὰ ζύμη ὅλον τὸ φύραμα ζυμοῖ; as above. It is not clear whether  $\omega_s$  'Hoaû refers to both words, or only to  $\beta \epsilon \beta \eta \lambda os$ . Bengel's remark, Libido et intemperantia cibi affines, suggests the combination, and there is nothing in Esau's character to set against it. But charity, which has place even towards the dead, does not add to the Scripture record of evil.

16. μή τις Understand ή,

 $\beta \epsilon \beta \eta \lambda_{os}$  Derived from  $\beta \alpha \omega$ ,  $\beta a i \nu \omega$ , the application of  $\beta \epsilon \beta \eta$ - $\lambda_{0}$  is (1) to things; open to the tread, the opposite of aylos, sacred to God. Thus Lev. x. 10, kai diaστείλαι αναμέσον των αγίων και τών βεβήλων, και αναμέσον τών άκαθάρτων καί των καθαρών. I Sam. xxi. 4, aproi  $\beta \in \beta \eta \lambda o \dots a \rho \tau o s$ άγιος (A, άρτοι άγιοι B). Ezek. xxii. 26. xliv. 23. 1 Tim. iv. 7. vi. 20. 2 Tim. ii. 16.  $\dot{\omega}$ s ' $H\sigma a\hat{v}$ ] The profaneness of Esau is inferred from one transaction, in which he not only deliberately preferred the present to the future, but also treated the religious privileges of the patriarchal family (the domestic priesthood, the promise itself, the ancestorship of the aneboro] Or (in a later and debased form) aπέδετο. The classical sense of the middle voice of anobibovar, to give away for one's own gain, to sell, is

For a single meal. In some places the distinction is less marked. John iv. 32, έγω βρώσιν έχω φαγείν κ.τ.λ. νι. 27, 55, μη την βρώσιν την απολλυμένην αλλα την βρωσιν την μένουσαν κ.τ.λ. Psalm Ιχχνίιι. 30, έτι τής βρώσεως αύτών ούσης έν τῷ στόματι αὐτῶν. Jec.

τα πρωτοτόκια] See notes (above) on ws 'Hoav, and os arri Boworews. For the word, see also Gen. xxvii. 36. Deut. xxi 17, και τούτω καθήκει τα πρωτο τοκεία.

might have hoped that the early folly was forgotten and done with. The common chronology interposes more than 40 years between the two incidents.

 $\theta \epsilon \lambda \omega \nu \kappa \lambda$ .] When he willed (when it was his will) to inherit. Something of the eager and impetuous character of Esau is perhaps noticeable in the expression.

 $\tau \eta v \epsilon v \lambda o \gamma (a v)$  The narrative of Gen. xxvii. is the first example of the importance attached to the solemn benediction of an aged or dying patriarch (though indeed the received chronology places more than 40 vears between Gen. xxvii. and the death of Isaac in Gen. xxxv. 29). Compare Gen. xlviii. xlix. Deut. xxxiii. In I Chron. v. 1, 2, the εὐλογία seems to be used as synonymous with the πρωτοτόκια. Reuben, though the πρωτότοκος, οὐκ ἐγενεαλογήθη είς πρωτοτόκια...  $\eta$  εύλογία (the birthright, Revised Version) τοῦ Ίωσήφ. For the phrase κληρονομείν την εύλογίαν, see I Pet. iii. 9. aπεδοκιμάσθη] The choice of the word implies that the mind of the sacred writer is rising above the historical narrative into a region of spiritual application. Was rejected brings in the thought of a greater than Isaac as the real agent, and a more momentous judgment than any earthly forfeiture as the real subject of warning. For αποδοκιμάζειν, see (1) Psalm cxviii. 22 (λίθον δν απεδοκίμασαν of olkodomouvres  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ .) with its frequent quotations or reminiscences in the New Testament (Matt. xxi. 42. Mark viii. 31. xii. 10. Luke ix. 22. xvii. 25. xx. 17. 1 Pet. ii. 4, 7), and (2) Jer. vi. 30, apyúpiov αποδεδοκιμασμένον καλέσατε αύτούς, ότι απεδοκίμασεν αύτους Κύριος. vii. 29. xiv. 19. xxxi. (xxxviii. B) 37. Wisd. ix. 4, μή με αποδοκιμάσης έκ παίδων σου.

μετανοίας γάρ] The difficulty of the passage lies in two words, peravolas and avryv. (1) Of μετάνοια in its uniform Scriptural sense, of repentance as distinguished from regret or remorse (see notes on vi. 1, µeravoías, and vii. 21, μεταμεληθή- $\sigma \epsilon \tau a \iota$ ), there is not a trace in the Old Testament history of Esau. Its introduction here is due to the cause suggested in the note on  $a\pi\epsilon\delta \delta \kappa \mu a\sigma \theta \eta$ , namely, the application of the narrative (in the mind of the sacred writer) to the case of the readers of the Epistle. To this application μεταμέλεια (the proper word for Esau) would have been quite inadequate. But, even with peravoia, the terrible idea that repentance itself was sought and was not to be found is a mere perversion of the words. A meravolas ronos, a locus penitentia, is not in the mind of the sinner but in the circumstances of his life. It is room for repentance to operate in reversing the consequences of a sin. This is what (in its lower meaning) Esau did not find: this is what (in its more awful sense) they cannot find who fling away their spiritual birthright and hope nevertheless to secure the final blessing. (2) To which word does autry refer, the nearer peravolas or the more remote evloyiav? There is no pretence for saying that Esau sought repentance and could not find it. What Esau sought with tears was the evloyia, and to it alone can avriv refer with any shadow of adherence to the history even if spiritualized into allegory. The simple explanation of the difficulty is that the words peravoias γάρ τόπον ούχ εύρεν are practically parenthetical to the main sentence. When he would fain have inherited the blessing, he was rejected (for he found no room for repentance to operate in undoing his old misdeed) though he sought the blessing earnestly with tears.

18 Ού γαρ προσεληλύθατε ψηλαφωμένω καί

εκζητήσας αὐτήν] That is, την εὐλογίαν. Gen. xxvii. 31, 34, 36, 38, ὅπως εὐλογήση με ή ψυχή σου...εὐλόγησον δη καμέ, πάτερ...οὐχ ὑπελίπου μοι εὐλογίαν, πάτερ;...μη εὐλογία μία σοί ἐστι, πάτερ; εῦλόγησον δη καμέ, πάτερ. For ἐκζητεῦν, see note on xi. 6.

18. Où yap] An urgent reason for the preceding earnest exhortation. Very different is your position from that of your fathers at Sinai. They were gathered at a spot of alarm and portent, striking terror into the heart of the lawgiver himself. You are brought into direct communion with a God of love, revealed in a Mediator of grace and peace. In the same degree must your responsibility be greater than theirs. The general thought is that of ii. 2, 3. See also Rom. vi. 14, αμαρτία γαρ ύμων ου κυριεύσει, ού γάρ έστε ύπο νόμον αλλα υπο χάριν.

προσεληλύθατε] Deut. iv. II, καὶ προσήλθετε καὶ ἔστητε ὑπο τὸ ὄρος.

 $\psi\eta\lambda a\phi\omega\mu i\nu\varphi$ ] The great manuscripts omit  $\check{o}\rho\epsiloni$  (which nevertheless verse 22, with its emphasis on  $\Sigma_{i}\omega\nu$ , seems almost to presuppose), and leave only the alternative explanation, (1) a thing handled (or for handling, a palpable or material object) and a thing kindled with fire, or (2) a fire handled (palpable) and kindled. In favour of (2), no doubt κεκαυμένω might agree with  $\pi v \rho i$ , a kindled fire (Psalm 3, πῦρ ἐναντίον αὐτοῦ καυθήσεται κ.τ.λ., and πυρ καιόμενον frequently). But (a)  $\pi \hat{v} \rho \psi \eta \lambda a$ - $\phi \omega \mu \epsilon v o v$  is so strange a combination, and (b) the phrase καίεσθαι πυρί is so frequent in this connexion (see Deut. iv. ΙΙ, καί τὸ ὄρος ἐκαίετο πυρί ἕως καρδίας (omit B) τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. v. 23. ix. 15), that we must prefer (1) to (2). The verb  $\psi \eta \lambda a \phi \hat{a} v$ (from  $\psi \dot{a} \omega$ , to touch or rub) has two main uses, (1) to feel (as in Gen. xxvii. 12, 21, 22. Luke xxiv. 39. 1 John i. 1), (2) to feel after, as a thing groped for in the dark (as in Deut. xxviii. 29, καὶ ἔση ψηλαφῶν μεσημβρίας, ώς εί ψηλαφήσαι ο τυφλός (Α, εί τις ψ. τ. B) έν τῷ σκότει. Isai. lix. 10, ψηλαφήσουσιν ώς τυφλοί τοίχον κ.τ.λ. Acts xvii. 27, ζητείν τον  $\Theta$ εόν, εί άρα γε ψηλαφήσειαν αυτόν καί ευροιεν κ.τ.λ.). Here probably the former is the sense (in consideration of the  $\kappa \epsilon \kappa a \nu \mu \epsilon \nu \omega \pi \nu \rho i$ , though the γνόφω καὶ ζόφω might favour the latter (an object felt or groped for in the darkness).

γνόφω] Gloom. From νέφος. It occurs only here in the New Testament, but is frequent in the Septuagint, as in Exod. x. 22, καὶ ἐγένετο σκότος, γνόφος, θύελλα ἐπὶ πῶσαν γῆν Αἰγύπτου τρεῖς ἡμέρας. XX. 21, Μωυσῆς δὲ εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν γνόφον, οῦ ἦν ἐκεῖ (omit B) ὁ Θεός. See also Exod. xix. 16, καὶ νεφέλη γνοφώδης ἐπ᾽ ὅρους Σινᾶ.

 $\langle \acute{o}\phi \psi \rangle$  Mist. Akin to  $\langle \acute{e}\phi v - \rho os$  (a wind often represented as stormy and rainy). The revised text reads  $\langle \acute{o}\phi \psi \rangle$  for  $\sigma \kappa \acute{o} \tau \epsilon \iota$ . The word does not occur in the Septuagint. In the New Testament, see 2 Pet. ii. 4, 17,  $\sigma \epsilon \iota \rho o \hat{s} s$  $\langle \acute{o}\phi ov \dots \hat{o} \rangle \langle \acute{o}\phi os \tau o \hat{v} \sigma \kappa \acute{o} \tau o v s$ . Jude 6, 13.

magyrnoavro] Of the two uses of mapaireiopai (both classical), the positive and the negative, (1) to beg something of another (τί τινα or ἀπο or παρά  $\tau$  (vos), and (2) to beg off from oneself (whether  $\tau \iota$  or  $\tau \iota v \dot{a}$ ), to deprecate, decline or refuse, the former is found in the Septuagint, 1 Sam. xx. 6, 28 (mapaiτούμενος παρητήσατο απ' έμοῦ Δαυίδ δραμείν...παρήτηται Δαυίδ παρ' έμοῦ έως είς Βηθλεέμ τ. π. aυτοῦ πορευθήναι) and Esth. iv. 8, but only the latter in the New Testament. See verse 25. Also Luke xiv. 18, 19. Acts XXV. 11, ού παραιτούμαι το άποbaveir. 1 Tim. iv. 7. v. 11. 2 Tim. ii. 23. Tit. iii. 10. Here, literally, which voice they who heard deprecated any word being added to them, that is, begged that no further word should be spoken to them.

evidently suggested by Deut. v. 25, ἐἀν προσθώμεν ἀκοῦσαι ήμεῖς (Α, προσθώμεθα ή. ἀκ. Β) τὴν φωνὴν Κυρίου τοῦ Θεοῦ ήμῶν ἔτι, καὶ ἀποβανούμεθα. xviii. 16, κατὰ πάντα ὅσα ἤτήσω ...λέγοντες, Οῦ προσθήσομεν τοῦ (omit B) ἀκοῦσαι τὴν φωνὴν Κυρίου κ.τ.λ.

20. οὐκ ἔφερον γάρ] For this sense of φέρειν (to endure), see Rom. ix. 22, ἤνεγκεν ἐν πολλŷ μακροθυμία σκεύη ὀργῆς. Also Deut. i. 12, πῶς δυνήσομαι φέρειν μόνος (μ. φ. Β) τὸν κόπον ὑμῶν κ.τ.λ. Jer. xliv. (li. B) 22, οὐκ ἡδύνατο Κύριος ἔτι φέρειν ἀπὸ προσώπου πονηρίας πραγμάτων ὑμῶν.

το διαστελλόμενον] In the Septuagint διαστέλλειν is used in all voices, active, middle, and passive. From its original sense to put asunder, set apart, separate (as Gen. xxx. 35. Num. viii. 14, τούς Λευίτας. xvi. 9. Deut. xix. 7, τρεῖς πόλεις. 1 Chron. xxiii. 13, διεστάλη 'Ααρών ...τοῦ θυμιῶν κ.τ.λ. Ruth i. 17. &c.), it passes into various modifications, such as to disperse or scatter (Psalm lxviii, 14. Mic. v. 8), to specify (Gen. xxx. 28 τον μισθόν σου. Lev. v. 4, μεθ оркоv. &c.), or explain (Neh. viii. 8); and in the middle voice to state clearly, to give explicit warning (Ezek. iii. 18, &c., où διεστείλω αὐτῷ, οὐδὲ ἐλάλησας (omit οὐδὲ ἐλ. Β) τοῦ διαστείλασθαι τῷ ἀνόμω κ.τ.λ.). In the New Testament it is only used (elsewhere) in the middle voice, and always in the sense of explicitly or distinctly commanding. Mark v. 43, καὶ διεστείλατο αύτοις πολλά ίνα μηδείς κ.τ.λ. vii. 36. viii. 15, και διεστέλλετο αύτοις λέγων κ.τ.λ. ix. 9. Acts xv. 24, οίς ου διεστειλάμεθα. Even here it has been proposed to give a middle instead of a passive sense, that (word) which charged or commanded. But the passive is simpler, that which was being (repeatedly) commanded. And in one passage of the Septuagint (2 Macc. xiv. 28) we have a clear passive (τα διεσταλµéva) in this sense.

Κάν θηρίον] A somewhat loose quotation of Exod. xix. 12, 13, προσέχετε έαυτοις τοῦ ἀναβήναι εἰς τὸ ὅρος καὶ θιγεῖν τι αὐτοῦ...οὐχ ἄψεται αὐτοῦ χείρ ἐν γὰρ λίθοις λιθοβοληθήσεται, ἡ βολίδι κατατοξευθήσεται· ἐάν τε κτήνος, ἐάν τε ἄνθρωπος, οὐ ζήσεται.

τὸ φανταζόμενον] The sight presented. The verb φαντάζειν (from φαντός) is to make visible. Wisd. vi. 17 (16 B), καὶ ἐν ταῖς τρίβοις φαντάζεται αὐτοῖς εὐμενῶς. Hence φαντασία, display (Acts xxv. 23. Hab. ii. 18, φαντασίαν ψευδῆ. &c.), sometimes lightning (Zech. x. 1), and φάντασμα, an apparition or spectre (Matt. xiv. 26. Mark vi. 49. Wisd. xvii. 14).

*Εκφοβός είμι] Deut. ix. 19, καί έκφοβός είμι δια την οργήν και τον θυμόν (Α, τ. θ. κ. τ. δ. Β), ότι παρωξύνθη Κύριος έφ' υμίν. But this was said at a later time and on a different occasion. And the words kai evroppos (or έκτρομος, the reading of the Sinaitic manuscript) are nowhere found used by Moses. For evτρομος, see Acts vii. 32, έντρομos δè γενόμενοs Μωυσηs (at the burning bush) οὐκ ἐτόλμα καταxvi. 29, καὶ ἔντρομος νοήσαι. γενόμενος προσέπεσεν τώ Π. καί Dan. x. 11, avéorny ev-Σ. τρομος.

trast of the Christian with the Jewish standing. Unlike the Hebrew nation, just escaped from the house of bondage, and now assembled at the foot of Sinai, amidst manifestations of the divine presence which struck terror into the hearts alike of the people and of their leader, you are brought into closest contact, for present comfort and converse, with a holy and heavenly community, of which seven characteristics are particularized in the clauses which follow. And first its home.

προσεληλύθατε This perfect is too commonly read as a future, and the whole description relegated into a world The effect is beyond death. an utter misconception of the thought of the writer, and a miserable dwarfing and stunting of the Christian life alike in its privileges and in its duties. The first thought is, You are already in heaven. The second, What is your society there? Compare Eph. i. 3, o evloynjoas ήμας... έν τοις έπουρανίοις έν Χριστώ. ii. 6, και συνεκάθισεν έν τοις έπουρανίοις έν Χριστώ Ίησου. Phil. iii. 20, ήμων γαρ το πολίτευμα έν ούρανοις ύπάρχει. Col. iii. 3, καὶ ή ζωὴ ὑμῶν κέκρυπται σύν τῷ Χριστῷ ἐν τῷ Θεῷ.

Σιών ὅρει] In the 23 passages of the Septuagint where the two words are combined the order is uniformly opos Siw (with whatever slight variations in the presence or absence of the article), and not Liw opos. Evidently here the 'Zion mountain' is mentally contrasted with another, the 'Sinai mountain.' And thus the omission of open in the revised text of verse 18 is virtually supplied. For the thought, compare Isai. ii. 3, δεντε και άναβώμεν είς το όρος τοῦ (omit B) Κυρίου...ἐκ γὰρ Σιών εξελεύσεται νόμος, και λόγος Κυρίου έξ Ίερουσαλήμ. For Σιών here (in the New Testament almost always in quotations from the Septuagint, as Matt. xxi. 5. John xii. 15. Rom. ix. 33. xi. 26. 1 Pet. ii. 6), compare Rev. xiv. 1, Kai eldor, και ίδου το αργίον έστος έπι το όρος Σιών.

καὶ πόλει] It is a mistake to treat this as a new particular. distinct from Liw open. Mount Zion and Jerusalem are not to be made two separate things (as, for instance, the one the type of the divine presence itself, and the other, that of the divine beatific manifestation, see note on viii. 2, των άγίων...και της σκηνήs), but rather, Mount Zion and (on it) the holy city. In confirmation of this identity of Σιών and πόλις, see, for example, Isai. lx. 14, και κληθήση πόλις Kupiou,  $\Sigma_{i}\omega_{i}v$  (A,  $\pi$ ,  $\Sigma$ , B) ayiou Ίσραήλ.

καί μυριάσιν άγγέλων πανηγύρει, και έκκλησία 23

πόλει Θεοῦ ζῶντος, 'L] See Matt. v. 35, μήτε εἰς Ἱεροσόλυμα, ὅτι πόλις ἐστὶν τοῦ μεγάλου βασιλέως. Rev. iii. 12, τὸ ὄνομα τῆς πόλεως τοῦ Θεοῦ μου, τῆς καινῆς Ἱερουσαλήμ, ἡ καταβαίνουσα ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ μου.

 $I \in \rhoov \sigma a \lambda \eta \mu$  Of the two forms 'Iepovoaly and 'Iepovo'- $\lambda \nu \mu a$ , the former only is used in the Septuagint, until we reach the Apocrypha, where both are found (in 1 Macc. only the former, in 2 Macc. only the latter). St Paul uses only the former, except in Gal. i. 17, 18, and ii. 1. St John only the latter, except in Rev. iii. 12. xxi. 2, 10. In St Matthew and St Mark Ίεροσόλυμα predominates, in St Luke and the Acts <sup>I</sup>ερουσαλήμ, though both forms are found in all these.

ἐπουρανίφ] Applied to Jerusalem here only. But see quotation in a former note from Rev. iii. 12. Also Rev. xxi. 2, καὶ τὴν πόλιν τὴν ἀγίαν, Ἱερουσαλὴμ καινήν, είδον καταβαίνουσαν ἐκ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἀπὸ τοῦ Θεοῦ. Compare Gal. iv. 26, ἡ δὲ ἄνω Ἱερουσαλὴμ κ.τ.λ. For ἐπουράνιος, see note on iii. 1.

καὶ μυριάσιν] There are three possible combinations of the words which follow. (1) The first of these is preferred by the Authorized Version and adopted by the Revised : καὶ μυριάσιν ἀγγέλων, πανηγύρει καὶ ἐκκλησίą πρωτοτόκων κ.τ.λ., and to tens of thousands of Angels, to a marnyupis and ἐκκλησία of the firstborn. (2) The second is, rai μυριάσιν, αγγέλων πανηγύρει καί έκκλησία πρωτοτόκων κ.τ.λ., and to tens of thousands, even (a) a many yupis of Angels and (b) an ἐκκλησίa of the firstborn (making  $\mu\nu\rho\iota\dot{\alpha}\sigma\iota\nu$  include both the  $\pi\alpha\nu\dot{\eta}$ γυρις αγγέλων and the εκκλησία πρωτοτόκων). (3) The third is, καὶ μυριάσιν ἀγγέλων πανηγύρει, καὶ ἐκκλησία πρωτοτόκων, and to tens of thousands, even a  $\pi a v \eta \gamma v$ pis of Angels; and to an ἐκκλησία of the firstborn (restricting the μυριάσιν to the πανήγυρις άγγέλων, and making και ἐκκλησία begin a new item of enumeration). Of these, the first breaks the uniformity of the clauses, each one of which (after the first) begins with a rai, and also involves the cumbersome and inelegant combination of the words πανηγύρει και εκκλησία for πρωτοτόκων to depend upon. The second strikes the ear as prosaic in its formal distribution of  $\mu v$ pláouv into two constituents: also the two constituents seem to have no special point of connexion which could justify the severance of the πρωτότοκοι from a subsequent particular, that of the πνεύματα δικαίων τετελειωμένων. On the whole, the third seems the best. The combination of μυριάσιν with aγγέλων

πρωτοτόκων απογεγραμμένων έν ούρανοις, καί

 $\pi a v \eta \gamma \dot{\nu} \rho u$  alone presents no real difficulty—tens of thousands, even a  $\pi a v \dot{\eta} \gamma \nu \rho us of Angels$ and it leaves to each of the six clauses after the first its own wait o open it.

μυρίδοιν] We have the same word in connexion with Angels in Deut. xxxiii. 2, Κύριος ἐκ Σινῶ ἦκει...σὺν μυριάσι Κ., ἐκ δεξιῶν αὐτοῦ ἅγγελοι μετ' αὐτοῦ. Psalm lxviii. 17, τὸ ἄρμα τοῦ Θεοῦ μυρμοπλάσιον, χιλιάδες κ.τ.λ. Dan. vii. 10, χίλιαι χιλιάδες ἐλειτούργουν αὐτῷ, καὶ μύριαι μυριάδες παρειστήκεισαν αὐτῷ. Jude 14, ἰδοῦ ἦλθεν Κύριος ἐν ἀγίαις μυριάσιν αὐτοῦ. Rev. V. 11, ἦκουσα φωνὴν ἀγγέλων πολλῶν...καὶ ἦν ὁ ἀριθμὸς αὐτῶν μυριάδες μυριάδων κ.τ.λ.

πανηγύρει] By derivation (πᾶς, ἀγείρω), a general assembly: but by usage, an assembly gathered for a festival, a festal throng. See Ezek. xlvi. 11, ev ταις έορταις και έν ταις πανηγύρεσιν κ.τ.λ. Ηο8. ii. 11, πάσας τας ευφροσύνας αυτής, τας (omit B) έορτας αυτής...και πάσας τας πανηγύρεις αυτής. ix. 5, τί ποιήσετε έν ήμέρα (-pais B) πανηγύ- $\rho \epsilon \omega s$ , kai  $\epsilon v \eta \mu \epsilon \rho a is (-\rho a B) \epsilon o \rho$ τής του Κυρίου; Amos v. 21, άπωσμαι έορτας ύμων, και ου μή οσφρανθώ θυσίας έν ταις πανηγύρεσαν ύμῶν. And so the verb  $(\pi a \nu \eta \gamma \nu \rho i \zeta \epsilon i \nu)$  in Isai. lxvi. 10, ευφράνθητε άμα Ίερουσαλήμ (Α. -ητι 'Ι. Β), και πανηγυρίσατε έν αύτη ... χαρήτε αμα αύτη κ.τ.λ. Thus the word, so suitable to the Angels, would be far less suitable to the πρωτότοκοι as explained in the next verse. For the statement,  $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon \lambda \eta \lambda \upsilon \theta a \tau \epsilon$ αγγέλων πανηγύρει, see the passages which speak of the present ministry of Angels, Heb. i. 14, and notes there. In that heavenly city which is already your home you have a host of sympathizing friends in those unfallen spirits who behold the face of your Father. They are there, not in selfish repose, but in perpetual ministry for sinful and suffering mankind. They have charge concerning you in your perilous pilgrimage, invisible helpers and guardians in your hours of loneliness and temptation.

23. καί ἐκκλησία πρωτ. Α third particular of the Christian's present access. And to a living assembly of firstborn sons enrolled already in heaven. It is a thought of comfort. You are not alone. You are in communion and fellowship, even here on earth, with a great multitude which no man can number. And though on earth all is change, tumult, warfare, temptation, yet be of good cheer, the Lord knoweth them that are His, knows them by name. For έκκλησία, see note on ii. 12, The word might ἐκκλησίας. include all Christian people

The thought of the militant Church is followed by the thought of God the Judge of all, both as the discerner of the true among the professing (a note of warning), and as the avenger of the true Church, now under persecution and temptation (a note of comfort). The construction of the words ought not to have been doubted: Orginis interposed between KRITH and Tartwr, in the characteristic style of the Epistle, which loves trajection, and with an intimacy of connexion which adds to the force of the whole. For God the Judge, see James iv. 12, els ioru νομοθέτης και κριτής.

kai nvevµaσu] A fifth particular. Not only have you present access, for sympathy and communion, to 'the whole congregation of Christian people dispersed throughout the world': that access, that advent, is yours also to the faithful departed. Their good example is your heirloom; their safe arrival in the home of the blessed is the pledge and warrant of yours. And not only thus. Already in worship and communion you meet and are at one with them.

πνεύμασιν] The distinctive word for the spiritual being of the intermediate state. Compare 1 Pet. iii. 19 (roîs ev φυλακή πνεύμασιν), the only true parallel, though widely different in context. A comparison of Rev. vi. 9 will show the propriety of the choice of πνεύματα here. There are seen the wuxaí, the martyred lives, ύποκάτω τοῦ θυσιαστηρίου, crying for satisfaction. Here the advent of the Christian is to the spirits awaiting in a paradise of blessedness the consummation of resurrection.

δικαίων] Righteous, in the sense of St Paul (Rom. i. 17.

v. 19) and of this Epistle (x. 38. xi. 4).

rereleiuménus?] Consummated, in reference to the education of this life, its trials and perils. Safe for ever. Still waiting the releiuσιs of resurrection and glory. See notes on ii. 10 (releiuσαι) and xi. 40 (releauθώσιν).

24. καὶ διαθήκης] A sixth particular. The thought of the perfected righteous suggests that of the Saviour to whom all their happiness is due. The Saviour is not only ὁ ἐρχόμενος, you already προσεληλύθατε to Him (John vi. 35).

διαθήκης] See note on vii. 22.

vías] See note on viii. 8,  $\kappa \alpha \nu \nu \gamma \nu$ . The Gospel  $\delta \iota \alpha \theta \gamma \kappa \eta$ , which is  $\kappa \alpha \nu \nu \gamma$  as being new in kind, is also  $\nu \epsilon \alpha$  as being (1) recent (in comparison with the Mosaic covenant) in time, and (2) ever fresh and young in virtue of an ever replenishing (because eternal) life.

μεσίτη] See note on viii. 6, μεσίτης.

'Ιησοῦ] The human name, so full of the saving character (Matt. i. 21, καὶ καλέσεις τὸ ὄνομα αὐτοῦ 'ἰησοῦν' αὐτὸς γὰρ σώσει τὸν λαὸν αὐτοῦ ἀπὸ τῶν ἁμαρτιῶν αὐτῶν), so attractive therefore to the struggling and militant Church. kai aiµarı] A seventh and last particular. In having come to Jesus you have come also to that atoning blood, which, unlike another of which the old Scripture tells, cries for mercy, not for vengeance, upon the soul that has sinned.

alu. partiouou] A blood of (for) sprinkling. That is, designed and available for application to the human conscience clogged and defiled by the sense of sin. Compare 1 Pet. i. 2, eis ύπακοήν και βαντισμόν αίματος 'Ιησοῦ Χριστοῦ. There the blood is spoken of in its use, here in its purpose. For partifeir and particulos, see note on ix. 13. The two principal rites of sprinkling of blood in the law of Moses (besides that prescribed in the consecration of the high-priest, for which see notes on x. 22) were those of the purification of the leper (Lev. xiv. 7, &c.), and of the person defiled by contact with death (for which see notes on ix. 13). No two types could be more helpful for the understanding of the present passage. For alua itself, see note on ix. 14, το αίμα του Χριστου.

κρείττον λαλοῦντι] Speaking a better thing than Abel when he, being dead, yet by his blood cried to God against his murderer. The word is  $\beta o \hat{\alpha}$  (evidently inappropriate here) in Gen. iv. 10, but  $\lambda a \lambda c \hat{i}$ in Heb. xi. 4. And  $\lambda a \lambda c \hat{i} v$ may have been chosen here in preparation for the  $\lambda a \lambda o \hat{v} v \tau a$  of verse 25, and in allusion to the frequent use of  $\lambda a \lambda c \hat{v}$  in reference to the voice on Sinai. See, for example, Exod. xx. 1, 19, 22. Deut. iv. 12, 33. &c.

παραιτήσησθε] See note on verse 19, παρητήσαντο. Here with an accusative of the person refused, as in 1 Tim. v. 11 (χήρας) and Tit. iii. 10 (αἰρετικὸν ἀνθρωπον).

έξέφυγον] For this ἐκφεύγειν (without explanation of the thing to be dreaded), see ii. 3, πῶς ἡμεῖς ἐκφευξόμεθα κ.τ.λ.

iπi γηs π. τον χ.] Instead of τον iπi γηs χ. π. This is shown by the τον iπ' ουρανωνwhich follows. For this inverted order (characteristic of the Epistle), see note on xii. 11, δικαιοσύνης.

rapairysáµevol] In the innocent (Deut. v. 28,  $\delta\rho\theta\hat{\omega}s...$  $i\lambda\hat{a}\lambda\gamma\sigma a\nu$ ) 'deprecation' of the direct divine speaking at Sinai the sacred writer sees prefigured the sinful refusals of the voice of God in the onward history of Israel, and draws a note of warning from them for Christian days.

τον ἀπ' οὐρανῶν] Understand χρηματίζοντα. For the thought of the Gospel being in all its utterances a voice from heaven, see note on iii. 1, κλήσεως ἐπουρανίου. The key to it is found in the divine personality of the Holy Spirit, whose voice the Gospel is. See I Pet. i. 12, α νῦν ἀνηγγέλη ὑμῦν διὰ τῶν εὐαγγελισαμένων ὑμᾶς πνεύματι ἀγίῷ ἀποσταλέντι ἀπ' οὐρανοῦ.

άποστρεφόμενοι] The middle and passive tenses of ἀποστρέφειν, to turn away from, besides the obvious construction with and (as Jer. iii. 19, πατέρα καλέσετέ με, καὶ ἀπ΄ ἐμοῦ σὐκ ἀποστραφήσεσθε), take also the simple accusative of the person forsaken or shunned. Thus, for example, Jer. xv. 6, σὺ ἀπεστράφης με, λέγει Κύριος. Matt. v. 42, τὸν θέλοντα ἀπὸ σοῦ δανείσασθαι μὴ ἀποστραφῆς. 2 Tim. i. 15, ἀπεστράφησάν με πάντες οἰ ἐν τῦ ᾿Ασία. Tit. i. 14, ἀνθρώπων ἀποστρεφομένων τὴν ἀλήθειαν.

 $\tau \eta \nu \gamma \eta \nu$ ] In preparation for the quotation from Haggai, which speaks of earth and heaven.

ἐσάλευσεν] From σάλος, the swell of the sea (Psalm lxxxix. 9, σὺ δεσπόζεις τοῦ κράτους τῆς θαλάσσης, τὸν δὲ σάλον τῶν κυμάτων αὐτῆς σὺ καταπραῦνεις. Jon. i. 15, καὶ ἔστη ἡ θάλασσα ἐκ τοῦ σάλου κ.τ.λ.), σαλεύειν is to make to rock or reel, to shake, in all senses, literal and figurative. It occurs some γο times in the Septuagint. For example, Psalm xviii. 7, ἐσαλεύθη καὶ ἔντρομος ἐγενήθη ἡ γῆ, καὶ τὰ θεμέλια τῶν ὀρέων ἐταράχθησαν καὶ ἐσαλεύθησαν.

Luke vi. 48, και ούκ ισχυσεν σαλεῦσαι αὐτην κ.τ.λ. Acts iv. 31, έσαλεύθη ο τόπος κ.τ.λ. xvi. 26, ώστε σαλευθήναι τα θεμέλια κ.τ.λ. And metaphorically, Acts xvii. 13, σαλεύοντες και ταράσσοντες του's δχλους. 2 Thess. ii. 2, eis το μή ταχέως σαλευθήναι ύμας από του νοός.

 $v\hat{v}v$ ] In these days of Christ and the Gospel. In reference to the introduction of the new  $\delta ua-\theta \eta \kappa \eta$ . For this use of  $v\hat{v}v$  (or  $vv\hat{v}$ ) see Rom. iii. 21, and note there. The interval of time between the first and the second advent is generally left unnoticed in the Old Testament, and so here; for the prophecy about to be quoted has its fulfilment still in the future.

ἐπήγγελται] He (God) has promised. (I) For ἐπαγγέλλεσθαι, see note on vi. 13. The passive form ἐπήγγελται, used in a middle sense, occurs also in Rom. iv. 21, ὅτι ὅ ἐπήγγελται δυνατός ἐστιν καὶ ποιῆσαι. In Gal. iii. 19,  $\epsilon \pi \eta \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \tau a is$  probably passive in sense as well as in form. And so in 2 Macc. iv. 27,  $\tau \hat{\omega} \nu$   $\delta \epsilon \epsilon \pi \eta \gamma \gamma \epsilon \lambda \mu \epsilon \nu \omega \tau \hat{\omega}$  $\beta a \sigma \iota \lambda \epsilon \hat{\iota} \chi \rho \eta \mu \acute{a} \tau \omega \nu$ . (2) The prophecy is quoted as promise, for such it is to the faithful, notwithstanding its imagery of terror. Compare Luke xxi. 28.

"Eτι aπaξ] Hag. ii. 6, 7 (7, 8 Β), τάδε λέγει Κύριος παντοκράτωρ, "Ετι απαξ έγω σείσω τον ούρανον και την γην, και την θάλασσαν καί την ξηράν, καί συσσείσω πάντα τα έθνη, και ήξει τα έκλεκτα πάντων των έθνων, καί πληρώσω (πλήσω B) τον οἶκον τοῦτον δόξης, λέγει Κύριος παντοκράτωρ. The prophecy was expressly given as an encouragement to the rebuilding of the temple under Zerubbabel and Under the figure of Joshua. a great convulsion affecting all nature (compare Matt. xxiv. 29. Mark xiii. 25. Luke xxi. 26) the introduction of a new dispensation is foretold. And that, not in its inception in the first advent, but in its consummation in the second.

interchangeably. And so commonly in the Septuagint and New Testament. Compare, for example, Matt. xi. 7 (κάλαμον ύπο ανέμου σαλευόμενον) with Rev. vi. 13 (συκη ... υπο ανέμου μεγάλου σειομένη). Acts xvi. 26 (σεισμός έγένετο μέγας ώστε σαλευθήναι τὰ θεμέλια τοῦ δεσμωτηρίου) with Matt. xxvii. 51 (η) γή εσείσθη και αι πέτραι εσχίσθησαν). Acts xvii. 13 (σαλεύοντες και ταράσσοντες τους όχλους) with Matt. xxi. 10 (ἐσείσθη πάσα ή πόλις). 2 Thess. ii. 2 with Matt. xxviii. 4.

ου μόνον... αλλα καί] A variation for the sake of emphasis.

27.  $\tau \delta$   $\delta \epsilon \epsilon \tau i a \pi a \xi$ ] The neuter article serves the purpose (as usual) of the inverted commas of quotation. See, for example, iii. 3,  $\tau \delta$  or  $\eta \mu \epsilon \rho \sigma \sigma$ . Matt. xix. 18,  $\tau \delta$  où  $\phi \rho v \epsilon \dot{v} \sigma \epsilon \sigma$ . Matt. xix. 18,  $\tau \delta$  où  $\phi \rho \sigma \dot{v} \dot{\mu} \rho$  où  $\kappa \tau \lambda$ . Rom. xiii. 9,  $\tau \delta$   $\gamma a \rho$  où  $\mu o \chi \epsilon \dot{v} \sigma \epsilon \kappa \tau \cdot \lambda$ . Gal. v. 14,  $\dot{\epsilon} v$  $\tau \psi$  a  $\gamma a \pi \dot{\eta} \sigma \epsilon \sigma \kappa \tau \cdot \lambda$ . Eph. iv. 9,  $\tau \delta$   $\delta \dot{\epsilon} a \dot{v} \epsilon \beta \eta \tau i \dot{\epsilon} \sigma \tau \dot{v} \epsilon \dot{\epsilon} \mu \dot{\eta} \kappa \tau \cdot \lambda$ .

δηλοί] By the finality of its terms. There can be no further thing after the έτι άπαξ. For δηλοί, compare ix. 8, τοῦτο δηλοῦντος τοῦ πνεύματος τοῦ άγίου.

of those things which are thus declared to be in process of being shaken. The prediction ( $\sigma\epsilon i\sigma\omega$ ) is treated as involving a process already at work ( $\sigma a \lambda \epsilon v \omega \mu \epsilon v \omega \nu$ ). Compare viii. 13. See note on  $\sigma\epsilon i\sigma\omega$  (verse 26) for the identity (here implied) of  $\sigma\epsilon i\epsilon \nu$  and  $\sigma a$ - $\lambda \epsilon v \epsilon \nu$ . ł μετάθεσιν] Displacement (as in vii. 12), not mere transposition (as in xi. 5). See note on vii. 12.

 $ω_s π εποιημένων$ ] As of things made (created), and therefore essentially temporal and perishable. See note on i. 2, εποίησεν.

iva  $\mu\epsilonivg$ ] Depending (practically) upon  $\mu\epsilon\tau ad\theta \epsilon \sigma u$ , not upon  $\delta\eta\lambda \delta i$ . It is as if  $\tau \eta \nu \tau a \nu \sigma$ .  $\mu\epsilon\tau a\theta \epsilon \sigma u \nu$  had been  $\tau \delta \tau a$   $\sigma a$ - $\lambda\epsilon v \delta \mu \epsilon v a \mu\epsilon \tau a \tau i \theta \epsilon \sigma \theta a$ . Created things are displaced, to bring into view the permanence of the eternal.

28.  $\delta \omega \delta$  Wherefore. Considering this prophecy ( $\xi \tau \iota \delta \pi a \xi \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ .), and the gracious purpose of it (iva  $\mu \epsilon i v \eta \tau a \mu \eta \sigma$ .), and our interest in it.

ἀσάλευτον] Acts xxvii. 41. Also Exod. xiii. 16, καὶ ἔσται εἰς σημεῖον ἐπὶ τῆς χειρός σου, καὶ ἀσάλευτον πρὸ ὀφθαλμῶν σου. Deut. vi. 8. xi. 18.

παραλαμβάνοντες In course of receiving. The kingdom is not yet come, but the process of its coming is begun. The compound verb παραλαμβάνειν is (1) to take as by transmission from hand to hand (as in Mark vii. 4, καὶ άλλα πολλά ἐστιν å παρέλαβον κρατείν. Dan. v. 31, παρέλαβε την βασιλείαν. vii. 18, και παραλήψονται την βασι- $\lambda \epsilon i a \nu$  a yioi  $\psi i \sigma \tau o v$ . &c.), and so to take from the hand of another (as here, and Gal. i. 12, ούδε γαρ εγώ παρά άνθρώπου παρέλαβον αυτό. Phil. iv. 9. 2 Thess. iii. 6, κατά την παράδοσιν ήν παρελάβετε παρ' ήμων. &c.; (2) to take to (or by) one's side, to take to (or with) one (as in Matt. i. 20, 24. ii. 13, 14, 20, 21. xii. 45. John xiv. 3. Acts xv. 39. &c.).

 $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\nu}]$  Let us have. It is ours if we will. Let us keep having. It is the  $\kappa\rho\alpha\tau\hat{\omega}\mu\epsilon\nu$  of iv. 14. Here, as in Rom. v. 1 ( $\epsilon i\rho\eta\nu\eta\nu$   $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\nu}$ ), there is a variety of reading between  $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\chi\omega-\mu\epsilon\nu}$  and  $\tilde{\epsilon}_{\chi\omega\mu\epsilon\nu}$ .

 $\chi'_{a\rho\nu}$  See note on iv. 16, where it is distinguished from  $\lambda \epsilon_{05}$ . From its original sense of free favour comes that of gracious influence, for with God feeling is never divorced from action. Benevolence and beneficence are with Him one.

δί ής λατρεύωμεν] Per quam serviamus (Vulgate). Whereby to serve. It is equivalent to iva δί αὐτῆς λ. A more frequent construction in Latin than in Greek. Compare Acts xxi. 16, ἀγοντες παρ' ξ ξενισθῶμεν κ.τ.λ. For λατρεύειν, see note on viii. 5.

εὐαρέστως] The adverbial form (for which Xenophon is quoted) occurs only here in the New Testament. For εὐάρεστος, see xiii. 21, ποιῶν ἐν ὑμῖν τὸ εὐάρεστον. Rom. xii. 1, θυσίαν ἀγίαν εὐάρεστον τῷ Θεῷ. xiv. 18. 2 Cor. v. q. Eph. v.

io. Phil. iv. 18. Col. iii. 20. Tit. ii. 9. For the verb evaρεστείν, see xi. 5, 6. xiii. 16.

eða $\beta$ eías kal déous] The reading of the revised text for the aidoùs kal eða $\beta$ eías of the received. (Thus aidòùs survives in Scripture in 1 Tim. ii. 9 only. We have aideirda in 2 Macc. iv. 34, and aid $\eta$ µµµ in 2 Macc. xv. 12.) For eða $\beta$ eia, see note on v. 7. 29. каì үа́р] For also (besides other considerations). For καί γάρ, see note on v. 12. No attempt must be made to connect sai with yuw (our God also, or even our God, as though in contrast with the God of the This would be a Israelites). thoroughly unscriptural and heterodox conception. The sal belongs to the sentence, which is a quotation from Deut. iv. 24, ότι Κύριος ο Θεός σου πῦρ καταναλίσκον έστι, Θεός ζηλωτής. Also ix. 3. A comparison of the two passages in Deuteronomy gives the two aspects of the figure of fire in application to God. The first is a warning against trifling with Him. The second is a promise of protection against foes. The fire which consumes evil is also a 'fire of love.' 'Keep far our foes...Where Thou art guide, no ill can come.'

XIII. 1. 'H  $\phi i\lambda a \delta \epsilon \lambda \phi i a$   $\mu \epsilon \nu \epsilon \tau \omega$ ] The chapter opens with separate precepts of Christian living. But it soon passes into the grand subject of the Epistle: the law in all its parts is a  $\sigma \kappa \omega$   $\tau \omega \nu \mu \epsilon \lambda \lambda \delta \nu \tau \omega \nu$ ,  $\tau \delta \delta \epsilon \sigma \omega \mu a \tau \sigma \omega$  $\lambda \rho \iota \sigma \tau \sigma \omega$ .

 $\eta \phi$ .] The article makes it φιλαδελφία universal. So in verse 2, της φιλοξενίας. Compare Rom. xii. 9, 10, ή άγάπη... τή φιλαδελφία κ.τ.λ. I Thess. iv. 9, περί δε της φιλαδελφίας. 2 Pet. i. 7, ev de rý evore βεία την φιλαδελφίαν, έν δε τη φιλαδελφία την αγάπην. The grace of *φ*ιλαδελφία is only named (elsewhere) by St Paul and St Peter, though St John is full of it in the equivalent form of άγαπώμεν τούς άδελφούς. In the passage quoted above from 2 Pet. i. 7, φιλαδελφία is distinguished from  $dy d\pi \eta$ , the former being the love of Christians. the latter the love of mankind.  $\mu \epsilon \nu \epsilon \tau \omega$ ] See notes on x. 34 ( $\mu \epsilon \nu \circ \nu \sigma a \nu$ ) and xii. 27 ( $\mu \epsilon \epsilon \nu \eta$ ).

2. της φιλοξενίας Love of strangers. The word hospitality has sunk from its Scripture Rom. xii. 13, The oldolevel. EEVíav διώκοντες (as though a difficult grace; see note on xii. 14). Also φιλόξενος, as one of the characteristic epithets of the presbyter (ἐπίσκοπος), standing between róomos and Sidarτικός, in I Tim. iii. 2 (compare Tit. i. 8); and as a universal Christian virtue, in I Pet. iv. 9, φιλόξενοι είς αλλήλους ανευ yoyyvopov. See also Matt. xxv. 35, ξένος ημην και συνηγάγετέ 3 John 5, άγαπητέ, πιστον με. ποιείς ο έαν έργάση είς τους άδελφούς και τουτο ξένους.

 $i \pi i \lambda a \nu \theta a' \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ ] Also verse 16, and vi. 10. The word occurs only eight times in the New Testament, but about 120 times in the Septuagint. It seems to be followed (indifferently) by a genitive or an accusative; sometimes by  $\delta \tau i$ , an infinitive, or even a nominative participle.

čλαθόν τ. ξενίσαντες] This (classical) idiom occurs only here in the New Testament. There is one approach to it in the Septuagint, Wisd. i. 8. Escaped (their own) notice in having entertained. Found afterwards that they had unwittingly entertained. The reference is to the Old Testament history, Gen. xviii. 3. xix. 2. Jud. vi. 18, 22. xiii. 15, 16.

3. μιμνήσκεσθε] See note on ii. 6, μιμνήσκη.

μ. τών δεσμίων] Matt. XXV. 36, εν φυλακή ήμην καὶ ήλθατε πρός με. Col. iv. 18, μνημονεύετέ μου τών δεσμών. See also notes on X. 34, καὶ γὰρ τοῖς δεσμίοις συνεπαθήσατε.

 $\dot{\omega}_{\text{s}}...\dot{\omega}_{\text{s}}$ ] The former  $\dot{\omega}_{\text{s}}$  is as if, the latter as. The former prescribes an effort of feeling, the latter the recognition of a fact.

συνδεδεμένοι] The verb occurs only here in the New Testament. In the Septuagint, it generally means (like σύνδεσμος) to fetter, as in Exod. xiv. 25, καὶ συνέδησε τοὺς ắξονας τῶν ἀρμάτων αὐτῶν. The nearest approach to the figurative sense here is in 1 Sam. xviii. 1, καὶ ή ψυχὴ Ἰωνάθαν συνεδέθη τῆ ψυχὴ Ἰωνάθαν $\tau \hat{\omega} v \kappa \alpha \kappa$ .] There is no connecting particle, in order to give the idea of in other words, or that is to say; though in fact the scope of the clause is wider than that of the preceding.

οντες έν σώματι] See 2 Cor. ν. 6, ἐνδημοῦντες ἐν τῷ σώματι. xii. 2, 3, εἶτε ἐν σώματι...εἶτε ἐκτὸς τοῦ σώματος. The phrase is equivalent to ἐν σαρκί, 2 Cor. x. 3, ἐν σαρκὶ γὰρ περιπατοῦντες κ.τ.λ. Gal. ii. 20, ὅ δὲ νῦν ζῶ ἐν σαρκί.

4.  $\tau(\mu uos)$  The passage resembles, in its disjointed and fragmentary construction, Rom. xii. 9, &c. For  $\tau(\mu uos)$ , in the sense not of valuable or precious (which is the commoner of the two), but of honourable, held in honour, see Acts v. 34,  $\tau(\mu uos)$  $\pi a vri r \hat{\psi} \lambda a \hat{\psi}$ .

τ. ό γάμος] Understand not έστὶν but ἔστω, as (unquestionably) in verse 5, and in Rom. xii. 9, ἡ ἀγάπη ἀνυπόκριτος. The γὰρ (instead of δὲ) of the revised text makes this certain.

ο γάμος] Only here in the sense of the ordinance of marriage. Elsewhere in the New Testament it always means either a particular marriage (as John ii. 1), or the feast celebrating it (Matt. xxii. 8).

ἐν πῶσιν] Either (1) in all respects (as in verse 18, ἐν πῶσιν καλῶς θέλοντες ἀναστρέφεσθαι. Phil. iv. 12, ἐν παντὶ καὶ ἐν πα̂σιν μεμύημαι κ.τ.λ. I Tim. iii. 11, πιστὰs ἐν πα̂σιν. 2 Tim. iv. 5, σὺ δὲ νῆφε ἐν πα̂σιν. Tit. ii. 9); or (2) amongst or in the judgment or estimation of all men (as in 2 Cor. xi. 6, where ἐν παντὶ occurs in the same clause, and not, as in Phil. iv. 12, in combination with it).

άμίαντος] That is, έστω. For άμίαντος, see note on vii. 26.

5. αφιλάργυρος...αρκούμενοι Compare Rom. xii. 9, y ayany άνυπόκριτος ... άποστυγοῦντες ... κολλώμενοι κ.τ.λ. For αφιλάρyupos, see I Tim. iii. 3 (only). We have φιλάργυρος (as descriptive of the Pharisees) in Luke xvi. 14, and (as characteristic of the raipol xalenol) in 2 Tim. iii. 2. Also φιλαργυρία (as a ρίζα πάντων τών rarŵr) in 1 Tim. vi. 10. And φιλαργυρείν in 2 Macc. x. 20. Between  $\phi_i\lambda_a\rho_\gamma v\rho_i a$  and  $\pi\lambda_{\epsilon 0}$ vetía the obvious difference is that between avarice and covetousness, but φιλαργυρία may include both.

ό τρόπος] Again understand έστω. Let your disposition be unavaricious. The word τρόπος (turn) has various applications, of which (1) the commonest is manner or fashion, as öν τρόπον (Matt. xxiii. 37. Luke xiii.

άρκούμενοι τοῖς παροῦσιν· αὐτὸς γὰρ εἴρηκεν, Οὐ μή σε ἀνῶ οὐδ' οὐ μή σε ἐγκαταλίπω· ὥστε 6 34. Acts i. 11. vii. 28. 2 Tim. iii. 8),  $\kappa a \theta$  or  $\tau p \circ \pi o v$  (Acts xv. 11. XXVII. 25), παντί τρόπω (Phil. i. 18), έν παντί τρόπω (2 Thess. iii. 16), κατά πάντα τρόπον (Rom. iii. 2), τον δμοιον τρόπον τούτοις (Jude 7); and (2) the rarest (in Scripture), disposition or character, here only in the New Testament; and in the Septuagint, 2 Macc. v. 22, το μέν γένος Φρύγα, τον δε τρόπον βαρβαρώτερον έχοντα τοῦ καταστήσαντος. viii. 36, και δια τόν τρόπον τουτον ατρώτους είναι τούς Ίουδαίους.

αρκούμενοι] The clauses are loosely strung together, just as in the passage above quoted from Rom. xii., and in I Pet. iii. 8, &c. But the precept of contentment is closely connected with that of unavariciousness. In the active voice,  $d\rho\kappa \epsilon v$  is to suffice, to be sufficient. So in Matt. xxv. 9. John vi. 7. xiv. 8. 2 Cor. xii. 9, aprei ooi ή χάρις μου. And this is its almost invariable use in the Septuagint. Exod. xii. 4, eraoros το άρκούν αύτώ κ.τ.λ. Num. xi. 22. I Kings viii. 27, et o ovρανός καί ό ούρανός του ούρανου ούκ αρκέσουσί σοι κ.τ.λ. Prov. ΧΧΧ. 16, και ύδωρ και πυρ ου μη είπωσιν, άρκει. But άρκεισθαι (middle or passive) is to be contented or satisfied with (followed by a dative, with or without  $\epsilon \pi i$ ). Thus here, and Luke iii. 14, αρκείσθε τοῖς ὀψωνίοις ὑμῶν. 1 Tim. vi. 8, τούτοις ἀρκεσθησόμεθα. 3 John 10, καὶ μὴ ἀρκούμενος ἐπὶ τούτοις κ.τ.λ. Also in 2 Macc. v. 15, οὖκ ἀρκεσθεὶς δὲ τούτοις.

τοῖς παροῦσιν] Compare Phil. iv. 11, 12, ἐγὼ γὰρ ἔμαθον ἐν οἶς εἰμὶ αὐτάρκης εἶναι κ.τ.λ.

auto's yap For He (God) Himself has said. The passage referred to is Deut. xxxi. 5, ανδρίζου καὶ ἴσχυε, μη φοβοῦ μηδε δειλία... ότι Κύριος ο Θεός σου ούτος ό προπορευόμενος μεθ ύμων, ού μή σε άνη ουδ ού μή σε έγκαταλίπη. Compare also Gen. xxviii. 15, ότι ου μή σε έγκαταλίπω, έως κ.τ.λ. Deut. xxxi. 8, ούκ ανήσει σε ούδ' ού μη έγκαταλίπη σε. Josh. i. 5, και ούκ εγκαταλείψω σε, ούδε ύπερόψομαί σε. I Chron. xxviii. 20, ούκ ανήσει σε, ούδ ού μή σε έγκαταλίπη έως κ.τ.λ. But no one of these is so close to the words before us as the first quoted.

 $d\nu\omega$ ] Forms of  $d\nu\iota\epsilon\nua\iota$  occur more than 30 times in the Septuagint, but only four times (in all) in the New Testament. Acts xvi. 26,  $\pi d\nu\tau\omega\nu \tau a$   $\delta\epsilon\sigma\mu a$  $d\nu\epsilon\theta\eta$ . xxvii. 40,  $d\mu a$   $d\nu\epsilon\nu\tau\epsilons$   $\tau as$  $\xi\epsilon\nu\kappa\tau\eta\rho\iotaas$   $\tau\omega\nu$   $\pi\eta\delta a\lambda\iota\omega\nu$ . Eph. vi. 9,  $d\nu\iota\epsilon\nu\tau\epsilons$   $\tau\eta\nu$   $d\pi\epsilon\iota\lambda\eta\nu$ . For  $\epsilon\gamma\kappa ara\lambda\epsilon(\pi\epsilon\iota\nu$ , see note on x. 25.

 δστε...λέγειν] So that we say (not may say). The tense implies, It is our habitual language.

 $\theta$ appoûvras] With confidence or good courage. Elsewhere, in the New Testament  $\theta$ appeûv occurs only in 2 Cor. v. 6, 8. vii. 16. x. 1, 2. In the Septuagint, only in Prov. i. 21,  $\epsilon \pi i$  dè  $\pi i \lambda a is \pi o \lambda \epsilon \omega s$   $\theta$ appoûva  $\lambda \epsilon j \epsilon i.$ The form  $\theta$ aporêv appears to be used only in the imperative ( $\theta a \rho \sigma \epsilon i \tau \epsilon$ ) in the Septuagint and New Testament, except in Prov. xxxi. 11.

Kiριοs] Psalm exviii. 6. The insertion or omission of κai before oi (both here and in the Septuagint) is a doubtful point, and quite immaterial. Also the punctuation. The Revised Version places a colon after  $\phi o\beta \eta \theta \eta \sigma o \mu a$ . The Authorized made no stop before  $\tau i \kappa. \tau. \lambda$ .

τί ποιήσει μοι ἄνθρ.] The dative after ποιεῦν is strictly not to but for (in relation to). What shall a human being do for my hurt? Compare Matt. XXVII. 22 (τί οὖν ποιήσω Ἰησοῦν  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda$ .) with Matt. XXV. 40 (ἐφ΄ ὄσον ἐποιήσατε ἐνὶ τούτων...ἐμοὶ ἐποιήσατε). For ἄνθρωπος, see note on ii. 6, ἄνθρωπος...νἰὸς ἀνθρώπου. 7. Μνημονεύετε] See note on xi. 15, εἰ μὲν ἐμνημόνευσι. The tense says, Have in constant remembrance.

τών ηγουμένων υμών] Your leaders, as in verses 17 and 24. The context here shows that the reference is to departed leaders. Those who did lead you. There is some doubt as to the special reference. It would be sufficient to point to the martyrdoms of the pastors of the Church of Jerusalem in the persons of St Stephen and St James the Apostle, and of others who fell in early times of persecution. But it is far more probable that there is a peculiar allusion here to a recent event (which may itself help to date the Epistle), the martyrdom of St James 'the Lord's brother,' the resident head and president of the congregations of the mother Church of Jerusalem. For this use of nyeiodas (either absolute, or with a genitive, or with  $i\pi i$ Twos or Twa), to lead or guide, and (in that sense) to rule, see Matt. ii. 6, έκ σοῦ γὰρ ἐξελεύσεται ήγούμενος, όστις ποιμανεί τον λαόν μου. ών ἀναθεωροῦντες] And, reviewing the issue (exit) of their manner of life, imitate their faith. The death they died is described as the result or issue of the particular life they lived (ἀναστροφή, not βίος). Having lived as they did, they (naturally and consequently) died as they did. Study those deaths. See in them the product of those lives. (1) For ἀναθεωρεῖν, to contemplate analytically (ab imo ad summum), to study attentively, see Acts xvii. 23, διερχόμενος γάρ καὶ ἀναθεωρῶν τὰ σεβάσματα ύμων κ.τ.λ. (2) For έκβασις, egress or way out, see I Cor. x. 13, αλλα ποιήσει σύν τώ πειρασμῷ καὶ τὴν ἔκβασιν (the suitable and appropriate way of escape). Compare Wisd. ii. 17, ίδωμεν εί οἱ λόγοι αὐτοῦ ἀληθεῖς, καὶ πειράσωμεν τὰ ἐν ἐκβάσει avroû. (The word ¿Eolos is used in the same general sense in Luke ix. 31, την έξοδον αὐτοῦ ην ημελλεν πληρούν έν Ίερουσαλήμ. 2 Pet. i. 15, μετά την έμην έξοδον.) (3) For αναστροφή, manner of life, life in movement (so suitable in combination with ¿Eodos, life's departing movement), see its three uses by St Paul (Gal. i. 13, The dune αναστροφήν ποτε έν τω 'Ι. Eph. iv. 22. I Tim. iv. 12), and its eight uses by St Peter (I Pet. i. 15, 18. ii. 12. iii. 1, 2, 16. 2 Pet. ii. 7. iii. 11). Also James iii. 13. See note on x. 33, τών ούτως αναστρεφομένων.

 $\mu\mu\epsilon\hat{i}\sigma\theta\epsilon$ ] Imitate. Copy. The follow of the Authorized Version is the rendering of another word, and represents a different figure. Imitate is not a pleasing word, and imitation is not an attractive idea, but it is classical English, and takes a new association in its Scriptural 8 την πίστιν. use. See note on vi. 12, μιμηταί.

8. Ίησοῦς Χριστός] A new sentence, with an aspect behind and before. (1) Jesus Christ, who strengthened your departed pastors to live and to die, is the same also for you. Imitate their faith. (2) Jesus Christ is not Yea and Nay (2 Cor. i. 19). He changes not. Be not carried astray by novel and shifting doctrines. The ambiguous rendering of Expaoir in the Authorized Version (end) in verse 7, and the strange omission of the verb is in this verse, led to an entirely mistaken interpretation (as though Expaour had been rélos, and Jesus Christ were in apposition with it as in Rom. x. 4), and by degrees to an alteration of the full stop into a colon at the end of the 7th verse.

I. X.  $i\chi \partial i s$  κ. σ. o a viros]Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and to-day, and for ever. The notes of time are two, not (as in the Authorized Version) three. (1) The same to-day as yesterday: (2) the same for ever. (1) The same at this day as in the 'yesterday' of your departed  $i\gamma o vi \mu vo vo - (2)$  the same in the longest future of time and eternity. Therefore (1) trust as they trusted. Therefore (2) hold fast the faith once for all delivered.

 $i\chi\theta$ is kai  $\sigma'\eta\mu\rho\rho\sigma'$ ] In contrast with 'the changes and chances of mortal life': Ecclus XXXVIII. 22,  $i\mu\alpha$ i  $i\chi\theta$ is kai  $\sigma\alpha$ i  $\sigma'\eta\mu\rho\sigma\sigma$ . The reading of the received text is  $\chi\theta$ is in each of the three places where the revised text has  $i\chi\theta$ is (here, and John iv. 52, and Acts vii. 28). In the Septuagint the two forms are found indiscriminately, and most often in the combination  $i\chi\theta$ is (or  $\chi\theta$ is) kai  $r\mu$ i- $\tau\eta\nu$   $i\mu\rho\sigma\mu$ , heretofore or beforetime.

ό αὐτός] See i. 12 (from Psalm cii. 28), σὺ δὲ ὁ αὐτὸς εἰ, καὶ τὰ ἔτη σου οὐκ ἐκλείψουσικ. Compare Mal. iii. 6, ἐγώ Κύριος ὁ Θεὸς ὑμῶν οὐκ ἠλλοίωμαι.

kai eis rois alwas] Added with something of that love of completing which we notice in such passages as I Cor. iii. 23 and xi. 3. As regards the foregoing context, the thought was complete without this clause, but it lays the foundation for the charge which follows.

9.  $\delta_i \delta a \chi a \hat{s}$ ] The warning is evidently directed primarily against Judaizing errors. The unchangeableness of Jesus Christ in His evangelical teaching is the point now in view. Of  $\delta_i$ - $\delta a \chi \gamma$  in the plural this is the ποικίλαις] See note on ii. 4. The first meaning of ποικίλος (the χιτών ποικίλος of Gen. xxxvii. 3) well suits the patchwork effect of grafting Judaism upon the Gospel.

 $\xi$ ivais] See note on xi. 13. The foreign speech of Judaism is added by this word to the motley garb ( $\pi o \iota \kappa i \lambda a \iota s$ ).

 $\pi a \rho a \phi \dot{\epsilon} \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ ] The received text had  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \phi \dot{\epsilon} \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ , as  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \cdot \phi \epsilon \rho \dot{\rho} \phi \mu \epsilon \nu a \iota$  in Jude 12. The difference is that between carried about and carried astray (properly, by the side of instead of in the right course). The form  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \phi \dot{\epsilon} \rho \epsilon \sigma \theta a \iota$  (in such an application) survives only in Eph. iv. 14).

καλὸν γάρ] The right food for the heart's health is χάρις, not βρώματα. Distinctions of clean and unclean, lawful and forbidden, in matters of eating and drinking, are utterly beside the mark of spiritual profiting. It is our Lord's argument in Mark vii. 15, 18, 19 (where the revised text reads  $\kappa a\theta a$ - $\rho(\zeta w, 'This He said, making$  $all meats clean'). As no <math>\beta \rho \hat{\omega} \mu a$ can defile, so can no  $\beta \rho \hat{\omega} \mu a$ edify. For  $\kappa a \lambda \hat{o} \nu$  in this use (without  $\hat{\epsilon} \sigma \hat{\nu} \nu$ ) see Rom. xiv. 21. I Cor. vii. 1, 8, 26. ix. 15. Gal. iv. 18.

 $\chi$ άριτι] See notes on ii. 9 (χάριτι Θεοῦ) and xii. 28 (ἔχωμεν χάριν). Divine favour, which is the first thought in χάρις, passes on into the exercise and manifestation of it in divine influence.

βεβαιοῦσθαι] Should be made firm and stedfast. See I Cor. i. 8, ôs καὶ βεβαιώσει ὑμῶς ἔως τέλους κ.τ.λ. 2 Cor. i. 21, ô δὲ βεβαιῶν ἡμῶς σὺν ὑμῖν εἰς Χριστὸν...Θεός. Col. ii. 7, καὶ βεβαιούμενοι τῆ πίστει κ.τ.λ. See notes on ii. 2, 3 (βέβαιος, ἐβεβαιώθη) and vi. 16 (βεβαίωσιν).

ού βρώμασιν] There is disparagement in the tone. Not by such things as βρώματα. Compare Rom. xiv. 15, 20, ei γὰρ διὰ βρώμα ὁ ἀδελφός σου λυπείται...μὴ τῷ βρώματί σου ἐκείνον ἀπόλλυε ὑπὲρ οῦ Χριστὸς ἀπέθανεν...μὴ ἔνεκεν βρώματος iv ols κ.τ.λ.] In which (βρώmager) they who were wont to walk were not benefited. The revised text has repiratouvies (instead of περιπατήσαντες), with the effect expressed in the above rendering (were wont to). Evidently the reference is to the niceties of the Rabbinical system in reference to ceremonial matters. (See Matt. xxiii. throughout.) For mepimareir ev, to walk about in, to have one's daily life contained in and circumscribed by, to have for one's whole occupation and interest, see Eph. ii. 2, ev αίς ποτέ περιεπατήσατε κατά τόν αίωνα του κόσμου τούτου. Col. iii. 7, έν οἶς καὶ ὑμεῖς περιεπατήσατέ ποτε ότε έζητε έν τού-TOLS.

οὐκ ώφελήθησαν] Were not benefited in a real and spiritual sense. The aorist throws the whole Rabbinical system into the past, as a thing exploded and abolished. See notes on viii. 13. Also on iv. 2 (ὡφćλησεν) and vii. 18 (ἀνωφελές). Compare Matt. xvi. 26, τί γὰρ ὡφεληθήσεται ἀνθρωπος κ.τ.λ Mark viii. 36. Luke ix. 25. 10-13. έχομεν κ.τ.λ.] This playing with Judaism implies a mistrust of the sufficiency of the Gospel. The whole law of ceremony and ritual centred in its altar of sacrifice. It was that which gave point and meaning to the system. Now that altar is ours, as Christians, not in type but in antitype. Ours, to the exclusion of all who cling to the shadow when the substance is come. Ours, to the exclusion of the very priests of the old order. And of that exclusion we have a type in the burning without the camp of the bodies of the two victims on the day of Atonement. The priests had no share whatever in those victims. And that no feature of that typical ritual might be left unfulfilled, Jesus suffered outside the gate of JeruXIII. 10, 11.

¿Eovoíav] This word, so frequent elsewhere in Scripture, occurs here only in this Epistle. (1) Formed from iteoriv (ito'), its proper idea is that of lawful power (whether original or delegated), authority, right, &c.; and it is thus distinguished from δύναμις, ίσχύς, κράτος, &c. iva ayiaoy | Does this clause depend (1) only upon  $\epsilon \pi a \theta \epsilon \nu$ , or (2) upon the whole phrase  $\xi \omega$  $\tau \eta s \pi v \lambda \eta s \xi \pi a \theta \epsilon v$ ? If (1), the sense is, He suffered iva ayiáry  $\kappa.\tau.\lambda.$ , and with this particular point of characterization, namely, that it was it πύλης. If (2), That His work of sanctifying might be effectual, as lacking no one point of fulfilment of the type, He suffered the ris πύλης. The question is somewhat like that on John xix. 28, whether the clause iva  $\tau\epsilon$ λειωθη ή γραφή depends upon the ηδη πάντα τετέλεσται before it or upon the  $\lambda \epsilon \gamma \epsilon \Delta \iota \psi \hat{\omega}$  after it; whether, that is, the fulfilment of Scripture is spoken of as the object of the  $\pi \dot{a} \nu \tau a$ , or of the special particular of the thirst. It is difficult (in either case) to answer it.

of the Levitical day of atonement aγιάζειν τον λαόν. The word ayiager occurs in the directions for the ceremonial of that day (Lev. xvi.) only in verse 19, και καθαριεί αυτό (the altar), και άγιάσει αυτό άπο τών ακαθαρσιών τών υίων Ισραήλ. But the sense of ayia (av lies in the phrase which is used in verse 17, και έξιλάσεται...περί πάσης συναγωγής υίων Ίσραήλ. That which was there done in type (1) by the blood of animal victims (2) for the national Israel, Jesus did effectually (1) by His own blood (2) for the greater Israel, of every kindred and tongue and people and nation (Rev. v. 9). For ayia-Lew, see note on ii. II, ayia Low ... ayia jou evoi. But here the exact thought in ayiaon seems to be that of a consecration effected by the removal of guilt by an availing atonement. So that the best reference will be to the ayiage of ix. 13, where see the note,

έξω τῆς πύλης] The revised text of John xix. 20 stands in this order: ὅτι ἐγγὺς ἦν ὅ τόπος τῆς πόλεως (for τῆς πόλεως ὅ τόπος) ὅπου ἐσταυρώθη ὅ Ἰησοῦς, leaving room (at least) for the marginal rendering of the Revised Version. In such a matter as the place of crucifixion the writer and the readers of an Epistle to the Hebrews written certainly within 40 years of the event may be trusted to have known the truth.

έπαθεν] Suffered. For this phrase for a death by violence, see ix. 26, έπεὶ ἔδει αὐτὸν πολλάκις παθεῖν. Also Luke xxii. 15, πρὸ τοῦ με παθεῖν. xxiv. 46. Acts i. 3, μετὰ τὸ παθεῖν αὐτόν. iii. 18, παθεῖν τὸν Χριστόν. xvii. 3. I Pet. ii. 21. iv. 1, Χριστοῦ οὖν παθόντος σαρκί...ὅ παθών σαρκί κ.τ.λ.

τοίνυν] The place of τοίνυν as the first word in a sentence is unclassical, but the revised text gives another example of it in Luke xx. 25, τοίνυν ἀπόδοτε τὰ Καίσαρος Καίσαρι. It stands in its proper place in I Cor. ix. 26, ἐγώ τοίνυν οῦτως τρέχω κ.τ.λ.

έξερχώμεθα] See note on xi. 8, ποῦ ἔρχεται. The call is not to go but to come: the voice is from the cross. γὰρ ἕχομεν ώδε μένουσαν πόλιν, ἀλλὰ τὴν 15 μέλλουσαν ἐπιζητοῦμεν. δι' αὐτοῦ οὖν ἀναφέρωμεν θυσίαν αἰνέσεως διὰ παντὸς τῷ Θεῷ, 14. où  $\gamma \alpha \rho$ ] Reason for consenting to the call of verse 13. Reconciling ourselves to a present expatriation by the thought of the  $\pi \delta \lambda \iota s$  that is to be. Compare xi. 9, 10, 13–16.

την μέλλουσαν] That city which is to be. See xi. 10, 16, την τοὺς θεμελίους ἔχουσαν πόλιν ...ήτοίμασεν γὰρ αὐτοῖς πόλιν. ἐπιζητοῦμεν] See xi. 14, ἐμφανίζουσιν ὅτι πατρίδα ἐπιζητοῦσιν.

15. δι' αὐτοῦ κ.τ.λ.] Our sacrifices now are not carnal. Praise and thanksgiving, beneficence and almsgiving, these are now the accepted offerings—and all through Him.

ovoíar airéoeus] This was the name in the Levitical ritual for that particular form of the peace-offering which was offered as a thanksgiving. κοινωνίας] Like κοινωνείν (see note on ii. 14, κεκοινώνηκεν), κοινωνία, of which the primary idea is that of going shares with another in something, divides into the two senses of (1) partaking and (2) imparting. Examples of (1) are found in 1 Cor. i. 9 (τοῦ υἰοῦ αὐτοῦ). x. 16 (τοῦ αἶματος...τοῦ σώματος). 2 Cor. viii. 4 (τη̂ς διακονίας). xiii. 13 (τοῦ ἀγίου πνεύματος). Phil. ii. 1 (πνεύματος). iii. 10 (π a θ η μ a τ ω v). Philem. 6 (τ η sπίστεως). And to this head belong the instances of KOLVWVIA as partnership, fellowship, communion, either absolutely, or with eis, mpos, or mera. Of (2), here, and in Rom. xv. 26, κοινωνίαν τινά ποιήσασθαι είς τούς πτωχούς κ.τ.λ. 2 Cor. ix. 13, καὶ ἀπλότητι τῆς κοινωνίας εἰς αύτοὺς καὶ εἰς πάντας.

θυσίαιs] Thus under the Gospel we have the word θυσίαand the idea of sacrifice appropriated to three main particulars. (1) The sacrifice of the body or living man: Rom. xii, 1, παραστήσαι τὰ σώματα ὑμῶν θυσῷ κ.τ.λ. (2) The sacrifice of the separate acts of the life, whether of worship or conduct: 1 Pet. ii. 5, καὶ αὐτοὶ...εἰs ἰεράτευμα ἁχιον, ἀνενέγκαι πνευματικῶs θυσίαs εὐπροσδέκτουs Θεῷ διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ. (3) The special

ciapeστείται] From ciápeστος, acceptable, comes ciapeστείν, to be acceptable to (τινί, xi. 5, 6, or ἐνώπιον or ἐναντίον τινός, Psalm cxvi. 9. Gen. xvii. 1), and here (only) in the passive, εναρεστείσθαι (τινί), to be well pleased with.

17. Πείθεσθε...καὶ ὑπείκετε] Trust and yield. Both are claimed for the ἡγούμενοι. Can the work of the Church be done without both ?

τοῖς ἡγουμένοις ὑμῶν] See verse 7. There the ἡγούμενοι were in the past : their ἔκβασις was a memory. Here, and in verse 24, they are the living pastors of the Church or Churches addressed in the Epistle.

 $\dot{v}\pi\epsilon i\kappa\epsilon\tau\epsilon$ ] The word  $\dot{v}\pi\epsilon i\kappa\epsilon\iota\nu$ (largely used in classical Greek) is found only here in the Greek Bible. It seems to express that yielding of the self-will to the judgment of another, which recognizes constituted authority even while it maintains personal independence.

airol  $\gamma \alpha \rho$ ] For they on their part. The airol (always emphatic in the nominative) contrasts the toilsome and responsible work of the minister with the easier correlative duty of the people. See notes on airol, i. 11. iii. 10. viii. 9.

aypunvoûour] From the classical αγρυπνος (αγρείν, αγρεύειν, and vervos), properly searching for sleep, and so sleepless, wake*ful*, comes the equally classical ayounveiv, to be sleepless, found in several passages of the Septuagint and the New Testament. Thus Ezra viii. 29, aypunveire kai τηρείτε έως στήτε κ.τ.λ. Psalm cii. 7, ήγρύπνησα καὶ ἐγενόμην ὡς (εγενήθην ώσει Β) στρουθίον κ.τ.λ. cxxvii. 1, είς μάτην ήγρύπνησεν ό φυλάσσων. Prov. viii. 34, άγρυπνών έπ' έμαις θύραις καθ ήμέραν. Song v. 2, εγώ καθεύδω, καί ή καρδία μου άγρυπνεί. Mark xiii. 33, βλέπετε, αργυπνείτε. ίνα μ. χ.] Depends upon πείθεσθε...και ύπείκετε.

άλυσιτελές] Only here in the Greek Bible. But λυσιτελεί in Luke xvii. 2, λυσιτελεί αὐτῷ εἰ λίθος κ.τ.λ. And λυσιτελής, λυσιτέλεια, λυσιτελεΐν, in passages of the Apocrypha.

18. Προσεύχεσθε περὶ ἡμῶν] The şame request is made elsewhere. Rom. xv. 30, παρακαλῶ δὲ ὑμᾶς...συναγωνίσασθαί μοι ἐν ταῖς προσευχαῖς ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ πρὸς τὸν Θεόν. 2 Cor. i. 11, συνυπουργούντων καὶ ὑμῶν ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν τῆ δεήσει κ.τ.λ. Eph. vi. 18, 19, δεήσει περὶ πάντων τῶν ἀγίων, καὶ ὑπὲρ ἐμοῦ κ.τ.λ. 2 Thess. iii. 1, τὸ λοιπὸν προσεύχεσθε, ἀδελφοί, περὶ ἡμῶν, ἶνα κ.τ.λ.  $\eta \mu \hat{\omega} \nu$ ] It is often a doubtful question 'whether this use of the plural really includes others besides the writer. See, for instance, the 2nd Epistle to the Corinthians, where the interchange of I and we is too constant to be always significant (for example, chapters x. and xiii, throughout). And here, the plural  $\pi \epsilon \iota \theta \dot{\omega} \epsilon \theta a$  becomes the singular  $\pi a \rho a \kappa a \lambda \hat{\omega}$  in the next verse.

πειθόμεθα γάρ] I can ask your prayers, because I have no misgiving as to my own sincerity of purpose and consistency of life. Without this it would be hypocrisy to invite the intercession of others. The same thought is seen in two other passages. 2 Cor. i. 12 (following the request for the help of intercession), ή γαρ καύχησις ήμων αυτη έστίν, τὸ μαρτύριον τῆς συνειδήσεως ήμων κ.τ.λ. I John iii. 22, καὶ δ ẩν αἰτῶμεν λαμβάνομεν άπ' αὐτοῦ, ὅτι τὰς ἐντολὰς αὐτοῦ τηρούμεν κ.τ.λ. For πειθόμεθα in the sense (nearly) of  $\pi \epsilon \pi o \epsilon'$ θaμer, see Acts xxvi. 26, λarθάνειν γαρ αυτόν τούτων ου πείθομαι οῦθέν.

καλήν] We have καλή with συνείδησις only here. Elsewhere ἀγαθή (Acts xxiii. I. I Tim. i. 5, 19. I Pet. iii. 16, 21), καθαρά (I Tim. iii. 9. 2 Tim. i. 3), ἀπρόσκοπος (Acts xxiv. 16).

19.  $\pi \epsilon \rho \iota \sigma \sigma \sigma \tau \epsilon \rho \omega s$ ] For the word, see note on ii. I. Whether it here goes with  $\pi a \rho a$ - $\kappa \lambda \omega$  or with  $\pi o \iota \eta \sigma a$  is uncertain and immaterial. This verse proves of itself (I) that there was no intended concealment of the authorship of the letter from its readers, and (2) that the writer stood in some established relation to them, at least of acquaintance and intercourse, if not of pastoral supervision.

άποκατασταθώ] For άποκαθιστάναι (τι or τινά τινι, or with ἀπό, εἰs, ἐν, ἐπί, or πρός), 800 Psalm xvi. 5, σὺ εἶ ὁ ἀποκαθιστῶν τὴν κληρονομίαν μου ἐμοί. Mal. iv. 6, ὅς ἀποκαταστήσει καρδίαν πατρὸς πρὸς υἱόν κ.τ.λ. ἀc. Matt. xvii. 11, Ἡλίας μὲν ἔρχεται καὶ ἀποκαταστήσει πάντα. Mark iii. 5, καὶ ἀπεκατεστάθη ἡ χεἰρ αὐτοῦ. viii. 25, καὶ ἀπεκατέστη κ.τ.λ. &c.

20. Ο δε Θεός της ειρήνης]

For this combination see also Rom. xv. 33. xvi. 20. 2 Cor. xiii. 11 ( $\tau\eta$ s  $\dot{\alpha}\gamma\dot{\alpha}\pi\eta$ s kai  $\epsilon\dot{\epsilon}\rho\eta\prime\eta$ s). Phil. iv. 9. 1 Thess. v. 23. 2 Thess. iii. 16 ( $\dot{o}$  Kúριos  $\tau\eta$ s  $\epsilon\dot{\epsilon}\rho\eta\prime\eta$ s). o àvayayúv] Who brought up (not back). I Sam. ii. 6, Kúpios  $\theta$ avaroî kal ζωογονεî, karáyει εἰς ặδου καὶ ἀνάγει. Rom. x. 7, τἰς καταβήσεται εἰς τὴν ἄβυσσον; τοῦτ ἐστιν, Χριστὸν ἐκ νεκρῶν ἀναγαγεῖν. The word ἀνάγειν is specially applied in the Old Testament to the Exodus from Egypt. See Gen. l. 24. Lev. xi. 45. Num. xx. 4, 5. Josh. xxiv. 17. Jer. xvi. 14. &c.

τον ποιμένα τών προβάτων] Isai. lxiii. 11, 12, ποῦ ὁ ἀναβιβάσὰs ἐκ τῆς θαλάσσης τον ποιμένα τών προβάτων αὐτοῦ (omit B)...ὁ ἀγαγών τῷ δεξιậ Μωυσῆν κ.τ.λ. For the application of the figure to Christ, see Matt. xxvi. 31 (from Zech. xiii. 7), πατάξω τον ποιμένα κ.τ.λ. John x. 11, 14. 1 Pet. ii. 25.

ence to the entrance of the high priest into the holy of holies on the day of Atonement. For èv aluari, as the protecting envelopement, the passport into the divine presence, see ix. 25. x. 19. Here first the blood which gives admission into the presence is spoken of as giving egress from death. The arrival in the heavenly presence for us in virtue of the atoning blood is here viewed in its start from the grave and from Paradise. It was in virtue of the availing sacrifice that Christ either left the tomb or reentered heaven.

alwríov] Now first made the epithet of  $\delta ia\theta \eta' \kappa \eta s$ . We have had alώrios before as the epithet of  $\sigma \omega \tau \eta \rho (a \ (v. 9), of$  $\lambda \dot{v} \tau \rho \omega \sigma i s \ (ix. 12), of \kappa \lambda \eta \rho or o \mu i a (ix. 15).$

τον κύριον ήμῶν Ίησοῦν] Added with solemn emphasis, to mark the abiding relationship to us of Him who inaugurated that relationship by death and resurrection.

iv παντί ayaθώ] In the matter of (in point of) every good thing. Like Philem. 6, ev επιγνώσει παντός αγαθού κ.τ.λ. The received text (with strong support) has  $\epsilon \nu \pi$ .  $\epsilon \rho \gamma \psi \dot{a} \gamma$ ., as Col. i. 10, έν παντί έργψ άγαθψ καρποφοροῦντες κ.τ.λ. See also 2 Thess. ii. 17, καὶ στηρίξαι ἐν παντὶ ἔργψ καὶ λόγψ ἀγαθψ. I Tim. v. 10, εί παντί έργω άγαθώ έπηκολούθησεν. 2 Tim. ii. 21. iii. 17. Tit. i. 16. iii. 1. The commonness of the phrase (with  $i\rho\gamma\phi$ ) may be somewhat against it here.

ποιήσαι...ποιών To do His will, doing in us, &c. The English ought to follow the Greek in marking the repetition of the word. The Authorized Version (followed here by the Revised) has to do His will, working in you, dc., just as in Phil. ii, 13 (o everywe ev υμίν κ. τ. θ. και το ένεργείν) it has which worketh in you both to will and to do, dcc. (There the Revised Version has preserved the peculiarity of the Greek.)

ποιῶν] An impossible reading, αὐτῷ before ποιῶν, is found in the Sinaitic and Alexandrine manuscripts. It is conjectured that it may be a corruption of ένώπιον αὐτοῦ διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, ῷ ἡ δόξα εἰs τοὺs αἰῶναs· ἀμήν.

Παρακαλώ δε ύμας, άδελφοί, ανέχεσθε τοῦ

iv  $\eta \mu \hat{\nu}$ ] This is the reading of the Sinaitic,  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{\nu}\nu$  of the Alexandrine. The greater difficulty of  $\eta \mu \hat{\nu}\nu$  (after  $\dot{\nu}\mu\hat{a}s$  above) may be in its favour.

τὸ εὐάρεστον ἐνώπιον αὐτοῦ] The phrase elsewhere has a simple dative (Rom. xii. 1. xiv. 18, εὐάρεστος τῷ Θεῷ. 2 Cor. v. 9. Eph. v. 10, εὐάρεστον τῷ Κυρίφ. Phil. iv. 18), or is followed by παρά τινι (Wisd. ix. 10), or stands absolutely (Rom. xii. 2. Tit. ii. 9).

διὰ Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ] It is a little doubtful whether these words belong to καταρτίσαι ὑμῶς, or to ποιῶν, or to εὐάρεστον. The punctuation of the Revised (as well as of the Authorized) Version precludes the third, and would suit either of the first two constructions. I incline to the last. It is through Jesus Christ that anything is εὐάρεστον in the sight of God.

the object. In Gal. i. 5, Eph. iii. 21, Phil. iv. 20, 1 Tim. i. 17, 1 Pet. v. 11, Jude 25, and Rev. iv. 11. vii. 12. xix. 1, &c. the ascription is directly to God, with or without the addition of iv Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ or διὰ Ίησοῦ Χριστοῦ. In Rev. v. 13 the ascription is to God and to Christ. We are therefore absolutely free to be guided in each case by the context. And here we may well be contented to leave it in doubt, remembering John x. 30, έγω και ό Πατήρ έν έσμεν.

 $av \epsilon \chi \epsilon \sigma \theta \epsilon$ ] The active 22. voice of avéxer, to hold up or to hold back, occurs in the Septuagint in Amos iv. 7 (καὶ ἐγὼ ανέσχον έξ ύμων τον ύετον) and Hagg. i. 10 (δια τοῦτο ἀνέξει ό ούρανος από δρόσου). The use of  $dv \in \chi \in \sigma \theta a$ , to hold oneself upor back with regard to (from) any one, to refrain from, to bear with, or bear, is frequent both in the Septuagint and the New Testament, absolutely, or with a genitive, or with  $\epsilon \pi i$ TLVL. For example, Isai. xlii. 14, μή καὶ ἀεὶ σιωπήσομαι καὶ ανέξομαι; lxiii. 15, ποῦ ἐστὶ τὸ πληθος τοῦ ἐλέους σου...οτι ανέσχου ήμων; lxiv. 12, και έπι πασι τούτοις ανέσχου, Κύριε, και έσιώπησας κ.τ.λ. 23.  $\gamma \nu \nu \omega \sigma \kappa \epsilon \tau \epsilon$ ] Know. Imperative. I bid you know. Gal. iii. 7,  $\gamma \nu \nu \omega \sigma \kappa \epsilon \tau \epsilon$  åpa  $\kappa . \tau . \lambda$ . These later verses might well be St Paul's, but there is nothing in them to contradict the general testimony of style and manner against that conclusion. The release of Timotheus from imprisonment has no evident bearing upon St Paul's history, remembering that in St Paul's latest letter he is only inviting Timotheus to Rome, with no indication of what will befall him there.

τάχιον] At all quickly. The comparative in the sense of somewhat is too common to need illustration. See John xiii. 27, δ ποιεῖς ποίησον τάχιον.

The text would obviously be consistent with the idea that the persons in question were Italians who had accompanied the writer of Epistle to some other the country. But its more natural suggestion would be that he writes from Italy, and speaks of the Italian Christians surrounding him. Perhaps one might infer with some probability that he did not write from Rome.

On iii. 7 and ix. 8.

Καθώς λέγει τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἄγιον. Τοῦτο δηλοῦντος τοῦ πνεύματος τοῦ ἁγίου.

WE have here two of the strongest testimonies to be found in the New Testament to the Inspiration of the Old. At first sight all questioning on the subject might seem to be precluded. Further reflexion shows that this is not so. The word Inspiration itself is evidently a figure. It may be illustrated by another word. 'Inspiration' is a breathing into: 'influence' is a flowing into: neither word is selfexplanatory; the former, like the latter, may clearly admit of degrees and modifications.

The word Inspiration occurs twice in the English Version of the Bible. 'But there is a spirit  $(\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu a)$  in man: and the inspiration  $(\pi\nu\epsilon\eta)$  of the Almighty giveth them understanding' (Job xxxii. 8). 'All scripture is given by inspiration of God ( $\theta\epsilon\dot{\alpha}\pi\nu\epsilon\nu\sigma\tau\sigma$ s), and is profitable for doctrine,' &c. (2 Tim. iii. 16). In the one passage instruction is the chief thought, in the other edification. The word occurs twice also in the Prayer-Book. 'Grant to us Thy humble servants, that by Thy holy inspiration we may think those things that be good,' &c. (Collect for the fifth Sunday after Easter.) 'Cleanse the thoughts of our hearts by the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit, that we may perfectly love Thee,' &c. (Collect in the Communion Service.) In both these sanctification is the end in view. Definition is still wanting.

In several passages of the Epistles (as, for example, Rom. xv. 4, and 2 Peter i. 20, 21) strong terms are employed to describe the objects and uses of Old Testament Scripture as a whole, and its source in the agency of the Holy Spirit. Nothing can be more inclusive than St Paul's  $\delta\sigma a \pi\rho o \epsilon \gamma \rho \dot{a}\phi\eta$ , nothing more emphatic than St Peter's  $\epsilon \lambda \dot{a}\lambda \eta \sigma a \nu \dot{a}\pi \delta \Theta e v \ddot{a}\nu \theta \rho \omega \pi o \iota$ . Yet definition is still wanting alike of the word and of the thing.

Theories of Inspiration have been many, but it is not in conjecture or in reasoning that our idea of it should be sought. The only true view of Inspiration will be that which is the net result of a lifelong study of Scripture itself, with all freedom in registering its phenomena, and all candour in pondering the question, 'What saith it concerning itself?'

It is easy to see (and the Church of the present day is honest in avowing it) that the real truth must lie somewhere between two extremes—the extreme of verbal inspiration on the one side, and the extreme of a merely human composition . on the other.

I. Against the idea of a verbal inspiration of Scripture we are warned by many considerations. Amongst these we may place—

(1) Its utter unlikeness to all God's dealings in nature and grace. 'Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom'-freedom, not bondage-freedom, not rigidity.

(2) The language of the New Testament as to the difference between 'letter' and 'spirit,' between  $\gamma \rho \dot{a}\mu\mu a$  and  $\pi\nu\epsilon\hat{\nu}\mu a$ —the deadness of the one, the power of the other. As soon as Inspiration itself is tied to the clause and the sentence, to the precise shape and form of the utterance and the black and white page of the written or printed book, it too is turned from the  $\pi\nu o\eta$  into the  $\chi\epsilon\iota\rho \delta\gamma\rho a\phi o\nu$ , and has lost the very  $\phi o\rho a$  of the Spirit which made it a  $\pi\rho o\phi\eta\tau\epsilon ia$ (2 Pet. i. 21).

(3) Such passages, for example, as the opening verses of St Luke's Gospel, which speak only of diligent research and a thoughtful judgment as his guides in composing; or St Paul's expressions in the 7th chapter of his first Epistle to the Corinthians, as to his speaking not always with authority but sometimes in the tone of suggestion and advice; or again, St Peter's remarks upon the Epistles of St Paul, which in the same breath he describes, by clear implication, as 'scriptures,' and yet characterizes with a freedom which would be irreverent and almost impertinent if each line of those 'scriptures' had been verbally inspired.

(4) The observation of differences of style and method between one Scripture writer and another; the employment, for example, by one of irony and sarcasm, by another of no weapons but those of simplest persuasion.

(5) The fearful importance attached to each reading and each rendering of each verse and clause of Scripture, if one was, and another was not, the very word dictated or the very thought breathed from heaven.

(6) Also the utter grotesqueness of such an idea as the revelation of science, whether astronomy, geology, or ethnology—which yet there would have been if, where such subjects are involved, the phrases and the sentences had been literally and verbally inspired of God; implying an anticipation, perhaps by many centuries, of discoveries for which God had made provision in His other gift of reason, and which it would have been contrary to all His dealings thus to forestall. 'Man's extremity is God's opportunity:' that which He had given faculties for finding out in time, He would not interpose, before the time came, to precipitate. (7) The terrible risk to mankind of pinning down the faith to statements utterly indifferent to spiritual profiting, which yet, if philosophically accurate, must for whole ages bear the appearance of error. And who shall guarantee the Bible, even if accurately written up to the science of the 19th century, from being condemned by the science of the 20th?

II. If such are the confusions and contradictions of the one extreme, the other extreme is yet more perilous. The practical elimination (now so common) of the divine element in Scripture is fatal in every sense to its inspiration.

(1) It reduces Scripture to the level (at best) of works of human genius; and, when this is done, makes the question, for each book, a comparative one, in which some books would be exposed to a disparaging judgment.

(2) It sends us back to human reasoning, which is on many topics (such, for example, as immortality, forgiveness, and spiritual grace) human guessing, for all our information on things of gravest concern.

(3) It contradicts (a) express declarations of the New Testament Scriptures as to the divine authority of the Old, as well as (b) express assertion of divine illumination, promised and experienced, in the New Testament writers themselves.

(4) It does violence to the continuous doctrine of the Church of all ages, which has from the very first been express and peremptory in its view of the divinity of the Scriptures.

(5) It leaves us practically destitute even of a Revelation. Because, though there might be a revelation without an inspiration (that is, a Gospel of Christ, brought into the world by Him, and by Him communicated to His Apostles, and by them to after ages, without a separate inspiration of the writers of its records), yet, as a matter of fact, it is by Scripture that we test our Revelation, and that which shakes the authority of Scripture shakes the certainty of the Revelation which Scripture enshrines.

III. Between these two extremes lies somewhere the very truth itself about Inspiration. It would be arbitrary to define it so precisely as to unchristianize those who cannot see with us. That there is both a human and also a divine element in the Bible is quite certain. Some things we may say with confidence.

(1) Inspiration left the writer free to use his own phraseology, even his own mode of illustrating and arguing.

(2) It did not level the characteristic features of different minds. No one could imagine the Epistle to the Galatians written by St John, or the Epistle of St James written by St Paul.

(3) It did not supersede the necessity of diligence in investigating fact, nor the possibility of discrepancies in recording them; though it is more than probable that most or all of these would be reconciled if we knew all.

(4) While it left the man free in the exercise of all that was distinctive in his nature, education, and habits of thought, it communicated nevertheless an elevation of tone, an earnestness of purpose, a force and fire of holy influence, quite apart and different from that observable in common men.

(5) It communicated knowledge to the man of things otherwise indiscoverable, and also to the writer of things which it was the will of God to say by him to the hearer or reader.

IV. While we refrain from definition, it is our duty as Christians to form a high conception of the thing itself for which Inspiration is the name.

(1) Let us think what would have become of the  $\pi a \rho a$ - $\theta \eta \kappa \eta$  itself, under whichever or whatever dispensation, if it had been left to depend upon oral transmission.

(2) Let us give weight to the passages (some of them quoted above) which assert Inspiration in the strongest possible terms.

(3) Most of all, let us live so much in the study of Scripture as to acquire that reverent and devout conception of it which is ever deepest and strongest in those who best know it. A Christian man able to treat the Bible slightingly would be a contradiction in terms.

On iv. 4 and 9.

Περὶ τῆς ἑβδόμης. ᾿Απολείπεται σαββατισμός.

The seventh day. A prominent feature of Judaism commented upon, as such, in jest or scorn, by heathen literature—is it anything, or is it nothing, to a Christian?

One day in seven, yet not the seventh day, is a marked day throughout Christendom. 'Holy day' or else 'holiday,' certainly a day by itself, distinct and different from the other six. In our country, in theory at least, and to a large extent in practice, one-seventh part of time is subtracted from competitive toil, under the popular title of Sunday.

This phenomenon, of the distinctness of the day, is of ancient date. We have even in Scripture the name of 'the Lord's day' (Rev. i. 10), and indications at least of a special regard for it, both in Asiatic and European Churches, for purposes of worship, communion, and charity (Acts xx. 7; I Cor. xvi. 1). It is Pliny's stato die in his letter to Trajan from Bithynia, A.D. 104. Justin Martyr, 50 years later, describes its congregations and communions. Tertullian, 50 years later still, speaks of its solemnities as independent even of persecution. As a Christian institution no one challenges it: the question remains, Is Sunday the Sabbath?

Two of St Paul's Epistles (Gal. iv. 10; Col. ii. 16) seem to disparage the Sabbath.

II.

He is there cautioning Gentile Christians against imposing upon themselves the yoke of Judaism. All that was Jewish in the Sabbath they must eachew. But the question is still open, Was there nothing else in it?

We turn to the Old Testament, and there (if we are to read it as it stands) we find the Sabbath in existence before the law of Moses was given. There is more than an intimation of the ordinance and its groundwork in the second chapter of the Bible (Gen. ii. 2, 3). The existence of the Sabbath is presupposed in the rules of the manna (Exod. xvi. 23). There is something then in the Sabbath which is not Jewish.

We reach the Decalogue. We have there a transcript of the fundamental principles of human duty. First the recognition of the unity, the spirituality, and the sanctity of God. Then the assertion, in precept and prohibition, of such primary duties as those of subordination, reverence for life, purity, honesty, truth, contentment. Embedded among these stands, 'Remember the Sabbath day.' In a list of moral, not positive, precepts how did this command ever find a place if there be not a fundamental and universal principle in it?

That principle is twofold. (1) Man's need of a periodical rest. (2) The religious character of that rest. It lies deep in the bodily, mental, and spiritual constitution of man's nature as God created it.

Several reasons are given for it in the Old Testament. Three of these are found in various versions of the Fourth Commandment in Exod. xx. and Deut. v.

(I) It is a memento of Creation. 'God rested—rest thou. Rest from the feverish unrest of a perpetual doing. Rest from the toils, the plannings, the acquisitions, the ambitions, of a life of sense and time. Rest in the rest of God.'

and the second of the second o

(2) It is a commemoration of Redemption. 'God brought thee out of Egypt: therefore He gave thee His Sabbath. Thou must have time to think over His mercies. There is a spiritual Egypt too, and a spiritual redemption. Let thy Sabbath be a weekly Easter.'

(3) It is an ordinance of divine humanity. 'That thy servants and thy cattle may rest as well as thou. Let all factitious differences on one day be forgotten, and let the real brotherhood be seen in the light of God.'

(4) It is a sign between man and God. This thought is repeated again and again in Ezek. xx. 'God comes to-day into thy world, stops the wheels of the self-life, and makes thee to remember that He is the Lord.'

(5) It is a designed anticipation of heaven. 'That resting from labour foreshadows the saints' rest in God. There remaineth a  $\sigma a\beta\beta a\tau \iota \sigma \mu \delta s$  for the people of God —foretaste it now.'

In which of all these ways is the Sabbath superfluous? Our Lord Himself, while He claimed authority over the Sabbath, and while He swept away from it every relic of harshness and bondage, yet expressly declared it 'made for man' (Mark ii. 27).

But it would contradict history to assert the identity of Sabbath and Sunday. There is no evidence whatever of an express or formal change of day. Jewish Christians for years doubtless observed both. Gentile Christians never knew a Sabbath. Probably the Christian converts at first needed none—all days were Lord's days. A large proportion of the first converts were slaves: the gentlest of masters (I Pet. ii. 18) would not permit a day of inaction.

Nevertheless there was a promise—the Church has too often failed to realize its significance—applicable to this as to every subject, 'Lo, I am with you alway.' As the Church became more and more a settled resident in the world, it needed more and more the counteracting influence of that 'periodical religious rest' which is the principle of a Sabbath. Then the adapting power (the real  $\kappa \nu \beta \epsilon \rho \nu \eta \sigma \iota s$ ) of the great Head of the Church guided her to invest more and more the new Sunday with all that was of essential value in the old Sabbath. Without any formal change of day, or any dogmatical reinstitution of the Sabbath of the Decalogue, the Church was influenced by the Holy Spirit to make her Lord's day in some degree sabbatical, and so to increase its consecrating influence upon a society constrained to have the world, whether of business or of society, too much with it.

Whatever our idea of the particular steps and stages of its history, we at all events are placed by God's Providence in possession, for use or abuse, of a day which is at once Sabbath and Sunday. Who shall deny its beneficent action, so far as it prevails, upon our national and individual life? Who does not see in it a gift of God, define it as you may?

The responsibility lies upon all of us of getting from it, for others and for ourselves, all the good of which it is capable. To make it attractive, above all to the young—this is one duty: to make it profitable, this is another and a higher duty still. For others, 'judge not, that ye be not judged.'

Διὰ τοῦ καταπετάσματος, τοῦτ' ἔστιν τῆς σαρκὸς αὐτοῦ.

'What do we not owe to the Incarnation of Jesus Christ? A vague, impalpable, intangible thing, to the carnal, unspiritual, fallen man, is the pure and glorious Divinity. No man, Scripture says, hath seen God at any time<sup>1</sup>: no man, Scripture says again, hath seen or can see Him<sup>3</sup>: we know that He is, and that He is great and good, Omnipotent and Omnipresent—but what of that? I am not great and good —how can I draw nigh to Him?

'Well then, God knew this difficulty, this inaccessibility of the Infinite to the finite—and what has He done? Look again at that Veil. You may think that it divides, but it really forms a link between you and your God. That Veil, that Curtain, is the Humanity of Jesus Christ. He took our nature upon Him, that in it He might feel, that in it He might be tempted, that in it He might suffer, that in it He might die. Draw nigh to Him in it—approach the Veil which is His Flesh, and you will be at the very door, on the very threshold, of the Heaven of the Invisible and the Selfexistent. Push aside that Veil—or rather, enter through it, through Jesus Christ as made for you very Man—and you are in God's Presence at once. That august shrine and presence-chamber which only one man could see in each generation—he only once a year, he only in figure and type—you can enter, not familiarly indeed, yet boldly, without concealment, without a secret, as often as you will, in the Blood of Jesus, and through the Veil which is His Flesh.

'I said indeed that every Christian man is a high priest. It is so. Scripture says this in plain words here. But it is not that he takes Christ's place. He is not his own high priest in the sense in which Christ is the High Priest of man. No. He takes Christ's Blood with him when he goes So far Christ is the Victim, the Sacrifice, once offered, in. never again to bleed or suffer or die, long as the world stands, long as eternity endures. But the 21st verse says this:-You are not independent high priests, even with the Sacrifice, even with the Blood. No, you have still a High Priest-or rather, 'a great (mighty) Priest'-over the House of God. Ill were it for us if it were not so. Even the allsufficient Sacrifice would be none, unless the Divine Victim lived, unless the Divine Victim were also the Immortal Priest. It is the Life after death which gives efficacy even to the Death. It is the presence of the great Priest in Heaven which makes the entering of the Holiest possible for man below. Christ the Sacrifice is also Christ the Priest, Christ the Intercessor, and Christ the Life.

'Yes, we are well equipped and furnished for the divine life proposed to us. Then let us draw near. The original says, Let us keep drawing near. It is not one act to which we are called. It is a repetition, it is a perpetuity, of acts of approach. This is our life. To be always drawing near. In acts of worship-of public prayer and praise, of edification and communion. But not thus only. This House of God-beautiful, majestic, august as it is-cannot supersede the more spiritual one. The heart is the shrine. There then let us be drawing near. In the evening, and morning, and at noon-day, will I pray, and that instantly<sup>1</sup>. And at special times and seasons also. When I am in heaviness, in loneliness, in sorrow. When I feel myself neglected, outcast, spurned by those I love, then let me draw near to One who never despises. And when the tempter is very near to me-when I hear his footstep, when I feel his breath, when he whispers to me, It is written<sup>3</sup>-Thou shalt not surely die<sup>s</sup>-then let me draw nigh. Satan never passes that Veil, which is the Flesh of Christ. He remembers too well, too vividly, what he suffered from it once below: the bruising of the head<sup>4</sup>, once received from it, is never forgotten. Take with you the Blood, pass within the Veil-Satan will not follow you. And when death approachesthen more literally, then above all-draw near with a true heart, and you shall find rest for ever"."

Ούκ έσμέν ύποστολής κ.τ.λ.

The phrase to draw back gives the idea of withdrawal, of refusal, almost (in this connexion) of apostasy. But the word  $\dot{\nu}\pi\sigma\sigma\tau\sigma\lambda\eta$  has a subtler meaning. It is a word expressive not of the cowardice of open flight, but of the caution which would avoid and evade a danger. We have an English word for either notion. The one is to draw back, the other is to draw in. The Greek and the English are alike nautical phrases, descriptive of the taking in or shortening sail which guards against a coming storm. It is what St Peter did at Antioch, when, on the arrival of a party of Jewish Christians from Jerusalem, he  $\dot{\nu}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\sigma\tau\epsilon\lambda\lambda\epsilon\nu$   $\dot{\epsilon}a\nu\tau\dot{\circ}\nu$  (Gal. ii. 12), exercised, that is, a prudential reserve, and gained time for further thought by taking up a neutral and ambiguous position.

'We are not of them that draw in. We are not men of reserve and caution and temporizing. We are not men who look this way and that way, calculating the effect of our acts or the probable reception of our words, before we shape our conduct or before we give an answer as to our faith or hope. I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus: henceforth let no man trouble me with suggestions of compromise or alarms of consequences<sup>1</sup>. I have taken my side.

'There is a Christianity prevalent within the Christian body---its name is legion---of which the characteristic feature is just this  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi o\sigma\tau o\lambda \eta$ , this drawing in, of which the text speaks. It is a Christianity of caution. In its most obvious form, it fears the reproach of Christ. In this shape, its home is where humanity congregates-in schools and colleges, in houses and offices of business, in workmen's shops and gentlemen's clubhouses. But it has other shapes too. Sometimes it is the result of doubt. It has dabbled in scepticism. It has heard, it has read, that the text of Scripture is uncertain, that the science of Scripture is antiquated, that the Christian evidences are inconclusive. It has not the capacity for settling questions-any fool can stir them. It takes refuge in suspense for itself, and in silence towards outsiders. Or again, its motive is the dread of hypocrisy-that English instinct of honesty-that just misgiving of the humble soul, lest haply, in the long vista of the future, something should make havoc of its faith or of its morals, and then it should be the worse for it to have been once a Christian.

'Whatever its motive, this  $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\sigma\sigma\tau\sigma\lambda\dot{\eta}$  has some common features of mischief.

'It withholds from the stock of Christian evidences its own quota of faith and example. This is a serious thing. For the aggregate of Gospel wealth in the world is largely made up of the contributions of individual believers. To draw in is to impoverish the treasury. It is to subtract so many items from the sum total of Christian power upon the hearts and consciences of mankind.

But it has a terrible reaction upon the man himself. Not for nothing does the text add  $\epsilon is \dot{\alpha}\pi \omega \lambda \epsilon i a\nu$  to the word  $\dot{\nu}\pi \sigma \sigma \tau \sigma \lambda \eta$ . It is bad, it is injurious, it is at last fatal to the man, to have lived this life of religious reserve. Were it but the suppression of truth, it might be of near kin to falsehood. There is a hypocrisy of dissembling quite as real as the more vulgar hypocrisy of pretending. It is an untruthful thing to try to pass for that which you are not, even if that for which you try to pass is worse than your real self. The effect is falsehood, whatever the excuse.

'Learn the importance to the cause of truth and good in the world, of being straightforward Christians. In this world-church and church-world of ours, we are bound to throw away reserve as to our convictions. Not by preaching, not by scolding, not by threatening, but by the quiet maintenance, in word and good example, of the  $\delta\mu\sigma\lambda\sigma\gamma\ell a$  which has the promise of two worlds, so, without ambiguity as without ostentation, let us walk in the light of the Lord<sup>1</sup>.'

This Series falls into two classes :

(1) First Reading Books for Beginners, provided not only with Introductions and Notes, but with Vocabularies, and in some Notes, but with Vocabularist, and in some cases with Exercises based upon the Text. (2) Stepping-stones to the study of par-ticular authors, intended for more advanced students, who are beginning to read such authors as Terence, Plato, the Attic Drama-ting and the background of Ginery Hamatists, and the harder parts of Cicero, Horace, Virgil, and Thucydides.

These are provided with Introductions and Notes, but no Vocabulary. The Publishers-have been led to provide the more strictly Elementary Books with Vocabularies by the representations of many teachers, who hold that beginners do not understand the use of a Dictionary, and of others who, in the case of middle-class schools where the cost of books is a serious consideration, advocate the-Vocabulary system on grounds of economy.

It is hoped that the two parts of the Series fitting into one another, may together fulfil all the requirements of Elementary and Preparatory Schools, and the Lower Forms of Public Schools.

The following Elementary Books, with Introductions, Notes, and Vocabularies, and in some cases with Exercises, are either ready or in preparation :

- LATIN ACCIDENCE AND EXERCISES AR-RANGED FOR BEGINNERS. By WILLIAM WELCH, M.A., and C. G. DUFFIELD, M.A.
